

Cornelia Otis Skinner Plays Next Wednesday For Last Convocation

Cornelia Otis Skinner, hailed by one critic as the "greatest single attraction of the American theatre," will make her first appearance in Storrs at the Hawley Armory, Wednesday, May 9. She will be the last attraction of this year's convocation series.

Miss Skinner will present a program of her famous character sketches. Her performances are not recitations but complete dramatic productions written by herself and rehearsed, costumed and produced with all the care of a conventional play.

The well known Broadway celebrity started her career, like many other actresses, with a diet of secondary parts. However, she was not satisfied in playing conventional plays and eventually she began to extend her reputation as a capable monologist. Her first effort in this type of play was her own, "Mansion On the Hudson." This, together with "The Wives of Henry VIII," and "The Loves of Charles II," comprise the program she is bringing to theatre-goers this season.

Daughter of actor Otis Skinner, she was born in Chicago and studied in Paris. She appeared on Broadway in several roles with her famous father. However, these did not satisfy her for she soon began to write and perform in the character sketches which she has presented across the country, and in Canada and London.

Miss Skinner is also a writer. Her "Family Circle," a recent life with father and mother and biography, and "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," were both on the lists of America's best sellers.

Block & Bridle Show Entries Coming In; To Use New Ring

Entries for the 19th Annual Block and Bridle Show on May 12 are coming in at an encouraging rate, according to Lee Dunne, show secretary.

Show Manager Ray Martin reported that the show will definitely be held in the new ring due to the work of the farm department bulldozers. Martin also remarked that bleachers will probably be erected by the club next week.

This past week, students interested in entering the two University classes in the show were putting University of Connecticut horses through their paces. Some of them also rode horses in the Community Chest Carnival Parade this afternoon to give students a sample of the equines that will be seen in the show.

Jumps will be repaired and painted next week, Fred Klatte, grounds chairman, stated. He claims the courses this year are the "toughest they've ever been!"

All in all, commented Hugh MacKenzie, vice-president of the club, "the members are really galloping around."

this will be the first annual freshman - sophomore picnic. Ronnie Galen is Chairman of the picnic committee and Ted Channells is handling publicity.

Symphony to Make Debut Here May 7

On Monday, May 7, the University Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Egon Kenton, will make its debut at the Storrs Church with a varied program which will include some folk song arrangements by the British composer, Vaughn Williams.

The program is: Fantasia in F minor, K.594, for mechanical organ transcribed for string orchestra by Rudold Forst—Mozart

Three pieces for orchestra on English folk songs. Seventeen come Sunday. Greensleeves. Folk Songs from Somerset.—Vaughn Williams.

Symphony in E flat No. 103 (London Symphony No. 8)—Haydn.

Chorale prelude "Wir glauben all an einen Gott" transcribed for orchestra by Leopold Stokowski—Bach.

Kenton graduated from the Royal Academy of Music in Budapest. He toured Europe as a member of the Hungarian String Quartet and as a viola soloist. After coming to the United States in 1923, Kenton appeared with the New World, Hartmann and Roth Quartets, and the Bethoven Association. At present he is an instructor of music at the University.

The new Student Senate will be sworn into office tonight at 7:30 p. m. by Albert E. Waugh, Provost of the University. Peter Brodigan will be installed as the new president of the Senate and Bob Miller as the new vice-president.

New senators who will take the Senate oath tonight include Joe Tooher, Paul Burns, Larry Garfinkel, Lou Artiaco, Art Sherwood, Rod Pollet, Bob Fleischman, Mary-Lou Sperry, Dan Blume, Paul Kirby, Dave Bell, John Kunkel, Nancy Hall, Pat Bernhardt, and Jean Buckley.

Re-elected senators include Peter Brodigan, Mary Wolfe, Chuck Miller, Paul Veillette, Rube Deveau, Bob Steiner, Bob McLeod, Carol Luft, Dave Holmes, and Tom Hugo.

