80 Tutees From Hartford Program Guests Of Tutors On UConn Campus

Approximately eighty of the tutees participating in this year's Hartford Tutorial Program were guests of their tutors last Thursday.

The tutee's weekly tutoring session was held here at UConn rather than in Hartford. The purpose of the change in location was to give University faculty members and others who have expressed an interest in knowing more about the Tutorial a chance to see the program in action. Upon arrival here by bus, the students were met by their tutors and taken to dinner in the tutors' dormitories. Following dinner, tutors and tutees met in the Humanities Building where the tutoring session was held.

In its third year of operation, the Hartford Tutorial Program is under the co-direction of Kathy Clemens and Wes Seixas. The program runs from October through the Spring semester, excluding recesses and final exam periods. Tutors are UConn students who have volunteered to devote one evening a week to the program. The tutees, approximately one hundred, range in age from five to eighteen years and are residents of the North Hartford area.

The students are being tutored in the subjects in which they are having specific difficulties. If the tutors feel that these difficulties have been sufficiently overcome, they may move their tutoring into the field of reading which is an important part of all subjects. Materials used in the program are usually other than the texts the tutees are presently using in school. With the help of the School of Education, a library that will make available a number of supplementary texts is being set up. According to Seixas, the Tutorial has been established not to replace, but to supplement the education of the tutees that is being provided by their schools, and to give them a better appreciation of education in general. In such a program, the student's attitude is deemed more important than his grades although there is usually accompanying improvement in the latter area.

Tree Trimming Party To Begin Open House

The Student Union Board of Governors will sponsor a full week of Christmas festivities at the annual Student Union Christmas Open House, which will run from December 1 to December 11.

The week will get underway with a Trim the Tree Party on December 8 from 3 to 5 in the Union lobby. Students will be able to decorate the immense Christmas tree while listening to a jazz group and partaking of the traditional Christmas wassail and cookies. In order to kindle the holiday spirit, there will also be a carol sing at the party.

On Friday, December 11, festivities will continue with two dances. The first will be a Christmas Time Hawk in the Union lobby from 3 to 5 at which cider and doughnuts will be served. In the evening, from 8 to 12 in the ballroom, there will be a Ski Lodge Dance, at which the Chartbusters will perform. The four piece group has travelled about the U. S. and Mexico headlining shows at the New York Paramount, Steel Pier, Atlantic City, the Palladium, Los Angeles, and countless other leading theatres and ballrooms. Their most recent Mutual recordings have been "Why Doncha Be My Girl" and "Stop the Music." The dance, which will have a Ski Lodge decor, will also provide an innovation in dress. For the first time at UConn, girls will be allowed to wear slacks and ski sweaters at a Union dance.

The Board of Governors extends a cordial invitation to all UConn students to join in on the festivities, which are free of course, and help them to celebrate the coming Christmas Holidays.

Phi Kappa Phi To Initiate New Members Tonight

An initiation of new members of Phi Kappa Phi will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the Connecticut Room, Commons 310. A reception will be held afterwards in the Natchaug Room.

Phi Kappa Phi is a national honor society open to students enrolled in degree programs in all schools and colleges of the University.

Speaking at the initiation will be Dr. Babbidge who will speak on the topic: "Toward a Fuller Portrait of Noah Webster."

Dr. MacKeller, secretary of the UConn chapter, stated that faculty members of Phi Kappa Phi who have not yet affiliated with the University's chapter should contact her as soon as possible.

Students and families of new members are invited to attend the meeting and reception.

Preview Rush

All women students are invited to attend a preview of spring rush tonight at 7:30 p.m. in SS 143. The movie "From Alpha To Omega" will be shown. Open house at each sorority will follow.

Dr. Harrison Lectures On Effects Of Comedy Desired By Shakespeare

A man who understands the comedies of Shakespeare without any confusing psychological or so-called pseudo-modern intellectual criticisms lectured in Von der Mehden Hall, here on the Storrs campus Thursday afternoon, December 3. Dr. G. B. HARRISON told a fairly large crowd of students and faculty members that Shakespeare wrote comedy with the intentions of achieving long and hard applause. This type of reception was the prime element that attracted the people of his era to the Theatre--common folk and nobility alike.

Mr. Harrison further stated that Shakespeare's three main principles of comic representation: decency (despite sexy puns) in situations, variety in characterization and circumstance, and charity in presenting his characters plus the audience's appreciation are what make Shakespearean laughter universally acceptable.

The noted authority then gave a detailed and direct account of most all of Shakespeare's comedies, showing how the writer grew along with his works.

