yggdrasil begins second semester

by Mark Franklin

Yggdrasil, the university "drop-in center", now at four Gilbert Road in Storrs, has started its second semester.

This semester, the center's emphasis is on "taking a more active role in human growth" according to center advisor Ruth Buczynski.

Although it is directly connected with the Office of Student Affairs, Yggdrasil has no budget and relies on private contributions. The university provides the center with some supplies, Buczynski said.

The staff of 22 student volunteers is pledged to maintain the confidence of the people they counsel and keeps no records, according to Buczynski.

New Members Start Training

New members will start a training program that lasts all semester although the trainees can start working at Yggdrasil after their third week of training in mid-October. Before being allowed to work, the trainees must go through a "self-awareness" lab.

"One must know himself before he can help others," Buczynski said.

The initial part of the program will be "Empathy training" which will teach the person how to listen and understand. This will be followed by a series of workshops in women's problems, drug problems, legal aid and first aid. The rest of the semester will be taken up by more workshops and classes, according to Buczynski.

Common Problem is Loneliness

According to the staff members, the most frequent problems among students are loneliness, depression and feelings of inadequacy. Since the staff keeps no records, they said they don't know how many people they helped last year, but according to Carl Golob, one of the center's trainees, he was "surprised and pleased at the number."

This year, Golob said they would like to reach a majority of the students on and off campus, by bringing staff members to them. Buczynski says Yggdrasil "went to the people" to a certain extent last year when they set up booths at concerts for people who became ill, and by making "house calls" for people with bad trips. They hope to expand their center by running workshops, such as their Empathy Training program, for anyone who wants to take part.

Members are 'Really Committed'

Outgoing co-coordinator Anne Goodrich says of the coming year's program, "I have a very good feeling about it. The people there are really committed."

Golob said the original name "Yggdrasil" came from Norse mythology describing an all-encompassing tree of knowledge.

"Our philosophy is extremely humanistic. To say we care...is the basis of the whole thing," Golob said.

Yggdrasil, a university-run "Drop-In" counseling center is now open at its new address at four Gilbert Road. If you have any problems and need a listening ear, Yggdrasil is there to help. (Photo by Louis Krasniewicz)

uconn welcomes three new deans

by Al Krsiunas

Three deans new to UConn were appointed by acting president Edward V. Gant this summer. They include the deans of the School of Fine Arts, the School of Education, and the School of Social Work in Hartford.

Dr. James Rosser Johnson, formerly curator of art history and education at the Cleveland Museum of Art since 1967, is the new dean of the School of Fine Arts.

Johnson, an art historian, received his B.A. at Harvard College in 1941. He has also studied at the University of Paris (Sorbonne) and acquired his doctorate from Columbia University in 1960.

He is the author of The Radiance of Chartres, as well as several magazine articles, and his interests include medieval and baroque art and colonial architecture of America.

He succeeds Dr. Frank B. Cookson, who will return to teaching music composition following a sabbatical year.

The new dean of UConn's School of Education is Dr. Harry Hartley, associate dean of NYU's School of Education since 1970.

Dr. Hartley received his Ph.D. at Pennsylvania State University in 1964. He was assistant professor at the State of N.Y. in Buffalo until 1966 when he moved to NYU.

At NYU he directed a $150,000 U.S. Office of Education research project and assisted in the University's graduate program in Puerto Rico.

As new dean he will also serve as general administrator of seven specialized units: the Audiovisual Center; the Bureau of Educational Research and Services; the Curriculum Center; the Economic Education Center; the Mathematics Center; the Reading-Study Center and the Educational Resources and Development Center.

Hartley succeeds Dean William Roe, who is giving up his administrative duties to return to teaching and research here.

Morton Coleman, until recently acting dean of the University of Pittsburgh's School of Social Work is the new dean of UConn's School of Social Work in West Hartford.

Coleman completed his undergraduate and graduate studies at U.P., where he also held the post of associate professor.

He has also held municipal posts in Pittsburgh including manpower training coordinator (1963-66), administrator of all the city's economic opportunity efforts and the Model Cities pre-planning grant.

UConn presently has ten undergraduate deans, out of a total of 17 schools and colleges. Robert Lougee is dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, in which over half the students here are enrolled.

