Exhibit At Community House

Currently on display in the Community House Parlors is an exhibit entitled "Sculpture '62." The thirteen pieces of work in this exhibit represent the achievements of students at Uconn who have labored diligently in the past two semesters under the guidance of Mr. Robert Kiley, instructor in the art department.

Representative of the sculptors' materials are the uses of stone, metal, plaster and wood. The students whose work is on display are Marilyn Anderson, Herbert Arnold, Norman Bernier, Judy Lewis, Geoffrey Myers, David Smalley and Robert Vitkus.

This display was arranged by the University Christian Fellowship with the help of Norman Bernier. This exhibit will continue till February 24. It is the first of two student exhibits this semester.

"The only alternative to increased student fees would be a change in the basic philosophy of state education." In making this statement Mr. John Evans, Fiscal Vice-President for Uconn, explained that the underlying policy of state supported higher education has been for the state to provide the academic facilities while the students maintain the costs of housing, food and auxiliary buildings such as the Student Union and the Commons.

At the present time students pay a general fee of $15.00 per credit or a maximum of $75.00 per semester which, according to the University catalogue "entitles them to make use of the facilities of the institution, gives them preferred treatment and reduced rates for admission to home athletic contests, to University convocations, to events in the University auditorium, and admits them to the Student Union Building." Thus the general fee is utilized to support non-academic buildings and services.

Residence Charge

On the basis of one semester, students also pay an average of $200.00 for meals, $100.00 for residence, and several miscellaneous fees amounting to between $10.00 and $30.00. The residence charge is divided into actual maintaining of the present buildings and covering the cost of bond issues for their construction.

"As it stands now, these fees are inadequate to cover the current expenses. Unless the state is willing to dip into its funds, the burden of constructing new dorms and athletic buildings must remain with the student."

Autonomy

A legislative subcommittee is deliberating on reports from state auditors concerning the condition of the Debt Services Account. Mr. Evans noted that "the autonomy of the University might be endangered if the committee sets a precedent by recommending an increase in Student Fees. The responsibility of making this decision has heretofore rested with the Board of Trustees. This is the first time, to my knowledge, that the legislature has set up a committee of this sort."

To clarify the issue it must be realized that students are not supporting the academic sector of the University. There is no tuition at Uconn. The state funds are used for teachers' salaries, classrooms, and supplies. Therefore, an increase in Student Fees will not produce a decrease in the taxpayers' load.

Fee Increase

Commenting on the much discussed increase, Mr. Evans remarked that "it is not a certainty this year. There are many people on the Board of Trustees and in the legislature who are dedicated to minimizing the cost to the student of a college education. However, we must be realistic about the demands of the current auxiliary program."

Rush Party Dates Tuesday, Wednesday

The dates for the Invitational Rush parties for the fraternities have been changed. Rush parties will be held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, instead of Wednesday and Thursday. This change was made to give more time to check the grades of the men rushing.

Tapping will be held on Monday, February 26. At this time all men who have received bids from the various fraternities will be pledged. Tapping ceremonies will take place in the HUB Ballroom. A list of all men receiving bids will be posted in the individual living units before Monday, and students receiving bids should check the list for their names.

Up to this time there will be no other rush period this semester. The next rush period will be in the fall. This, of course, is subject to change by the IFC.

'Steel And Velvet'

From the CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

The cold war is irritating and bewildering to many people. Now it's up, now it's down.

One moment President Kennedy talks to his press conference about "reducing tensions." Next moment Soviet MIGs coolly threaten air traffic in the Western air corridors to Berlin.

One day spies are exchanged across the East-West line. Next day a Communist pushes into another key position in Castro's Cuba.

The impatient, overwrought American wants to cry out to his fellows, "Wake up. They're hitting you. Stop talking about reduced tensions."

The American, alarmed by fallout, haunted by the problem of nuclear peace, wants to shout, "This is a period of thaw. Stop talking in military terms. Push for disarmament."

They are both wrong in our judgment, and it is exceptionally important to understand why.

To put the matter more boldly, if Americans would look sharply at their attitudes and reconsider them, they could make a very large and perhaps a determining contribution to their foreign policy.

The calm fact is that both strength and civility are needed for a successful foreign policy—both firmness and idealism, both the courage to defend independence and the wisdom to let the gentler virtues of the democratic idea shine out beyond American borders. And the distressing fact is that most people have a struggle fitting both sets of ideas together, and many cannot manage it at all.

It is too easy to say "be strong and ready to smite your enemies." It is too easy to say "be tolerant and patient and bring out the best in everyone." But any American foreign policy has to cope with a Communist power drive at one moment, and with overriding need to damp tensions down below the exploding point a few minutes later.

This explains a week in which the West refused to yield an inch in the air corridors of Berlin, and held its nuclear arms at the ready—and in which a courteous answer was sent to Mr. Khrushchev suggesting summit talks later in the arms control conference rather than at the beginning.