Specifically, in the autumn of 1594, Dr. Harrison stated there came an outstanding and noteworthy change in the playwright's style with the composing of THE MERCHANT OF VENICE. Shakespeare was no longer an amateur and dilettante working only for effects but an artist and expert craftsman taking his art quite seriously.

The lecturer mentioned that in the play of Jew vs. Christian the author maintains an alternation of interest and a wide use of restraint. "Shylock is no monster" said Dr. Harrison, but another intricate personality worked into the play and giving life to the production.

Dr. Harrison

The speaker also elaborated on the great potential of the trial scene and the various ways in which Portia and Shylock may be portrayed. The entire play may be viewed on two levels.

At its lowest and most basic THE MERCHANT OF VENICE may be taken as no more than a theme variation on the "Big, Bad Wolf and the Three Little Pigs" but at its highest, the play is a complete definition of the differences between justice and mercy.

Other highlights of the lecture included Dr. Harrison's stating that Shakespeare wanted people to be happy in his comedies and for every Jack to have his Jill, but not without surmounting difficulties. "For the Course of true love never runs smooth".

To sum up Shakespeare's desires for the effects of his comedies, one particular quotation which Dr. Harrison made reference to, remains prominent. It is Puck's last three lines in A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM. The character says in closing: "So good night unto you all./Give me your hands (applause), if we be friends,/And Robin shall restore amends." William Shakespeare for no more.

World News Briefs

President Of Italy Resigns

ROME (AP) -- The President of Italy, Antonio Segni, has resigned his largely ceremonial but influential post. Segni--one of Italy's greatest post-war political figures--stepped down four months after a stroke left him partly paralyzed and almost unable to speak. He was president of Italy for two and one-half years. The Italian Parliament will meet December 16 to elect a new President.

Russia-Red Chinese Quarrel

MOSCOW (AP) -- The Soviet Union's leaders have served notice to Red China as well as to Russian advocates of a harder line that they will continue to support collective rule and have taken steps to insure it. Pravda suggests that Mao Tze-Tung--personality cult--or one-man rule--is hindering communist development in China. It says Russia has passed beyond such a primitive stage.

More Arms For Congolese Rebels

MOSCOW (AP) -- An Iron Curtain Diplomat--who cannot be further identified--says the Soviet Union has agreed to help finance and supply the arms airlift which is transporting weapons to the rebels in the Congo. He says the agreement was reached in Cairo last weekend at a secret meeting between the Russian ambassador and the Rebel defense minister.

Sooner The Better

At 37, Dean Burch, Republican National Chairman, has reached a height of success that very few men attain in a lifetime. What he has accomplished he owes mainly to Barry Goldwater.

The events of November 3 however, diminished the Republican prominence of Barry Goldwater. Now, the GOP Governors' Conference seems to have completed the task of turning over the conservative applecart completely by asking for the ouster of Burch.

The GOP governors, in their closing statement Saturday said "We strongly recommend to the national committee that, in determining its leadership in January, it adopt a leadership which clearly represents a policy of inclusion, rather than exclusion." They said that they wanted a "broad-based party far greater, and more effective than any narrow, exclusive political clique can ever hope to become."

With these words, the Governors spelled out what they hope is the political doom of Dean Burch and Barry Goldwater. Thus, six months after their rise to power, the conservatives could be on their way out.

It is not with too many tears that Democrats and Republicans alike will view their departure. Dean Burch, Barry Goldwater and Company brought to the Republican Party a new direction that was a misdirection. They nudged their Party toward a policy of bigotry and jingoism. They searched for voters on the lowest levels possible: fear and hatred.

The sooner the Dean Burches, the William Millers and the Barry Goldwaters are expelled from the leadership of the Republican Party, the sooner the Republican Party will win elections.

Law Enforcement?

The arrests last Friday by the FBI of 21 men for "conspiracy against the rights" of three civil rights workers during the past summer of discontent in Philadelphia, Miss. points out one big problem that integrationists will have to face in the deep South. That problem is the existing corruption within the law enforcement agencies of the South.

This fact is blatantly evident by the reluctance of state authorities to indict the accused men for murder and by the alleged participation of a sheriff and his deputy in a crime of this nature.

It is also evident in the utter contempt of the people of Philadelphia, Miss. for the entire investigation and their sullen refusal to aid investigators. These same people will probably judge the accused 21 men.

The chances are that the accused will be easily freed by a Mississippi court, with no punishment whatsoever. If not, the maximum punishment that can be brought to bear on them under "civil rights charges" cannot be more than a $5,000 fine and ten years in prison anyway.

The point that Americans can now see and realize is that the local government and law enforcement agencies of much of the South festers with hatred and bigotry. Until this infection is removed the South will never have truly civil rights.

