Students Start Organization To Lower State's Voting Age

By Charles Corden

During this past summer, Joe Dolan, a sophomore and student senator at the Hartford Branch of Uconn, has established a state organization for changing the voting age to eighteen in Connecticut. The organization is entitled VOTES (Vindication of Twenty-Eight Suffrage).

Founded In 1961

The idea for forming such an organization, Dolan says, developed in 1961 while attending Weaver High School in Hartford. "When I first heard about this idea, I thought it was absurd," he stated. "But after two years of research beginning with my membership on the Weaver Political Affairs Association and then the founding of VOTES, I realized what an excellent cause it was." The research material, Dolan continued, has been obtained from various sources including the United Nations and the Governor's Office in Guam.

Joe Dolan is the founder and president of VOTES, Joline Breton, now on the Storrs campus, is the co-founder and secretary. The vice-president is Lou DiFazio, a student at Trinity College and former president of Connecticut Boys State and Boys Nation. The acting treasurer is Arthur Fournier, a student at MIT and past president of the Connecticut Junior Classical League.

Membership

Presently VOTES does not have a large membership, Dolan adds, since there has not been initiated an extensive membership drive. However, he hopes to get the drive going in a short while. The membership will be divided into three categories: (1) member-at-large; (2) active member at a high school post; and (3) college member.

Dolan continued by explaining briefly the internal set-up of the organization which in constitution form covers about 25 pages. The by-laws which were drafted by Joline Breton have been sent to Attorney General Coles and Secretary of State Grasso.

Ten Districts

"The state will be divided into ten districts," Dolan said, "and certain colleges will be headquarters for these districts. For example, Trinity College will be headquarters for the Hartford District while the University of Connecticut at Storrs will be headquarters for the Storrs District. The college headquarters will handle the communications and publicity for their respective districts. High schools will serve as posts in each district. The posts will have the same function as college headquarters but on a smaller scale."

In time, Dolan hopes to make the Hartford Branch the state headquarters for VOTES, making it a spotlight of attention and publicity.

First Public Convocation

This past August, the first public convocation of VOTES was held at the University of Hartford's Auerbach Hall. At this meeting, VOTES aired their views on why the voting franchise should be extended in Connecticut to those aged 18 through 20. Also at the meeting, John A. Berman, an attorney, spoke on the history of Teenage Suffrage and brought out the fact that citizens vote at 18 in Georgia, Kentucky, and Guam; 19 in Alaska; and 20 in Hawaii.

Convocation Successful

Joe Dolan considered the conconvocation a success. He says "John Alsop and Governor Dempsey sent us greetings as did the Mayors of Hartford and New Haven. Mrs. Helen Loy, Republican candidate for Secretary of State and State Congressman Sibal gave us their full support."

"Also Secretary of State Grasso gave us her approval of the convocation. All elected Connecticut Congressmen sent us their greetings in recognition. Furthermore, the Connecticut League of Women Voters and the Young Republicans Clubs each sent a representative to the convocation."

ONE Man Show: Metal Sculpturing

Sculpture in metal, one of the newer art forms, will be highlighted at the University of Connecticut Nov. 12, when the works of talented young Anthony Padovano are exhibited at the Uconn Fine Arts Center Gallery.

A recent addition to the University's Fine Arts School faculty, Mr. Padovano will display 12 of his sculptured pieces and a dozen of his drawings during the one-man show which runs through Nov. 30.

The Gallery will be open Mondays through Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Mondays through Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Prize Winner

Included in his exhibit will be "Sea Turbine," a metal sculpture which won for him a gold medal at a major international competition at Rome earlier this year. Two years ago the Brooklyn-born artist was awarded the Prix de Rome Fellowship for sculpture. This one-year grant was renewed and he spent two years in Italy, producing more than 60 major works in his unusual medium—metal and cement.

Mr. Padovano's sculptures, which were recently on exhibit at the Ruth White Gallery in New York City, drew praise from The New York Times and Herald Tribune.

"Mr. Padovano has a great gift for assembling strongly static giant works whose elements are balanced with a commanding authority. Mr. Padovano's sense of dignity, balance and power and his thorough knowledge of inner and outer space make him one of the finds of the young season," The Times reported.

Recently the 29-year-old Uconn instructor learned that he had been selected to show his works at the annual exhibition of drawing and sculpture of the Whitney Museum for American Art in New York City. His sculpture, "Thor," will be shown at the Whitney Museum from Dec. 12, 1962, to Feb. 3, 1963.

Mr. Seeber To Present Piano Recital In VDM

Leonard Seeber, a University of Connecticut music professor and a distinguished performing artist, will give a piano recital next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the University's Von der Mehden Recital Hall.

Mr. Seeber's recital, which is sponsored by the Music Dept. of the Uconn School of Fine Arts, is open to the public at no charge. It is the second of 20 public performances listed this season by the Music Dept.

A highlight of the program will be Mr. Seeber's interpretation of a sonata by Arnold Franchetti, head of the Composition Dept. at Hartt College of Music in Hartford.

The piece was composed in 1953 by Mr. Franchetti, whose talent has earned him an international reputation, and major grants from the Guggenheim Foundation and the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

Mr. Seeber, whose concert activities in Connecticut include scores of recitals and solo performances with major symphonies and chamber ensembles, will also perform Beethoven's "Sonata, Opus 110 in A-Flat Major," Schumann's "Papillons," and Bartok's "Sonata for Piano."

The Uconn pianist, who has pioneered in contemporary American music festivals, has teamed up with Raymond Hanson for a series of more than 50 two-piano recitals on television.

As a member of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra's Education Program, Mr. Seeber performs and lectures before thousands of Connecticut school children each year. He has also given piano recitals in the major cities of the East.