If an American expects his government to be responsible in dealing with war and peace, he can help by remembering that public responsibility starts with him and the shape of his attitudes.

A good guideline is the opening of Carl Sandburg's address to Congress on Lincoln: "Not often in the glory of mankind does a man arrive on earth who is both steel and velvet, who is hard as rock and soft as drifting fog, who holds in his heart and mind the paradox of terrible storm and peace unspeakable and perfect."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The intellectual McCarthyists, who rally under the name of Association of Thinking American Conservatives, are projecting a drive at attendance to the meeting which will be held at the Madison Square Garden in New York City on March. This meeting will feature not only Senator Barry Goldwater, but also such high-minded idealists as Moise Tshombe.

These modern McCarthyists, of whom Mr. George Johnson on this campus is apparently a member, would seek to preserve this nation from the evil machinations of the "commies" commie dupes and pinkies" who, according to these groups have such notorious fronts as the ACLU, NAACP, CORE, SNCC, SPU, NSA and the National Council of Churches, not to mention such outright groups as the ADA and the American Socialist Party. It is obvious to ATAC that the above groups seek to subvert us by such communist-tending programs as Social Security, Medical Care for the Aged, federal aid to education, and the arch enemy to freedom, graduated income tax! These ultra-conservative groups would seek the American pattern of life of such "communist plots" as academic freedom, free thought and free press. It never occurs to these people however, that their notions on freedom and personal liberty are best exemplified by Stalinist Russia.

Although we disagree with the ultra-rightists domestic policies, we must applaud their endeavors in foreign policy. These include; withdrawing from the UN, giving no foreign aid to neutrals, driving Tito back to the arms of Moscow, overthrowing the Castro regime in Cuba by force, supporting Katanga in the Congo, facing the Soviet Union on every issue with uncompromising nuclear showdown, and the support of such well-known champions of liberty and freedom as Franco, Salazar, Ngo Dgo Diem, Chiang Kai Shek and, until very recently, Trujillo, Batista, and Sigmon Rhee.

If we adopt their "well thought-out" program, the United States will "enhance its position in the Free World and insure world peace."

To The Editor:

Mrs. Pat Schockey and I wandered into the book store to perform our semesterly duty—buy books. As we moved toward the text book racks our strolling twosome became a cozy threesome. His apparent unconcern in our activities was belied by the fact that Pat bumped into him twice as she stepped back from the book racks and I found his expressionless face in front of me more often than book titles. He had a badge, a gun, and a silly uniform of some kind. As much as I enjoy Pat's companionship, I had the feeling that Perry Mason would have been a better choice.

In Wednesday's Daily Campus, it was pointed out that the book store was going to perform another invaluable educational service—place text books even further away from students. The manager felt that he was removing temptation—a form of "preventative medicine."

Many philosophers, sociologists, and psychologists believe that man is separated from his environment, isolated from his fellow man, and alienated from himself. With the segregation of books and students, so that the former could not be intimately and indecently fondled by the latter, even more progress has been made.

How did this unique situation arise? I suggest that the answer lies in the nature of the relationship between the student body and the book store. For some time, it has been common knowledge among the students that thefts were occurring. Most of the students simply didn't care, but a large minority were vicariously pleased. It would not take a complex poll to determine that most of the students feel that they are being gouged by their own book store. They know that the books are sold here for list price while at most universities the books are sold at 10 to 20 per cent less. They are even more indignant if they suspect that the profits are going to be funneled into a hotel on Route 195 (sans students).

Clearly, in many students' eyes. The book store is not operating for the benefit of the students. To clear up these misconceptions and re-establish good will, I suggest that the University book store:

(1) Not treat the student as a nervous fingered shopper who is benevolently protected for his own good.

(2) Make some (any) effort to return the profits of the book store directly back to the student.

To the Editor:

The Greek-letter element of our community is once again attempting to extend its way of life upon the "unenlightened." My recent awareness is brought forth by the large accumulation of trash, passed under my door during the past night. The very manner in which they proceed with this educational process is indeed indicative of their whole system . . . unoriginal and unimaginative. These are two of their most arduous traits. Nevertheless, one does it, so they all must.

In this analysis we find the essence of that grand and glorious Greek way of life. Ironically it is a category which was quite inadequately covered by such a wide assortment of mimeographed propaganda. It is from such errors of omission that I derive some justification for presenting an antithesis.

Rather than dwelling upon the more obvious virtues of fraternity livings, prestige, togetherness, security, discrimination, etc., suppose we restrict this discussion to the above mentioned criticism. Specifically, I refer to the lack of originality and imagination on the part of the Greeks. It is within this field that they have always been inherently lacking. The most they can lay claim to during the past year is the initiation of a certain select group of young ladies into the sacred threshold of a fraternity (the Little Sisters of Minerva).