Kennedy Drive

To the Editor:

Students at the University of Connecticut should be congratulated on their present drive to raise funds for the John F. Kennedy Library. The contributions represent very widespread generosity on the part of the student body, and reflect valuable time spent by many students collecting money.

The strong interest and support for the Library shown by the student body indicates that we have a new generation of students who believe in the importance of the scholarly contributions such institutions as the Library can make, and support the Institute which will bring future students, politicians, and scholars together. Most importantly, however, this reflects a strong commitment to John F. Kennedy's appeal to young Americans to participate in public affairs.

As two individuals who have worked on the Mansfield Kennedy Library Committee, we would like to tell the organizers of the campus drive, Toby Kimball, Pat Sheehan, and Lee Greif, and the student body of the University, how important your contributions and enthusiasm as students is to the success of making the Library an institution with truly deep roots in the American public. On this large campus a number of students who may wish to contribute may not have been reached, and can help the drive or make donations by calling Pat Sheehan, Phi Kappa Tau, 9-2804.

A Party

Dear Editor,

Lord Alfred is now enmeshed in rushing a fraternity and was recently immortalized by his friends on the great symbolic rock. My involvement with rushing has made me do some serious thinking about fraternity and sorority life and this thinking came to fruition recently in the Campus while Lord Alfred eavesdropped on his two favorite Kappas. I publish this verbatim in the hope that some of these ideas may be adopted to invigorate UCONN's social life. "Kappa has long yearned for new and vitally sophisticated activities wherein ladies and gentlemen might gather together in clean wholesome activities."

"Indeed verily, soror, as a friend of the social chairman, what do you suggest?"

"Oh for a return to the simple--to the wonderfully simple things of life--for instance, have you ever given thought to a husking bee?"

"Yes, sister mine, where we could invite a fraternity over to our house and husk corn--oh how I yearn for such an activity."

"But, darling, we already have the 'Boy-of-the-Week' competition."

"Ah, yes, I forgot... well, then perhaps we might have a square dance!"

"Darling, that is fine for other sororities,--but certainly not for Kappa!"

"It is so hard to think of new fabulous activities--there must be something better than the same old things every weekend."

At this point Lord Alfred pushed his tawny brawny head into their midst.

"Hello lovely ladies."

"Hello couth gentleman", they responded unanimously. "Ladies, I have heard your plight--and now I must deign to solve it for you."

"Oh Lord Alfred, thank you--what is your solution?"

"Ladies, let us return to the simple things as you have suggested earlier--but let us do it complexly."

"How", they chorused.

"Kappa-girls, let's us apply your exuberant creativity to a project of some sort--for instance, why don't we give a party like none that has ever been given at UConn?"

"What sort of party, Lord Alfred?"

"Let's give a party where the theme is 'boredom'--where nobody even makes an attempt at having fun. We can invite a boring professor to lecture, we can play Lawrence Welk records, we can serve tea, we can sing school songs."

"How marvelous!"

"Yes, and perhaps we might close the evening with a hymn sing." "Oh, Lord Alfred, that would be so horribly wonderfully nouveau." "Thank you Kappa-Girl--and for this party you could set all of the 'boys of the week' as a display so that the men of the campus might have a model for their virility."

"Lord Alfred, this activity is most wonderful and in keeping with our social program--I am sure that all of the sororities will be interested."

"I am sure that they will." With that I stood up and left, making a mental note to suggest that my fratty house start a new contest and name a Kappa as 'Girl of the WEAK'.

Humbly,
Lord Alfred

On Learning

We think that many academic departments within the University would gain valuable insight and workable ideas from a serious investigation of the educational system used in the production of a student play. Certainly, pure academic and artistic objectives are not exactly analogous; both, however, do concern the education of an individual beyond a specified area of study.

Most psychologists and education specialists agree that learning requires motivation, concentration, effort and sincere interest. If these conditions are not present with sufficient intensity, a person will learn and retain very little. He may be able to cram enough facts into his brain to excel in exams, but he will forget them soon afterward. Drama students and their professors utilize and encourage the above prerequisites to learning in a manner and degree that produces unusually excellent results.

For instance, unlike most of his contemporaries in academic department, the student involved in a dramatic production exhibits a highly motivated desire toward personal excellence and a positive commitment to his work. No doubt, part of the reason for this is the drama student's avid interest in a rather limited field and the fact that a University degree means very little in the professional field. We feel, however, that students and professors themselves and their interrelationships account for most of the motivation behind their attitudes so conducive to learning.

As opposed to students in many other departments, drama majors have the decided advantage of studying under professors who are themselves totally committed to their art form. They also have the opportunity to work with professionals within their field, and with them to create tangible evidence of their abilities while gaining worthwhile experience.