Guidance Confab First For State

Guidance counseling as a tool to help retarded youth will be evaluated Monday when the University of Connecticut holds the State's first conference on this unusual venture in special education.

Some 120 guidance counselors, psychologists and rehabilitation workers from across the State have signed up for the one-day workshop which will offer closed-circuit television demonstrations and discussions of current theories and problems.

The workshop is co-sponsored by the Uconn School of Education, the Office of Mental Retardation, the Connecticut State Department of Health and the Cerebral Palsy Assn. Co-directors are Drs. Thomas Mahan and Frank

Volkov To Speak:

MR. LEON VOLKOV, Soviet Affairs experts for Newsweek Magazine, will give a lecture this evening at 8 p.m., entitled "Russia and the United States." The talk, to be given in the Student Union Ballroom, is sponsored by the Student Union Board of Governors Cultural Committee. Admission is free.

The Volkov lecture will be the first of a series sponsored by the Committee and dealing with world problems. The series will continue throughout the school year with such noted speakers as John Carlson on November 28, and William Beaulac on February 14.

No Vote At 18

Every so often (about every time elections loom) some of our younger generation revive the drive to lower Connecticut's voting age to 18. This time a Uconn student is heading the push.

There is no need to belabor the age-old point of how important the right to vote is. This is probably the freedom which is most well known and most talked about. It is part of every American's ABC's. Recently the denial of voting rights to southern Negroes has brought a shocked and incredulous reaction on the part of most Americans.

The attempt, then, to lower the voting age may easily be identified with this precious "right to vote."

As is the case with any important privilege, some basic requirements must be placed upon those who are to be allowed to participate in voting. Proof of literacy and good standing as a citizen are obvious requirements, perhaps. But an age requirement is even more obvious. A line must be drawn somewhere.

The drawing of this line at the figure of 21 is not arbitrary. It is based on the law. Persons under 18 in the State of Connecticut are considered minors. They cannot purchase stock; they cannot own cars; they cannot legally consume alcoholic beverages in a public establishment; they can't obtain a marriage license without parental permission.

On the other hand, they can and do pay taxes; they can be drafted for military service, and those over 16 are liable for their criminal actions.

The question has been raised, if a man is old enough to fight for his country, is he not old enough to take part in the running of its government?

Equating physical prowess to intelligence is a doubtful practice. How mature is an 18 year old? Mature enough to hold a job and raise a family perhaps, and maybe even to vote; but not generally. He is fresh out of high school—if he finished and didn't drop out—and usually lacking in experience. How much experience can one gain in three years? Plenty. Three years spent earning a living or seeking higher education is very broadening. The high ideals and aspirations of high school days are replaced with more practical and attainable ones. Those of us who are 21 are well aware of the changes in our thinking which have taken place over the last three years. Many of these are major changes. Important enough that most of us shudder to imagine how we might have voted then.

Thumbs Down:

Hooray For Play

BY Roger Prentiss

There is a lot of work that you as a student senator must do; as the elected representative of the students, you'll be obliged to perform the duties of a senator as well as you can.

You'll be obliged to look after the Husky mascot. This is one of the most important things you'll have to do; make sure he gets his three squares a day, has plenty of recreation, gets well-trained, and is free of sickness and disease. Of course, as an executive, you can delegate the authority to do this to other people; be sure to pick a competent one, we wouldn't want to lose this husky.

You'll be obliged to keep track of student funds. You have a Central Treasurer and auditor, hired to do the job, but don't trust them; in fact don't trust anyone; everyone's stealing money from the Senate. I'll bet you could find someone, somewhere who is right now. Keep an eye peeled for anything you don't understand; it's probably someone stealing money. Ignore your jurisdiction, pick on anyone you can find.

You'll be obliged to serve as an unofficial advisor to every campus organization; you will always be called on to tell others how to run their organizations.

You'll be obliged to administer correctly the scholarship funds of the Senate; you must pour over documents for many hours only to realize that someone else has decided who shall get the funds.

You'll be obliged to protect the students from such evils as the loyalty oath, compulsory class attendance, and ROTC; be sure to take a firm stand against bombs, war, hate and evil; you can legislate these right out of existence.

Fortunately, the offices that carry these obligations also carry many privileges and opportunities.

You'll be able to walk into any student organization office and the officers will know who you are and they will recognize you; they'll also know why you're there: to harass them.

You'll be able to say hello to practically everybody and even to stop and whisper a few words to them.

You'll be able to walk around and act like you're making deals; people will notice you and say, "There's Jake. He's making a deal to change the name of "R" lot. Very important business, indeed!" In a sense, this is an obligation of office.

You'll be able to influence opinion; you do this by agreeing to have your house vote for the other guy if his house votes for you; you do this by wearing an arm-band for the other guy's cause if he pickets for yours; you do this by agreeing to wear a beard and carry a bookbag if the other guy wears dungarees and sandals.

You'll be able to make radical changes in University or government policy.

You'll be able to champion the causes of student rights, individual liberties, and living off campus.

You'll be able to investigate and eliminate the corruption which is everywhere; no one is honest; everyone is crooked, even the guy who has no opportunity to be crooked.

You'll be able to plug power politics; pretend that the things you say are important; pretend the students won't see that your gimmicks are really gimmicks; pretend the students feel that campus politics are as active as you think they are; pretend the other guy who you are trying to snow under with your tricky tactics doesn't know what you're doing; pretend you're doing something worthwhile; pretend the students don't know you're running a "sympathy candidate."

By the Way

By the way, why is this dog you so carefully guard on sick call?

By the way, why do the senators have so little to do that they must waste everyone's time with endless checks, investigations and informal hearings, which accomplish nothing?