It is unfortunate that their conception of progressivism can become so distorted. Surely this is not the type of equality that they ought to have been concerned with. There were several other avenues open to them, as there will be during this week of rushing, whereby the occasion arises for the members to consider prospective new members. However, their tradition, on which they rest their pride, has shown clearly that they are not interested in concerning themselves with the more important problems of the day. In this respect, they cannot be said to be a credit to their country.

On the intellectual plane, they claim to be vitally interested in improving the academic lives of their members. The most progress they can make in this field is through the practice of forced study hours, which some of the more "progressive" of the Greek-letter groups enforce upon their pledges. Yet they're still lacking in the sense of originality. Why couldn't one of them propose raising their academic standards to, perhaps 25 QPR? Why don't they use this as their criteria for discrimination? In this way they could be performing a service to both their members and the University. But no one really believes that they would; one cannot expect that sort of action from stagnant water.

The writers of their literature assume that the readers will be of an equally low intelligence. The average freshman is not the same as he was a few years ago. Entrance requirements have risen to a considerably higher level, moreover they will continue on this trend. The Greeks, by continuing on their vein, will find their membership on a decline—perhaps lose a few houses.

So, brothers, continue dumping your propaganda at the feet of potential status seekers, continue to pat yourselves on the back for espousing lip service to the ideals of brotherhood, equality, etc.; eventually you will reach the transition from the "Greek way" to the "American way."

School of Education Lists Requirements

A source of confusion and curiosity on the Uconn campus has been the School of Education. What are its requirements? How can a student be admitted and when? During an interview with Dr. Atkyns, Supervisor of Pre-Service Teacher Education, the preceding questions were asked, in the hope of informing future applicants.

The q.p.r. requirement is a cumulative of 22 or above, ordinarily. If a student applies for admission with a cumulative just below 22, the current grades are considered. If the grades are showing a steady upward trend, there is a good chance of admission. In any case, however, if the grades are going down, admission is not guaranteed, despite a 22 q.p.r. The student must have no lower than a cumulative of 22 q.p.r.'s to graduate.

Fourth Semester

The time to apply is in the fourth semester and admittance goes through the junior year. The student must have obtained the necessary amount of credits for the school he is enrolled in, and also must have completed the freshman - sophomore requirements for that school. The requirements are the same whether the student is considering either Elementary or Secondary Education. The only differences in that respect are the courses taken, once in the school.

Recommendations

When an application is submitted, the school must obtain recommendations from a University Physician, some of the student's professors, the Dean of Women and often from the Residence Counselor. A recommendation is always required from the chairman of the department in which the student's major lies. The applicant is then recommended by his would-be counselor in the School of Education, following an interview and evaluation. It is true that Scholastic Aptitude grades are checked, however the grades received during college are more important.

Complete Program

It is possible to take education courses without being enrolled in the school, but a student can only be recommended for certification if he graduates from the School of Education, after completing the program.

Dr. Atkyns felt it especially important to advise any freshman considering the School of Education that Psychology 131 is essential as a pre-requisite for many education courses.

CCC Theme Contest Open Now To Students; Prize Given Winner

The Campus Community Carnival, one of Uconn's major events, takes place this year on April 30. Beginning with a colorful parade consisting of floats built by campus living units, bands and marching units from surrounding areas, the CCC continues with the Midway, lasting throughout the evening.

Living units present booths on the Midway, giving varied entertainment in the carnival spirit. Planned and presented by the brothers of Alpha Phi Omega, the CCC is one of the few events which not only has campus-wide participation and enjoyment, but attracts many from off-campus as well. Proceeds are allocated to various local and national charity organizations by APO. The new Miss Uconn and her court are presented at the CCC, and many other special events and contests will take place.

Theme

Altogether, a new, bigger CCC is expected for this year. The theme for the carnival is up to you, the students. The theme contest winner will ride in the parade and receive two free entrance tickets to the Midway, and $2 worth of script tickets for Midway entertainment.

Keep in mind that the theme should be short, colorful, gay, and adaptable to the construction of many different floats and Midway booths. APO encourages and welcomes all your ideas.

"CCC in Disneyland" was last year's winning theme. This was the second most successful CCC in its 14-years history on campus.

Placement Office News

John E. Powers, Director of the University Placement Office, has received a letter of appreciation from Joseph H. Pendleton of the Class of 1961 who is now associated with the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Pendleton writes, "I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and your staff for the excellent manner in which you arranged on-campus interviews for myself and all the members of the Class of 1961."

"I would estimate that I had more than a score of interviews arranged through your office—which included some of the finest companies in the United States."

Dr. Norman Thomas To Speak On Socialists' Military Views

The University Christian Fellowship will present Dr. Norman Thomas Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the Storrs Congregational Church.

Dr. Thomas, noted author, lecturer and statesman, will speak on "Human Freedom and Military Power." Following his talk, there will be a reception in the Community House.