The classroom and lecture hall students, on the other hand, seem to vegetate in their seats while being bombarded by professorial knowledge and blinded by a library of printed words. They are held in a one-sided system that for the majority of the time makes them solely the recipients. For drama students, the situation is significantly different.

Under a system that seems to encourage interaction between students and professors, they are allowed to be kinetic. As participants, they have the opportunity to gain more meaningful knowledge and also, in this, a social world, to learn and work with other people.

Since interest is a basic axiom of education, the University's academic leaders should explore new approaches toward more utilization and encouragement of students' interests and to foster a commitment on the part of students and professors alike.

Surely the above seems more profitable to everyone. Or is the University so entrenched in a 19th century system of cramming students with facts that it refuses to recognize and explore valuable alternatives within its own community?

UConn Law School To Conduct "Prospective Law Student Day"

Law students at the University of Connecticut have invited undergraduates from several Connecticut colleges and universities to spend a day at the UConn School of Law next week for a briefing on opportunities in the legal profession.

Sponsored by the UConn Student Bar Association, the "Prospective Law Student Day" will be held Wednesday, Dec. 9, at the University's new West Hartford campus, 1800 Asylum St.

Expected to attend the session, which is designed primarily as an orientation program on the legal education, are students at Wesleyan University, Trinity College, the University of Hartford, St. Joseph College, Connecticut College, Albertus Magnus College and UConn.

Dr. Bert Hopkins, dean of the Law School, will welcome the visitors with a talk on the scope of legal education. Following him to the lectern will be Asst. Dean

William O'Hara, who will discuss admission procedures and opportunities open to members of the bar.

Next, student leaders at the UConn School will conduct a panel discussion of extra-curricular activities and problems encountered by law students.

Also planned is a mock class in which a UConn law professor will present the facts and opinions surrounding a famous court case. The case will be analyzed by students much as is done in the "give-and-take" classroom technique of instruction used at the Law School.

The day's program will conclude with coffee, during which the visitors will meet with UConn law students and faculty on an informal basis. Earlier in the day a luncheon will be held for the guests.

In charge of arrangements is Joseph McKeon, 34 Beacon St., Hartford.

Physics Society To Sponsor Lecture Series

The University of Connecticut's physics honorary society, Sigma Pi Sigma, has scheduled a new series of monthly lectures on topics of current interest in the field.

Launching the series, which is designed basically to relate material in undergraduate courses to problems at the frontiers of research, will be a lecture by Dr. Fred Steigert, a UConn physicist who formerly was at Yale University. He will speak on "Interpretation of Nuclear Scattering by Optical Analogy," Wednesday, Dec. 9, at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union.

The lecture program is geared at the junior-senior level and also should interest beginning graduate students in physics. Preceding the lectures -- at 7:30 p.m. -- physics faculty and students will have an opportunity to mingle informally and discuss their mutual interests.

David P. Behan Joins Faculty

David P. Behan, a Ph.D. candidate at Vanderbilt University from New Haven, has joined the University of Connecticut faculty as a philosophy instructor, President Homer D. Babbidge, Jr., has announced.

A specialist in contemporary epistemology, he received his bachelor of arts degree from Yale College in 1961.

Mr. Behan is the author of several brief book reviews in the "Books Received: Summaries and Comments" section of the "Review of Metaphysics."

Currently working on his Ph.D. thesis, he expects to receive his doctorate in June. Mr. Behan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Behan, 2915 Chapel St., New Haven.

Computer System May Eliminate The Ritual Of Mate Selection

Some years ago, Professor K.M. Wallace of Los Angeles State College wrote a book refuting the common theory that romantic love is the main factor in determining marital happiness.

He preferred the premise that if you establish a couple's compatibility before they meet, they will be more likely to stay in love after they fall in love.

In 1963, Mrs. Gertrude Neiger, a trained social worker, applied that concept in organizing the Scientific Introduction Centre in Toronto. The object was to provide a clearing-house for personality information, to avoid "the complex, nonsensical ritual of mate selection in our society." The old ideas of lonely hearts' clubs and marriage brokers were out.

The publicity brought 500 applications from the curious, the interested, the anxious. One man wanted to know if people who were separated would be accepted. Asked how long he had been away from his family, he said, "Well, my wife just left me this morning and I've been cooking all day."

He was not accepted, but 300 people were, and at present there are 460 men and women registered at the Centre.

How does the system work? First, a client usually has marriage in mind, but generally he is less active socially than most people. For the fee charged, he is given several interviews and personality assessments, the results of which are punched on an IBM card. The data processor matches people with similar interests; dates are arranged as often as needed and available, and sooner or later there is an audible click--and a marriage.