By the way, why has the Senate failed to make a dent in the stand of the University on student liberties?

By the way, why did the student senators that have so much influence and respect fail to stop the destructive demonstration last week?

By the way, why has the student Senate failed to do anything significant in the last several years?

By the way, why does the Senate do so very little that even the senators don't bother to show up for the meeting?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

Much as I admire and respect those members of the faculty who are the signers of the statement on the Cuban situation which appeared in the Daily Campus on October 26, I do not agree with several of their expressed opinions although I share their deep concern in this world crisis.

I also deplore the Daily Campus' facetious reporting that former President Eisenhower was "dimly conscious that all was not well," and the sarcasm implied when it was stated that he "called for a cessation of all criticism of current American policy and a rallying around the flag." Last week, before the Cuban crisis broke, Time magazine reported that Eisenhower seemed to be quite aware of Kennedy's foreign policy when he campaigned in Boston, and reminded Americans of his own foreign policy record while in office: "In those eight years," he said, "we lost no inch of ground to tyranny. We witnessed no abdication of international responsibility. We accepted no compromise of pledged word or withdrawal of principle. No walls were built, no threatening foreign bases were established."

On Thursday, October 25, in the Hartford Times William S. White spoke, "The cold but clean air of danger stoutly recognized and coolly met blows through Washington now that this government at last confronts the moment of truth with honesty and honor. The proclamation of Kennedy Doctrine means that the United States of America will retreat no more. It means that the United States, having so long beseeched a peace that would not come, now rises in power and purpose in resolve to die on its feet if it cannot win a life of dignity and justice up off its knees."

In response to other points with which I disagree in the statement published in the Daily Campus, I would like the signers of the statement to take the following simple quiz. As Mr. Stevenson said, "Just answer Yes or No!"

1. Do you want Russia to continue to maintain nuclear missile bases on Cuba?

2. Do you consider Castro a rational, responsible, wise, unemotional leader capable of using restraint and judgement in the use of nuclear weapons?

3. Do you believe Communism in Cuba has occurred as the free choice of a free people?

4. Do you believe that the government of the U.S. maintains bases in Turkey and Europe for offensive and imperialistic purposes?

5. Do you believe that in times of utmost crises, at the "zero hour" that time-consuming discussion at the U.N. is the wisest course to follow?

6. Do you approve of the Soviet's use of Cuba as a puppet state?

7. Do you think that our passive acceptance of repeated acts of aggression by the Soviet has impressed them with our ability to take a stand on any issue?

8. Do you think that our policy of appeasement and concession will continue to satisfy the aggressive appetites of the Soviet?

9. Do you believe that when Khrushchev says "We will bury you," the communist leaders have no long-range plans for eventual domination?

New Delhi Sends Battle Reinforcements

New Delhi, Oct. 30 — (AP) — The world's two most populous nations, India and Red China, continue their undeclared war today along the so-called rooftop of the world. The New Delhi Government, conceding losses of up to 2,500 dead or missing in 10 days of combat, is speeding reinforcements into battle.

Russia announced last night that it is siding with Red China in the border dispute. A high Soviet military source said Moscow supports Communist China's territorial claims in India. And he said the Soviet Union will ship no arms to the New Delhi Government. This apparently wipes out a recent Kremlin deal to supply India with Mig jet fighter planes.

Preparing Defenses

India is understood to be preparing relatively strong defenses in the hopes of confining the Chinese Communists to the Himalayas in their drive against India's border. For the first time, India reports its own troops making a forward thrust, a probe near the monastery town of Towang, which was captured by the Chinese. There's also word of mortar fire by the Indians.

Talks are continuing with the US, Britain and Canada on arms aid for India. Some British arms have already arrived and a US arms airlift is expected to start soon.

Towang

Somewhere between the To-wang area and the plains, the Indian army is believed likely to make its main stand in the area, with tanks to back it up. The Indians are believed convinced that the Chinese Communists won't be able to get tanks over the mountain passes and down toward the plains of India.

As things stand now, another Chinese drive on the Indian border area has been checked at least temporarily 15 miles west of the Burma border.

In Pakistan, the US ambassador, Walter MacConaughy, has called on the foreign minister, apparently to explain US plans to help India. Pakistan and India are not on friendly terms. And Pakistan, a US ally, has criticized US plans to help India. Some fears have been expressed that Pakistan might try to attack India during India's preoccupation with holding off the Chinese Reds.

Red China's Bid Rejected By UN

New York Oct. 30 — (AP) — Red China suffered a resounding defeat in the United Nations today. The general assembly once again rejected Peking's bid for membership. And this time the rejection was by a bigger margin than last year.

The vote was 42 in favor, 56 against and 12 abstaining. The result last year was 36

Havana, Oct. 30 — (AP) — The United States has lifted its blockade of Cuba for two days, the scheduled period for United Nations Acting Secretary-General U Thant to discuss the situation with Fidel Castro. Thant leaves for Havana today with a team of 29 other UN officials and military experts to map plans for UN supervision of the removal of Soviet missiles, as agreed by Premier Khrushchev. Preliminary negotiations toward this end apparently have proceeded smoothly in New York talks among Thant, Russia's First Deputy Foreign Minister Kuznetsov, Adlai Stevenson and Cuban representatives. As a practical matter, the lifting of the Cuba blockade, as of 6 a.m. this morning, has little immediate significance. No Soviet vessels are reported near the interception zone, and the Defense Department indicates that all ships suspected of carrying offensive weapons to Cuba have disappeared from the scene. For the past six days, and can reimpose the blockade at a moments notice.