Robert O. Harvey heads the School of Business Administration and the School of Insurance and Edwin J. Kersting is the dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, as well as dean of the Ratcliffe Hicks School of Agriculture.

Helen Chambers heads the School of Home Economics. She joined the UConn faculty in 1953, coming from Hood College in Maryland, where she had been an associate professor.

Eleanor K. Gill was appointed dean of the School of Nursing in 1967, and Arthur E. Schwarting became dean of the School of Pharmacy in 1970.

Peter McFadden is head of the School of Engineering, and Frederick G. Adams was recently named dean of the new School of Allied Health Professions.

'bugging probe' stopped

WASHINGTON (UPI) - U.S. District Judge Charles Richey ordered a halt Tuesday in the taking of depositions in the Democrats' $1 million "Watergate Caper" civil suit until September 20, when he promised to rule on all motions in the case.

Richey hinted he was prepared to dismiss the case on a technicality. He noted the Democratic National Committee replied one day late to a motion by Henry B. Rothblatt, attorney for five men captured inside Democratic national headquarters June 17, to dismiss the case.

If Richey throws out the case, it could be filed again immediately, but the delay would be certain to put off the start of a trial until well after the November 7 elections.

Among the motions now before Richey is one from the Democrats to expand the original complaint to include as codefendants former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans, chairman of President Nixon's campaign finance committee, and Hugh Sloan Jr., former Nixon campaign treasurer, and to seek $3.2 million in damages rather than $1 million.

The Democrats charged Stans and Sloan paid five men $114,000 in campaign funds to maintain electronic surveillance and other espionage activities at Democratic headquarters at the Watergate apartment complex in Washington.

The Democrats, represented by criminal lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, have taken a number of depositions, including Stans, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former White House consultant E. Howard Hunt Jr., and the Secret Service.

governor meskill plans to restore death penalty

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI) In a sweeping statement, Connecticut Governor Thomas J. Meskill pledged Tuesday to lead the fight for restoration of the death penalty in his state and also called wiretapping all but useless.

Meskill, a Republican, made the pledge in a speech to the New England Chiefs of Police Association Annual meeting here.

He told the police officers that capital punishment has a deterrent effect and should be retained.

"One of the arguments against capital punishment is that it has not eliminated murder," Meskill said.

"If we followed that logic," he said, "we would eliminate fire departments because they have not eliminated fires."

Meskill mentioned the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down the death penalty only once, calling the decision "a problem for law connecticut loses unemployment as economy gains

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) - The federal government is dropping Connecticut from the emergency unemployment program Saturday because of the improved economic conditions in the state.

"The substantial decline in Connecticut unemployment is very encouraging but the legally required suspension of this program means the end of benefits for many of our people," Jack A. Fusari, state labor commissioner, said.

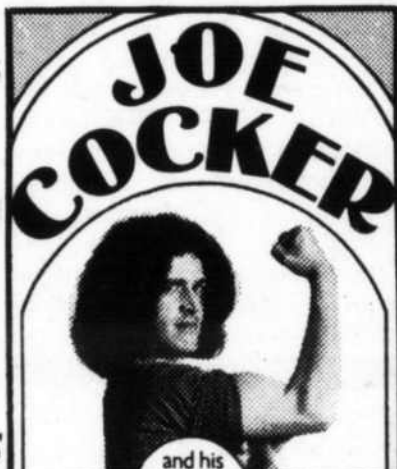

The state labor department said Connecticut's combined rate is now 6.4 per cent. Fusari said he was asking the U.S. Secretary of Labor for assistance in reinstating the program.

enforcement." On another subject, Meskill called Connecticut's wiretapping law, all but useless.

"A wiretap law is desperately needed to untie the hands of the police," Meskill said. "Proper restraints can quite readily be incorporated into the bill to protect against abuses."

He concluded by telling the chiefs the public supports their efforts.

"The solid silent majority knows that there is really only one line of defense against the anarchy and chaos which threatens us, and that line of defense is made of law enforcement officers," he said.

mcgovern pleads for party unity from chicago dems.

CHICAGO (UPI) Senator George S. McGovern pleaded Tuesday for the loyalty of the Chicago Democratic leaders his forces booted from the Democratic National Convention and was treated barely an hour later to the biggest throng of his campaign for the presidency.