Dr. Thomas received his Litt D from Princeton in 1932. He has served as the associate editor of "The Nation," chairman of the Union for Democratic Socialism, and is the founder and editor of the "World Tomorrow." # Alumni Donate Money For Lab

The Connecticut Alumni Chapter of a national pharmaceutical fraternity has donated $1,000 to spruce up the University of Connecticut School of Pharmacy dispensing lab and help provide up-to-date instruction in drug store business techniques.

The gift from Alpha Zeta Omega will be used to install an intercom system and to purchase a tape recorder, refrigerator and portable typewriters.

The intercom system, which will involve 10 sub-stations and one master station, is designed to improve training in the use of the telephone as an important business instrument in the prescription department.

The tape recorder will be used by students to improve their voice projection in telephonic business communications. The refrigerator will hold drugs and chemicals, and the typewriters will be used in teaching prescription writing.

The gift was made possible through the efforts of five Hartford area pharmacists and represents the proceeds of a special symposium held by AZO last year.

Hungarian Leader Tries To Effect 'Spirit Of Togetherness' In Party

(AP)—If Communist Hungary's strong man, Janos Kadar, appears to be working some peculiar angles to effect a spirit of togetherness between his regime and the people, he is doing exactly that.

The Soviet tanks which crushed the 1956 revolution provided the instrument by which Kadar moved into power. A thorough-going disciple of Russian Premier Khrushchev, Kadar is attempting to project a new image of Hungary's Communist Party.

Primarily, the idea is to represent the party as having chastened and reformed itself since the uprising. Now the party wants the people to see it as a ruling body which is non-authoritarian, always prepared to seek the advice of non-communist citizens.

Also, the party wants folks to regard it as open and frank, freely able to admit its imperfections, tolerant, and no longer determined to ram communism down unwilling throats.

The entire campaign carries the hallmark of Kadar the party chief and prime minister, who had his hold strengthened by the anti-Stalin pronouncements of the recent 22d Soviet Party Congress. To promote his new line in efforts to woo the Hungarian people, Kadar uses the columns of the party's daily newspaper.

For instance, party functionaries have been portrayed as something less than the demigods they usually imagine themselves to be. The newspaper has berated them for their inefficiency, negligence, and similar failings.

These have been called unworthy of their party cards because they have failed in their prime duty, to serve the people.

Severe censure is now being soft-pedaled, or reserved for what is known in Budapest as "petty bonapartism" or high-handed behavior. Notice has also been served by the Hungarian Communist Party that members must rid themselves of the tough Stalin-esque pose and employ gentle persuasion to win the people.

Now concentrating on a "let's build the future together" theme, the campaign urges that non-communists be given greater opportunities to fill important posts, even ministerial jobs.

The party newspaper says: "The building of Socialism is not a matter only for Communists, but is the concern of all the people."

Another Communist journal is helping the campaign by emphasizing that the Reds are no longer interested in forcing their creed on non-believers. It puts it like this:

"Nowadays, you will not be called upon to lie about your creed. If you are bourgeois, don't say you are a believer in the Communist manifesto. No harm will come your way because of that."

Nevertheless, there are signs that this new approach is splitting the Hungarian Communist Party at the lower levels. This has produced some concern among rigid Stalinists who fear the trend may get out of hand. Some also are of the opinion that present policies could bring about a serious loss of prestige.

The party, however, is keeping a watch on its own right wing which may consider the time appropriate to clamor for revisionism, or Titoism.

However, the people seem to feel that communism will be their lot as the world is presently constituted.

Girls Meet Test:

Two Uconn Coeds On Peace Corps Roster

By CYNDY MURRAY

What kind of people join the Peace Corps? Why do they do it? For personal advancement, or for the privilege of helping others?

Two coeds at the University of Connecticut, Lucia Anzuini and Judy Beiszd, have been accepted into the Peace Corps Pool from which their names may be drawn to serve in the Corps.

A third student, Jean Bernard, has not yet received the results of the qualifying test that the three girls took together last October.

Education Major

Lucia, a sister of Delta Pi, is a Senior majoring in Education and in French. She is, "happy to know that I am under the consideration of the Corps."

"To me," she comments, "the Peace Corps has three purposes, to help in my own education, to enable me to see how others live; and then to help a new country get started."

She expresses no preference as to where she may be sent, as long as she can serve. She does hope to teach.

Judy, a pledge of Pi Beta Phi, said that the Peace Corps will allow her to do, "something worthwhile in which I can help others."

Contact With Outside

A Sophomore, Judy feels, that four straight years in a University situation tends to lessen contact with the outside world. Two years in the Peace Corps would give her studies added meaning.

If she receives an assignment, she plans to accept it, and to then return to a major in Social Psychology.

Judy says, "the Corps not only helps other countries, but also allows the U.S. to strengthen itself in the eyes of other peoples. It also enables Corps members to strengthen their own beliefs, while adding perspective to them."

Field Experience

Jean, who lives in Merritt A, is a Sophomore. Like Judy she feels that she would like field experience, before continuing her education. She, too, plans a major in social psychology.

