Holy Cross Skins Uconn Again, 103-81 University Receives Estate Of $500,000

The University of Connecticut has received the largest gift in its history according to the provisions of the will of the estate of the late Susan Evelyn von der Mehden of Saybrook. The executor of this $500,000 estate is the Banker's Trust Company in Essex, who will allot the approximate income of $16,000 to the University yearly.

According to President Jorgensen, Mrs. Von der Mehden has also left to the University the musical compositions of her husband, the late J. Louis von der Mehden, who was a well-known composer and arranger. Some of these compositions are "Triumphant America", a patriotic march, and a symphony patterned after Longfellow's work, "Paul Revere's Ride". These works, along with several books of poetry written by Mr. and Mrs. Von der Mehden, are to be published by the University according to the terms of the will. The income which is left after the publication of these works, and after suitable housing arrangements are made for them, will be used for the furtherance of musical culture.

Money For Room In New Building

President Jorgensen also said that some of the funds will be used for the creation of a memorial recital room in the Music Room of the Fine Arts Building, which is in the planning stage at the present time. In addition, scholarships will be established for students who are majoring in music.

Former Arranger And Composer

Mr. Von der Mehden, a native of San Francisco, was an arranger and composer for a decade with two New York publishers, Carl Fisher and G. Ricordi and Co. He received a diploma from the Royal Conservatory of Music in Leipzig, Germany, and also a degree from Oskaloosa College in 1922. His Paul Revere Symphony was composed and orchestrated in 1923. The Von der Mehdens had made Saybrook their home for several years.

THE CURTAIN RISES: Peninnah Manchester, playing the leading role of the mother, and Zoel Parenteau, in the part of the son, enact a scene from Ibsen's play "Ghosts." The play, which is presented by the Speech and Drama Department, will open tonight and continue through Mar. 3 in the HUB Ballroom.

Curtain To Go Up Tonight In HUB On Ibsen's "Ghosts"

"Ghosts" that seventy five years ago caused a terrific upheaval in the theatre world and was met with such reviews as "Morbid, unhealthy, unwholesome and disgusting story" will open tonight at 3 p.m. in the HUB ballroom.

The playwright Ibsen was also assailed for his uncompromising and outspoken attack on marriage as a useless sacrifice of human beings to an ideal. The play revolves about a woman played by Peninnah Manchester who was the righteous wife and mother beyond all costs. She suffers her plights of immorality of the play.

in silence overprotecting her son from the truth about his father.

As Engstrand, Bill Cohen shows a huge capacity and appetite for sensuous enjoyment and satisfaction of personal wants and desires. With worry the wife seeks refuge at the house of a highly respectable clergyman. Enacted by Alan Schwartz, he sends Mrs. Alving back to the path of duty.

The final scene of "Ghosts" leaves little doubt as to why critics of England seventy five years ago were so vehement in their accus-

Holy Cross toyed with Connecticut's defenses last night at Boston Garden. Striking with the effectiveness of a Nazi blitzkrieg unit, the Crusaders belted apart Uconn's zone early in the game and wrapped up a dull, 103-81 victory. It was the worst defeat of the season for the Huskies, topping Syracuse's 102-82 walloping of Connecticut earlier in the season.

HUB To Sponsor Big Talent Show Early Next Month

The first Annual Talent Show sponsored by the Student Union Social Committee, will take place on March 11 at 7:30 p.m., in the HUB Ballroom. Paul Landerman's band will accompany the performers, with Thomas Ahern, assistant to Max Andrews, as master of ceremonies.

Experience

Besides initiating a new type of entertainment at Uconn, this show case of talent will give students an opportunity to gain experience while participating in a show stressing their particular talents. Each individual will have an active part in the production. From it will be chosen a contestant to represent the University of Connecticut in an intercollegiate contest between student unions of the Northeast.

Auditions

Talents of all kinds are welcomed. Anyone who is interested should sign at the HUB control desk for an audition. Auditions will be held on tomorrow night 7 p.m. in HUF 208, and Thursday 4 p.m. in the HUB ballroom.

After the final judging, first second and third prize trophies will be presented to the winning acts.

Hughs First Half Star

Sophomore starter Jim Hughs, the only second year man in the Purple lineup, stole the glory from Heinsohn in the first half. The lanky blond forward chopped up the Huskies' collapsing zone with 13 points. Each time the Uconn's converged on the dangerous Heinsohn, Hughs popped in a quick jump shot from the corner.

Union Survey

Committee Releases HUB Evaluation Results; Survey Conclusions Favorable

According to those answering the questionnaire issued by the Research and Evaluation Committee it has been concluded that the Student Union is meeting a definite need in the University and is a solidifying influence on campus.

These results have been drawn from a survey conducted by the committee, headed by William Miller, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, as to the contribution of the HUB and its program to the social, cultural, and recreational life of the students.

A lack of week end activities and inconvenient week end Snack Bar hours were the points most mentioned in reference to the weaknesses and inadequacies in the program. It was the opinion of 75 per cent of those interviewed that this lack was hindering the Union's position as the center of campus life. Three out of every four completing the survey stated that they thought that the HUB program was of interest.

Under the section which asked why the person completing the survey did not take a greater part in HUB-sponsored events, the most common answer given was that the person polled had other interests. Of those polled it was noted that they considered that the publicity of events adequate. The best means of publicity were posters and The Campus.

It was observed that the students felt that cultural films, the Browsing Room, classical record facilities and pop concerts were considered outstanding "musts" in the cultural program of the Union. Sunday was named as the most popular day for cultural events. Wednesday was considered the best weekday for events of any nature.