McGovern, with Senator Edward M. Kennedy by his side, told Mayor Richard J. Daley and other leaders of the powerful Chicago Democratic organization he had to have their help to reach the White House.

Daley, the party kingmaker who never made it to the Miami convention, responded with a promise of the "greatest victory" the party has ever had and called McGovern "Mr. President" before the crowd that stood in a rain at a noontime rally in the heart of the Loop.

Kennedy, campaigning with the Democratic presidential candidate on a swing through electoral vote-rich states of the Midwest, exhorted party workers to "do the hard, dreary work" that produces election victories.

A throng of thousands, swelled by shoppers and office workers on lunch break, pushed and shoved around the McGovern - Kennedy - Daley triumvirate at the intersection of State and Madison streets. They cheered McGovern enthusiastically when he pledged to bring American prisoners of war home and called unemployment the No. 1 domestic issue.

One police estimate placed the crowd at 100,000. Reporters said the figure appeared exaggerated but said the crowd was clearly the largest of the McGovern campaign.

From Chicago the McGovern-Kennedy team headed on to Detroit for an evening rush hour rally in Kennedy Square. McGovern scheduled a nighttime rally in the Cleveland, Ohio, Arena.

babbidge backs demos

by Paulette Thibodeau
Former UConn President Homer D. Babbidge was in town yesterday for the opening of Democratic headquarters in Mansfield. He endorsed the national democratic ticket, Roger Hilsman for U.S. representative and the re-election of Audrey Beck of Mansfield for State representative.

Babbidge refused to comment on a possible political future for himself but suggested his presence in Mansfield had "pregnant possibilities".

"I'm a Democrat not just for the short run but for the long run" he told an audience of about 55.

During his ten years as president, Babbidge had refused to make public statements concerning his personal beliefs on political issues outside the realm of education. He had previously been registered as an Independent; he is now a Democrat.

But when asked if he would do any campaigning on campus, Babbidge said, "It would be in poor taste to do so."

Beck, wife of UConn political science professor Curt Beck, is running for re-election to the State General Assembly. She called the campaign the most

"issue - orientated" one of the decade.

Beck labeled the future of Connecticut's higher education system a state-wide issue. She said the quality of a state's people depends on their support of higher education.

bookstore goes private

The UConn Bookstore will change from state to private management, as of November 1 according to a university spokesman. The bookstore, state-owned but university operated, will now be run by the Follett Corporation of Chicago, Illinois, he said.

According to the minutes of the last Board of Trustees meeting, the Trustees, acting on E therington Commission recommendations, decided to solicit bids for operating the bookstore. The Follett Corporation, one of two university spokesmen.

companies to bid, received the contract because it guaranteed the best returns to the University, six percent of net profit or minimum of $108,000 according to those minutes.

The benefits from a private management of the bookstore include savings for the state on pension payments, added tax revenues for the state, and a great increase in the supply of used books for sale, resulting in lower prices for students and more money for student scholarships, according to inner college holds festival to evaluate goals and future

This is "Regeneration Week" at the Inner College. The festival, in its third day, will help students evaluate the I.C.'s effectiveness. Final decision on the alternative education program's renewal depends on a decision by the University Senate later in the year.

According to Jeff Walter, organizer of the activities, Regeneration Week is designed "to acquaint new and old members with each other", and "to examine the purposes and goals of the Inner College".

Some of the scheduled activities include: outdoor exhibits, workshops with guests from Goddard College and U. Mass., a pot luck supper and a coffeehouse. a workshop will also be held with members of the University faculty to discuss renewal of the program.

Activities will be held at the IC trailer.

The week will end with a gathering of IC members at a farm owned by the Citizens for Non-Violent Action in Voluntown, where they will plan their work for the coming year.

The IC trailer will open every day until 9:00 p.m., and information on the activities and literature on courses will be available

new school unites fields

by Al Krisiunas

A new School of Allied Health Professions has been created here to incorporate existing programs in physical therapy, medical technology and dietetics. The approval this summer was made possible by several long-term federal grants totaling over $400,000.

