Senate Will Offer Active Dad's Day

The varsity football game Saturday between the Uconn Huskies and the University of New Hampshire Wildcats at 2 p.m. in Memorial stadium will highlight the annual Dad's Day festivities.

Parade, Rally

Friday night at 7:15, a parade following a route similar to that of the Umass rally, beginning at the West Campus living units, and followed by a pep rally at the Field house will precede the Dad's Day activities Saturday. At the rally banners made by individual houses will be judged on the basis of the design and slogan most appropriate to the New Hampshire game. Costuming of banner carriers will also be taken into consideration in the judging. The rally is sponsored by the Student Senate Blue and White committee.

Saturday morning activities for Dad will commence with registration from 10-12 in the lobby of the HUB, where they may pick up a copy of the day's scheduled events.

Turkey Dinners

Dads will have an opportunity to tour the new auditorium before partaking of a full-course turkey dinner at the North Campus or Main dining halls. Dinner will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at a cost of $1.50 per person.

At the game Saturday afternoon members of the Mortar Boards, senior women's honorary society, will be on hand to sell their yellow and white mums at a $1 each for the benefit of the "scholarship" fund. They will ask dads to contribute by telling them that "Every dad needs a mum."

Immediately following the game coffees will be held at all living units in honor of dads.

Rushing Results Proclaimed By Inter-Fraternity Council

by Robert Platt

The results of the controversial first semester rushing program that has just been completed were made known by the Inter-fraternity Council Tuesday, and have been termed by Robert Neal, president, as "more than favorable."

According to IFC statistics, about 320 men have been pledged as of Oct. 19, which, considering the abbreviated length of the rush period, is "quite substantial."

Some of the favorable facets of the program, as outlined by Neal, were the facts that the period used for rushing was probably the best one possible from the standpoint of studies, and that the program unified the houses early in the semester for smooth running throughout the rest of the year.

Held Before Exams

Neal said that the first few weeks of school have the least number of exams, and most of the program had been carried out before either the rushees or the fraternity men had found it necessary to begin heavy "cramming."

It is usually difficult, he added, to get the houses in smooth running order, but the early program helped organize them almost immediately upon return to school.

Some improvements are being considered for next year's program, however. It was generally felt that more round robin rush parties were needed, to give the freshmen a better chance to visit all the houses before invitational parties begin.

Alumni Help Asked

The IFC president said it is also hoped that alumni will help, by furnishing the frosh with an outline of college life before they reach the campus, and that they will be able to take a more active part in affairs on campus, and will find the "fraternity or no" questions much easier to resolve.

The possibility of more efficient summer rushing programs is being investigated, as well as the hope that open weekends will be afforded rushees in the future. Since the fraternities do exist as social organizations, the IFC feels it is only fair that the frosh should have a chance to sample social life within one.

"However," Neal summarized, "despite the considered improvements we will still try to better the system."

First Photopool Healing Meeting Tomorrow at 7.

The first healing meeting of the Connecticut Daily Campus Photopool will be held tomorrow night at 7 in HUB 214. All students who are interested in photography and who wish to become staff photographers for The Daily Campus, are invited to attend.

Visiting English Debaters Are Favored Over Uconn

John C. York and Kenneth W. J. Post, representing Cambridge, are expected to have a slight advantage over Douglas Fairweather and Richard Cronin, representing Uconn, in the first international debate at Storrs, scheduled for tonight at 8 in the HUB ballroom.

Mortarboards Will Sell Mums On Dad's Day

The Mortarboards, national senior women's honorary society, reminds you that "Every Dad Needs a Mum." The organization will be selling chrysanthemums at the Dad's Day game on Saturday and in the HUB before the game for $1 per corsage.

The members will be contacting the men's living units this week to accept advance orders which will be delivered Friday evening.

Money received from the sale will go into the Motorboards scholarship fund.

Psychology Group To Hold Meeting

The Psychology club will hold an organizational meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. in HUB 104, according to Ronald Abate, New London hall, president-elect.