"The Peace Corps," she says, "intrigues me, I love to travel; and I'd like to see the world. I don't want to be just a tourist, but also I'd like to live and work with people."

She applied to the Peace Corps rather than for summer study abroad, because the Corps aims specifically at living and working with people. Here she would be, "contributing to the world at large."

The examination which enabled the girls to be accepted into the Pool was preceded by applications and character references submitted to the Corps.

Administered in the Hartford

Post Office, the exam consisted of two parts. In the morning the general exam was given.

Applicants take a test of verbal ability, and are given a choice of tests in one of four fields including agriculture, health sciences, mechanical skills, and English.

The Verbal Ability Test measures verbal aptitude and the ability to understand the relation of words, and to comprehend.

For persons with farming experience, or classroom agricultural training, the agricultural test is offered.

The Health Sciences exam tests the applicants knowledge of first aid, his concept of disease, nutrition, and of public health.

Mechanical Skills are measured by mathematical and mechanical ability, as well as by practical application of these skills.

During the last hour of the morning session, applicants were allowed to take a second general exam or to take a Spanish or French proficiency test.

Judy comments that, "there were all sorts of people taking the tests—both college students, and older persons."

Afternoon tests are also required and include Modern language aptitude, U.S. History, and Institutions, and a section for the applicants biography, and his personal inventory.

For applicants in the field of secondary school teaching, morning tests may be taken in mathematics, chemistry, physics, bio-

Students Picket Capitol To Protest Use Of Bombs

Hundreds of college and high school students picketed the White House and Soviet embassy during a snowstorm and freezing weather in a plea for action to end the arms race. One sign read: "Our position: Disarmament with inspections and control." That's the White House position too.

More than 1,000 students already have registered in Washington and others are still arriving. Sponsors predict a total of 2,000.

The students call themselves "The turn toward peace youth council," and they're demonstrating in behalf of what they call the "peace race."

One group got as close as it could to the Russian embassy. Police regulations kept them 500 feet from the building.

Police had grouped their forces long before the students showed up. More than a dozen officers were stationed in front of the White House and 10 took up positions in front of the Soviet embassy.

The leaders of the demonstrating group—representing various national and regional organizations—called on U.S. officials. Others went to see their congressmen. The students also plan to contact all foreign embassies before winding up their demonstration with a rally tomorrow.

A spokesman says the group will concentrate most of its attention to opposing a resumption of U.S. nuclear testing in the air and an increased civil defense program.

Uconn Joins Group

Approximately 30 students from the Uconn chapter of the Student Peace Union left Storrs Thursday night at 10:30 p. m. on a chartered bus headed for Washington, D.C.

Protests Policies

The group was part of an expected 2,000 college students who journeyed to the nation's capital to protest the cold war policies of both the Western powers and the Soviet Union.

Pickets Embassies

The students visited various embassies, including that of the Russians, as well as the White House where they formed picket lines.

Summit Disagreement:*Between The Lines*By The Associated Press

The Soviet bid for a meeting of chiefs of states at the start of disarmament talks on March 14 at Geneva has remained a topic of importance on both sides of the Iron Curtain. The western allies have said "no" and the Russians have kept hammering that it would be a good idea.

Some of their comments are self-incriminating. One official organ says, for instance, that there is no sense waiting until the Geneva talks become snarled to engage in summit exchanges. It would be better, according to this Soviet publication, if the Allies got the conference going on the right foot from the beginning.

This is an argument which is difficult to understand. There is no reason at all why foreign ministers and lower-level diplomats cannot start working on a good foundation. Later, once a number of steps have been taken, it would be proper and desirable to hold a summit. The assembled leaders could ratify what was achieved and give impetus to further explorations.

The impression remains that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is more interested in the glamor and prestige of a summit meeting than in any fair solutions, solutions that would be acceptable to both sides.

It may also be that the Russians want to normalize relations without normalizing them. They may want an official end to the cold war, but without necessarily giving up their tactics of pressure, agitation and penetration.

The maneuver would be to make believe that things are better on the issue of peace and war. This could be achieved through tentative agreements of secondary importance. But Russia would retain its striking and blackmailing power in any event, and it would use the threat of this potential against timid nations.

What is needed today is a grand gesture, not spurious proposals on disarmaments, not slogans on peaceful existence, but a frank statement that Russia is ready to engage in honorable competition and will abandon distasteful tactics. That is all we have wanted in the past and it is doubtful that the two camps can proceed constructively unless this level is reached.

Weather Still Plagues U.S. Attempt To Orbit Astronaut John Glenn

Cape Canaveral, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Now it will be Tuesday at the earliest before Astronaut John Glenn makes his scheduled orbital flight from Cape Canaveral. Once again, the weather is the trouble. And before Glenn does make his flight, the entire countdown for both rocket and space capsule will be made again.