Dr. Frederick G. Adams is the dean of the new school. Formerly a dentist, Adams acquired a Master's degree in public health at Yale's College of Medicine before coming to Storrs in 1969.

Dr. John C. Allen, part-time dean of the School of Physical Therapy here since the 1950's will relinquish his administrative duties. Frances Tappan, associate dean of physical therapy, will be the associate dean of the new school.

The new school is the culmination of three years of study and planning. About 18 months ago, Adams was awarded a $25,000 planning grant from the Connecticut Regional Medical Program to speed the plans.

The school's goals include the development of counseling programs for students, a review and revision of existing courses to meet requirements for graduates in the allied health fields, the development of new programs, and the coordination of the existing programs in Allied Health.

The physical therapy program here dates from 1950, when the School of Physical Therapy was moved here from New Haven. Since then, it has graduated more than 800 students.

The medical technology program was set up 16 years ago in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in cooperation with several affiliated hospitals. More than 210 students have been graduated in this program.

The dietetics work, traditionally offered in the School of Home Economics, has graduated 234 students since it was established in 1935.

ice cream war creates bliss on north campus

by Mark Franklin

"Two for the price of one!"
"All ice creams ten cents!"
"Three pops for one!"

The Great Ice Cream War is on! Anyone who likes ice cream and is in the vicinity of North Campus can cash in on a price war. The two ice-cream men parked next to each other are offering their wares at bargain prices.

A. W. Magghop, of the A & W ice cream trailer, says Mr. Ed of the Colonial Maid truck is trying to force him out of business.

It all started yesterday when Mr. Ed decided to take advantage of the good ice cream weather. Magghop claims that the sale is only in effect when he is nearby.

"The minute I leave, his sign goes down."

Mr. Ed denies this.

"I don't care if he's here, I don't care if he's not here. The sale will go on for a few weeks whether he's here or not."

Mr. Ed says his prices will remain ten cents for every item although he was seen offering three ice creams for the price of one yesterday afternoon.

Magghop has been selling ice cream in Storrs for 38 years, Mr. Ed for five. Magghop says he will continue the battle indefinitely.

Mr. Ed says he has twice the space and adds, "I buy right."

The winner of the Ice Cream War is as yet unknown, but as long as it lasts, Storrs will have ice cream available at prices which will probably never been seen again.

bookstore on wheels opens

Inside a blue Chevy van parked in the front lot of Thomas Aquinas Chapel is the newly opened "community bookstore." Operated by about ten volunteer students, the store-van offers a limited selection of books at a cost of 20% below that of the university bookstore retail prices, according to Len Krimmerman, one of the bookstore workers.

The bookstore only has books for Gordon's Sociology 115, Luyster's Philosophy of Religion 126 and Denfeld's Criminology course 260 because they have no permanent basis for operation, Wayne Blaze, another bookstore worker said. Of those books from the wholesaler, roughly two-thirds have been sold, Blaze said.

The main purposes of the bookstore, are to "save students money and make a profit" according to Krimmerman. The profits will go to WALE, the Willimantic Alternative Experience, a free school which started this summer in Willimantic opened to all ages. Krimmerman said he hopes to establish the bookstore on a permanent basis as soon as possible.

mansfield elections start rolling

by Robert Kaplan

This is the first of a series of articles about November elections in Mansfield.

Barring a judicial row over reapportionment, the 271 year old town of Mansfield will start the gears rolling again for a process which began in 1701 when town meetings were first held there.

On November 7, Mansfield will elect two State Senators and one state Representative to the Connecticut Legislature, and help elect eight Presidential and Vice-Presidential Electors. Mansfield will also help elect a United States Congressman from Connecticut's Second Congressional District. All will be elected for two year terms except for the Presidential and Vice-Presidential Electors.

The New reapportionment plan, currently under dispute in the State and Federal courts, divides Mansfield into two legislative districts. The 29th District, created under the new plan, includes all of Mansfield west of Spring Hill Road crossing Route 195. This includes the University of Connecticut. The 35th District includes all of Mansfield east of Spring Hill Road.

Races for State Senator and State Representative will be effected if elections are halted because of the reapportionment dispute.

Two Registrars of Voters and 20 Justices of the peace will also be elected for two year terms.