A motion picture, "Study of Infant Behavior," will be shown. The film deals with the history of the Yale Clinic of Child Development and outlines the techniques used in recording infant behavior.

At the meeting, which is open to all persons interested in the field of psychology, a program of activities for the year will be discussed. The program tentatively includes speakers, motion pictures and field trips.

Also, a vice-president will be selected to help in arranging the program, according to Abate, who was elected at the end of the last semester. Dr. W. A. Bousfield, head of the psychology department, is adviser to the group.

Huber Ellingsworth, instructor, of speech and drama, pointed out that due to the difference in American and British debating styles, the visitors from England will have the small advantage. He explained that debating contests in Cambridge's Union Society are conducted in parliamentary fashion, where a member will make the initial presentation, and then accept challenges from anyone in the Union gallery. If interest lasts, debates go on for hours.

The Forensic society here concentrates on a more formal kind of debate, with tournament presentation, specific teams, a judge and a panel. They are more concerned with argumentation than audience appeal, after the fashion of a trial lawyer in a courtroom.

Mr. Ellingsworth, who tutors the Uconn debaters, added that the Britishers' presentation is usually witty, philosophical and aimed at persuasion, much in the manner of a political speaker.

In tonight's debate, each man on both sides will be given ten minutes to state his case. Speaking first will be the visitors, who will take the affirmative. Uconn will then present its case. This will be followed by a brief pause, and then the rebuttal, with the negative side beginning and sides again alternating. Each man will be given five minutes for his rebuttal.

The public is cordially invited to attend tonight's debate. An open coffee, with Mortar Board members serving as hostesses, will be held in the Reception Lounge following the program, at which time Mr. York and Mr. Post will be on hand to meet the audience at the coffee. Alumni, college and high school debating groups have been invited to attend tonight's program.

Pearson To Be Moderator At Discussion Tomorrow

Leon Pearson, NBC commentator on foreign affairs, will be the moderator of the panel discussion to be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the United Nations Room of the Student Union. The panel which will discuss "Should the United Nations Charter Be Revised in View of Today's News?" is a part of the program to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the United Nations.

Mr. Pearson, who joined the NBC staff in 1947, has a wide background of news reporting in this country and in Europe. For four years he was on the staff of International News service in Washington and Europe. Following World War II, he was transferred to the INS Paris bureau where he was given two important assignments, the first in December, 1945, when he was one of three American newsmen admitted to the Russian capital for the Big Three meetings and the second in the spring of 1947, when he covered the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference.

UN Expert

Mr. Pearson is also an expert on the United Nations, having covered the development of the UN from its inception at the Dumbarton Oaks conference, through the San Francisco conference and the first London meetings of the General Assembly.

Before beginning his journalistic career, Mr. Pearson was a teacher at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and the Haverford School. He was graduated from Swarthmore college and Harvard university and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1947, he was presented the Legion of Honor by French Foreign Minister Bidault for "objective reporting" of European affairs.

Walk - In Donors Needed To Fill Bloodmobile Quota

The drive for blood to fill the quota of six hundred pints officially closed last week, and three hundred walk-in donors are still needed for the Bloodmobile unit which visits the campus tomorrow. The student committee sponsoring the program hopes that last minute volunteers will swell the number of donors to six hundred. The unit will be on duty from 9:45 a.m. until 2:30 p.m., with the individual processing expected to take one hour.

Those who have pledged blood are urged to keep their appointments. Students who have pledged but find that they will be unable to meet their appointment should contact their dormitory captain.

Any student in good health may donate blood; students under 21, however, must have written permission from their parents.

Mrs. Ralph Gillman, captain of the day, has requested that dormitory captains turn a copy of their class schedules for Thursday, in the event that student assistance is needed.

Committee Confident

Last year the University exceeded its quota, and the Senate committee believes that this can be done again if all those who have pledged keep their appointments and those who have not pledged but wish to give blood do so tomorrow.

All the members of the Scabbard and Blade, the national honorary military society, have pledged themselves to give blood in the drive, thus becoming the first organization on campus to make a group pledge.