Aerial Surveillance

The Pentagon has disclosed that the US suspension of actions against Cuba include aerial surveillance, as well as the quarantine against shipments of offensive weapons to Cuba. Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester told a briefing that both are being held up for two days while Acting UN Secretary-General U Thant confers in Havana.

U Thant said on departure from New York that he hopes for a speedy and peaceful settlement of the Cuban crisis. He will try to arrange for UN supervision of dismantling of Soviet missile bases in Cuba, as promised by Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

High-level informants in Washington say U Thant asked suspension of the US quarantine, presumably to make his job easier. Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro is believed in a somewhat embarrassing situation because apparently he had no part in the decision about the bases.

The Washington informants also say surveillance has shown that no vessels with questionable cargo are within two days of Cuba anyhow.

Castro

Havana radio says Fidel Castro has been inspecting Cuban military installations, and the Cuban navy is holding combat practice. Cuban newspapers are playing up photographs of Castro inspecting coastal installations. The Cuban leader is scheduled to give a radio and TV address to his country Thursday, analyzing, as Havana radio puts it, all the problems of the transcendental moment in which Cuba is living.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper "Pravda" is saying President Kennedy had no ground for, 48 against and 20 abstaining. In both cases Red China received far less than the required needed.

African Switch

The main switch in the voting this year, as compared with last, was among some of the new African members.

Today's vote was a big victory for the Western powers. They had argued that the Peking regime's military action against India demonstrated its unfitness for membership.

At the last minute, some of the African countries came out for a two-China plan, under which both Red China and the Chinese Nationalists would get UN seats. They declined, however, to make a formal proposal to that effect. The vote was on a Soviet resolution calling for the ouster of the Chinese Nationalists delegations from all UN organs and the seating of delegations representing Red China.

As expected, India voted for the Soviet resolution, in spite of Indian charges that the Chinese Communists have been carrying out premeditated aggression against Indian territory.

for ordering the quarantine against offensive shipments to Cuba. The quarantine led Premier Khrushchev to agree to dismantle the missile bases.

Pentagon photo interpreters are studying pictures taken by US planes on surveillance flights over Cuba yesterday, to see whether action on dismantling the bases has actually begun. During the six days that the blockade was in effect before today's suspension, only one Soviet vessel was reported intercepted, and it was allowed to proceed with an announced cargo of oil. A Lebanese freighter was boarded but then allowed to proceed to Havana with a cargo of non-military items.

No Soviet vessels were reported near the blockade zone as the quarantine was lifted today.

President Kennedy has promised Khrushchev that if the offensive buildup in Cuba is undone, the US will end the quarantine and will not invade Cuba. Kennedy also said he thought other Western Hemisphere nations would be prepared to refrain.

Havana broadcasts have announced without comment suspension of the quarantine. Cuban broadcasts also say that the Cuban Navy has begun four days of combat practice in a small area off the north coast of the island country.

US destroyers and aircraft detected and trailed more than two Russian submarines in the Atlantic blockade area for about two days last week. Informants say the Communist subs finally surfaced to recharge their batteries, then left the area without incident. Russia has a fleet of about 400 subs roaming the world's seas and it is not unusual for US naval units to make contact with them, especially off our east coast. But special vigilance was in force last week before Russia's pullback from the Cuban crisis.

Assistant Defense Secretary Arthur Sylvester announced late yesterday that all aircraft had returned. (Concluded on Page 6)

DiCecco And Seeber Open Faculty Recital Series

Once again this year, the students, the faculty, Administration and the people in the greater campus community have the opportunity to attend the Faculty Recital Series. This represents an ideal chance to hear the Music Department faculty perform in their chosen fields.

On October 24, in the J. Louis von der Mehden Recital Hall Mr. Bruno DiCecco, Cellist, opened the series for this year. In a performance that has set a high standard of achievement, Mr. DiCecco, accompanied by Mr. Leonard Seeber, played four works from the varied cello repertoire.

The recital began with a performance of a Tocatta of Girolamo Frescobaldi. The Tocattas of Frescobaldi, like those of his great German pupil Froberger, are the only representative works of the seventeenth century in which the extensive use of chromaticism can be found. The improvisatory rather than formal nature of (these) pieces probably explains the use of chromaticism, a form of writing which had lost ground in the seventeenth century, only to gain it again in the late Baroque.

Fine Tone Color

Mr. DiCecco's performance of this piece could only be called adequate. The first slow section was played with a great deal of feeling and fine tone color, but the allegro which followed was marred several times with very obvious technical mistakes. These however did not detract from the performance as a whole.

The second piece on the program was the 7 Variations on a theme of Mozart's "Magic Flute," Ludwig van Beethoven. This piece, which I found to lack some of the wonderful musical moments present in the Diabelli and Eroica Variations for solo piano, was still a fine example of what a master composer can do with the variation form. One piece was well handled by DiCecco and Seeber, with a fine sense of balance and contrast.

High Point Of Program

The high point on the program

came just before the intermission when the Sonata for Cello and Piano Op. 6, of Samuel Barber was performed. Well known to music lovers for his opera Vanessa, and the Adagio for Strings, this Barber Sonata is not very well known to concert audiences. The apparent lack of popularity of this piece is not at all understandable since it was, certainly the most beautiful selection on the program; but possibly this is due to a lack of performance by modern concert artists who are engrossed in the classical and Romantic eras.

The performance of this piece by Mr. DiCecco and Mr. Seeber certainly warrants our admiration. With a cello tone that was warm and glowing, and a piano that was dynamically well controlled, the duo soared through the magnificent first movement. The piano was not only warm in its support, but Mr. Seeber took advantage of the chances afforded him to set off the cello to its best advantage, and thus made the performance all the more pleasing. The second movement, a mellow Adagio, was followed by a brisk and lively Allegro appassionato, which brought the first half of the recital to a close.