In all races, except for the Justice of the Peace, there will be one candidate from the Democratic Party and one candidate from the Republican Party, besides any independents that might run.

Since there will be ten Democratic State candidates from each of the two major parties for the position of Justice of the Peace, all will be elected unless there are independents on the ballot. The same situation exists in the election for Registrars of Voters. Incumbant Republican Congressman Robert H. Steele will face Democrat Roger Hilsman for a seat in the United States Congress.

Representative Audrey Beck, wife of University of Connecticut political science professor Curt Frederick Beck, will run against Republican Jeffrey Ossen for State Representative. Ossen was an assistant professor of Business Law at the University of Connecticut last year.

Candidates for other offices are not officially known at this time.

With the exception of United States Congressman and Electoral College members, all major party candidates are chosen by a caucus of the respective Democratic and Republican Town Committees of Mansfield.

If a party member petitions to be placed on the ballot after a candidate is chosen and has a sufficient number of signatures then a primary is held.

Primaries, if necessary, would be held on October 16 for the Democrats and October 18 for the Republicans. The incumbent party (the party in executive power in the State) receives the later date.

For an independent candidate to be placed on the ballot, he or she must file a petition. The number of names on the petition must equal one percent of the total number of votes cast for that particular office in the previous election. This year Communist Party candidates for President and Vice-President, Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner, will need 1,274 signatures to be placed on the ballot in Connecticut.

Town committee chairmen are selected by a caucus of Mansfield party members. Each party selecting its own chairman.

As of September 1, 1972, the town of Mansfield with a population of 18,600 (including University of Connecticut students residing in dormitories), and has 6,052 registered voters according to the Town Clerk's Office, 2,717 of whom are Democrats, 1,560 of whom are Republicans and 1,775 who belong to no political party.

Madelyn Ermita, Town Clerk, says voter registration among the 18 to 21 year old age group has been light.

The actual mechanics of the election will be carried out by Connecticut Secretary of State, Gloria Schaffer, who sets up the election guidelines, the Mansfield Town Clerk, who is responsible for printing ballots and voter handouts, and the Mansfield Registrars of Voters, Emily Albee (Republican) and Joan Quarto (Democrat), who are responsible for setting up polling places, receiving petitions, and conducting primaries.

baseball slate unchanged by new calendar

The UConn varsity baseball team should continue to play a full schedule of about 25 games in future seasons, according to a statement made by Director of Athletics John L. Toner.

The director felt a statement of policy regarding future schedules was necessary at this time because speculative statements have been circulated with regard to the change in the academic calendar at the University which becomes effective this September.

"Naturally, there will be some change from our traditional schedule for baseball, but we do plan to play the usual 25 varsity contests," Toner stated.

Although next season's schedule is not completed, plans call for eight games in Florida, as has been customary.

Then the Huskies will return to campus and play two of the next three weekends in the New Jersey-Pennsylvania - Maryland area.

This will be followed by the usual New England type schedule, beginning April 6. A break in the schedule will take place during final exams, April 30 to May 8, after which three more Yankee Conference games will be played before commencement, which falls on May 13.

The Florida trip, from March 1 through 9, calls for three games with the Kansas City Royals Academy, two each with Florida Presbyterian and South Florida and one with Temple University of Philadelphia, Toner said.

baseball bits

Brad Linden, batting pacemaker for the Huskies as a sophomore last season, added another batting title this past summer. While playing for Orleans in the Cape Cod Collegiate Baseball League, Linden led the league with a glittering .372 average. He set league records with 25 extra hits and a .703 slugging percentage.

Outfielder John Slosar, a 1972 graduate of UConn, now in the New York Mets organization, was 13th in R.B.I.'s according to NCAA final major college statistics. Slosar was also second leading hitter in the College World Series with a .400 figure.

by Len Auster

A veteran defensive core, an inexperienced attack, and the toughest schedule in Connecticut history await the 1972 UConn soccer team.

Last year's dismal 4-11 season was a learning experience. Head coach, Joe Morrone, was still putting in his system. Now in its fourth year, this rebuilding process of Morrone is ready to shift into high gear.