Code of Ethics

In 1933 the Senate adopted the following code of ethics, which each Senator is honor-bound to uphold:

"As a representative of the student body my standards shall have in them a note of understanding for our common welfare. My position shall always cause me to take into consideration my highest duties as a student of the University of Connecticut.

"In every responsibility which comes to me my chief thought shall be to fill that responsibility and to discharge that duty so that when I have ended each, I shall have lifted the ideals and the standards of the university a little higher than I have found them."

Ugly Man, Queen Rule At Carnival; 11:30 Curfew Given

Twenty-four floats and forty-five events on the Midway are combining today to form what is probably the most colossal affair ever held at the University, announced Dave Ball, chairman of the Community Chest Carnival.

Alpha Phi Omega has incorporated new ideas and past experience to produce an affair which approaches a professional Carnival in size and variety. Innovations on the campus, such as cotton candy and candied apple machines, as well as four separate contests, an auction, a variety show and a dance are keeping the students occupied and the money rolling into the Community Chest.

Any student has one vote for the Carnival Queen, to be chosen from five finalists whose pictures appear in this issue. Students must show their Athletic Cards before they may vote at the special booth to be found on the Midway.

The APO's have created a new title of honor and distinction which will be capped by the man who wins the most votes in the Ugly Man Contest. Any student may nominate his choice and vote for a penny. (Unlimited voting will permit those with the most pennies to stuff the ballot box.)

The Sophomore Review, written and directed by Stan Woodmansee, will play tonight in the Armory at 8 and again at 9:30 p. m. Between the shows, back on the Midway, APO will sponsor an auction. A Model T Ford will lead a list of items to be bestowed on the highest bidder. Unclaimed articles from Security will also be auctioned.

The parade began at 4:30 in South Campus, traveled around campus, and wound up in back of the Armory where the Midway opened at 5:15. The Midway will remain open until 10:30, after which the awards will be made inside the Armory after the Sophomore show. Faculty judges will decide the two best floats. The organization which makes the most money will also be awarded a prize.

A dance in the Armory, free to those who have attended one show of the Sophomore Review, will wind up the Carnival from 10:30 until 11:30. The girls have 11:30 permission.

"Music Has Charms" Soph Review, Staged Tonight In Armory

The Sophomore Review will be presented this evening, at 8 and 9:30, in the Armory, in conjunction with the Community Chest carnival.

Stan Woodmansee, producer and composer of the Review, stated that the theme of the show is "Music Has Charms." Woodmansee, who composed the lyrics for "One For The Books," and "Celestial Journey," which were given at Fort Trumbull and here respectively, hopes to overcome the poor acoustics of the Armory by a different type of staging.

A new stage has been constructed along the left wall in the center of the Armory. The audience will thus be able to sit on three sides of the stage.

Woodmansee has promised that the props for the show will be outstanding. All sorts of ornate sets, such as Grecian columns, and gigantic G-clefs have been constructed by Phi Sigma Kappa.

Veillette New ISO Prexy; Committee Appointed To Investigate Elections

Paul Veillette defeated Bill Kelly in an election for the presidency of the Independent Students Organization held Monday night in Beach 150. The unsuccessful candidate for the Student Senate presidency, Veillette succeeds to the position formerly held by Nate Zeidenberg.

The election for vice-president of the ISO saw Donna Stevens chosen over Bill Blankenburg. Other officers elected were: recording secretary, Carol Sawyer; corresponding secretary, Barbara Pekar; and treasurer, Bill Kelly.

Before stepping down from the chair for the last time, Zeidenberg presented a recommendation of the executive committee that a committee be formed to investigate the past

Senate election. With the consent of the members present, he appointed Bill Kelly to head such a committee. Others named were Rod Woodstock, Carol Sawyer, Donna Stevens, and Paul Veillette.

Two new by-laws were presented at the meeting and were tabled until next Tuesday. One of these by-laws would give the executive committee full power to conduct the campaign for class and Senate elections. The other stated that "no one shall run for two offices that will entail two Senate seats."