Is this too clinical a method? Definitely not, says Mrs. Neiger. There have been eight engagements so far, and the couples all reported that during dating all they did was talk. They were even amazed that they didn't come to any disagreements.

It seems that well matched people tend to forget the commercial part of their meeting. One girl wrote, "I do not desire any further introductions because I'm happy to say that he and I seem to be unscientifically in love."

Mrs. Neiger stresses the importance of eliminating bad dates and, consequently, bad marriages. She criticizes "haphazard" marriages as not settling various issues beforehand, even down to the man's agreeability to go shopping for clothes and food. Thus in the tests given to the clients, there are some 90 interests listed for checking off, to be sure of maximum compatibility. Allowance is made for shifting interests, in young members.

Of course, some dates just don't work out. On his first dating Report, a fellow said of the girl: "1. She is a very poor dancer. 2. I had to take her home at 10:30 because she was 'tired'. 3. She jumped out of the car the moment it stopped for absolutely no reason that I could determine."

And an older man wrote half-bitterly about incompatibility on a semi-platonic date. It was "a situation where you kiss a woman goodnight after 2 months, because you feel she might be insulted if you didn't, and she kisses you back because she feels you might be insulted if she didn't. When she's gone (in the interests of applied science) you kiss the steering wheel and it feels exactly the same. You are left with two alternative conclusions: (a) you are getting old; (b) this woman doesn't send you."

In general, however, the simple and practical theory behind the operation of the Centre is working out well in practice, as it has in other large cities.

It is worthy of note that Mrs. Neiger herself met her husband under similar but outmoded circumstances. She answered an advertisement placed by a marriage broker. Was there extensive screening and testing before the date was arranged? "Well," admits Mrs. Neiger, "I told the broker that I wore glasses and could cook."

UConn Recipient Of Gifts

Items ranging from two mounted marlins to an autographed copy of the "Historia de Cuba" are among several thousand dollars worth of gifts recently received by the University of Connecticut.

The marlins were presented to the UConn Marine Research Laboratory at Noank by Charles Brooks of Mystic Seaport, while the Cuban history was given to the University's Branch at Stamford by Hector George of that city.

Meantime, the UConn School of Engineering received $2,500 from the General Electric Foundation in the form of an unrestricted grant. The funds will be used to support a seminar series in city planning and a computer program for freshmen.

Other gifts include: A $2,500 check from the Merck Research Laboratories and a $1,000 check from the S. B. Penick Foundation.

Shades And Times Of COLD

UConn in winter can be one of the coldest, most desolate wastes in the world...or so it seems as one braves frigid blasts on the way to that early morning class.

Ice storms dripping their frozen particles down that open neck, and blizzards howling gusty, stinging snow across reddened faces are all too frequent signs in these cruel times. How easy it would be to CUT that 8 AM! But then you remember that you're a freshman and already have three cuts - one more and you get that feared Blue Slip.

Winter starts out casually enough - a light rain during the night turning to icicles on tree branches by morning - as pictured on this page. And to keep matters even more innocuous the day is usually fair and mild, and the ice melts by noon.

Tree branches are innocent looking - beautiful in fact. So picturesque that photographers and painters alike are called to capture all their crystal charm.

And then the snows came...You woke up one morning and the ground was covered with about ten feet of white - or so it seems when you take that first venturing step into the wilderness. After that all-nighter last night you thought you could never stay awake long enough to get to class, but suddenly you snap alive as the howling blasts sweep frostily against your coffee-sodden face.

And then you think back to those days gone by when all that showed were quick-melting tree icicles that were gone by noon.

"Mr. Thomson....please!"

Please tell me how you manage to make me look so great on campus. The only thing I can't pass now is a crowd of boys. Those vertical stretch pants follow the sleek line of most resistance. And guarantee the least resistance on campus. Then, total recovery (only the pants, Mr. Thomson, not the boys). The reflex action of your proportioned stretch pants is second only to the reflex action of that Psych major I've had my eye on. And the fit! Mr. Thomson, please, how did you get them to fit so well? I adore you, Mr. Thomson!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"YOU MEAN IT'S ALL THEORY?"

Varsity Hockey

the beginning of the third and final period the Huskies played inspiring hockey and Frank Capizzo, showing great speed, skated through two defenders, broke away and scored his first of two for the evening, at 4:22 of the period.

Tom Richardson then scored his third goal of the game, "a hat trick", on a rebound shot with assists from Dwight Steeves and Bob Knudsen, at 5:32. Frank Capizzo completed UConn's scoring on another breakaway, as he made a beautiful fake and fired the puck in on a strong shot, at 15:38.

W.P.I. scored their two goals late in the period as Steve Cotter put in a rebound with an assist from Bill Baker, at 15:59, and Steve Boraks powered one by DiPentima on an assist from Steve Cotter at 17:56. This made the final score 9-2.

