A Warning To Drivers

State Police Lieutenant William A. Fruber checks new sign with Traffic Engineer Robert M. Williston of the State Highway Department which will place 500 signs this month around state in priority locations. Traffic now is required to stop approaching or overtaking school bus except when traveling on other side of highway with medial strip dividing traffic flow or when traffic officer signals otherwise.

Faculty Members To Study On Fulbright Research Grants

Two members of the University faculty will study in Europe next year following their recent appointments as Fulbright research fellows.

Dr. Fred A. Cazel Jr., associate professor of history, plans to go to Kings college at the University of London to do research in English political and constitutional history of the early thirteenth century. English manuscripts will be made available to him in addition to the archives of the Public Record office, the British museum and the libraries at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

Dr. Isidore Silver, associate professor of foreign languages, will do his research work in France with the prospect of completing the manuscript for his proposed book on an Intellectual Biography of Pierre de Ronsard, the "Prince of French Poets." This study was begun in 1914 by the late Prof. Laumonier of the University of Bordeaux and its completion was assumed by Dr. Silver in 1950. The Fulbright fellowship will enable him to further his intensive study of Ronsard in the research libraries of the Bibliotheque Nationale, which contains the world's greatest concentration of Ronsard editions and studies on Ronsard.

A third faculty member, Kenneth W. Herrick, assistant professor of insurance, was the recipient this summer of a fellowship from the Life Insurance Agency Management association and the American Association of University Teachers of Insurance. The award enabled Prof. Herrick to spend several weeks at the Prudential company's Western home office in Los Angeles, where he observed the company's operations in several departments and was able to study more intensively specific areas of particular interest.

Honorary Groups Publish Members

Several honorary societies on campus initiated new members prior to the closing of school in June.

Alpha Gamma Chapter, Rho Chi, national pharmaceutical honor society elected eleven new members. They include: David Burack, Jean Ruzicka, Vincent Spinelli, Elliott Frauenglass and Fenna Lee Fisher. Also initiated were: Gerald Grossman, Joseph Powers, Joseph Heselt, Dennis Hussey, Robert Diczno and Sadgurunath Warawdekar.

Officers for Rho Chi also were announced for the coming year, as follows: president, David Carew; vice president, Gerald Grossman; secretary-treasurer, Jean Ruzicka.

Three students were initiated into Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary forensic fraternity. They are Richard P. Cronin, Leonard Elenowitz and Phyllis Mancini.

Newly-elected president is Douglas Fairweather. Miss Mancini will serve as vice president, Elenowitz as secretary and Cronin as treasurer.

Sigma Pi Sigma, honorary physics society at the University, initiated 11 persons into membership, including eight undergraduates, two graduate students and a member of the faculty. Among the new members are: Frederick V. Burckbuchler, Dorothy Zito, Alexander McWilliams, Robert E. Mayer, David P. Reed, Joseph W. Kantorski, George P. Urda and Edward G. Regner. Phillips R. Jones and Jerome Singer, both graduate students in physics and Dr. Kuang Lu Cheng, instructor in chemistry.

License Application Pending On WHUS

Radio station WHUS will remain off the air until at least mid-Oct. according to an announcement made Sunday by its station manager Jack Riley. The student network is awaiting the approval of the Federal Communication Commission of its application for a new license.

Riley stated that WHUS would return to the air under a different operational set up than used in previous years. The new system is still in the planning stage, however, so its nature could not be publicly disclosed.

A meeting of all staff members will take place Thursday at 7 in the HUB in a room to be announced later. At this time, plans for the forthcoming year will be discussed.

Riley also declared that formal hearing for all persons interested in joining the station would begin on October 13.

Educators Donate To State's Flood Relief

A contribution of $133.80 was made recently to the Connecticut Flood Fund in memory of Dr. Alfred Dexter Simpson, professor of education at the Harvard graduate school. The sum was presented by 120 educators attending the National Conference of Professors of Educational Administration which was held here late in August.

Dr. Simpson had been attending the conference when he was forced to return to his home in Massachusetts after becoming ill. He died the following day.