Outgoing president Zeidenberg also announced that Fred Chou had been chosen "Mr. Independent of the Year" and was presented with a pair of cuff links.

Debaters Defeat Williams, Amherst; Lose Four Rounds

University of Connecticut debaters won two out of six rounds last weekend at the tournament sponsored by the Adelpic Union of Williams College, defeating Williams and Amherst on the negative, losing to Amherst, Smith, and Williams on the affirmative and Trinity on the negative.

The UConn debaters, Marilyn Fabricant, Roberta Rosen, Maureen Shapiro, Paul Jones, and Jim Atkins, were in their first intercollegiate debates at the Ivy-League-sponsored tournament. The debate with Smith, which would have given UConn a 50-50 average, was lost by three points.

This brings the season record for Connecticut debate teams to 46 victories out of 102 contests for a .451 batting average.

New Officers Elected At Panhellenic Banquet

The Panhellenic Council held its annual banquet Monday night at the Clark House. The guest speaker was Mildred P. French, assistant director of student personnel, who spoke on the importance of the Panhellenic Council on a college campus.

Miss French stressed the necessity for high social standards for sorority girls, both in their appearance and conduct on campus. She also pointed out that five sororities were below the all student average in scholarship and that the winning average of 25.9 should have been the lowest. In closing, Miss

ISO By-Law

A proposed by-law of the Independent Student Organization merits the attention of all persons in the organization or interested in it. It delegates to the executive committee of the ISO the power to conduct campaign for senate and class officer candidates.

The ISO is more than a social organization which seeks to fill the gap in social activities for independent students. It is also a political party organized as well as can be expected for a student party. Hence, the members of the group, sponsoring candidates, should be able to express their opinion and general will insofar as the conduct of campaigns.

True, the move to centralize the conduct of campaigns for Student Senate candidates and class officers is in conformity with concepts of government which seek a greater good. It also means a greater concentration of authority and responsibility in the hands of a few individuals who will guide the destiny of a political organization. All this without the guidance of the general will of the members can prove dangerous. The committee to handle campaigns should be large enough to represent a cross-section of the membership since, in day-to-day conduct of a campaign, the entire membership is an unwieldy body to conduct business.

A lesson can be drawn from the "Arise, Awake" circular. It came from individuals acting outside the general will of ISO candidates and leaders. If the general aim of the by-law is to concentrate executive powers necessary in conducting a campaign without making the executive committee a policy making body, then there can be no danger existing. But to combine the two functions of government is dangerous to any political organization.

Bitter Fruit

There is little we can say in support of the American Legion of Decency and the Catholic parishes of Willimantic which brought pressure to bear against the showing of one of the best foreign films of the year, "Bitter Rice" in a Willimantic theater.

Arbitrary action of this nature which bars theatres from performing their function of bringing art to the public is to be deplored. The limit of any organization other than a legally constituted political body can only be to make its opinions known concerning an issue. In this case, they would have served their duty well had they formally stated that the film was "detrimental" and recommended that citizens not patronize the theater while "Bitter Rice" was scheduled.

Frankly, we're disappointed. Good films are rare in these parts. We sincerely trust that, once the theater in the South Campus shopping center materializes, good films will be shown, regardless of objections by certain pressure group.

Our Sincere Thanks

To the Editor:

In any campaign for political office—even on the student level—a candidate becomes indebted to many people in many ways. We owe debts of gratitude and thanks to the 1,500 students who expressed their confidence in us at the polls; to John Bannan, our campaign manager, who contributed the leadership and tireless energy needed in the campaign; to the campaign workers who sacrificed many hours for us with nothing to gain for themselves; to our fellow ISO candidates who comprised a "slate" of which we were proud to be a part; to the ISO itself for honoring us with its endorsement; and to those people—more than we anticipated—who, after our defeat, extended us assurances of their continued support.

