

Seniors' Response Is Slow For Photos

About 75 per cent of the seniors have not as yet had their portraits taken for the 1960 Nutmeg yearbook. Of the at least 1,000 seniors at the University only about 250 have had their portraits taken for the yearbook. Richard Pignone, editor of the 1960 Nutmeg, has said that the response to the portraits has been poor.

Senior portraits are now being taken at the third floor south cloakroom from 10:30 to 12 a.m. and again from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Student Union.

SENIORS may make an appointment at the Nutmeg office, HUB 110, from 1 to 5 on any weekday afternoon. If this is inconvenient, a senior may make an appointment by telephone by calling extension 278 at the same time. A senior may also make an appointment when the portraits are being taken in the Student Union cloakroom.

G. Fox & Co. will be the photographer. There will be a $2 sitting fee. If a senior wishes, he can order individual portraits for himself at a special reduced student rate.

Those who have a G. Fox & Co. charge account may use this in lieu of cash payments for the portraits. If a senior acts promptly, he can expect to obtain his portraits by Christmas vacation.

This series of portraits will terminate by Thanksgiving vacation.

Campus Healers

The final "healer's" exam for all students who plan to become members of the Daily Campus staff will be given Monday, November 9, at 7 p.m. in HUB 109.

Students who have attended the healing classes and those who have trained in the office may take this exam. No one can become a member of the staff without passing the exam. If attendance at this time is impossible, Chuck Raymond, who is in charge of the healing program, should be contacted.

Tickets Sold Out Monday For Kingston Trio Appearance

Tickets to the Kingston Trio's Homecoming performance have all been sold out. Within three hours from the time they went on sale, 3,800 tickets were sold to UConn students and faculty. According to Willard Sistare, auditorium manager, "Nothing like this has ever happened in my 25 years in this business."

CORRECTION

CORRECTION: The German Club did not present the German film, Teufels General, The Devil's General, as was stated in Monday's Campus. The film was shown as part of the cultural film program. The German Club, Deutsche Verein, was only taking advantage of the cultural opportunity by making sure that all interested persons were aware of the film.

WHUS Sponsors Trio Ducat Contest

Citizens of Storrs, Hear me out! This could happen to you!

Absolutely free you can have a pair of tickets to hear the Kingston Trio for Homecoming if . . . you can present the most miserable tale of woe, dejection, and despair because you are one of the poor unfortunates roaming the UConn campus who doesn't have a ticket to the concert.

WHUS, the Husky network, giving—yes giving—a pair of tickets to the student who writes the best letter, in 75 words or less, telling just how miserable he is because he doesn't have a ticket to hear the Trio. Each entry must be submitted with the name of the Mystery Tune of the day you send in your letter.

There will be a new Mystery Tune every day, from Wednesday, November 4 until Tuesday, November 10. The tune will be played twice, once between 4 and 5 p.m., and again between 9 and 10 p.m.

ALL MISERABLE full-time undergraduates are eligible to enter the contest, except WHUS members and heebers.

All entries must be postmarked by 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 10, when the contest closes. The contest must be limited to only one entry per student. The WHUS executive committee will choose the ten most poignant, heart-rending cases, and submit these to the final judges, Richard Pignone, Nutmeg editor, Ken Gold, Daily Campus Editor, and Greg Tuckay, WHUS Station Manager, will pick the winner of this fabulous prize—two free tickets to the Kingston Trio for Homecoming. The winner will be announced Friday, Nov. 13, over WHUS.

All entries should be sent, along with the name of the Mystery Tune of the day, to WHUS Contest, Student Union, Storrs, Conn., or to U.S. through University mail. Et tu, Listener?

WAC To Offer Career Training

CDC—Women's Army Corps offers executive training to college juniors and seniors interested in administrative work. If you are going to graduate this year, and are now looking for an outstanding job opportunity, you can enter an executive career as a second lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps.

THE WAC OFFERS challenging jobs in many career fields, good salary plus other financial benefits, opportunities for world-wide assignments, fine social activities, position of prestige, distinctive wardrobe, and excellent training.

There are 10 career fields open to WAC officers, each of which calls for an infinite variety of executive duties: Personnel and Administration, Intelligence, Training, Logistics, Comptroller, Public Information, Information and Education, Civil Affairs and Military Government, Legal and Legislative, and Special Services.

IF YOU ARE a college junior attracted by the promising executive opportunities available to an officer in the Women's Army Corps, then the WAC Summer Program for College Juniors will be of interest to you.

The new 4-week program at Fort McClellan, Alabama, serves the dual purpose of affording the Army and its prospective officers an opportunity to become acquainted with each other.

The plan has particular appeal for those who are seriously considering a career as a WAC Officer and seek knowledge of the service, but who don't want to commit themselves without knowing more about it.

YOU ARE ELIGIBLE to apply for the program if you are 18 years old and completing your junior year at an accredited college or university.

Representatives from the Women's Army Corps will be in the lobby of the Student Union, November 9, to provide further information about executive positions upon graduation and the WAC Summer Program for College Juniors.

Nat'l Engineering Society Recently Elects Members

The Connecticut Beta Chapter of Tau Beta Pi held its annual fall smoker on October 22, 1959 for the purpose of electing new members.

Tau Beta Pi is a national engineering honor society founded to mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates in engineering.