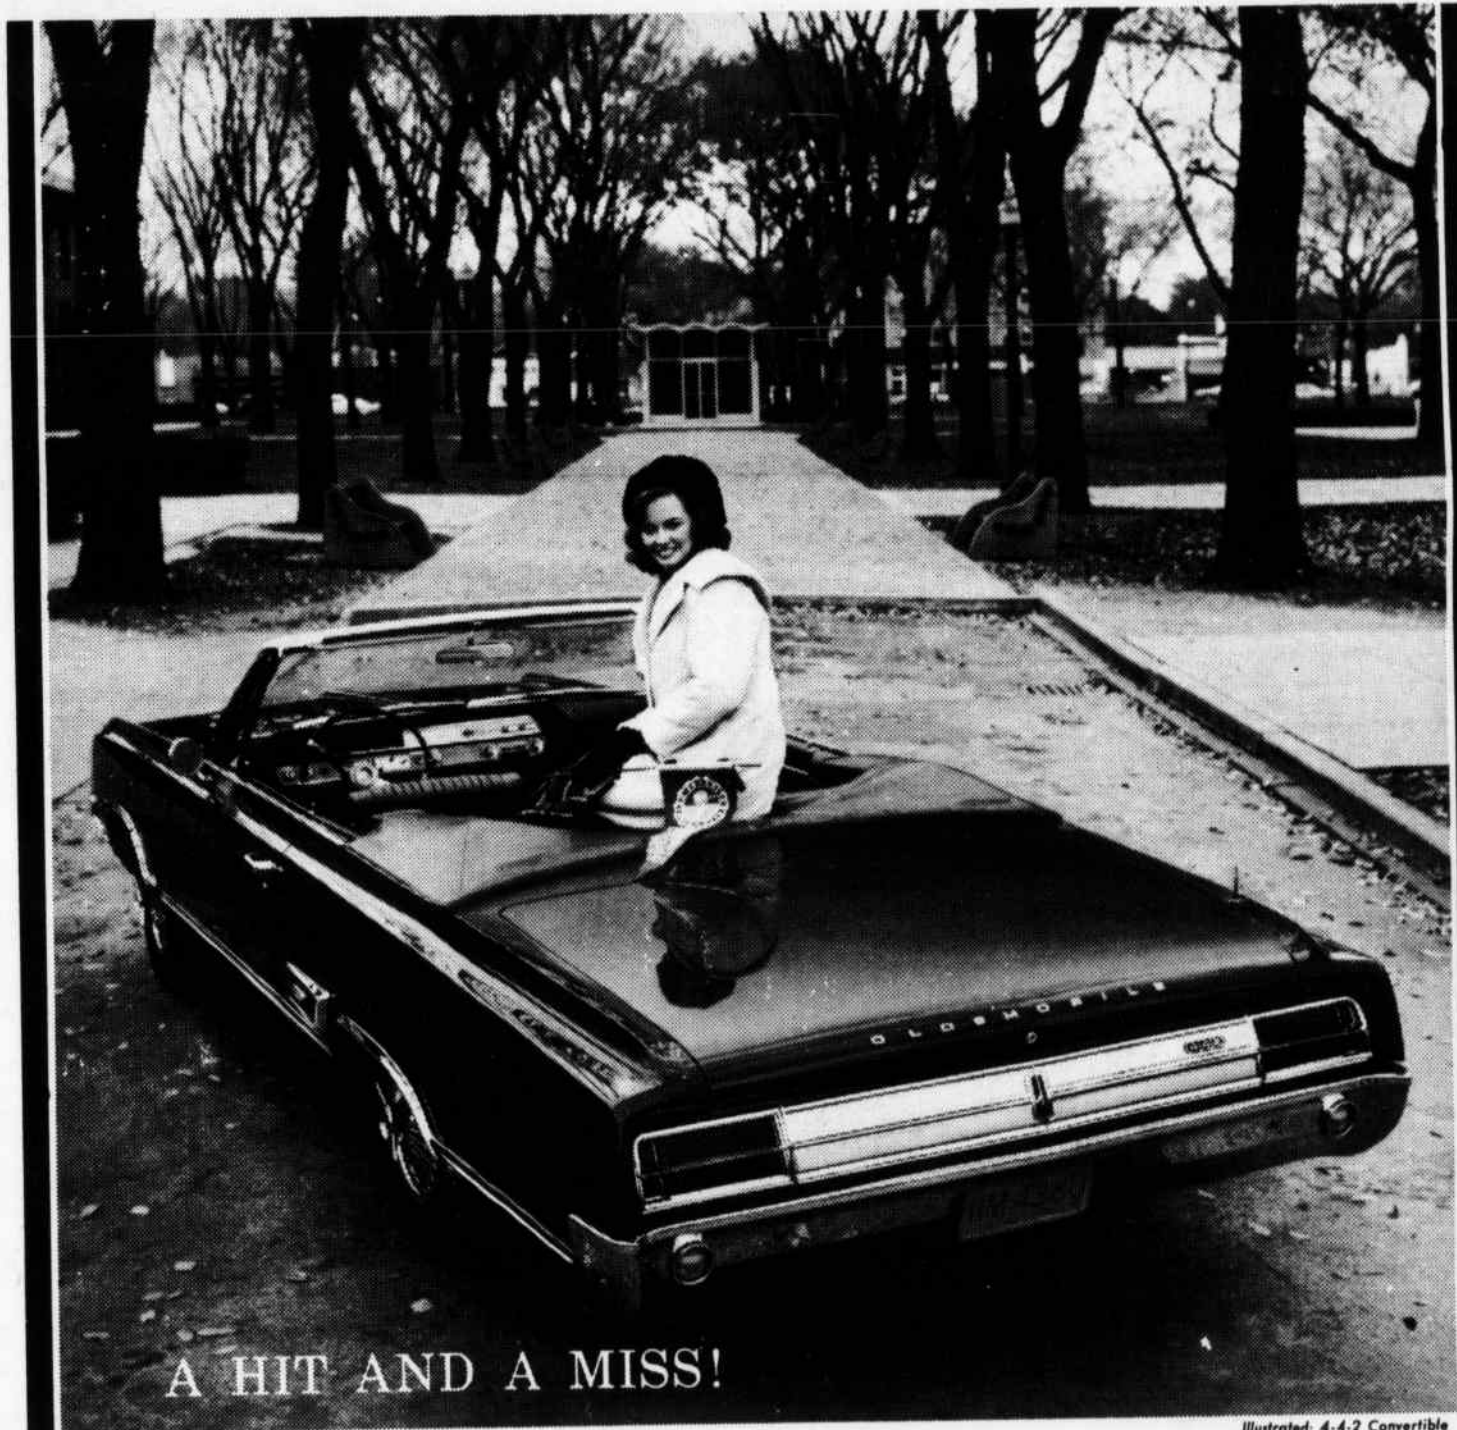

Although the scoring was done primarily by three men with Tom Richardson the leader with three goals, such offensive players as Dick Leven, Bob Magyar, and Cy Jannke kept the pressure on Goulart throughout and aided in setting up UConn scores. Also, Bob Knudsen sparked with 5 assists.

Dick DiPentima playing his first varsity game as goalie for the Huskies looked good during most of the game making 26 saves, as his defense protected him greatly which can be seen when compared with Goulart's 56 saves.

Overall it was a good game for the Huskies and showed a lot of potential for the future. With the development of the Sophomores, Coach John Chapman's squad should be very tough in future games.

The Pucksters play two games next week, both away. They tangle with Amherst at Amherst on Wednesday and Nichols at Worcester on Friday.

If you can tear your eyes off pretty Vonda Kay Van Dyke for a moment, we'd like to tell you about the car: Oldsmobile's new 4-4-2. Earns its name from a 400-cu.-in., 345-bhp V-8... 4-barrel carb... and twin pipes. Red-line tires, heavy-duty suspension, three transmission availabilities liven up the package—no matter which F-85 V-8 coupe or convertible you pick for your 4-4-2 action! But the real clincher is price: 4-4-2 prices start lower than any other high-performance car in America designed for everyday driving! Vonda, by the way, is not included. But that's no problem for a tiger like you!

Watch for the 4-4-2... coming to your Oldsmobile Quality Dealer's soon!

Hoop Squad, With Big Second Half, Routs Yale 68-47; Richardson Leads Hockey Team To 9-2 Win Over W.P.I.

Six Goal First Period Decisive

Charlie Lipson

The University of Connecticut Varsity Hockey team started its season on a successful note Friday evening whipping W.P.I. 9-2, at Worcester, Mass.

The Husky Pucksters showed good balance in both defense and offense in downing the Techmen, and were able to use all three lines with the same amount of effectiveness.

The UConn's started to apply the pressure on Worcester's goalie, Joe Goulart, very early in the game as Dwight Steeves tapped in a rebound with an assist from Bob Knudsen at 2:53 of the first period.

Two W.P.I. penalties followed the goal and the Puckmen took advantage of this and scored twice in the span of two minutes, as Russ Hintz powered a shot past Goulart with the help of Bob Knudsen's second assist of the evening. That goal came at 8:16 and then at 9:05 Captain Dick Andrews came right back and put in a rebound with assists from Bob Knudsen and Tom Richardson.