We feel very keenly the inadequacy of this expression of our gratitude, but we hope those people to whom we owe so much will accept our sincere thanks.

From Behind The Looking-Glass

By Harry W. Hart

EVERY SO OFTEN we Anglo-Saxons, amidst the comparative luxury and comfort of our inventions, cast pitying glances in the direction of our underprivileged neighbors and quickly reaffirm our faith in the great industrial god responsible for our own blessings.

If it ever occurs to us that other civilizations in other times have attained equally high levels of material comfort, we dismiss this as a mere historical accident, something which, although undoubtedly true, is of little importance in our utopia of television sets, supersonic aircraft, and atom bombs.

Occasionally the pangs of social conscience force us to confer upon less fortunate peoples some of the things to which we have been long accustomed. This is never done, however, without considerable reluctance and always with the stipulation that the beneficiaries support faithfully the foreign policy of the donor.

INDIA IS AN EXCELLENT EXAMPLE of the way in which the promise of aid is used as an economic cudgel to elicit the support of another nation for Uncle Sam's policies. India with its population of 400 million, its periodic droughts, and its deadly famines has lately come to our attention as one of the potentially great nations of the world not yet aware of the immense riches of the machine age. Her people are resigned to the age-old pattern of starvation, malnutrition, and early death. Her children, with their swollen bellies and sunken eyes are buried each year by the hundreds of thousands.

We in the United States are doing something about this "deplorable" condition. Every month huge crates of beautifully illustrated brochures, showing the Indians what "democracy" and "free enterprise" have accomplished in this country, are shipped from the West Coast to Madras and Calcutta. We can't send food or machines because India doesn't wholeheartedly agree with what Uncle Sam is doing in Korea. India clings to the somewhat ludicrous position that this is a United Nations war and that peace instead of victory is the prime consideration. So India's illiterate masses are sent colorful flyers which they can't read in lieu of surplus food from our already bursting storage bins.

And this is how we, in the United States, are fighting the ideology of Communism. God Bless America!

event, the derby will be a contest of athletic skill and prowess in which representatives from all the women's dormitories will participate.

Running in conjunction with the Junior Weekend, the caper will be held behind Hawley Armory on Saturday, May 19, at 7 p.m. In case of rain, the alternate date will be the next day at 3 p.m.

"The Derby is a traditional field day," Kane commented, "held at Sigma Chi houses at Bowling Green, Rhode Island State, and other houses throughout the country. It has met with continued success especially in the Middle West."

Kane has released a tentative schedule of events for the day. One event will be a kissing contest, in which three male judges will be kissed by co-ed contestants from the representative dorms. "The judges will be blindfolded for complete impartiality," Kane added.

Another event will be a pants-less pants contest, which is a trial of speed. In this event, the girls will be paired off, and told to disrobe themselves completely of the men's clothing they are wearing and dress in the garb of the other as quickly as possible.

Still other events are an egg throwing contest, a male beauty contest, and a three-legged race. As a prelude to the contest a parade will be organized to pick the co-eds up at their respective houses and lead them to the field behind the Armory.

The Derby itself will be a bronze-plated derby hat, with "Sigma Chi Derby" and the name of the winning women's living unit engraved upon it. The winning women's unit will be judged on the basis of the highest total number of points accumulated in the various events. Housemothers will be judges.

Kane has stated that the Derby has been planned to be campus-wide and to emphasize new tradition. "I would like to see the Derby follow in the footsteps of the Pied Piper and Skitsofunia in adding a much needed traditional UConn campus event for the benefit of the entire student body's enjoyment," he stated.

The Husky Story

First 'Husky Mascot Killed By Car

Elaborate Funeral Given; First Ram-Napping in 1934

By Bob Steiner

Ed. Note: Many students have inquired why the University of Connecticut has a Husky dog mascot. Others have wanted to know why his name is always Jonathan, or how much does he cost and where he came from.