Not Schubert's Best

The last half of the program was devoted to the Sonata in A Minor of Franz Schubert. This proved to be a disappointing work, and this may be due to the fact that it had to follow the Barber Sonata. The composition seemed very thin, and appeared to lack some of those musical qualities usually associated with the name of Franz Schubert; beautiful melodies without a useless display of technique. The performance of this composition was fine, so my personal displeasure with this work is probably to be found in the music, and not in the performers.

The audience called Mr. DiCecco back for an encore, and he played the Bourree from the Bach Suite Number 3 in C Major for Unaccompanied Cello, one of the most popular of solo cello works in the repertoire.

It was saddening to note the large number of empty seats especially since there is no cost involved and the quality of the performances is so high. These seats represent a loss to those people who never attend anything but classes, yet feel that they are getting a college education.

Belief In Black Magic Persists In Modern Age

(AP)—Many grownups, as well as small fry, are looking forward to Halloween as an ideal party time, complete with costumes, decorations, and refreshments. But Halloween has not always been a time of simple merriment!

For centuries, the evening was terror-filled for superstitious people. And to this day, on a few islands of the Scottish Hebrides, there are those who wait fearfully for the evil fairies on Halloween.

Halloween, hundreds of years ago, was a shivery time indeed. The cats, witches and ghosts, each of which has its own origin in folk superstition, have become the traditional symbols of the day.

The cat was deeply feared by the ancient Celts. They believed the "Lord of Death" held court on Halloween to decide what form spirits would take during the year. Cat forms were dealt out to wicked spirits.

In England, witches were thought to come out on Halloween until comparatively modern times. Fires were kindled on hills, and men stood about in circles waving pitchforks of burning straw to ward off attacks from the witches.

In France, from the 12th to the 14th centuries, stone "lighthouses" were built in cemeteries and kept lighted with lanterns on Halloween as safeguards against night-wandering spirits. Warning of the spirit's arrival was given by a bell-man who made his rounds just before midnight.

Seems these depressing beliefs arose from the belief that the sun god fell victim, at the end of October, to the power of darkness for the next six months.

Projection of the Unknown

Peopel in many parts of the world still are terrorized by fear of witches and other evil spirits, even though science has contributed greatly in reducing such fears.

Belief in witches basically stems from nothing more sinister than man's own determined efforts to understand the world around him and make it work for him instead of against him. Bacteria and viruses were unknown to early men who became ill and, lacking an explanation of their sickness, conceived the notion that an enemy was injuring them or that some unseen spirit was exacting punishment for their misdeeds.

We know, of course, that mockery of witchcraft is the basis of the Halloween celebrations that will abound tonight.

Yet, in modern industrial countries as well as remote and underdeveloped areas of the world, belief in the black arts persists.

Thousands still scan the heavens over Germany for witches on broomsticks, and the courts frequently are obliged to hear charges of witchcraft. Bookshops report that volumes on black magic are best sellers. In a small Russian village a woman sought police protection because her neighbors insisted she was a witch and desired her services in putting a hex on their enemies.

Some authorities report that witchcraft may even be enjoying a revival. For instance, a Scotland Yard official said not long ago that there was reason to believe that black magic, or belief in it, is more prevalent now in Great Britain than during the dark ages.

In pursuance of their belief in black magic, the ancients often tried to injure others by such means as making an image of a hated neighbor and then sticking pins in it. This was intended to make the victim, once he had learned that a spell was being worked against him, succumb to the power of suggestion.

Failure of witchcraft to produce the desired results was explained simply by belief that the ritual had been incorrectly performed. Believers in witchcraft operated on the theory that sooner or later every spell works because all men eventually die.

Yet, there are desirable aspects of belief in the black arts. Without it a primitive tribesman would have no explanation for an illness and thus would feel completely helpless. By believing that a spell has been cast upon him he has cause to call for a witchdoctor to remove the spell, restore his spirits, and give him the will to recover.

During the dark ages and early medieval times Europeans were fairly reasonable about witches. However in the 16th and 17th centuries, witchcraft persecution was widespread.

Since Europe had been split into warring factions, the tension and unrest of that era saw women become the object of popular wrath. For one reason or another, women aroused distrust and were accused of consorting with the devil. The result was that more than 300,000 were put to death by one means or another.

Pacifists Sink Ship

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 28 (Reuters)—The advocates of nuclear disarmament who sank their ketch, Everyman 3, while being towed out of Leningrad five days ago, are being held on an island in Leningrad harbor, it was reported here today.

The chairman of the Swedish Committee of Everyman, Bertil Svanstrom, said his group had received a message about the crew through what he described as a reliable source.

The message said that all the crewmen were safe and well. When the ketch was being towed out of Leningrad, some of the crewmen jumped overboard while others drilled holes in the craft's hull.

The twelve persons aboard the ketch were denied visas to enter the Soviet Union after they had sailed to Leningrad to demonstrate in favor of nuclear disarmament.

Home-Ec Conference To Center On "Unity"

The Tri-State Intercollegiate Home Economics Conference will be held on November 9-10, 1962. This convention meets every three years, and is attended by faculty in all areas of Home Economics from colleges in Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts.

This year the convention will meet on our campus. Close to 100 persons will be attending.

The convention begins Friday

Law Graduates Seek Offices

Almost half of the State's 12 candidates for seats in the U. S. House of Representatives are graduates of the University of Connecticut School of Law, a check of Uconn alumni records showed today.

Among the five congressional candidates who earned their law degree at Uconn are two incumbents: Robert N. Giamo, Class of 1944, Democratic candidate from North Haven in the Third Congressional District, and Emilio Q. Daddario, Class of 1942, Democratic candidate from Hartford in the First Congressional District.