Despite all the delays Glenn is still scheduled to be the one who makes the flight. The personal physician to the astronauts, Dr. William Douglas, says Glenn still has complete confidence in the program, and Dr. Douglas says Glenn has shown no signs of tension that might affect his performance when he does go aloft.

Certain electronic parts of both the missile and capsule are due to be replaced, because they have been activated for test purposes in previous checks. Also, the attitude control system by which Glenn maintains his capsule's position may have to be replaced. The hydrogen peroxide in the jets of the system has a tendency to corrode the escape valves.

The weather plaguing Glenn includes rough seas in the emergency landing areas around Bermuda. In addition, a layer of broken clouds is being pushed over the Cape Canaveral launching site by a cold front.

logy or literature. Afternoon tests are the same as those for other applicants.

Lucia, and Judy, having passed these exams, are required to fill out an intensive questionnaire. Their names will be filed along with their abilities in an IBM machine.

When a position is to be filled for the Corps, the machine may suggest one of their names to travel to the far ends of the world. They are under no obligation to accept any position offered to them.

However, it seems that to these girls the Peace Corps would be a pleasure to work for; and not, at all, an obligation.

Labor Specialists To Start Program In Latin America

Chicago, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Edward R. Murrow announced today that the U.S. Information Agency is undertaking a new labor information program that involves sending labor information specialists to Latin America to combat Communism.

In a speech prepared for the American Management Association in Chicago, the USIA director said the mission of the USIA labor information specialists will be to promote understanding of the United States and preference for democracy.

The specialists will be assigned to major Latin American countries. He said nine of them will go to Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Murrow said the Latin American worker possesses unsatisfied aspirations for economic progress and social justice. He added:

"If the Latin American worker is not to be lost to the cause of freedom, our response in Latin America must be as bold and as big as the challenge we confront." He said the labor information officers will work closely with local workers, encourage democratic workers' organizations and improvement of living standards, teach free democratic trade unionism, and expose false Communist claims that the free enterprise system exploits the working class.

Murrow also reported USIA has had success in getting American businesses to supply their American representatives overseas with material enabling them to explain the United States and its policies to foreigners.

Jackie Receives Donations For Decorating Plan

Washington, Feb. 16 — (AP) — The White House says $134,000 in cash has been donated to help with the refurbishing of the executive mansion sponsored by Mrs. John Kennedy. The White House refuses to say who gave how much. The over-all figure was disclosed in connection with reports about donations related to Wednesday night's television showing of a tour personally conducted by the President's wife.

The Columbia Broadcasting System, which filmed the program, said it was considering a donation. The National Broadcasting Company, which also showed the program, said it heard nothing about a donation being required. American Broadcasting Company, which will show the program later, said it opposes such contributions.

In giving out the figure for cash contributions, White House News Secretary Pierre Salinger said nearly $121,000 of the money has been spent for objects of historic and artistic value that would not be obtained by donation.

He said the names of all cash contributors who did not object to being identified have been given out in various reports on the subject. Cash amounts were not shown in any of those lists, and Salinger said that practice will be continued.

About 240 paintings, articles of furniture and other objects have been donated. The names of many of the donors have been given out but there has been no effort to estimate cash value in the case of such gifts.

Foley Nets 56 Points As HC Routs Huskies

By NED PARKER

The Holy Cross Crusaders snapped an eight game Uconn winning streak Saturday night in Worcester as Jack "The Shot" Foley broke four scoring records in leading the Crusaders to the victory.

Foley netted 56 points in the 103 to 64 rout. This record bettered his old mark of 55 points in one game set two years ago as a sophomore against Colgate. The points came on 23 field goals and 10 charity throws. The 23 field goals also set a new Holy Cross record. The old one was 21 previously held by Foley.

Two Other Marks

Two other records were set by Foley in the high scoring second half. He scored 39 points breaking his own record of 31 and his 15 field goals in the last stanza broke a record of 11 previously shared by Foley and Togo Palazzin.

Percentages

Foley's percentage from the field for the game was an amazing 64 per cent on 23 of 36 shots. The Holy Cross team averaged a cool 52 per cent from the floor for the night. The Huskies were way off their usual shooting percentage as they swished the cords on only 24 of 66 shots for a low 36.3 per cent.

The loss was the fifth of the season for the Uconn against 13 wins while it boosted the Crusaders' record to 16-3. It was also the sixth straight loss to the Crusaders for the Uconn who have not been able to win since Foley stepped into his varsity shoes three years ago.

Last Time . . .

One consolation for the Huskies is that Saturday's game was probably the last time they will face the amazing Foley on the basketball courts.

The Huskies stayed with the Crusaders early in the game as Pete O'Connor did most of the shooting for Holy Cross. However, the Nutmeggers were missing most of their shots from the outside and were having difficulty working the ball inside.

At the 10 minute mark in the first half Holy Cross held a six point lead before they started to feed Foley. Then he hit on eight of 15 shots in the opening stanza, most of them in the final 10 minutes.