He was formerly director of the bureau of teacher preparation in the Connecticut State Department of Education.

Johnson Leaves Uconn Will Attend War College

Reuben B. Johnson, assistant director of the division of student personnel, has been granted a year's leave of absence for study at the Army war college, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., President Albert N. Jorgensen announced this summer.

During Mr. Johnson's absence, Gordon S. Reid, for the past two years squash and tennis coach at Amherst college, will fill the position.

Mr. Johnson, who holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the 43rd division, Connecticut National Guard, is one of 175 officers from throughout the nation who have been appointed to the war college. He is an assistant chief of staff in the 43rd Division.

In World War II Mr. Johnson was assigned to the European theatre and in 1951-52 he served with the NATO forces in Germany. In his capacity in the University, he has been responsible for directing men students' affairs and veterans' counseling.

Educated at Amherst and Harvard, Mr. Reid has been connected with the U. S. State department and has served as head of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs. In addition, he is chairman of the Association of American Symphony Orchestra Presidents and former president of the Beethoven society. While in Washington, he served as president of the National Symphony Orchestra association. He is currently vice president of the Salisbury (Conn.) health center.

At Amherst, in addition to his coaching duties, Mr. Reid has served as informal advisor to the student newspaper, the student government and fraternity groups, and will serve as chairman of the visiting committee on music until October. In this latter capacity, he is arranging a world-wide tour for next year for the Smith and Amherst glee clubs.

Dean Hewitt Gives Awards

Fifteen pharmacy students were presented awards at the annual Initiation and Honors Day program, held last spring under the auspices of Alpha Gamma chapter of Rho Chi, national pharmaceutical honor society.

Harold G. Hewitt, Dean of the school of pharmacy, presented the awards to the students. Senior class awards were as follows:

Alice Trcka, Kappa Kappa Gamma, a book award for contributing the most to pharmacy through extra-curricular activities. Miss Trcka also received the State Pharmacy Commission prize, awarded to the senior who has been outstanding in practical pharmacy.

Lawrence Suplinskas, commuter, the Garvin Memorial cash award, presented by the Connecticut Pharmaceutical association to the student showing the greatest scholastic improvement during the year. Anthony Simonelli, Rho Pi Phi, the Lehn and Fink products corporation gold medal for highest general four-year average.

Vito D'Aiuto, Delta Chi, the Merck and Company award of a set of pharmaceutical reference books, for the highest average in dispensing pharmacy.

Robert J. Summa, Phi Delta Chi, the Merck and company set of reference books for the highest average in pharmaceutical chemistry.

Richard Goodusky, Kappa Psi, the Rho Chi International cash award for highest average in pharmacology.

Irving Esner, Rho Pi Phi, the Joseph W. Prokop Memorial award, (Cont'd. p. 4, Col. 4)

Sorority Rushing

Registration for all women wishing to join sorority rushing this year will be held Wednesday afternoon from 1-5 in the HUB.

Freshman Rushing: Monday

Freshman fraternity rushing will begin next Monday, according to an announcement released yesterday by the Interfraternity council. A smoker, with last year's senior class advisor, Dr. Stanley Wedberg, serving as the principal speaker, will initiate this year's program.

To be eligible to rush, freshmen must register at the smoker. This year freshmen are also required to visit at least four fraternities in the course of their rushing.

Of importance to all concerned is the IFC ruling forbidding all freshmen from entering fraternities until rushing formally begins. Freshmen found guilty of this violation are subject to temporary loss of their rights to pledge. Houses involved may be fined and also denied the right to pledge the man or men involved.

This rule does not pertain to freshmen assigned by the University to live in a fraternity. Such freshmen, however, may not be pledged by the fraternity they are living in until the spring semester.

A detailed breakdown of the fraternity rushing rules and a complete rushing calendar will appear later this week in the Connecticut Daily Campus.

Upperclassmen are not subject to the above rules, and may rush at any time.

Frosh Handbook Ushers In New Era

In bygone years student leaders have almost perennially bemoaned the lack of school spirit on the part of Uconn's undergraduates. Its absence has been attributed to a long list of causes, but each year one inadequacy seems to be outstanding. This shortcoming has been the poor integration of the entering freshmen class into the living pattern, academic program, and above all in this case, the existing customs and traditions of the University.