The Chapter at the University of Connecticut was founded on January 8, 1949. Previous to the elections there were twenty-two senior engineering members representing the three engineering schools, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering. Newly elected were nine seniors: N. Alleyne Howell, James Daly, Walter Mannheim, William Hanley, Neil Landau, John Charella, George Derbabin, Clifford Ibsen and Meno Osella and six juniors: Charles Nuese, David Dimmock, George Joseph, Alan Grinnell, Richard Maye and Charles Warren. The initiation ceremony for these new members and banquet in their honor will be held on December 6.

University Religious Groups Sponsor Embassy Program

Dr. William A. Spurrier, Chairman of the Department of Religion at Wesleyan University, will be the guest speaker opening the 1959 Religious Embassy, Wednesday, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. in tion, Canterbury Club, and the Lutheran Club.

Dr. Spurrier's stimulating topic is entitled "The Christian View of Sex," but so far he has managed to keep all information under wraps, so to speak. All persons interested are invited to attend this challenging discussion, and bring forth any questions or views on the subject during the discussion period following the opening speech.

Dr. Spurrier is a native of Newton, Massachusetts, a graduate of Williams College and a graduate Cum Laude of Union Theological Seminary. During World War II he served as a Chaplain of the 69th Infantry Division and received the Bronze Star. In 1955, he was made College Pastor of Wesleyan University. Now Dr. Spurrier holds the position of Chairman of the Department of Religion. During this time he has written many publications of interest particularly to college students; a few such as, Teaching as a Christian Vocation, Association Press, N. Y., 1951; and Guide to Good Life, Scribner's and Sons, N. Y., 1955. He has written many magazine articles for "Presbyterian Life," "Christianity and Crisis," and "Intercollegian." Dr. Spurrier is a member of many college aimed boards and student Christian movements. His varied background in college affairs makes available to him a wide range of experience from which to derive the material for his timely speech.

On Thursday evening, November 5, clergy and faculty guests will lead informal discussions in all dormitories after dinner to emphasize both the Religious Embassy and to delve further into the appropriate subject, "The Christian View of Sex."

Sports Car Club

There will be another meeting tonight of the University of Connecticut Sports Car Club in the Student Union room 104 at 7:30 p.m. President George Prout, has stated that two movies will be shown, both concerning past sports car races at Sebring.

Penalties Are Set By IFC: Colby College Announces

Colby's Interfraternity Council by means of the power delegated to it by the college administration will enforce those rules and regulations pertaining to gentlemanly conduct in every phase of fraternity life and all activities. Accordingly, the IFC has taken the responsibility to hear all disputes relating to violations of the rules and regulations encompassed by the IFC and Colby in regard to rushing, pledging, all social functions and every phase of fraternity life.

THE IFC shall have the power to determine the guilt of any violator of the interfraternity rules and any fraternity violations of the college rules, and shall have the power to penalize the guilty party in any or a combination of the following ways:

- 1 Issue a warning to the violator.
- 2 Levy a fine, not to exceed $100 for any one violation.
- 3 Recommend social probation or disciplinary action by the college, not to exceed one year for any one violation.

4 If it is a rushing violation, the power to exclude a man from rushing and pledging for one calendar year; and the loss of not more than 5 bids by the

Van Doren Fired

New York City, Nov. 3 — (UPI)—The National Broadcasting Company has fired TV quiz winner Charles Van Doren from his job as a commentator and consultant. The action followed yesterday's confession by Van Doren that he had won $129,000 after being coached on the show "21". Van Doren's confession came before a Congressional subcommittee, and it followed many previous denials that he had been given help.

5 Remove points from Area I—Administration, of the Bixler Bowl competition, not to exceed 25 points for one violation.

6 To determine any other penalties, which in the discretion of the IFC may apply.

VIOLATIONS of the IFC and/or college rules may be reported by any member of the Council, the Dean of Men, by any student of the college, and by any person affected by fraternity life, e.g., faculty, townspeople, etc. If the college administration feels that the IFC has not acted fairly, it will call the IFC to a joint review meeting. If, at this meeting, the IFC refuses to change its original decision, then it shall stand as done by that body, but the administration has the prerogative to deprive the IFC of their power of jurisdiction from that time forward.

ISO Sophomore Platform Stresses Unity Of Class

"A strong, united Sophomore Class can be promoted best by a class council that stresses Sophomores working together on worthy projects to the benefit of both the Class and the University as a whole."

THIS IS the main plank in the formal platform of the four ISO candidates running for Sophomore Class offices, Richard Falcone, for President; Gordon McDougall, for Vice President; Judy Vibert, for Secretary; and Mary Lee King, for Treasurer.

Work on one such project has already begun, according to Falcone. The four candidates are investigating the possibility of printing a Sophomore column in the Daily Campus, which would keep the Class abreast of social and academic Sophomore activities and promote Class unity.

Falcone stated that he, upon reading back issues of the paper, found that the Daily Campus two years ago made an offer of such a column to any classes that were interested.

Another plank in the platform encourages active participation by the Sophomore Class in University functions such as the Community Chest Carnival, for example, a booth in the midway events or possibly a Sophomore semi-formal spring dance on the campus.