Bob Steiner, present trainer of Jonathan V and a staff writer for this paper, has written a series of articles about UConn's mascot. The following is the first in the series.

On November 9, 1934, Rame-sis II, the ram mascot of Rhode Island State College was stolen before the Connecticut State-Rhode Island Football game in the first ram-napping ever unof the CAMPUS to write an editorial in the November 20, 1934 issue "Why Not a Mascot?" The editor of the CAMPUS at that time was Harold R. Freckleton who later went out to give his life for his country in World War II, and in whose memory a sabre is awarded at Military Day to an outstanding, ROTC student each year.

A poll run by the CAMPUS indicated the students favored a Husky as a mascot and at this time a 14 week old Brown and White Husky, whose grandparents had been with Admiral Peary and Lord Grenfell was purchased and presented by the alumni association through the efforts of Elmer S. Watson.

Thus, Connecticut State College had a Husky mascot, who lived in North Windham with Professor Herbert France. The dog had to have a name, and so the CAMPUS in cooperation with the alumni association conducted a contest to discover a name.

Finally in February 1935, Alumni Secretary Richard Attridge announced the name of the new mascot as Jonathan I.

Not only did this act help to stir up rivalry between the two schools, but it caused the editor

The name Jonathan came from one of Connecticut's early Governors, Governor Jonathan Trumbull of Lebanon whose war office still stands today on the Lebanon green. A historic account is as follows: "All the factions and personalities of the Revolutionary War period—almost without exception—sought the aid of Governor—or as General Washington affectionately called him "Brother Jonathan"—Trumbull. If there were any signs of a basketball break between Yale and the University of Connecticut this past winter, they weren't noticeably visible Monday night when Yale's fine coach, Howard Hobson, spoke at the UConn's hoop banquet held at the Altnaveigh.

Not only did the good-looking Hobson speak at the Connecticut banquet, but he spent the afternoon fishing with Hugh Greer. Indeed, if there was ever any difficulty between the two schools we suspect it would be because they can't get together for two games each year, than he he did fishing on the Fenton River.

Hobson went "over" with the Connecticut crew and it would be safe to say the Yale coach will be asked to another Connecticut banquet. It's a mild pleasure to see two schools enjoy that type of relationship rather than the throat-slitting, back-stabbing relations which are so apt to erupt from red-hot rivalries.

When Greer got up to speak, he looked over to Hobson and said with a grin, "The score this afternoon on the trout stream was Yale 1, Connecticut 0."

Speaking of banquets reminds us of another fine banquet we attended a few months ago at the Waverly Inn in Cheshire. It was the Gold Key Award Dinner and one of the best received speakers that evening was Jim Moore, a Connecticut graduate.

Many of you folks on the Storrs campus will remember Jim Moore as the boy who played quite a bit of football for the Huskies and then coached for many years at little Murray Teachers College in Kentucky.

As a matter of fact, Jim spent something like 14 or 15 years down in the Blue Grass country, but right now he's head of the physical education department at New Haven Teachers College.

A Little Curious

This writer had never seen Jim Moore before that night and to be perfectly honest, we had never even heard of Jim Moore. With a pinch of southern drawl he had acquired in Kentucky, Dr. James Moore had the audience guffawing every minute he spoke, and by the time he sat down we were mighty curious as to where the man came from. Imagine our surprise when Hugh Greer said, "Jim's a Connecticut graduate."

J. O. Christian, Moore's football coach in college, claims that Jim was at least a threat for the honor of the "screwiest, most unpredictable football player Connecticut has ever had."

"You'd never know what the guy was going to do," says Christian.

We don't know too much about D. James Moore as an undergraduate here at Connecticut, but we do know he is one of the most entertaining speakers we have ever heard. Sorta made you feel good to know he was a "Connecticut man."

That brings us to another point. We wonder how many people here know that Billy O'Brien, successful coach of New London Bulkeley's New England schoolboy basketball champions, is a graduate of Connecticut? Many of the older set, we imagine, remember Billy O'Brien when he was a star on Connecticut's squad back in the mid-twenties, but not many of the youngsters know it.