The problem last year did not lie in the defense. It was a solid unit anchored by all-New England goalie Jon Demeter. Difficulties did arise, however, with the offensive punch. Inexperience, the inability to control the ball in the attacking zone, the one big threat, all compounded the Huskies plight.

This year, the defense is set to pick up where it left off. With everyone returning, Morrone has a multitude of talent to call on. His starting backfield will include the likes of all-New England center-fullback junior John Tagaras. Joining Tagaras at the fullback slots will either be Joe Lynch, John Joy, Dave Crompton, or Karl Monty, the latter returning after a year of inactivity. All these performers have extended varsity experience. The only worry in the deep back position is in goal - where a suitable back-up for Demeter has not been found. If Demeter is injured, the Huskies may very well be in for another long season.

The halfback slots are set with co-captains Bob Dederer and Lova Borisjuk, and Phil Whitehead manning these positions. Sophomores back-up the starting midfield slots.

Last year's unproductive attack can only be improved by the addition of three outstanding sophomores. The three - Franz Innocent, Tim Hunter, and Mike Swofford - have pretty much nailed down starting forward berths. This unit on a 7-3 freshman team averaged over 4 goals per game. They can only help a dormant offense. The Huskies had the unenviable distinction of being shut out six times, and held to only one goal on four other occasions a year ago. The fourth forward slot will either be occupied by senior Ron Fedus or junior Bill Cooke, both starters a year ago.

Adding a powerful Amherst College team to an already difficult slate, the Huskies will have their work cut out for them. They open on Sept. 20 against the University of Bridgeport, an NCAA tournament representative two of the last three years. Then Connecticut faces perennial Yankee Conference champions Vermont. The Catamounts have taken the YanCon crown seven of the last eight years. Always tough Yale University follows. If Morrone's booters can get past this opening trio in fine fashion, then an excellent season is envisioned.

Early spring practices have shown the defense as strong as ever. Scrimmages have shown that the offense has the capability of scoring. But, it is still too early to tell. Many questions remain open.

Can the defense stand another season of being overworked, will goaltender Demeter go through the entire campaign injury free, can the sophomores withstand the pressures of varsity competition and score as expected? These are questions that time will answer.

uconn basketball coaches to hold high school clinic

UConn Basketball Coach Dee Rowe will present a Basketball Coaching Clinic to high school coaching staffs at the Field House, Saturday, September 23.

"It is our desire to present as a service to all in our profession contemporary ideas, strategy, techniques, etc., to aid in preparation for the coming season," said Coach Rowe.

The UConn hoop mentor outlined a program for the day which opens with registration at 8:50 a.m. and a welcome at 9:15.

The period from 9:20 to 12:20 will be devoted to lectures by the University of Connecticut basketball staff which, in addition to Rowe, includes the newly-appointed coaches, Dom Perno and Bob Staak.

Topics for discussion are: "Organization and Pre-Season Planning;" "The Shooting Game;" "Team and Individual Defense;" and "Developing the Single Guard-Power (Multi-Purpose) Offense."

Following lunch, the coaches in attendance will be guests at the UConn-Vermont football game in Memorial Stadium, at 1:30.

The day will draw to a close with an hour, at 4:30, devoted to "Coaches Corner - Films and Round Table Discussion with UConn Staff."

Welcome Back To UCONN!

former husky great

vin clements makes n.y. giant team

by Dave Solomon

Vin Clements, former star runningback for the University of Connecticut gridders is making big news once again. The talented halfback - fullback will be playing for the National Football League New York Giants this season, it was learned last night.

Clements survived the cut Monday that required all National League Football teams to reduce their rosters to the 40 player limit.

Clements, who virtually rewrote the Husky record books in the rushing department during his three year varsity tenure (1968-70), became a Giant only last spring in the trade that sent Fran Tarkenton to the Minnesota Vikings. He was originally drafted in the fourth round by the Vikings in 1971, but the knee injury that sidelined him for the second half of his senior year continued to plague him.

It was the same injury which nearly caused Clements to call it quits last year. However, the trade to the Giants sparked new hope for the Southington, Conn. resident, and he decided to give it another try. "It's tough being an athlete," he claimed. "I often considered going back to a normal life. One minute I was all for continuing in football, and the next minute I was ready to pack it in." Clements had been working at a bank in New Britain for the past two years, while his knee was recuperating.