IN ANOTHER plank, the candidates pledged complete support to the ISO resolution to hold a referendum among students and faculty to measure public opinion towards compulsory ROTC with the possibility of eliminating the compulsory aspects as a result.

The ISO Soph candidates have stated that the ROTC issue should be of particular interest to Sophomores who have some knowledge of the program but are still a part of it. They said that the Sophomore Class Council would be the best body to execute such a survey.

THE ISO nominees also included a plank on academics. It states, "We will move that members of the Sophomore Council with a sincere interest in academics join the Student Senate Academics Committee. These students could accomplish two things: 1. keep the Council informed on the workings and progress of this all important committee, 2. aid in the work of the committee.

We know that the Administration has tried hard to discourage this student committee, but recognize that it is of the utmost importance that students have something to say about academics, their main interest in attending college."

IN A COMBINED general statement of their platform the four candidates, Richard Falcone, Judy Vibert, Mary Lee King and Gordon McDougall stated, "If elected we shall consider the whole Sophomore Class as our constituents, not just those who supported us."

While acting as their representatives on the Class Council and Student Senate (in the case of the Class President), we shall be governed by their will on all such subjects upon which we have the means of knowing what their will is, and upon all others, we shall do what our own judgment teaches us will best advance their interests."

"The Diary Of Anne Frank" To Lead Off Drama Series

"The Diary of Anne Frank," winner of the Pulitzer Prize and virtually every other coveted prize of the theatre, will raise the curtain on the University of Connecticut's 1959-60 drama series Nov. 17 at 8 p.m.

The play, which is slated for a 5-day run in the Little Theatre, has played to sell-out audiences on Broadway, on the road and in several foreign countries.

The story revolves around the experiences of a young Jewish refugee girl and her family hidden from the Nazis in a Belgium home during World War II.

CAST IN THE role of Anne is Andrea Dromm, a newcomer to UofC Speech and Drama productions. Miss Dromm is an 18-year-old second semester freshman transfer from Seton Hall College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dromm, Seaford, L.I.

Assigned the difficult role of Mr. Frank is Kazimieras M. Campe, a graduate mechanical engineering student. Mr. Campe, son of Adolffs Campe, 98 Lilac Ave., Oakville, was cast as Creon in the UofC student production of "Antigone" last year. He also acted at Watertown High School before entering the UofC.

Cast as Peter, Anne's romantic interest, is John E. Gardner, a freshman from Stratford, Mr. Gardner appeared in five dramatic productions while at Stratford High School and won a scholarship to the Shakespeare Academy. He has also sung on radio, television, p.m.

at record hops and for benefits. He is the son of Mrs. Marie J. Gardner, 204 Legion Ave.

OTHER MAJOR roles include: "Margot," Carol Chidsey, 34 Main St., Wethersfield; "Mrs. Van Dann," Patricia J. Doyle, 699 Noble Ave., Bridgeport; "Mrs. Frank," Mary Lee Santaniello, 106 Maple St., Bristol.

Also, "Mr. Dussel," Kent

Christensen, Vallejo, Calif., and "Mr. Van Dann," Alan C. Ober, 14 Lewis St., East Hartford.

Supporting actors include: Ann A. Kooman, Belmont, Mass., as "Miep" and Bob E. Greenstein, 44 Lenox Ave., Bridgeport as "Mr. Kraler."

Directing the play is Prof. Nafe Katter, Assistant director is Stephen E. Blum, 14 Hawley Ave., Woodmont.

Lucky ID Holders Can Claim Tickets

Upon making final tabulations of Kingston Trio ticket sales, the Auditorium management finds it will be able to make available two tickets each to the following students who were first in line at the time the student sale was terminated.

These students are holders of the following listed ID card numbers: 7582, 1705, 2148, 1928, 3514, 484, 2431, 277, 7099, 5467, 5157, 4276, 4765, 1692, 5486, 4073, 3005, 4452, 1963, 4854, 2315, 2075, 4768, 4017, 1104, 1684, 7485, 6745, 1442, 2254, 6390, 2206, 6728, 4694, 4018, 5248, 3865, 6741, 5586, Fee Bill 55468, 1860, 7064, 5846, 2968, 1437, 3707, 1386, 1069, 2810, and 8138.

Tickets may be purchased at the Auditorium Box Office between 8:30 a.m. and 12 Noon and between 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

HUB To Sponsor 'Cafe Espresso'

"Cafe Espresso," an informal dance, will be sponsored by the HUB Social Committee Friday night from 8 p.m. to midnight in the HUB Ballroom. Dick Seaman and his quartet will provide music for the dance.

Poetry reading, group sings and guitar playing will be featured during the band intermission. Sketching of people will be done free throughout the evening.

The ballroom will be decorated as a coffee shop in Greenwich Village.

Refreshments will be served free. The entire student body is invited to attend.

Useless Ticket Complaints

Recent complaints that students had been misinformed as to the ticket selling procedure for the Kingston Trio Concert have, for the most part, stemmed from their own incorrect interpretation of the policy which was clearly stated in the Daily Campus last Friday and Monday.

The Daily Campus articles both stated, "All seats for the event will be unreserved and priced at $1.25 each. They will go on sale Monday at the Auditorium Box Office between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m."