One day we were talking with two sports enthusiasts from New London who are now students here. Both of them followed Bulkeley's team this year and were rightfully proud when the kids won the New England title. But when we stated that O'Brien was a Connecticut man, they were a bit surprised. Along with the surprise, however, was a touch of pride. Why not? Heck, Billy O'Brien is just one of the many Connecticut high school coaches who are graduates of this university.

UC Golfers Whitewash Massachusetts For Fourth Victory of The Season

The University of Connecticut golf team got back to its winning ways on the Willimantic Country Club course yesterday afternoon defeating the University of Massachusetts, 9-0.

The victory was Connecticut's first since April 21 when they whipped Maine. Following the Maine clash, the Huskies dropped two straight, but yesterday's overwhelming win gives them a 4-2 record.

Paced by Johnny Pracon, the UConn's had little difficulty with their Yankee Conference opponents. Pracon was the only golfer forced to the limit. He bested Massachusetts' Rozowski, 1-up.

Dick Vining—Connecticut's Third Baseman

Dick Vining Finds Home At Third Base Likes New Post Better Than Second

By John Duffy

"There a divinity that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will—," is the way Shakespeare said it, and that's just the way Dick Vining, varsity third baseman, found it to be. For Dick had been living quietly in Enfield using this state as his chief orbit until a year ago when he, with several other UConn ball players, was offered the opportunity to play ball in the Northern League.

Dick accepted the chance and was taken on by the St. Johnsbury, Vermont, Club. His flashy infielding won him the acclaim of the St. Johnsbury fans and the particular attention of one fan who became the most avid of all Dick Vining fans. She is Miss Carol Sousa, and she and Dick are now pinned.

Dick does not find being pinned to Miss Sousa as convenient as conventional pinnings for it has widened his orbit considerably. You see, she is now living in Phoenix, Arizona. Dick spent his Christmas vacation paying a visit to Phoenix, and Carol will return the visit next month to attend Dick's graduation exercises.

Carol has been the only interest that Dick has ever had that gave athletics competition for his attention. He started off on his baseball career 13 years ago and has been completely wrapped up in it ever since. He has added football and playground work to his interests, but they are outgrowths of his love of baseball.

Dick broke into organized ball at the age of nine with the Daily News team in the Springfield Newspaper League. Dick was a shortstop then, and from that position helped his team win the championship and a trip to New York City.

This set Dick on a career that took him through Enfield High, Deerfield Academy and to three years of varsity ball at UConn and a year in the Class C Northern League. It took him completely around the infield playing all positions, and he even took a turn at pitching while in high school.

Dick said, "Coach Christy (J. O. Christian) switched me to third base and it was a shrewd move for it is the position from which I can throw best. Every infield position calls for a different kind of throw and now that I have

Petrillo Has Four Hits In 4 Trips; Meet Brown Next

Righthander Shedlon Cantor notched his second win of the season for the Connecticut freshmen baseball team here Monday afternoon setting down the Hartford Extension nine, 10-1, on four hits.

Cantor, who only last week tossed a nifty two-hitter, gave up his only run in the second inning to give the Hartford club a short-lived lead.

Connecticut came back in their half of the second, however, scoring four runs, two of them on a double by shortstop Bob Petrillo. Petrillo had a perfect day at the plate with four for four.

The UConn's added four more runs in the fifth and single tallies in the seventh and eighth. Cantor brought his strike out total for two games to 18. He fanned 10 Hartford batters, last week he fanned eight Nichols Junior College swingers.

Brown Tomorrow

Larry Panciera's frosh travel to Providence tomorrow where they will meet Brown University in quest of their third victory of the year. The UConn's have lost only one game, that to Rhode Island last Saturday.

Yokabaskas On 2nd Branch Tops Frosh As Snow Cards 69

Vin Yokabaskas, University of Connecticut basketball star, has a new distinction to add to his fast-growing list of court honors.