W.P.I. was penalized once again and the Huskies taking advantage of the opportunity scored when Bob Knudsen assisted Tom Richardson for the goal, at 9:46, the first of three which Richardson was to get in the game.

Richardson scored his second goal, with an assist from Bob Knudsen, on a rebound shot at 14:12 of the period. Then at 19:47 Russ Hintz scored his second goal of the afternoon when Goulart left his cage free. Russ received his assists from Bob Knudsen and Dick Ralston.

Hintz's goal ended the first period, one which showed definite strengths of the UConn squad. The Huskies outskated, out-stick handled and outpassed the W.P.I. sextet. They put constant pressure on Goulart and were able to take advantage of Worcester penalties and rebounds near the cage.

Going into the second period the Huskie Puckmen seemed to let down a little on offense, as they have a 6-0 lead. However, the defense which played superbly throughout the game really came through for goalie Dick DiPentima who had to make only 8 saves in the entire period.

Led by Captain Dick Andrews and Dick Kupec both of whom played highly aggressive hockey, the defense blocked many shots before they got to DiPentima and checked very hard, shaking the puck loose on many occasions. Also playing well on defense were Dave Engstrom and George Agnew who added depth and never let down on the W.P.I. players.

Kimball, Hesford And Della Sala Lead The Attack

Ira Loss

A revitalized second half spurt by the UConn varsity basketball team enabled the Huskies to overpower Yale 68-47 in a game played Saturday night at New Haven.

Bill Della Sala was the spark-plug in the second half as his 15 and 20 foot jump-shots consistently went through the net. Toby Kimball was also a big factor as he scored 14 points after the intermission and also pulled in 13 rebounds.

The first half was reminiscent of last year's slow down style of basketball as the Yalies held the ball and looked for the single shot. The UConn zone was put to a real test as the Bulldogs passed with accuracy and waited until they had the good shot.

The Huskies continually tried to pull away, but the Elis were able to make crucial steals and keep the score close. As a result, the Huskies only held a 28-26 lead when the first half ended.

The outstanding player for the Huskies in the first half was Dan Hesford. The 6'2" junior was almost the entire Husky offensive attack as he scored all of his 14 points in the first 15 minutes of the game. Hesford hit on jump shots from all sides of the basket and had two very nifty drives that left the crowd in a state of disbelief.

Yale had to fight hard to stay in the game even in the first half. Although the score was close, the Elis were out-rebounded and had to scramble after every loose ball. This they managed to do and kept the score close.

The Huskies came out of the dressing room like they were a new team, for the second half. Kimball came to life and Della Sala started to hit on his jumper. As a result, the UConn's quickly scored 11 points before the Elis could manage one. Della Sala contributed six of the points in this stretch.

Yale finally scored after five minutes and eight seconds of the second half elapsed, when Bob Trupin, the high scorer in the game, drove in for a lay-up. Trupin, who appears to be Yale's only consistent scorer, netted 24 points during the evening and was about the only factor that kept the game from being a complete runaway.

It was at this point that Toby Kimball came to life. Kimball, who did not score a basket until 10 minutes of the first half had elapsed, suddenly went on a rampage of scoring, rebounding and alert ball stealing. In the last nine minutes of the game, Kimball scored 10 of his twenty points, mostly on rebounds and set up plays. Two of his baskets were scored on beautiful passes from Della Sala who could do almost nothing wrong.

Coach Fred Shabel once again cleared his bench in the late stages of the game. Tom Penders was one of the outstanding substitutes as he displayed fine passing and dribbling ability as well as scoring four points.

Wes Balosuknia, who scored 20 points against AIC, had one of those evenings when the ball just would not go through the basket. Many times his jump shots went around the rim and fell out or seemed to be half way through the basket only to pop out again. He ended up with nine points.

Although he did not score, P.J. Curran played one of the finest floor games of his career. His passing was sharp and his overall control in setting up plays was admirable.

While only making 14 of 25 foul shots, the Huskies were deadly from the floor as they sunk 27 of 60 shots for a 45% average. Yale on the other hand, shot 11 for 15 from the foul line but could only make 18 of 58 shots from the floor.

The key to the game was probably in the well balanced scoring the UConn's had in comparison to the lack of balance Yale had. Another important factor was in the rebounding department where the Huskies out-rebounded Yale 46 to 31. Toby Kimball was the big man again as he grabbed off 24 stray shots.

UConn has now won its two starts this season. Yale's record is evened at 1-1. The Huskies return to action this

Wednesday night when they meet another foe from the Ivy League, Harvard University invades Storrs for a game which is scheduled for 8 p.m.