Behind the deadly shooting of Foley the Crusaders increased their margin to a comfortable 41-26 at half time.

In the second half it was all Foley. In the opening five minutes he scored 12 straight points increasing the Crusaders lead to 16 points.

At this point the game began to take on the looks of a complete rout for Holy Cross. Coach Frank O'Fring emptied his bench but left Foley in the game possibly sensing a record.

The Holy Cross team kept feeding the hot handed forward and with 1:51 minutes to go in the game he scored his 56th point to the wild roars of a partisan crowd of 3,000. Two free throws accounted for "The Shot's" 55th and 56th points.

When he left the court with but seconds to go the incomparable Foley got a standing ovation from the Worcester fans.

The only Uconn player that looked as if he really belonged on the court Saturday night was Gerry Manning. The 6'6" forward was the second highest scorer for the Huskies with 12 points, most of them on fine drive shots.

Ed Slomcenski led all Uconn scorers with 18 points in the game. He also was the leading rebounder with 12.

The Uconn missed the services of guard Andy Czuchry who left the hospital Saturday and is due to be back in classes on crutches today.

He is undergoing special treatments but Coach Hugh Greer was unable to say when Czuchry would be back in action. Czuchry was missed but he would not have made much difference in the final outcome.

By remaining out of the Yankee Conference action over the weekend the Huskies were plummeted to the third place spot in the conference ratings. The Uconn have a 5-2 record in YanCon play behind Rhode Island 6-2 and UMass 7-2.

The Rhody Rams kept on the comeback trail over the weekend with wins over New Hampshire and Maine Friday and Saturday night.

And the UMass Redmen increased their YanCon lead with a win over Vermont in Burlington Saturday night. They now have but one conference tilt to play, against New Hampshire.

The Huskies return to the conference scene Tuesday night when they travel to Orono, Maine for a contest with the Black Bears of the University of Maine.

Pups Lose To Crusaders In Sixth Loss of Season

The Husky Pups suffered their sixth setback of the season Saturday as they got no less mercy than the Uconn Varsity at the hands of the Holy Cross cagers.

5-6 Record

The Pups are 5-6 for the season while the win was the 16th for the little Crusaders against one loss.

Lloyd Hinchey and John Hayes sparked the Crusaders who were little less hot than their varsity counterparts. Hinchey netted 25 points while Hayes had 20.

Nevertheless, big Toby Kimball was the top scorer in the game with a total of 34 points in one of his finest performances of the season.

The Freshman game was much like the varsity contest. The Husky pups stayed up with the hot shooting Crusaders for the first ten minutes then Holy Cross opened up a substantial lead with a quick burst of scoring. At the intermission the Crusaders held a 10-point lead 42-32.

Then in the second half they burst the game open. The Pups fell behind by as much as 20 points before they closed the gap to 15 by the end of the game. The final score was 92-77.

Scorers

In addition to Hayes and Hinchey, Kehttel, Wendelken, and Cohane all hit double figures for the winners. Dick Whitney had one of his best nights for the Huskies scoring 14 points.

The next game for the Pups will be this coming Friday night when they play host to the Brown Freshmen.

Ohio St. Continues To Dominate: Increase Win Streak To Twenty

(AP)—Powerful Ohio State still stands head and shoulders over the rest of the collegiate basketball world. The top-ranked Buckeyes, who are the only undefeated major college team, ran their winning streak to 20 games by turning back stubborn Michigan State, 80 to 72.

Powers Bounced

While Ohio State and most of the other highly-rated teams were winning, two court powers, Oregon State and Duquesne, stumbled. Sixth-ranked Oregon State, who had piled up a 16-game winning streak, were halted for the second straight night by Washington, 73 to 61. Ninth-ranked Duquesne was humiliated by Dayton, 71 to 48.

Fourth-ranked Kansas State kept in the running for the Big Eight Conference title by trimming Oklahoma, 71 to 63. Bradley, the number five team, routed Chicago University, 69 to 39. Seventh-rated Duke polished off Navy, 91 to 72.

Miss. State Leads

Eighth-ranked Mississippi State took over undisputed possession of the Southeastern Conference lead with a 67 to 45 triumph over Florida.

And tenth-ranked Bowling Green automatically qualified for a spot in the Mid-East Regional NCAA tournament by clinching the Mid-American Conference championship with an 83 to 58 win over Ohio University.

Other Games

The Big Ten Conference scoring leader and champion the last two years, Terry Dischinger of Purdue, tossed in 45 points as the Boilermakers drubbed Illinois, 100 to 88 . . . Canisius jolted Villanova's aspirations for a post-season tournament bid, downing the Wildcats, 80 to 76.

Yale clung to the Ivy League lead by bouncing Columbia, 66 to 47 . . . And West Virginia handed Syracuse its 18th defeat of the season and 23rd in a row over two years, 86 to 72.