The articles said nothing about any tickets to be saved for the next day's sale or any separation of the tickets whatsoever. This idea was conceived, however, from a misunderstanding of comments made through the Auditorium in answer to questions submitted by students. Auditorium officials said that they thought, because of the work involved, that sale of all tickets would probably take two days.

Mr. Sistaire, Auditorium Manager has stated that he had anticipated it would take two days to service all the students purchasing the 1675 pairs of tickets. He did not think that it was physically possible to handle all the mechanics, (processing the large number of ID cards and recording their numbers on the tickets) in only one working day. Mr. Sistaire stated that the main reason ticket sales went as quickly as they did was the cooperation of the students. Each had read the selling procedure, and had his ID card ready for quick processing.

In addition to the fact that the correct ticket regulations were printed twice in the Daily Campus for all to see, there is also the practical angle of the situation. Obviously, it would be ridiculous to divide the tickets in half and stop selling them, even though there was still a line of anxious students spread the length of the auditorium. What could Auditorium officials do? Tell the long line of students who had been waiting for over an hour that no more tickets would be sold, and they would have to come back again the next day to do the waiting all over again.

There may have been problems in the sale of Kingston Trio tickets, but we can not conceive of any system where such problems could be avoided. Let us face facts, a very popular show will always cause a large clamor for tickets. There will always be those who are disappointed because they did not obtain tickets. In this case, the students who wanted tickets the most certainly were the ones who got them, (for instance those who started the line at 1 a.m.) Other limitations such as conflicting class schedules also would be unavoidable no matter what system was used.

The Last Step?

Just a few lines to remind the men of Maintenance that there still remains a dangerous, broken step on the stairway leading from the North Campus Fraternity Quadrangle to the Fraternity Parking Lot.

It may seem like a trivial point, but actually this stairway is the main route to the lot for some 800-1,000 individuals. And with the decided lack of light in the stairway's vicinity, a rather effective trap is created.

Several students have already put their foot through the broken stair. Although no serious injuries have yet been reported, the nature of the broken stair could easily result in a student's breaking a leg or twisting an ankle.

It would seem that one step could be easily and quickly repaired by Maintenance, and the threat of injury should warrant immediate action on the matter.

Letter To The Editor

I have read with great amusement and unusual agreement your articles about women, but I'm afraid the last article kind of left me slightly cold.

Yes, America is fast becoming (if it isn't so already) a matriarchal society. As you said — to a degree it is your fault.

But the events you mentioned happening took place long ago in our country, and Free choice is now primarily a man's prerogative. In Europe and Asia, though mail-order brides were not the gamble, parents arranged marriages between their children, who in turn, perhaps had never seen each other, and were in love with someone else, while the man out west had no other woman to fall in love with — and if a girl went west as a mail order bride, she certainly wasn't tied to anyone at home!

As for being treated as an object of devotion — I have found rather that (especially in college and high school) the female regards the male with supreme adoration — for without one she is an outcast. I have yet to meet a man devoted to women in general and have met very few devoted to one — and then only because an attachment had developed — usually from her pursuit and conquest of him!

You men aren't taking quite enough credit. Personally, I'd like to know how many women are, at this moment, worshipping and feeling inside that they would gladly be a slave now and forever to the object of their desire. The fact of the matter is, fellows, if you'd realize now that you have the upper hand, and keep it — then when the time for marriage and families arrives there would be a lot less trouble.

Another thing — it might do both sexes a lot of good if they'd wake up and realize that they are different. The fact of the matter is — (it's not as simple as it sounds — for male and female differ as much in basic psyche as they do in body structure). Women (as a rule) are not cut out to be competitive against men — only for men.

Perhaps if this realization came about — if boys started to treat us like women — and if the girls would treat them as MEN — a great change would occur.

Men — realize the differences — and girls — let them realize it. Then, perhaps chivalry and femininity will recur — and our society will be much improved.

Sincerely,

TINA EMERSON
Sprague Hall

(Editor's note: In fact, Miss Emerson, the arrangement of marriage is not as often a mistake as the foolish concept of "LOVE" seems to be. One never hears of divorce in the ancient Hindu faith, for the simple reason that it didn't seem to be necessary. In modern India (this is as reported by Indian acquaintances, though they may be wrong), there is a great deal less of pre-arranged marriage, and a rise in the divorce rate. Parents form (warp, if you will) a child's mind. Hence they are often the best judge of a child's tastes. . . even as concerns the opposite sex. And if you do not think that the Junior League, CYO, Hill, and the Junior members of the local country club are not there to encourage "Free Choice" within a group limited socially, economically or religiously, you are mistaken. The rest of your letter proves, to me, anyway, that there are at least some girls who understand the battle of the sexes. And this brings me to the last point. What are you doing on Saturday evening? Expectantly, The Technical Editor)

Do-It-Yourself Shoe

by DICK HILL

For those of you who wear shoes, occasionally that is, I have some very important fashion news directly from Paris-Paris, Maine. If you should happen to have a pair of last year's casual shoes (such as tennis shoes or white bucks) which are in a state of wearing out, I have a very impractical suggestion for you.

All you need for material is one thirty-five cent bottle of rubber cement and one of sand. It is very important, however, that this sand be of a very special variety. Ordinary sand will not do. Only such varieties as Mediterranean, Cape Cod, or Paris, Maine sand should be used. The reason for this is that sand of such a variety is more difficult to come by than is, say for example, sand from Diana's Pool. And the uniqueness of fashion depends upon how difficult fashion is to come by in the broadest sense.