As a result of this, all too many freshmen have found themselves lost in the proverbial shuffle, never to emerge as full fledged students, proud of and enthused over their fine University. From a confused to a malcontent student is all too often a natural transition. What does this leave? A long line of streaming from the University each weekend, leaving the school far too shy of ardent rooters for the Uconn athletic teams.

This year, however, we look for a decided upward swing in spirit at the University. No, a tremendous change in the character of Uconn students has not transpired. Something material has been added, though, which should go a long way toward boosting freshmen morale. This, in fact, is the vastly improved edition of the freshmen handbook.

Delivered through the mails during the summer to each listed entering freshman, this year's Husky Handbook presented a thorough, personal, and down to earth explanation of virtually every phase of student living. All freshmen who read the well written and equally as well illustrated booklet must have found the first few days on campus much easier and less "cold" than those spent by many of their less fortunate predecessors. It should serve equally as well in the next few weeks as a Bible, so to speak, to turn to when faced with a problem or question concerning the University and its life.

To those freshmen who have yet to read the book, don't miss out on a good thing. To the editors, writers, and all who toiled on the Husky Handbook, congratulations for a job well done. Your work should go a long way toward building among the Class of 1959 a feeling of true spirit and a sense of belonging at the University of Connecticut.

Vedder Art Works Given To Museum

The University's new art museum to be located in the recently completed auditorium received several paintings, pastels and drawings by Elihu Vedder recently. University President Albert N. Jorgensen made a public announcement of this new art collection addition by one of America's distinguished painters only last week.

The Vedder art works have been distributed by the American Academy of Arts and Letters and are a part of a collection of 300 works that have been distributed to museums and art galleries throughout the country.

"The Lair of the Sea Serpent," "The Lost Mind," "The Cumean Sybil," "The Questioner of the Sphinx" are among Vedder's better known works. His illustrations for Fitzgerald's translation of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayam and his mural decorations for the Congressional Library, Bowdoin College, the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh and other public buildings have also won him acclaim.

Recently the Vedder paintings were bequeathed to the American Academy, to which he was elected in 1908, by his daughter, Miss Anita Vedder. Lack of space to show the pictures to advantage prompted the Academy to make the art available to a broader proportion of the public by donating them to museums in widely scattered parts of the country.

The University of Connecticut was one of three colleges in the state to receive a batch of the paintings. Davison Art Center at Wesleyan University in Middletown and Yale University Art Gallery in New Haven also received some of the collection. The Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford also shared in the receiving of the Vedder works.

William And Mary Transfer Finds Life Liberal At 'Newer' American Univ.

by Gay—Story Hamilton

Ruth Raymond

William and Mary wasn't just a college, it was a colleg in the heart of colonial restored Williamsburg, Virginia, one of the college buildings is even a part of the restored town," stated Ruth Raymond, 3rd semester transfer student. College students ate and drank in a colonial atmosphere. Many of the students are employed as colonial hosts and hostesses.

Ruth offers three reasons for transferring to Uconn from William and Mary: "I transferred to be closer to home (Darien)," she stated first. "I was convinced," she continued, "that a good college education could be had for less tuition than at William and Mary. Besides the male-female ratio is better at Uconn, "she added hesitatingly (one man to one woman at W. and M.)."

Uconn Offers More

This blonde Sprague-ite uttered one first impression with enthusiasm. "The Student Union is out-of-this-world!" Further she said that this campus offers much more than her former college, having a DAILY newspaper, radio station and innumerable other activities. Ruth also enjoys the wider variety of schools and departments found at Uconn and the different types of people she has already met.

Ruth expressed one criticism of Uconn - - rather Uconn students. "People were much more friendly at William and Mary," she said. "Students at Uconn are amazed if you say hello and you do not know them."

An Arts and Science student, Ruth expects her major to be English, although she is considering math. She hopes to find herself an active part of Uconn life through work in the Student Union, The Campus, the Bridge club and the Square Dance club.