Athletic Director John Toner, fortunate enough to have been the football coach during Clements' years at UConn, had nothing but the highest praise and confidence to offer for his former star pupil's future. "I'm absolutely thrilled at the news," he said. "I feel that if they give him enough time, he'll be a great football player - he can't help but being a key part of the Giant squad."

Clements, who admittedly gained a lot of notoriety at UConn, reflected on his days at Storrs. "I never regretted playing at UConn. The coaches and the players were great. I still would love to play my senior year all over again. I felt that we could have put it all together that year if I had stayed healthy. Rick (Robustelli) was outstanding that year."

Asked what his most memorable moment in a Husky uniform was, the 6-4, 215 pounder quickly retorted, "It had to be in my junior year when we beat Yale 19-15."

Holds Most Records

His statistics at Connecticut made him the top running back in UConn history. Among his record achievements are: 273 rushing yards in one game; 33 carries in one game; 1141 yards gained in a single season; 242 carries in a season; 2461 yards gained in his career; 489 carries in his career; and 23 touchdowns in his career. He also holds the record for the longest punt return in Husky history (72 yards).

Clements has been rushing at a 4 yards per carry clip during the Giant exhibition season while also scoring two touchdowns, one coming on a 23-yard leaping catch in the endzone.

It should be almost like a homecoming for Clements as he will once again have the chance to shine before the many Connecticut Giant rooters. Those who remember his power and speed, his sure hands as a receiver, and his near flawless punting ability will be eager to see him in action. Newcomers, too, will want to watch him perform. Without a doubt the name Vin Clements is a legend at Storrs.

ANOTHER GIANT STEP: Many Husky diehards remember the tragic injury that befell its superstar, Vin Clements after the fourth game of his senior year at Connecticut. That once sour memory has now turned to great expectations for Clements as it was revealed last night that he has survived the final cut and will be a member of the National Football League Giants this season.

experience keys harriers

by Mike Muska

Winning and cross country have become synonymous for University of Connecticut cross country coach Bob Kennedy. In five short years his Husky teams have captured 75% of their dual meets (36-12), three Yankee Conference titles and two New England titles.

Experience provides the key for the optimistic Husky outlook. Last year's 9-4 sophomore laden squad returns intact, now as a mature running combine.

The team will be led by junior Peter Bortolotti (Foxboro, Mass.), an All New England finisher, and the team's first man a year ago. Joining Bortolotti will be fellow classmates John McWilliams (Canton, Mass.), Fred Steigert (Bethany, Conn.), John Hunt (Irvington, N.Y.), and Fran Brough (Somerset, Mass.). These five will provide an experienced nucleus running together for their third straight year. Junior Bob McCusker (Farmington, Conn.) returns after a year's absence and could challenge Bortolotti for the top spot.

Sophomores Bill Cantin (Enfield, Conn.) and Chuck Cornell (Foxboro, Mass.) should prove valuable additions to this year's varsity. Cantin shattered all UConn freshman track records in the two mile and last mile runs last winter and spring, while Cornell, a high school teammate of Bortolotti, provided impressive performances as a freshman in limited varsity action. Against Fordham and NYU a year ago, Cornell finished as the Huskies' first man, to clinch one-point victories.

A pair of seniors rounds out the returning Husky lineup. Jim Verdon (Lincoln, R.I.) and Gene Fergione (Waterford, Conn.), both lettermen two years ago, return to action after a year's absence. Both spent last fall sidelined with injuries.

Incoming freshmen could prove the difference in improving on last year's record when the Huskies suffered losses at the hands of Lehigh (IC4A college division champion), Providence (the New England champ), UMass, and Yale.

This fall's expanded schedule will include initial meetings with the University of Vermont and Tufts University, the latter featuring New England individual champ Dan Moynihan. The Huskies will also make their first appearance in the twenty team Codfish Bowl to be held in Boston. Traditional rivalries and appearances in the New England and IC4A's round out the team's schedule.

Added incentive comes from the fact that the top three teams in the New England will be invited to the NCAA's. Husky coach Kennedy would like nothing better come November than to see his team stretch its season a week longer with a trip to Houston, Texas, for the NCAA's.