The necessary steps involved for fashioning your Beachcomber's or Clam Digger's casual shoes are as follows:

1. Insert a pair of shoe trees.
2. Brush shoes thoroughly with a stiff brush removing all foreign matter.
3. Heat the rubber cement to the point where it will flow easily off your brush and onto the shoes. A suggestion is to put the bottle in a can partly filled with hot water.
4. Apply the cement in small portions and to one shoe at a time.
5. Pour your very special sand thickly onto the portion you have coated tapping it in gently but firmly with your hand. After you have coated both sides let them rest for at least six hours.
6. Spray both shoes thoroughly with a commercial lacquer or preferably a plastic spray bomb.

DO IT YOURSELF

Now my friend, you have a new pair of shoes. If you don't like them, they make excellent sanding devices for the do-it-yourself carpenter who has everything. One further note: If the shoe contains a dye, the sand will change color as you apply it. Don't fret! This is where the uniqueness of the shoe comes in. Each and everyone of you will obtain a grandiose texture which will be differentiated from each and every other shoe you come across including, perhaps, its own mate.

Be sure to keep the shoes in trees when not in use and don't forget to include a bottle of rubber cement and a can of sand in that very favorite shoe-shine kit of yours. Good luck!

I. I. T. President Suggests Increase In Tuition Rates

An increase in tuition rates of colleges and universities to cover a larger share of the operating costs was recommended here recently by President John T. Rettallata of Illinois Institute of Technology. He said that tuition in tax-supported universities covers only about 17 per cent of the cost of educating a student. In private colleges it amounts to about 50 per cent.

To help meet the problems of increased enrollments and higher operating costs, President Rettallata suggested that an equitable arrangement would be for tuitions in public institutions to cover about one-third of the educational costs. This would require doubling current tuition rates in such institutions. He said that it would not seem unreasonable if tuitions in private institutions covered three-quarters of the costs. This would require a 50 per cent increase in present tuition figures.

TAX LAWS

The educator also called for an amendment of federal tax laws to increase incentives for voluntary support of higher education and to permit the deduction by parents of a proper proportion of the costs of education. He said this would lessen the force of arguments for federal financing of higher education.

President Rettallata said that heavier enrollments in the low-tuition, publicly-financed universities, in relation to the private institutions, are resulting in a large number of students and a greater share of the cost of their education. "Thus, the taxpayer who neglects support of private education is automatically increasing what he actually contributes to education through taxes," he said.

Canterbury Club Hosts Miss Elliot

Miss Ethel M. Elliot was the guest speaker at a meeting held Monday, November 2, in Saint Mark's Undercroft.

Miss Elliot, a registered nurse in the Department of Public Health Nursing in the UConn School of Nursing, holds a master's degree and a degree in Christian Education. She has also done work in the missionary field in the Diocese of Michigan.

With the assistance of slides, Miss Elliot spoke of the Building of the Chapel on campus. She showed slides of the ground breaking ceremony, the interesting highlights of the building process, and finally the consecration of the Chapel.

The Canterbury Association meets every Monday evening. All those who are interested in attending the meeting are invited to do so.

Modification Of ROTC Outlined In Formula

This is the second and final portion of ROTC Failure of a Mission, by Gene M. Lyons, as published in the Nation, October 24, 1959, and reprinted by the Campus. The Nation is published weekly by the Nation Associates, Inc.

In some institutions, this unhappy situation has been avoided. At the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for example, the Navy has a special program in which it generally keeps out of the student's way except to remind him that he is, in fact, going into the Navy, and that there are a few basic things about being a naval officer he had better know. The interests in such a program are mutual: the Navy is anxious to have M.I.T.-trained engineers in its ranks, and M.I.T. is professionally interested in the problems of the Navy and wants to offer its graduates the opportunities in nuclear propulsion and electronics that naval service opens up. Nevertheless, M.I.T. was not ready to accept the prescribed naval ROTC program and the Navy was sufficiently covetous of the M.I.T. product to know when to stop insisting.

At Princeton, too, the faculty and administration put their minds to the task and developed a number of courses within academic departments to replace military developed Army courses. Similar efforts, on less ambitious scale, have been made at Harvard, Yale and Ohio State University. The Air Force has invited all colleges and universities with the Air Force ROTC units to substitute academic courses where possible, or to staff the regular Air Force course with civilian instructors. Few colleges have taken up the challenge, however. For one thing, the Air Force itself is the judge of what are "fit" substitute courses; and, for another, few college instructors are anxious to get involved in the military programs at the expense of their own work and the regard of their professional colleagues.

In most colleges and universities, therefore, the question remains to be answered: How can we meet the responsibility of preparing young men for military careers? Leaving aside the doubtful probability of a complete metamorphosis of attitudes and values, the formula can now be stated in some detail:

1. The military officers now on campus are there to do three jobs: to teach technical military subjects; to give a special military "twist" to non-technical subjects included in the ROTC curriculum; and, through counseling, observation and their very presence in uniform, to recruit the most highly motivated students into the career service. The third function is the only legitimate one the military have in the college community, and even this should be carried out in conjunction with an over-all college program on career opportunities. Technical subjects should be left to summer training and post-commissioning service schools; non-technical subjects should be left to the college.