The committee on student recruitment, headed by Barbara Carpenter, Kappa Kappa Gamma, hopes that other groups will follow the Scabbard and Blade's lead. If a student is a member of more than one organization which wishes to make a group pledge, both organizations will be given credit.

Student Support Is Sought For Rally

A tired and battle-scarred University of Connecticut football team returns to the Memorial stadium gridiron Saturday for its second home game of the season. It has for its endeavors thus far a 2-win and 3-loss record.

To the casual observer, this may appear to be a very mediocre showing.

The true Uconn fan, however, feels differently. He knows that his ball club, paper thin in depth, has been wracked by injuries to members of the starting eleven. The true Uconn fan also knows that his ball club has battled four of its five toughest opponents on the road. For two distant road games, only a handful of supporters were on hand to encourage the men in white and blue. All of us know that spirited fan-backing never hurt a team's showing, either.

With these factors in mind, the true Uconn fan can be quite proud of his football squad. We hope that the thousands of true Uconn fans will pack Memorial stadium this Saturday to welcome back and cheer on this year's valiant football team.

Prior to that, Connecticut rooters will be given an opportunity to show exactly how much they appreciate the fine work turned in by the forces of coach Bob Ingalls. The Blue and White committee of the Student Senate is sponsoring its third rally of the year Friday evening. A turnout surpassing the two successful rallies already sponsored this year would certainly show this battling football team how much its brave showings really mean to the students. A record turnout of cheering fans could also go a long way toward getting the Huskies in the victory mood for Saturday's important clash with the once-beaten University of New Hampshire.

So let's go, you Husky rooters. Let's turn out Friday evening. Let's urge the Huskies on. Let's prepare for the tolling of the victory bell and a huge victory celebration Saturday afternoon.

Eager Frosh Challenge Sophs To Rope Pull Sat. Morning

To the Editor:

What's the matter with sophomore spirit? Saturday's Frosh-Sophomore Rope Pull was very well attended—by freshmen. This traditional affair will soon become non-existent if the so-called spirited sophomores continue to ignore it.

Even when the freshmen agreed to have the contest among themselves, it was impossible, for the "dependable" third semester students did not so much as provide a rope for the occasion.

Therefore, as representatives of the frosh men, we challenge the sophomores to attend the "postponed" rope pull on next Saturday morning, October 29, at 10:30 a.m. Make it an added attraction for Dad's Day. The freshmen will be there, will you?

Freshmen Challengers

P.S. — Sophomores take note of "the rock," painted by the endorsers of this letter.

Editor's Note — This letter was unsigned, however, we felt that it expresses the sentiment of the freshman class and therefore decided that it deserved to be published.

A FAMILY PORTRAIT

Worthal Stab Is Creation Of Cartoonist Dick Bibler

By Bob Doolittle

Wisconsin State College

There is a certain little man who is rapidly becoming a part of the American campus scene. Buck-toothed, rumple-haired, down-trodden, he is flunking Biology, continually late for classes, and appears to be headed for graduation by the process of Osmosis. His name is "Worthal," his creator is cartoonist Dick Bibler. They both have a funny sense of humor.

Nine years ago Bibler answered an add for a college cartoonist as a student at Kansas University. He had worked for some service newspapers and YANK during the war. He got a job and "Little Man on Campus" became his by-line, "Worthal" his main character.

Bibler had come by his flair for wicked humor quite naturally. He had his first cartoon published at the age of 12. A sandy-haired chap (hair thinning on the apex) with tired eyes, Bibler is lightening fast with an artist's brush. His brainchild is not quite so fast but looks just as tired.

No one could look more desperate than the little man Worthal, as he flips his coin during the true and false examination or gets ground into the sidewalk during the 12:00 O'clock rush by the campus wheels. But he continually bobs up again, each time with a wicked gleam in his eyes to ogle at the girls, poke fun at ancient Latin professors, college administrators, and college athletes, or smooch with his girl in the library archives between Robinson Crusoe and Patterns of Culture.