The 6 foot 2 inch Connecticut forward who paced the UConn's to their best record in history this past season, has been named on the Helms Athletic Foundation's N.A.I.B. All-American Basketball Second Team.

Of the 30 players named to the three teams selected, the UConn forward was the only representative from east of Ohio. Yokabaskas, who scored 404 points this past season, including 22 against St. John's in the opening round of the N. C. A. A. Tournament, also was named to three different all-New England teams as well as to the all-Yankee Conference five.

The Bloomfield athlete scored 301 points as a freshman, 417 as a sophomore and now has a combined, three-year total of 1,122 points.

Gilbert Snow of West Hartford whipped through the Willimantic Country Club course with a sizzling 69, one under par, Monday afternoon, but his University of Connecticut freshmen team mates lost to the Hartford Extension, 5½-3½.

Snow's 69 was the lowest total carded by a University of Connecticut golfer in some years. Little Phil Jones, who last week fired a 70, won his match Monday with a 71.

The UConn's remain idle until next week.

Jones (C) defeated Froh (H), 1-up.

Twelve Teams Opened Fraternity Softball Loop Mon.

North Campus 9's Begin Play First; All Leagues Set

In the intramural softball league twelve fraternity teams started their bid for the double elimination tournament crown Monday night. This wasn't the opening of the softball season, however, for eight teams of the North Campus A and B Loops initiated play early last week. The next slate of games will be run off tomorrow at 6 p.m.

Pacing the opening night's play Iota Nu Delta A team blasted out a 23-9 win over Benny's Bums. The same night the Tolland Tigers pasted Middlesex 14-3, the Red Knights downed the Clippers 10-3, and in a closely contested game the Meatballs edged Fairfield 8-6.

Several of Monday's games were plain slug fests with the pitchers hating to take their turn on the mound. In a football scoring game Phi Sigma Kappa outlasted Beta Epsilon Rho 22-18, and in another dual Sigma Nu overpowered Alpha Sigma Phi 17-11. Although Theta Xi white washed Beta Sigma 14-0, the biggest drubbing saw Phi Epsilon Pi crush Delta Sigma 24-1. The other two games were mild routs with S.A.E. defeating Phi Sigma Delta 14-3 and T.E.P. downing Kappa Sigma 12-4.

The various leagues are set up as follows:

North Campus A League
Meatballs, Neversweets, Tolland Tigers, Middlesex 111, Iota Nu Delta A, Benny's Bums, Middlesex Saints, New London Bulldogs, Windham Bombers, and the New Haven Hot Shots.

Giordano Runs Two Mile In 9:31.5 Yet He Has No Record

When you look at some of his accomplishments, you'd be willing to bet your last white shirt that Bruno Giordano must hold practically every record in the Connecticut track record books. Funny, but the slim senior distance runner doesn't hold a single one.

For the fourth time in his three-year career, Giordano bettered the school record in the two-mile run, but oddly enough he didn't win any of the races and according to Connecticut rules can not claim the record of 9:44.7 set by a lad named Bob Wheaton back in 1939.

The smooth striding athlete from Stamford pulverized the UConn mark last Thursday when he romped to a fine fourth-place finish in the two-mile event of the 67th annual Penn Relays. His time: 9:31.5. Last year Giordano squeezed under the 9:40 mark on several occasions.

With only three dual meets and two championships matches left in his college career, Giordano could well find himself in the familiar role of, "Always the bride's maid, but never the bride."

Giordano ran one of the best races of his life last fall when he placed sixth in the NCAA cross country championships at Michigan State College. Then too, he won the New England intercollegiate title and has always been one of the top threats in the Yankee Conference track and field championships. But despite all the fine times, good races and national recognition, the elusive two-mile record has kept out of Giordano's grasp for almost three years. One begins to wonder if Bruno Giordano, conceded by most quarters to be the greatest distance runner in the school's history, will ever own the record?