2. Compulsory ROTC, as practiced in most land-grant and state universities during the freshman and sophomore years, should be dropped. As college enrollments increase, the compulsory ROTC will become an increasingly uneconomical affair. The factor of compulsion will, moreover, always tend to negate any efforts to point out to students the comparative advantages of a military career.

3. The problems involved in developing a pre-professional program for a military career need study by joint administration and faculty committees where ROTC units are located. This does not mean that Brown and Iowa

State should try to duplicate the curricula at the service academies. It is more and better education that officers need, not more military training. Indeed, recent curriculum changes at West Point and Annapolis have been in this direction. Where, after study, it nevertheless seems clear that a worthwhile program, from the viewpoint of the students and the career service, is not possible, then steps should be taken to drop ROTC.

The kind of program that could then emerge where ROTC is retained would not, it must be admitted, completely satisfy the vast majority of students. Only abolition of the draft would do this. But these students would at least be relieved of what they now call "Mickey Mouse" courses and be given the opportunity to devote their full time and energies to the best education their college or university can provide. For those who are inclined to consider a military career seriously or who (and they are many) have no particular career plans, such a program would do more to excite their interest than the uninspiring experience they now have to go through.

The idea of consciously preparing young men for military careers is undoubtedly hard for many faculty members to accept. Perhaps only this need be said: Even if one seriously believes that the abolition of armaments, soldiers and war is the only solution to the present military dilemma, there is no expectation that force will soon be universally abandoned as an instrument of national policy. This does not mean that one should succumb to the pressure of present realities at the expense of deeply felt principles. It is, however, reason to think carefully before leaving the field to those who are less concerned with the meaning of war and peace.

Chrysler Executive Speaks On Management's Needs

Business needs large numbers of young people who "will catch fire with the excitement and challenge of management," William C. Newberg, executive vice president of Chrysler Corporation, said today.

Addressing a science convocation at Parsons College here, Mr. Newberg said: "There is no shortage at all of people who would like to succeed as managers. But there is a shortage of people who have the desire as well as the ability to learn, the driving ambition to succeed, the willingness to work and work hard, the imagination to understand the true dimensions and meaning of a management job—and the heart to put into such a job."

INTENSE COMPETITION

Pointing to the intense competition among business concerns for management talent, Mr. Newberg declared: "We all know that raising one business to plug a gap in another is no real solution to a nationwide problem. Business needs large numbers of young people who will catch fire with the excitement and challenge of management—who will understand its meaning for their own personal development as well as its importance for the growth of our country and the improvement of our civilization."

Mr. Newberg told the college students that this country has entered a period "that is remarkable for its diversity and variety."

"We are living in a time when new kinds of products, new services, and new jobs are springing up all around us. Every year the federal government has to add hundreds of new trades and professions to its Dictionary of Occupational Titles. Every day the consumer learns of a new way to make life more convenient or more interesting. In this kind of period, business management can be one of the most exciting as well as one of the most useful ways of making a living."

The Chrysler executive said management has become "a profession of great social importance and social responsibility."

CREATIVE CATALYST

"The work of management — employing all the gains of science to bring benefits to the public — determines in large part how fast our country grows and in what directions," he continued. "It determines not only the size but in large part the nature and quality of our civilization. Management is a catalyst that helps make the creative chemistry of our dynamic civilization work as it should."

Mr. Newberg also pointed out what business is looking for in management personnel.

INDIVIDUALITY STRESSED

"Management is looking for young men with individuality, with courage, with imagination," he asserted. "It is looking for men who know how to contribute to an organization and in turn draw upon the talents and the facilities of that organization to make themselves more useful than they would be as isolated individuals."

He said Americans are just beginning "to understand the full potential, the creative energy of our free and open society."

ACCOMPLISHMENT

"We are just beginning to realize how well a free market economy can make use of the scientific and technical discoveries of the Twentieth Century to bring personal satisfaction and self-realization to the citizens of a democracy," he said. "By the end of the next decade we may be able to demonstrate to the world—in a way no one can fail to understand—how well we have succeeded in generating the means to a good life for the individual through the operation of free, democratic institutions. Achieving that end could be the greatest possible accomplishment of American management."

Secretarial Club Plans Field Trip

Members of the Secretarial Club and girls interested in the field of secretarial work are attending a field trip to Connecticut General Life Insurance Company today.

Approximately twenty girls, and their advisors — Mrs. Filip and Miss Morrill of the Secretarial Department, will be the guests of the company for the day. While there, they will be taken on a tour of the building and hear a panel discussion. Members of the panel are college graduates who are presently doing secretarial work. One of the members of the panel is Lois Fox, a recent graduate of Uconn.

The purpose of the field trip is to acquaint the girls with the situations they will face after graduation. Following the tour, a luncheon will be served in the girls' honor.

A tentative meeting is being planned for November 5. All girls interested in attending the meeting should contact Anne Kenneth or Sandra Glibreth. The time of the meeting will be the most convenient time for all those who plan to attend.

President To Decide Soon: Bomb Tests Go On Or Not

GEORGE J. MARDER
UPI Reporter

President Eisenhower has an awesome decision to make between now and the end of the year.

He must decide whether to go ahead with atomic bomb tests if no agreement on control is reached at Geneva.