Marks Set In Big Track Weekend

(AP)—The world's record for the 100-yard dash has been equalled by Florida A&M University runner Robert Hayes. The 19-year-old sophomore, running in an invitational track and field meet at the University of Miami in Florida, sped the 100 yards in nine and two-tenths seconds.

That tied the mark set by Frank Budd of Villanova last June 24 at the National AAU Track and Field Meet at New York. Hayes was clocked in 9.2 by three official timers and was caught in nine and one-tenth seconds by two timers.

Not Sharp

Afterwards, Hayes said he thinks he will run nine seconds flat within two years, that is, providing he gets in shape. He said he didn't feel sharp in his record-tying effort.

Other Marks

Also five American indoor records fell and a sixth was tied in the Mason-Dixon Track and Field Games at Freedom Hall in Louisville, Kentucky.

Speedy Hayes Jones lowered the indoor mark in the 70-yard high hurdles two-tenths of a second to eight seconds flat in scoring his 27th consecutive indoor victory. Dave Styron tied the American indoor record of seven seconds flat in the finals of the 70-yard dash.

Women's Records

The other records were established by women in their companion meet, the National Indoor Women's AAU Track and Field Championships.

Leah Bennett ran the half-time in two minutes, 17.5 seconds to shatter the old mark by more than three seconds. Jo Ann Terry clipped two-tenths of a second off the low-hurdles record of 9.4 seconds.

440-Yard Relay

The Tennessee A&I 440-yard relay team was timed in 48.6 seconds, bettering the record by two-tenths of a second. And Suzanne Knott smashed the women's standard in the 440-yard run with a 58 and two-tenths seconds clocking.

The most heralded athlete of the meet, pole vaulter John Uelses failed to live up to expectations. Uelses, the only vaulter ever to clear 16 feet, was below par physically after a two-week bout with the flu.

Failed Three Times

He failed three times to clear 14 feet. Later, he tried an exhibition jump, but fell short of the bar and plunged to the front part of the wooden runway.

He apparently escaped serious injury. He fell about 15 feet. After lying motionless for several minutes, Uelses got to his feet and said he was feeling fine.

More Baseball Players Sign And Casey Announces Lineup

(AP)—With baseball's full-scale spring-training fast approaching, signed contracts are pouring into offices of the various major league clubs.

Yanks Sign

The New York Yankees had their number of unsigned players reduced to two with the receipt of satisfied contracts from catcher Elston Howard and third baseman Cletis Boyer. Howard led the world champions in batting last season with a .348 average.

Others

Among the others agreeing to terms were: second baseman Johnny Temple of Baltimore . . . pitcher Bennie Daniels of Washington . . . third baseman-first baseman J. C. Martin and rookie pitcher Frank Kruetzer of the Chicago White Sox.

Infielders Ernie Bowman, Chuck Hiller and Harold Lanier of the San Francisco . . . and catchers Hal Naragon and Jerry Zimmerman of Minnesota.

Unser to Manage

The Milwaukee Braves have announced that former major league catcher Al Unser has been signed to manage the Boise, Idaho, club in the Class C Pioneer League.

Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Mets has not yet met any of his players in spring training, but already he has his lineup figured out. In a special article written for the Associated Press, Stengel says he is counting on Frank Thomas for left field, Gus Bell in right field and Richie Ashburn in center field.

Infield Set

In the infield, the manager is planning to use Gil Hodges at first base, Charley Neal at second, Felix Mantilla at shortstop and Don Zimmer at third base. Hobie Landrith and Joe Ginsberg will do most of the catching.

Pleased with Mound

Stengel says he also is pleased with his pitching staff which includes Bob Miller, Craig Anderson, Roger Craig, Jay Hook, Al Jackson, Ray Daviault, Herb Mofford and Clem Labine.

In conclusion, Stengel says that he doesn't think the Mets will be a pushover in their first season in the National League.

Our future is in the hands of men not yet hired

At Western Electric we play a vital role in helping meet the complex needs of America's vast communications networks. And a career at Western Electric, the manufacturing arm of the nation-wide Bell Telephone System, offers young men the exciting opportunity to help us meet these important needs.

Today, Western Electric equipment reduces thousands of miles to fractions of seconds. Even so, we know that our present communications systems will be inadequate tomorrow; and we are seeking ways to keep up with—and anticipate—the future. For instance, right now Western Electric engineers are working on various phases of solar cell manufacture, miniaturization, data transmission, futuristic telephones, electronic central offices, and computer-controlled production lines—to name just a few.

To perfect the work now in progress and launch many new communications products, projects, procedures, and processes not yet in the mind of man—we need quality-minded engineers. If you feel that you can meet our standards, consider the opportunities offered by working with our company. In a few short years, you will be Western Electric.

Challenging opportunities exist now at Western Electric for electrical, mechanical, industrial, and chemical engineers, as well as physical science, liberal arts, and business majors. All qualified applicants will receive careful consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. For more information about Western Electric, write College Relations, Western Electric Company, Room 6206, 222 Broadway, New York 38, New York.