'C' Club Ready Soon Continue New Work

Connecticut's varsity C Club continued work on a new constitution this week and club spokesmen said, "The organization, new constitution and all, should be in working order before the school year has run out."

Since holding a reorganization meeting three weeks ago, the letterman's club has held weekly meetings. On Monday night the group conducted an informal discussion with members of the Connecticut's athletic advisory board. A guest at the meeting was Hank O'Donnell, sports editor of the Waterbury Republican newspaper, who last year helped the club towards its program of better relations with the press.

Elections for new officers are expected to be held within the next two weeks.

Yokabaskas Named Basketball Captain At Banquet; Hobson Praises Team

Vinny Yokabaskas, the highest scoring basketball player in Connecticut history, will lead the University of Connecticut cagers next year. Yokabaskas, a 21-year-old junior, was named by Coach Hugh Greer as next year's captain, Monday night, as the squad held its annual banquet at the Altnaveigh Restaurant.

About 30 basketball players, members of the Connecticut Athletic Advisory Board and sports writers attended the banquet and heard Howard Hobson, Yale's basketball coach, tell the squad, "We had a great deal of favorable comment as far as your representing New England in the NCAA tournament."

George McReynolds, dean of the school of Arts and Sciences, acted as toastmaster. Visiting sports writers were Hank O'Donnell of the Waterbury Republican, Bill Newell of the Hartford Courant, Harold Ogden of the Hartford Times and Red Currier of the Norwich Bulletin.

Yokabaskas, who succeeds Eddie Gates of Norwich, scored 404 points this season to bring his three-year total to 1122. In addition to Yokabaskas, Coach Greer will name an acting co-captain for each game.

ROTC Accepts 152 Sophs

Tentative acceptances for the advanced air ROTC program have been extended to 125 sophomores, Colonel H. C. Lancaster of the Air Force ROTC unit here announced recently. These students were picked from a total of 225 applicants.

The tentative group, of which only four are veterans, chosen on the basis of QPR standing and the impression each individual made before an interviewing board.

The official quota designating the exact number of students the unit will be permitted to take into the advanced program has not yet been received from Washington. It is expected about August, Colonel Lancaster stated further.

French stressed the importance of the Panhellenic representatives and their responsibility to all the Greek girls on campus.

Keys were awarded to the following girls who have served on Panhellenic for two years: Carol Frost, Mary Castenholz, Ruth Berry, Barbara Oppel, Patricia Cantwell and Doris Gergren.

New officers for the coming year are Joan Molloy, President; Evelyn Ward, Vice President; Jeanne Anderson, Recording Secretary; Shirley Rosenblatt, Corresponding Secretary.

Those attending were Panhellenic delegates, alumnae advisors, Miss Miss French, Mrs. Gerberich, Mrs. Gaylord, Mrs. Richelt and Mrs. Trail. Chairman for the banquet was Velma Kaufman, and Barbara Oppel, the retiring president, acted as toastmistress.

the colony of Connecticut have never failed us."

Shortly after the husky was named, students made up the song "Brother Jonathan". However Jonathan I never got to hear the song or know his name, for on February 15, 1935, the husky died of injuries sustained when he was hit by a car.

The dog was buried on the Beach lawn across from the Storrs Hall next to the stone step marking old Whitney Hall. A bronze plaque was erected over the grave.

George A. Patterson, president of the student senate, paid tribute to the dog at the burial. He said Jonathan I was "a symbol of the new growth toward which our college is now beginning to turn. He was a symbol of the forward progress that we as students are bound to make. He was a symbol of the coming greatness of our athletic teams as well as those other activities in which we enter in order to make our college greater. Connecticut State's Jonathans will go out to do battle on court, field and gridiron for Jonathan's is a fighting tradition.

Today the stone monument and the plaque can still be seen. Thus the little brown and white pup who was born July 23, 1934, came to an untimely end. Nevertheless he had started a tradition.