First Contestant

A five foot four blond, blue-eyed freshman, Judy Stratton, 3A, initiated the CAMPUS CAMERA Queen Contest this week. The contest, which will continue until the end of second semester, will feature the picture of a photogenic co-ed each week. At the conclusion of the week, one girl will be chosen as queen of the CAMPUS PHOTOGS.

Judy, who is a freshman, plans to major in child development. As a summer camp counselor Judy feels child development would be an aid in counseling children. After college she hopes to be an airline stewardess.

Vita Craft Sales Positions Profitable To Two Uconn Men

by Priscilla Torrance

Two School of Business Administration students came away with $200 cash scholarships from an aluminum cooking ware concern that they were sales representatives for this summer, plus garnering several prizes for sales, and a bank balance of about $1,500 each to take care of their university expenses.

The salesmen are Charles LeFebvre of Eastford, a junior in Industrial Administration, and Floyd Irwin, of Willimantic, a sophomore in Business Administration.

They represented the Vita Craft corporation of Kansas City, selling the company's ware—aluminum. Each had a large section of Connecticut to cover as their territories.

The jobs, the boys agree, weren't bad duty at all, for as they said "their customers consisted of single girls who cook their own meals in small apartments."

LeFebvre and Irwin will continue in the employ of the Vita Craft corporation during the school year, serving as recruiters for prospective salesmen who want to earn money during their spare time or on weekends in their home towns. The two salesmen will conduct training sessions, acquainting applicants with policies of the company which has awarded about $25,000 the country over this summer to just such young student salesmen as these two Uconn boys.

Students who are interested in selling will apply through the University Placement Office in the Administration Building and not through the campus recruiters. The sessions of "How to Sell" will follow their application to the Placement Office.

When asked about how his wife felt about the type of clients he had (i.e. bachelor girls), LeFebvre said "You can't very well argue about a substantial week's pay."

Ingalls, Olivar To Meet At Alumni Club Smoker

Two rival football coaches whose teams open the state's major football slate will face each other this week-end at a University of Connecticut Alumni C Club smoker here.

Yale and Connecticut meet for the seventh time Saturday in Yale Bowl to open the season for both colleges. Head Coaches Jordan Olivar of Yale and Bob Ingalls of Connecticut will meet each other before an alumni gathering for the first time.

Smoker Wednesday

Alumni C Club President Don V. Ruck said the smoker will be held Wednesday, at the Knights of St. Patrick, 304 Elm Street, here. The affair is for Alumni C Club members only.

Three days later, Ingalls' Uconnns will be trying for the seventh time since 1948 to defeat Yale's Bulldogs. The closest game was in 1948 when Yale won, 7-0, in the series opener.

Ingalls will be accompanied by his coaching staff, consisting of Bill Loika, line coach, Larry Panciera, end coach, and John Chapman, backfield coach.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my second year of writing this column for Philip Morris Cigarettes. Once every week during the coming school year I will take up, without fear or favor, issues that inflame the minds and quicken the hearts of college students everywhere. I will grapple with such knotty questions as: "Is compulsory attendance the reflection of an insecure faculty?" and "Is the unmarried student obsolete?" and "Are room-mates sanitary?"

While each week I make a bold assault upon these burning issues, I will also attempt to beguile you into smoking Philip Morris Cigarettes. Into each column I will craftily weave some words in praise of Philip Morris. I will extol, obliquely, the benign mildness of Philip Morris's well-born tobacco, its soothing fragrance, its tonic freshness, its docile temperateness, its oh-so-welcome gentleness in this spiky and abrasive world of ours.

For saying these kind things about their cigarettes, the Philip Morris Company will pay me money. This is the American Way. This is Democracy. This is Enlightened Self Interest. This is the System that Made

Our Country Great, and anybody who doesn't like it is MALADJUSTED.

Perhaps it would be well in this first column of the year to tell you a little about myself. I am 36 years of age, but still remarkably active. I am squat, moon-faced, have all my teeth, and am fond of folk dancing and Lotto. My hobby is collecting mucilage.