The way it looks now, an agreement just doesn't seem to be in the cards.

The big reason: Russia has all the trump cards in the Geneva negotiation and by sitting tight can win the game.

The fact of the matter is that Russia already has obtained a suspension of atomic bomb tests without any international inspection system.

Britain, the United States and Russia have announced test suspensions for more than a year now. And President Eisenhower has agreed to continue the ban at least until the end of this year. The Kremlin has made clear that so long as the west doesn't resume testing, the Soviet will go along.

But that means Russia gets what she has sought all along. And effective end to testing without the fool-proof inspection system against cheating which the west has demanded.

The result is there is no pressure on Moscow to make any concessions in the negotiations.

Of course, there is no way for us to find out whether the unofficial suspension is being observed in Russia. For all we know, the Communists can be conducting numerous underground atomic explosions to develop new weapons.

Only yesterday, alarming news came from western military experts in London of startling advances in Russian nuclear weapons.

And in Washington, chairman John McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission made clear there is no known way as yet to detect underground explosions. He said it would take four or five years to develop a fool-proof system.

The United States got into this atomic box in the hope that some agreement could be reached at Geneva. Meanwhile Russia played on world-wide fears of radioactive dangers to the human race.

We're now trying to get out of the propaganda box by offering to enter into an agreement with Russia to prohibit all atomic bomb tests above ground. Those are the ones which spread radioactive dust and possibly could harm future generations. Although the extent is very much in dispute.

At the same time, we're asking Russia to study information we gathered on the difficulty of detecting underground blasts and join with us in research to develop fool-proof methods against cheating.

Russia won't even look at the information. Meanwhile, pressure is developing at home; at the Pentagon, at the Atomic Energy Commission and elsewhere, for the U.S. to resume the tests regardless of the propaganda effects so that the west can keep up in the development of atomic weapons.

Governor Rockefeller of New York is the latest to add his voice to those insisting upon a resumption of tests so that the United States will be in a better position to protect itself.

Italian-Austrian Dispute Flairs

ERNEST SAKLER
UPI Reporter

A peaceful atmosphere prevails a group of Alpine villages that straddle the border between Italy and Austria. But that's only on the surface. National strife and resentment simmer underneath.

The villages look identical and so do the people. But some of them are in Italy and some are in Austria. This is a section the Italians call Alto Adige and the Austrians call South Tyrol.

THE MOUNTAINOUS region and its people and the Italian and Austrian governments are embroiled in a war of words and diplomatic and legal steps that has been going on since the end of World War One.

After World War I, the former Austrian province was incorporated into Italy. Then, after World War II, the status of Alto Adige was settled again by an accord signed in Paris in 1946. Under the Paris accord, Austria recognized Italian sovereignty over Alto Adige and Italy promised the Austrian-speaking element full equality with Italians, plus special minority rights.

TODAY, Italian statistics still show the Austrian-speaking group in a majority in the Alto Adige region, about 225,000 of them to 115,000 Italians.

Italy says it has lived up to the Paris accord in full. Austria says it has not.

THE DISPUTE has ranged all the way from basic issues of self-determination and democracy to investigations of such things as whether a certain village postman could or could not speak German.

Italo-Austrian contacts have been going on for months in Vienna through diplomatic channels to see what, if anything, can be done to ease the tension.

Austria complains the talks are getting nowhere. And the Austrian foreign minister said back in September that he would bring the issue before the United Nations. But top-ranking Italian officials on the other hand maintain the UN is not competent to discuss the Alto Adige problem. The problem, they contend, is purely a domestic one.

ITALIAN sources have suggested that if Austria has any grievance, the proper forum would be the International Court in the Hague. They believe the court would back the Italian interpretation of the Paris accord on the province.

Sources in Vienna say Austria is not inclined toward letting the matter hang fire any longer. It's believed that if the Italo-Austrian talks are not successful by the end of the year, Austria will take the case either to the UN or to The Hague.

Mrs. Waggoner Speaks Tonight

"Living with a Handicap" will be discussed this evening at Vesper Services which will be held at 7 at the Storrs Congregational Church.

The speaker will be Mrs. J. Garland Waggoner, wife of the Rev. J. Garland Waggoner of the Storrs Congregational Church.

FOR FOUR and a half years, Mrs. Waggoner worked in the Home Economics Department with over 100 physically handicapped women. She received her master's degree after writing on the "Mental Adjustment to a Physical Handicap." She will be speaking from experience as she has both worked with and lived with the physically handicapped. She will talk on "How to Live with a Disability" and "How a Normal Person Lives With a Physically Handicapped Person."

Vesper services, presented by the University Christian Association, are held every Wednesday evening for all students and faculty members of the university.

Frosh Soccer Team Ends Undeclared

With Myron Krasij showing the way, the University of Connecticut freshman soccer squad racked Brown University 6-4 Monday to complete the season with an undefeated 6-0 mark.

THE FROSH booters coached by Dick Brown and Moe Moehandt, the latter a former UConn All-American soccer player, continued to show tremendous offensive power despite the fact that the squad has been operating at practically half strength for the last two games. Injuries and illnesses struck the squad just after the Mitchell College contest, but the Husky pups continued winning and in a big way.

Averaging six goals per game, they managed to limit the opposition to an average of 1.5. The four goals scored by the Brown team was the best output by a Connecticut opponent this season.