No one on campus is immune to Bibler's pen. From his drawing board he uses a two-edged blade, cutting at both college students and faculty with Worthal, and his sadistic nemesis, Professor Snarf. There is something heroic about their undaunted struggle, some thing touching about Snarf's willingness to suffer in order to make others suffer.

In creating "Worthal" Bibler drew fourteen faces. He selected the most stupid looking characteristics of each and combined them. The name "Worthal," he comments, is very close to worthless."

Uconn Booters In Hopes Of Ending Losing Streak

by Bob Sokel

Come into my web said the spider to the fly! Such is the attitude of a bitter Connecticut soccer team that plays host to Boston University today at Gardner Dow field in hopes of ending a six-game losing streak.

The Huskies' string of losses could very well be an even worse six consecutive shutouts if it were not for solo goals by Art Allen in the Umass and Williams games. Although such an offensive attack doesn't win many games, coach Jack Squires considers the Uconn offense in the Williams game to be the best shown so far this season.

Especially pleased with the defensive play of Lou Roushon, the Husky mentor also had high praise for the pass work of Dick Rowland and Walt Marsh against Williams.

The squad was boosted with the return of Doug Allen who had been out all season with a leg injury. Ray Johnson also reported back from the sick list and should be in shape for today's BU game. However, Zoltan Olah is still unable to shake an aggravated thigh muscle that has hampered the effectiveness of the former all-stater from New Jersey all season.

Ingalls Plans No Lineup Changes For Crucial Contest Saturday

Granite State Favored To Down Uconn

by Bill England

With the condition of injury-hampered end Harvey Wenz and tackle Lou Mooradian still uncertain, Coach Bob Ingalls announced today that the Uconn lineup for the New Hampshire game Saturday will be the same as the eleven Connecticut sent onto the field against Delaware last weekend. The game, slated for 2 o'clock is a "must" for the Huskies, since a loss or a tie will eliminate Connecticut from further title consideration.

Nipped by Delaware

Both Uconn and the Wildcats will be out to break two-game losing streaks. Connecticut has been cuffed the last two Saturdays in a row, dropping a 13-0 verdict to Maine and faltering in the second half to lose to Delaware, 26-14. New Hampshire, 1-2-2 on the year, lost a thriller to Blue Hens, 20-18, and dropped a 19-18 verdict to tough Brandeis.

The Dad's Day football battle should be an all-out scoring affair. The Wildcats boast speedy Ted Wright and Bob Gleason at the half spots with line-busting Marcel Couture at the fullback slot. Center Al Robichaud, a demon on defense in last year's 34-0 bombing of Connecticut, will also be in the starting lineup.

Whitley at Fullback

Ingalls will counter with Reino Manninen and Bill Boehle at the ends, while Norm Gerber and Ed Enos will get the tackle call. At guard Uconn will boast Stan Banazewski and Ed Meyers, and sandwiched at center will be co-captain Buddy Amendola. The quartet of Jim DiGiorno, Lenny King, Gerry Dooling and Paul Whitley will again get the call for backfield duty. Whitley started for the first time this season against Delaware Saturday after a brilliant showing against Maine.

It was announced today that students wishing to sit with their parents in the reserved sections will have to purchase a 50c ticket for themselves, while tickets for parents are $2.00 each. If the parents wish to sit with the students in the unreserved section, tickets will still cost $2 per parents but a student will not have to purchase a ticket. All tickets may be purchased at the Physical Education office.

Harriers Win Again; Beat Rhody, 19-42 Stieglitz Sets Record

The University of Connecticut cross country team and Lew Stieglitz both wound-up their regular season yesterday at Storrs with their eighth straight win. The Uconn team defeated Rhode Island 19-42.

Stieglitz broke the 4.4 mile course record with the time of 24:21.9, 18 seconds lower than the previous record of 24:39.6 set in 1954 by Charles Dyson.

Despite the icy weather, the Huskies took eight of the first 10 positions. Uconn Captain Werner Gibelius finished second, while teammate Adrian Michaud, Allan Frazier, and Peter Babcock placed fourth, fifth and seventh respectively. Rhody's William McQuattie and George Williston took third and sixth.