I first took up writing because I was too short to steal. Barefoot Boy With Cheek was my maiden effort, and today, fourteen years later, I continue to write about college students. This is called "arrested development."

But I can't help it. Though I am now in the winter of my life, the problems of undergraduates still seem to me as pressing as ever. How to pursue a blazing romance with exams coming up next Friday in physics, history and French; how to convince your stingy father that life is a bitter mockery without a yellow convertible; how to subsist on dormitory food — these remain the topics that roil my sluggish blood.

And in this column from now until next June you will read of such things: of dating and pinning, of fraternities and sororities and independents, of cutting and cramming, of athletes and average-raisers, of extra-and intra-curriculum, of textbooks and those who write them and those who sell them and those who read them and those who don't.

And, slyly woven into this stirring tapestry, the story of Philip Morris, America's gentle cigarette, in the handy Snap-Open pack, in king-size or regular, at prices all can afford.

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of Philip Morris are happy to be back with you for another year of good reading and good smoking — with gentle Philip Morris, of course.

Yankee Conference Football Scramble Rated As Toss-Up

The Yankee Conference, comprised of the six New England States, will all be in action this Saturday as the football season starts its first full weekend. Rhode Island opened their season last weekend with a 13-13 tie with Northeastern.

Although the roots of the individual rivalries in most cases extend back into the last century, formal conference competition was not recognized until the 1947 campaign.

With New Hampshire's defending champions losing Billy Pappas, their brilliant passer and "meal ticket", along with 13 other veterans, the 1955 conference race looms as a "toss up".

Grid Leader

University Photo

Captain Buddy Amendola

When the University of Connecticut opens their 1955 football season this Saturday afternoon against Yale University at the New Haven bowl, the Huskies will be lead by Bonnie Amendola of Derby.

Amendola, who was appointed co-captain of last year's squad, was injured before the start of last season. Since the 25-year old fullback was not a full time student last fall he retained a semester of eligibility. The 203-pound back is the first player to be named as a lone captain since 1948. Connecticut has had co-captains between 1948 and this year.

Massachusetts and Maine have drawn support from the forecasters for the national magazine pre-season roundups, but the experts have shown no unanimity of opinion and each of the six entries has its supporters.

A late pre-season survey brings the following forecasts from the campus publicists at Orono, Burlington, Durham, Amherst, Storrs and Kingston.

CONNECTICUT

After a disappointing season in '54 when the Uconnns, riddled by injuries as early as fall camp, were overmatched in several games, Connecticut looks for key sophomores to start them on the upgrade this season. Bob Ingalls' fourth team at Storrs will be a young club but with improved speed over its immediate predecessor. The return of hard smashing fullback Buddy Amendola, injured in a scrimmage last fall with Rutgers, adds backfield punch.

MAINE

A solid squad with 21 lettermen returning from a team which won five and lost two, winning the State Series crown in '54. Loss of Clark, Golden, Pluta and Woodsum via graduation means rebuilding the forward wall. If line backer Jack Small moves to fullback, the center gap is also open. An experienced team which survived the ravages of graduation better than most of its opponents.

MASSACHUSETTS

Charlie O'Rourke, working with his largest and youngest squad in four years at Massachusetts, is as optimistic as his union card will allow. The Redmen appear to have plenty of depth, and speed, but are short of front line experience. He lost ten lettermen from the team which upset Harvard (Cont'd. p. 4, Col. 3)

Eight Clinics Held

Uconn Campus Is Scene Of Summer Conference

Although the usual hustle and bustle around the University's campus was missing for the past three months, all was not entirely deserted on the Uconn front. In addition to the regular summer school sessions, the University played host to a total of eight clinics, conferences and workshops in the fields of business and education, in addition to a two-week orientation course for foreign students planning to work with youth-serving agencies in their native lands.

Business Teachers Meet

Heading the list was the third annual conference-clinic for teachers of business subjects and others throughout New England interested in business education. Sponsors of this program, held from June 27-29, were the Hartford Chapter and the University's Schools of Education and Business Administration and the Continuing Education center. Dr. Dean D. Malsbary, assistant professor of business education at the University, was director of the institute.