KRASIJ is described by varsity coach John Squires, as a tremendous soccer player. Although he scored a total of ten goals in six games, Squires said that he was also valuable in setting up scores for his teammates. Against the Bruins, Walt Quackenbush and Ron Morissette also scored.

ed for the Huskies. Coach Squires was naturally very pleased with the fine season, and plans to count on them heavily next year, along with some promising sophomores on the present varsity team.

Connecticut's freshmen recorded wins over Yale, 3-2; Springfield, 1-0; Bridgeport, 19-2; Mitchell, 7-1; Massachusetts, 6-0 and Brown, 6-4.

Oklahoma Not In Top 10

Nov. 3—(UPI)—One unusual aspect of this week's football listings is the absence of Oklahoma among the top 20. Oklahoma, which lost to Nebraska last weekend in a stunning 25-21, upset, failed to get a mention for the first time since the ratings were started.

In the first 10, top-ranked Louisiana State got 331 points in the voting by 35 leading coaches against 303 for second-place Northwestern. The Big Ten school thus narrowed last week's gap behind the Tigers from 37 to 28 points. Among the other teams, Syracuse received 256 points, Texas 248, Southern California 182, Mississippi 142, Penn State 136, Wisconsin 105, Auburn 94 and Washington 24.

Oregon and Clemson were tied for 11th place this week, followed by Purdue, Georgia and Georgia Tech, which was dumped out of the top 10. Illinois and Tennessee tied for 16th place, Ohio State and Texas Christian ended in a deadlock for 18th, and the Air Force was 20th.

UPI Sports Briefs

The Boston Red Sox seem to have a problem all their own among Major League ball clubs. It's a case of indecision and Jackie Jensen.

Along about the middle of last season, the hard-hitting outfielder served notice that he might not be back next year for a number of reasons. Among other things, he said he disliked plane travel and force absences from his family.

At the end of the season, Jensen told general manager Bucky Harris he would inform the Red Sox of his plans by November 1. But so far no word, and it's beginning to be a source of worry in the front office.

As Harris says, "I hate to call him. I don't want to appear too anxious. We have a few things cooking but naturally we can't do anything important until we learn his position."

The things cooking could be possible trades. Jensen might be involved in trading plans or he might not, but either way it would affect club thinking on winter deals.

The Los Angeles Dodgers

won't lack for color among their coaches even though Charley Dressen has gone to Milwaukee. Bobby Bragan, who was signed to replace Dressen, is just about as colorful as they come. During a long career, which included managing the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians, Bragan was renowned for his umpire-bating tactics. He was kicked out of games frequently and on several occasions got reprimands from league executives.

The Cleveland Indians have decided on a 35-game home night schedule for next season, the same number of games as in 1959. Six games each will be played with Chicago, New York, Boston and Washington. The Indians will oppose Baltimore in five night games, and three each will be played with Kansas City and Detroit.

Roy McMillan, star shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds, is recovering from an operation.

It was announced today that McMillan was operated on at Christ Hospital in Cincinnati.

Varsity Booters vs. Gymnasts In Final Home Game Today

Connecticut's hot and cold varsity soccer team takes on Springfield here at Storrs today in the final home game of the season. Game time is slated for 3 p.m. at Gardner Dow Field.

THE HUSKIES, with a record of four wins, four losses and two ties, meet a team which always proves troublesome for UConn. The game will not have as much significance as in past years, when it might have determined the New England champion, but the game should still be close and well played.

UCONN, is fresh from a 7-0 lacing at the hands of Colgate last week-end, and should be out for revenge at the expense of the Gymnasts. The story of Connecticut's team all year has been either one sided victories, or one sided defeats.

The Huskies should be at full strength for this game, with defensive standout Norm Edmonds expected to play despite a leg injury suffered in a previous game.

UConn will close out its season on Saturday, when they travel to New London for a game with the Coast Guard Academy.

Cugat Confesses

Dr. Johnson turns another elegant phrase:

Sir, if it hasn't got it there, it hasn't got it!

Old Dr. Sam has done it again—brought his dictionary up to date in terms of modern Winston usage.

Winston (win'ston), n. A cigarette with Filter-Blend on one end and a wise man on the other.

Taste (tast), n. What decorators argue about and Winston smokers enjoy.

Filter-Blend (fil'ter-blend), n. A happy marriage of art and science. Light, mild, flavorful tobaccos are artfully selected, then scientifically processed for filter smoking.

Slogan (slo'gan), n. (e.g., Winston tastes good like a cigarette should). A statement of disputed grammar but unquestioned fact.

Front (frunt), n. (used in conjunction with the preposition "up"). The section of a filter cigarette where if it hasn't got it, it hasn't got it. Also, the section that counts, the section where exclusive Filter-Blend is to be found.

Boswell (bōz'wēl). Nickname for a guy who is always hanging around to cadge Winstons from you.

No Advance Sale

There will be no advance sale of tickets for the football game between Connecticut and Northeastern University, to be played Saturday afternoon at 1:30 at Boston. The NU management announces that Connecticut students may purchase general admission tickets at the gate for $1 with I.D. card. General admission tickets, without I.D. cards, are $2.00. Northeastern does not set aside reserved seats, it was made known.