Stieglitz led all the way and was never pushed. In explaining his record pace he said simply: "I felt good, and my stride was smooth." With this victory both the team and Stieglitz finished the regular season undefeated, both having won eight contests which make up the dual and triangular meet part of the season. Next for the Huskies are post-season meets. The first of these will be the Yankee Conference meet at Orono, Maine this coming Saturday.

The freshman team lost its second of the year, 24-31. Their record now is 6-2. Thomas Hill of Rhode Island surprised Uconn's Gerald Vichi with a last minute sprint and won by a few feet. The loss is only Vichi's second.

Summary

Varsity-- 1. Stieglitz (C); 2. Gibelius (C); 3. McQuattie (RI); 4. Michaud (C); 5. Frazier (C); 6. Williston (RI); 7. Babcock (C); 8. Keeler (C); 9. Barnes (C); 10. Stolba (C); 11. Congdon (C); 12. Sozanski (RI); 13. Gardella (RI); 14. Wright (RI).

Empty Seats At Games Can Be Used For Good Will

by Wells A. Twombly, SPORTS EDITOR

Good Publicity . . .

There was a record-breaking crowd at Delaware's Memorial stadium, despite the fact that the opposition came from as far away as Connecticut. The throng of 7,200 was larger than the Blue Hen's homecoming turnout. The University of Delaware, cognizant of the poor drawing power the Uconns would have so far away from home, invited an army of Boy Scouts and officials to watch the contest. Even though the scouts were from the Delaware area, they roared loudly when the Huskies came out onto the field. They cheered for Lennie King when he went over the Delaware goal line for a Connecticut touchdown. They applauded with equal vigor the exploits of both teams. The group of scouts and their leaders went home with a warm feeling for the University of Delaware.

Each year, Yale university throws open one of its games to various civic groups. In one area of the state this fall Yale invited a quota of 300 people to attend one of their games in a group. The Ivy Leaguers invited 300 and 1500 signed up. Such campaigns are painless as far as financial strain on the school is concerned, since most of the seats that these groups fill would be empty anyway. The majority of these people would not have made the trip to the game under normal circumstances. In return for such a little out-put the school builds goodwill throughout the state.

Such a set-up at Connecticut would be a wise move, since many people in the state are not familiar with the school and its expansion program. Inviting civic groups to fill up some of the empty seats in Memorial stadium at one of the home games would bring many of the "Isn't Uconn still a cow college?" element to Storrs to see for themselves where their state taxes for education are going.

Sportpourri . . .

THINGS WE'D LIKE TO SEE . . . Bonnie Amendola selected to a little All-America team. Amendola won an honorable mention two years ago . . . a safe and sane return to Ram napping, with some of the vandalism omitted that caused the end of the tradition three years ago. The custom of borrowing the Rhode Island mascot prior to the Uconn-Rhody game was a very real tradition at Uconn along with Husky Heisting (the Rhody counterpart). Several students however went a little beyond a good natured prank and caused considerable damage at Kingston. The tradition was stopped by the administration . . . a varsity fencing and wrestling team at the University before the end of the school year . . . the University budgeting enough money to send the Husky band on the road . . . a crowd lining the route of Uconn's cross-country course next fall . . . Jonathon IV married off and a little Jonathon V on the way. In the past each Husky mascot has been unrelated to his predecessors. It could be the start of a tradition . . . Frank Mirabello in one piece for a whole season. The former Bulkley High ace, has not had a chance to show his ability as a broken field runner. Mirabello was injured last year and again this year.

'Engineers Must Deal With People'

"The ability to deal successfully with people is an important factor to be considered in graduate engineers," Vernon L. Haag told the second meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last Thursday night.

Mr. Haag, vice president of the Gray Manufacturing Company of Hartford, said that while technical background is important, the ability to deal successfully with people benefits not only those seeking administrative positions, but also research engineers who must make daily contact with co-workers and supervisors.

The next meeting of the society, which will include a movie and possibly a speaker, will be held Nov. 16.