Also seeking seats in Congress are: William L. St. Onge, Class of 1948, Democratic candidate from Putnam in the Second Congressional District; John A. Rand, Class of 1955, Republican candidate from Salisbury in the Fifth Congressional District; and Bernard F. Grabowski, Democratic candidate from Bristol, for Congressman-at-large.

William D. Graham, Class of 1949, Republican candidate for State Treasurer from Hartford, is a sixth Uconn Law alumnus seeking State office in the coming elections.

A spokesman from the University's Law School said this year's contingent of alumni is the largest number ever to seek State posts in an election. He said it indicates an increasing awareness by Uconn graduates of their obligation to participate actively in public affairs.

Placement News

The Port of New York Authority will be at the Placement Office November 8 to discuss their junior management trainee program. They have indicated an interest in talking with graduating students with the following majors: economics, English, foreign languages, history, mathematics, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology, statistics, accounting, finance, industrial administration, marketing and engineering.

The schedule is ready for signing by interested students who have filed their data sheets.

evening with a dinner held at the Pleasant View Lodge.

Presiding over the dinner and the entire conference is Miss Elizabeth Rogge, Assistant Professor of Foods and Nutrition at Uconn.

A welcome address will be given at this time by Dr. Elizabeth Eckhardt May, Dean of the Uconn School of Home Economics.

Dr. Marion A. Niederpruem, Dean of the School of Home Economics at the University of Massachusetts is the main speaker of the convention. Plans are for her to give her address "Unity in Home Economics—Through Public Relations" also during this evening.

On Saturday morning general sessions and group discussions will be held. The subject matter for the group discussions is broken down into four areas—each group being presided over by someone in that particular field. The areas are (1) Child development and Family Relations, (2) Clothing, Textiles, and Related Arts, (3) Foods and Nutrition and (4) Home Management. A summary of the discussions will then be presented to the entire group.

A steering committee made up of one representative from each school affiliated with this Home Economics juncture plans the tri-annual conventions.

Counseling

Garfunkel, both Uconn assistant professors.

Guest speaker will be Raymond H. Barsch, an authority in special education of handicapped children. Currently director of the Easter Seal Child Development Center at Milwaukee, Mr. Barsch is also a specialist in perception and developmental counseling. He will discuss "Counseling Retarded Youth" at 10 a.m.

According to Dr. Garfunkel, who heads the Uconn program in special education, "The purpose of this conference is to demonstrate and discuss the fact that mildly retarded children can be counseled, and it is important for the whole school program that they be given such services."

There is a good deal of evidence, Dr. Garfunkel explains, that mildly retarded children respond to counseling in an extremely favorable way. However, the counselors have been reluctant to work with retarded youngsters because they generally think that it cannot be done or fail to see the potential good that can be done, he adds.

One highlight of the Uconn workshop will be a "live" closed-circuit TV demonstration of counseling techniques with groups of elementary and secondary school age boys and girls. Also scheduled are panel discussions between guidance counselors and psychologists who have worked with mentally retarded youngsters.

AFROTC Cadet Kosak Receives Senior Wings; Pilots Sabre Jet

AFROTC Cadet Gary F. Kosak of Webster House was awarded Cadet Senior Pilot Wings last week by Colonel John Wise, Professor of Air Science. Cadet Kosak became eligible for his "Senior Wings" when he completed his first solo flight in the Flight Instruction Program offered to Senior AFROTC cadets who plan to enter flight training when they graduate.

Cadet Kosak, whose home is at 174 Greenwood Drive, Manchester, was the first of 15 AFROTC cadets enrolled in the Flight Instruction Program conducted at the Windham Airport to solo. As such, he was given a ride in a Connecticut Air National Guard F-100F Super Sabre jet aircraft.

Kosack Solos

During the flight on Thursday, October 18th, Cadet Kosak was given the controls by the pilot, Major W. A. Tilford. In the one and one-half hour flight they covered the New England states. With Cadet Kosak at the controls, the F-100F screamed over the Uconn campus as classes were changing at 2:50. A little later, with Cadet Kosak still piloting the aircraft, the after-burner was turned on and they passed through the sound barrier.

In one week Cadet Kosak had achieved two major "firsts": (1) first Uconn AFROTC Cadet to solo in the F.I.P. and receive Cadet Senior Pilot Wings and (2) first New England AFROTC Cadet to pilot an aircraft faster than the speed of sound.

In connection with his latter accomplishment, Cadet Kosak was initiated into the Mach Busters Club. The Mach Busters is a exclusive club with membership limited to those people who have flown an aircraft faster than the speed of sound.

Cadet Kosak is the Commander of the Arnold Air Society, the AFROTC Honorary and Professional Society, and is presently serving as the Wing Inspector for AFROTC Cadet Wing here at Uconn.

Sororities Hold Open House On November 4

Alpha Delta Pi, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Phi Sigma Sigma will hold Open House on Sunday, November 4, from 2-4:30 p.m.

These open house programs are specifically for first semester freshmen; however any interested transfer, brancher, or upper class student may also attend.

In turn each of the eight sorority houses will hold an open house. On December 2, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Kappa Alpha Theta, and Pi Beta Phi will have open house and on January 6 Delta Pi and Delta Zeta will.

The sororities plan these open houses in order to acquaint the new students with sorority life, its ideals and purposes, and its functions on campus. Through this program the new students are provided with an opportunity to meet the girls in each sorority and see what each respective sorority house is like.

The sorority women extend invitations to all interested students and most eager to meet the new Uconn women at this time.

Committee to Study Gripes

The Grievance Committee of the Student Senate has established office hours in an attempt to communicate further with the student body. The purpose of this committee is to investigate the complaints that any student has concerning any aspect of University life. The committee will itself try to correct the source of the complaint or draw it to the attention of the proper authorities.