Two educational workshops, one a six-week program in elementary education centering around the theme of "Practical Experiences in Science" and the other a summer-long secondary education workshop dealing with the development of good human relations, were also held for teachers and administrators as part of the regular summer term. Elementary and high school students from the Mansfield area assisted in the program.

Dr. Brownell Here

A talk by Dr. Samuel Brownell, U. S. commissioner of education, highlighted a week-long convention of the National Conference of Professors of Educational Administration, which was held at Uconn from Aug. 22-29 and which attracted more than 300 leaders in that field, including representatives from Egypt, Liberia and Thailand. Dr. Brownell predicted that "there would be more legislation affecting education in the next ten years than in the past fifty years." The conference was co-sponsored by the Uconn School of Education.

In conjunction with the national conference, a three-day session dealing with problems concerning the instruction of youth in personal and economic problems was held for 25 Connecticut school administrators. Dr. Rufus Putnam, superintendent of schools in Minneapolis, Minn., led the conference, which ran from Aug. 22-24.

For two weeks during August some 39 physiologists, representing 37 colleges and universities throughout the country, participated in a workshop on the teaching of physiology to undergraduates.

The two-week orientation course for foreign students interested in youth-serving work in their native countries attracted representatives from Egypt, Sweden, Norway, Hong Kong, Nigeria, France, Ceylon, Finland and Iran.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

last fall, but has an equal number returning, including a pair of good quarterbacks in Noble and Whalen.

Losing Billy Pappas, four good ends, a pair of starting tackles, and two starting guards puts the defending champions in the reconstruction era. But Chief Boston and his aides have a dozen lettermen, including such fine running backs as Ted Wright, Dick Gleason and Marcel Couture. Rivals are looking for a switch from the passing game to the running attack. Holders of the Bean Pot five times in eight years, the Wildcats are still dangerous.

RHODE ISLAND

The runners-up last year have lost the fabulous Pat Abbruzzi, who gained more ground than any Rhody back in history, but the big fellow played in only one conference game last year, missing three because of injuries. They also lost standout linemen Henry Brenner, Chris Latos and Dick Grann. But Coach Hal Kopp still has a high geared attack centered around Ed DiSimone, top ground gainer and scorer last season. The Rams may lack depth, but will field a crack first eleven.

VERMONT

Coming off one of their best seasons in recent years the Catamounts lost a big chunk of their '54 line and Mike Semans, a talented quarterback. By adding Rhode Island to previously scheduled games with Maine and Massachusetts, the Catamounts will be a serious factor in the 1955 conference race. Probably not as dangerous in the air as last year, but if the youngsters come through this club could surprise.

a cash award presented by the Bridgeport Pharmaceutical association to the student from Bridgeport area showing the most progress in the subject of public health.

Other awards presented at the Rho Chi Honors Day program were:

Madelyn Tsukalas, the Alice-Ester Garvin memorial cash award to a freshman from the Bridgeport area with the highest average for the year, presented by the Bridgeport Pharmaceutical association.

Audrey A. Whitbeck, Class of 1930 award, a cash prize for general excellence in the freshman year.

Sondra Gordon, the book award by Cleveland Rubber company for excellence in general chemistry.

Elliott Frauenglass, a cash prize presented by Kappa Psi to the junior student excelling in operative pharmacy.

Vincent P. Spinelli, Kreimendahl memorial prize, a cash award presented by the Veteran Pharmacists association of Connecticut for general excellence in the junior year.

John V. Verde, the Rho Chi, Alpha Gamma Chapter cash award, given by George E. Sandals of Manchester to the student with the highest average for the first one and one-half years. He was also the recipient of a book award offered by Dr. George Bolles of Danbury, to the student with the highest average for the first two years.

Fenna Lee Fisher, the Alpha Zeta Pharmaceutical Fraternity award of a book, for her work in pharmacognosy.

The Francis B. Cole window display award was given to Kappa Psi fraternity for creating the most original window display in competition with seven other pharmacy student organizations. Mr. Cole is a member of the University pharmacy class of 1930 and presently operates the Cole pharmacy in Elmwood, Conn.