A member of the Grievance Committee will be present in the Senate office of Room 4 in Commons from two to four p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays. The Committee hopes to hear from some of the students who write letters to the Editor, and many other interested members of the student body.

This is an opportunity for students, not only to air their grievances, but to seek information and make suggestions to the Senate. It is hoped that every student will drop in at least once, sometime when they have a few minutes to spare and chat with the Senators.

UCONN SOCCER ACTION the likes of what will be seen this afternoon when the Huskies play host to the fine Wesleyan booters. The Huskies, off their usual performance, will be seeking their third win of the year in today's contest which is the second to the last home game for the Uconnns. The Huskies have lost six games this season, the last being to Hartford 3-2 last week. (Campus Photo—Albino)

Uconn Soccer Team Entertains Wesleyan

The University of Connecticut soccer team will have its work cut out this afternoon at 2:30 when it entertains a tough Wesleyan team.

Wesleyan is one of the four undefeated teams in the New England Soccer league. M.I.T., Bridgeport and defending champion Williams are the only other teams with perfect records.

The Cardinals have a strong offense to augment their sturdy defense. John Sharpe is the leagues leading scorer with eight goals while teammate Pete Sipples is third with six.

Sipples scored two of his teams three goals in Wesleyan's 3-0 victory over a previously undefeated Springfield team. The victory over Springfield plus a 2-0 conquest of Harvard upped Wesleyan's record to 5-0.

Uconn will bring a 2-6 record into this next to last home game. Coach Squires' booters are lead by Co-Capt. Myron Krasij the leagues thirteenth leading scorer who excels on offense and defense. Squires will be without the services of center forward David McDonald who suffered a broken ankle in practise. This will be Uconn's first game since the 3-2 loss to Hartford last week.

If the Huskies can perform as they did in the second half of the Hartford game Wesleyan could be in for quite a surprise. The game will be played on the soccer field adjacent West Campus.

Uconn's final three games of the season will be against Coast Guard at Storrs, to wrap up the home stand, Springfield at Springfield and the season ending contest at Colgate.

Cookie Gilchrist Heads AFL In Rushing With 618 Yards

(AP.)—The Buffalo Bills are marooned in the cellar of the Eastern Division of the American Football League along with the New York Titans. But burly Cookie Gilchrist hasn't allowed the lowly position to interfere with his yeoman work for the Bills.

Leading Rusher

Gilchrist is the number one man in the league when it comes to carrying the ball. He has picked up 618 yards in rushing in eight games. His closest rival is Charlie Tolar of the Houston Colts, with 485 yards.

The number one passer in the league is Len Dawson of the Dallas Texans. He has averaged slightly better than nine yards a throw. Frank Tripucka of the Denver Broncos is next with an average of seven and seven-tenths yards. Lionel Taylor of Denver is tops at catching passes with 48. Art Powell of the Titans is next with 38.

Top Scorer

Gene Mingo of Denver is the number one scorer with 98 points. Abner Haynes of Dallas is second with 78.

The Detroit Lions have scored four touchdowns in their last four games in the National Football League. Yet, the Lions are still in the Western Conference race although the Green Bay Packers are unbeaten while Detroit has lost two games.

Coach George Wilson was asked what had happened to the offense of the Lions.

Concentrating On Defense

He said his team has been concentrating more on defense than offense because of the high-scoring teams it has had to face in recent weeks. For example, last Sunday, the Lions opposed the Chicago Bears and the contest wound up in favor of the Lions, 11-3. There wasn't a touchdown scored in the game, a rarity in pro circles.

Ninowski Injured

The Cleveland Browns have put quarterback Jim Ninowski on the injured list and will add rookie quarterback John Furman to their roster. Furman had been working out with the Minnesota Vikings, but was not under contract to Minnesota. He will understudy Frank Ryan in the Cleveland quarterback spot.

Ninowski is expected to be out for the remainder of the National Football League season because of a fractured collarbone suffered in Sunday's game with Pittsburgh.

SAILING CLUB: There will be a short meeting of the Sailing Club tonight at 7 in HUB 202. Lecture will concern customs and courtesy upon the water. All are welcome to attend.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE MEAT JUDGING CONTEST: Registration at 6:30 p.m. tonight; contest 7-8:30 in the meats lab at the Ratcliff Hicks Arena. Open to all.

Statistics Columns Show Huskies Are Outclassed

After five games the Uconn Huskies have been completely outclassed in the statistic columns. The Uconnns with a 2-3 record have gained only 875 yards on total offense while their foes had racked up a total of 1469 yards.

One of the only players on the team who has weathered this onslaught is punter, John Janiszewski. He has been called in 28 times and has averaged 40.3 yards per punt. Only two have been blocked and he actually is also the leading rusher on the team. He carried a fake punt 18 yards for a first down in his sole attempt on the ground.

Leading Scorer

Dave Korponai is still the leading scorer for the Huskies with 18 points on three TD's. He is also the top pass catcher with eight receptions for 81 yards and one TD.

After five games the leading ground gainer is still Sean Sgrulletta who is on the doubtful list for this weekend. He suffered a hamstring injury last weekend. The big left halfback has carried the ball for a net gain of yards, over 38% of the Uconn total, in 53 attempts. Sgrulletta averages 3.7 yards per carry.

The leading passer for the Huskies is still sophomore quarterback, Lou Aceto. Even though the ball was seldom in the air lanes last weekend the Huskies have gained 334 yards in the air so far with Aceto accounting for 244 of them. He has completed 23 of 54 aerials and has had six intercepted.

turned safely from flights made during the day. As to continued reconnaissance flights, Sylvester advised: "I wouldn't make any assumptions that they won't."

Missing Flyer

The family of Major Rudolph Anderson Junior of Greenville, South Carolina, missing since a Saturday reconnaissance mission over Cuba, still is anxiously awaiting word of his fate. Anderson's family said last night it has received no official communication from the Air Force or Defense Department since being informed the missing flyer had been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Plans are proceeding for one or more meetings of Latin America internal security officials to tighten defenses against subversion by Fidel Castro sympathizers. In the opinion of some authorities, including US officials, steps to counter the sabotage threat still are woefully inadequate.

Physical Conditioning Program For Varsity, Mural Participants

By Lou Matsikas

The Department of Intercollegiate Athletics has recently announced two programs which are geared to improve the physical condition of entrants in both varsity and intramural sports.

One program, which will be supervised jointly by Robert Kennedy, assistant track coach, and Head track coach Lloyd Duff, will concentrate on the conditioning of participants in the winter and spring sports. A second program, which will condition the intramural wrestlers, is headed by the supervisor of Intramural Sports, Jay S. Shivers.

Top Condition

The program designed to put the winter athletes in top condition will be on a three-day-a-week basis which will last for two months. It is the hope of its originators that the program will put the participants in top physical condition for their particular sport.

This arrangement definitely has its advantages as during the season the stress has to be on team play while there is little time left for extra physical conditioning.

Right now the freshman and varsity track and basketball teams are working with Mr. Kennedy; the track mentor has formed a program for each individual. A call is also being made to all students who ran track in high school who felt that they weren't capable of college competition.

If anybody feels that they can match the following marks, they are urged to check with Mr. Kennedy as they could help the track team: 100 yard dash-10.2; 220 yards-23.5; 440 yards-54.0; 880 yards-2.10.0; Mile run-4.40; High Jump-5'8"; Pole Vault-11'; Broad Jump-20'; Shot (12)-46'; Discus (HS)-130'; Javelin-160'.

Many Have Ability

Coach Duff stressed that many boys have the ability; but, due to lack of extra time or facilities, they weren't able to participate to the best of their abilities. Coach Duff added, "With added growth, maturity and the opportunity to work over the full year, many boys who were not outstanding in high school could do well in college."

The wrestling program, which started Monday, will last through Thursday. The main reason for the clinic is that due to the nature of the sport, it is necessary

Tittle Could Pass Giants Into Another Pro Playoff

(AP.)—Old quarterbacks never die, they just fade and pass.

And if they happen to be named Y. A. Tittle they pass right on target, Y. A. never was better, at the ancient football age of 35, than he was last Sunday.

Might Have Broken

Tittle hit on seven touchdown passes to equal the National Football League record for scoring aerials in one game. He might easily have broken the record. But he made no real attempt to do it. His explanation was that the Giants already had the Washington Redskins well beaten and he didn't want to pile it on.

It's a little difficult to understand but Tittle actually seems better this year than he did last when he led the Giants to the Eastern division title of the National League.

Rough Sundays

He has had a couple of rough Sundays. The Cleveland Browns sent him staggering to the sidelines on the first day of the season and for a time it appeared that knee injury would keep him out of action for a while. But Tittle snapped back and led the Giants to victory over the Eagles the following week.

Lion Pile

Then, a couple of weeks ago, the Detroit Lions caught him on the goal line as he was ducking in for a touchdown on a roll-out play. Two of the big Lion defenders sandwiched Tittle and again he went off the field.

This time it was a concussion, bad enough so that he did not know what was going on. The Giants sat him on the bench for one half hour with the trainer applying ice packs to his head. He came back in the second half to drive the Giants to victory and almost scored another touchdown on the same kind of play that got him racked up in the first place.

Quite A Guy

Quite a guy is this bald eagle of pro football. If he manages to keep out of harm's way the Giants will take a lot of beating for the Eastern title and; who knows; may also make it interesting for Green Bay in the league championship game. That is, if Green Bay wins in the West. And there certainly is a trend going in that direction right now.

Scoring Leaders

(AP.)—The Franchise shift of the Warriors from Philadelphia to San Francisco hasn't affected the scoring powers of Wilt Chamberlain.

The tall center has tallied 205 points in four games, the same average he had in a similar period last season. His rebounding is still about the same, an average of 30 a game. Walt Bellamy of the Chicago Zephyrs is runnerup to Chamberlain with 200 points in six games.

Player-coach George Sullivan of Baltimore is tops among the scorers in the American Hockey League with 13 points. Bill Sweeney of Springfield is next with 12.

Placement Office News

An interviewer will be on campus Friday, November 9, to talk with candidates for overseas teaching positions in junior and senior high schools and a few college positions. The minimum qualification for any teaching position is a college degree with a major in any of the following subjects: English, mathematics, science, home economics and physical education. Candidates should also be members of a Protestant Christian church, sincerely believe in world missions, have excellent health, and be professionally competent.

Career and special term opportunities are available. The special term for a single person is for three years; for married couples five years, and involves working through the medium of the English language. High school English teachers usually will not be expected to teach literature but English language, grammar, pronunciation and correct speech so that the students will learn to speak, read and write it as a foreign language.

Interested students who have filled their Senior Data Sheet may sign the interview schedule at the Placement Office.

Harvard Dean On Dentistry

Dean Oakes of the Harvard Dental School will be meeting with Uconn students who may be interested in dental science this Wednesday, October 31, from 10:30 until noon in the comparative anatomy laboratory, Life Sciences 371.

The Pre dental-Premedical Committee has announced that those who are undecided on a career in the medical sciences are also urged to meet Dean Oakes who has many provocative ideas on the career opportunities.