Social functions that were most popular were Freshmen Week activities, open houses, informal dances and "dateless" affairs such as square dances. The outstanding days for social and recreational events were Friday and Saturday in that order. In the realm of recreational offerings the ones considered most important were billiards instructions, and craft and hobby facilities.

The most common suggestion was to set aside a room for dancing during the week with a juke box to supply the music. It was noted that this would probably pay for itself and even defray the expense of setting up the room.

Concerning the survey, which was held during October, William Miller stated, "We were satisfied and gratified with the number of returns and from them we were able to derive definite trends and needs in the Union program. Action will be taken in accordance with these findings."

Frats Should Stop Pledge Rides Here

Several weeks have slipped by since the unfortunate drowning of the fraternity pledge at M.I.T. The furor raised then over the circumstances, namely that the victim was on a pledge ride, has subsided to a dull roar. If left alone, the issue would rapidly pass into oblivion, except possibly at the MIT campus.

It would be unfortunate indeed to allow an incident such as this to become merely old history. The happening could and should stand as a glowing proof that pledge rides of any sort ought to be abolished. To take no action on the matter means that here at the University the pledges of 11 fraternities will continue to be subjected to pledge rides, with consequences such as the MIT case possible. Doesn't this call for immediate action?

Pledge rides, despite being an age old fraternity tradition, serve no real purpose, nor are they of any true value. Perhaps they do give new pledges an opportunity to truly get to know and pull together with his fellow pledges. This end can also be met by having the pledges work as a group on a worthwhile community or fraternity project, with the end product of value and the consequences not unknown.

The MIT tragedy was the only recent case of pledge rides spelling tragedy, but, isn't one case enough? Does the fraternity ever hold the power to endanger an individual's life?

Pledge rides have other pitfalls, too. Auto accidents, complaints from neighboring residents of late hour trespassing, and the fact that hitchhiking is illegal in Connecticut are factors which should be considered by any of the eleven fraternities which practice pledge rides. Three short years ago two Uconn pledges were arrested for stealing a car in an attempt to gain transportation back to the University from a pledge ride. Don't all these factors add up to the conclusion that pledge rides are a risk which would be better when done without.

Action is called for, be it on the part of individual fraternities concerned or by the Inter Fraternity Council. MIT's misfortune should be enough to cull a desire to prevent the same from ever possibly occurring at the University of Connecticut.

Ribicoff In Auditorium

Open Letter To Students:

The Interfaith Council of the University of Connecticut, made up of representatives from the Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant religious organizations here on campus, believing that religion can be a vital force in the lives of all students, has planned a Religious Emphasis Week to be observed the week of March 4 - 11. The program will begin on Sunday evening, March fourth at eight o'clock with an address by Governor Abraham Ribicoff. This will be the governor's first major public appearance on the campus and will probably be one of the rare opportunities that the students will have to hear him speak. He is an excellent speaker and will certainly have a worthwhile message for us all. His talk will tie in with the theme of the entire week, "In Search of Faith." In addition an Interfaith Choir will sing at the evening program.

The Interfaith Council, however, is confronted with one serious problem. The administration has given us permission to use the University Auditorium for the March 4 program. However the use of this large auditorium would not be warranted unless there was a large turn out. It would seem better, if the response is poor to hold the program in a smaller auditorium, the only one being available is the College of Agriculture Auditorium and in which the program at present is scheduled for. Hence we ask the entire student body and faculty to support this program. The governor's address has been scheduled late enough on Sunday so that many of you who have gone home for the weekend will be able to hear him. If your parents bring you back to school invite them too as the public is cordially invited.

In order that we might gain an approximation of the number who will attend the March 4 program we are asking the chairman of each living unit to obtain an estimate of those interested in attending. In those houses that do not have individual dining rooms, such as in North Campus, we will place sign up sheets on the main hall bulletin boards. We ask those who plan to attend to sign their name on these lists by Thursday, March 1. In this way the students will be helping us to make definite plans.

We are counting on the support of the entire student body for the Interfaith Program and Governor Ribicoff's address on Sunday March 4 at 8 p.m.

Sincerely yours,

Joyce Parks

Acting Chairman of the Interfaith Council

Truman, MacArthur "Dispute"

Dear Sir:

Concerning your editorial about the "dispute" between Truman and MacArthur, it is not necessary to become embroiled in personalities or even in the accuracy or inaccuracy of the various documents mentioned in the Life article.

It is even irrelevant as to which policy — Truman's or MacArthur's — would have best served U. S. interests in Korea. The core of the whole affair has been stated in the previous sentence; in our national scheme of things, a General or the Army does not question the policy directives of his Commander in Chief to the point of substituting his own policy.

A comparable situation will illustrate this point: If a troop commander under MacArthur had deliberately disobeyed a direct order he would be court-martialed. It would be completely irrelevant that the commander's disobedience, based on superior knowledge of the local situation, saved his men from annihilation.

Obedience to direct orders is the foundation of a successful military establishment. MacArthur was a soldier under Truman, and the President overlooked more insubordination by MacArthur, before firing him, than MacArthur would ever take from an officer under him.

Cordially,

Benjamin Davis

Propaganda Material Sighted

Let's suppose. Let's suppose that the year is 1980 and in a Russian newspaper headlines blaringly stated U.S.S.R. Threatened By U. of Conn. A.F.R.O.T.C. Let's suppose the article read something like this.

The United States Air Force Cadets have this one common belief. The greatest joy a man can know is to conquer his enemies and drive them before him, to bomb their houses and take away their possessions, to see the faces of those who were dear to them bedewed with tears. These near demons have nerves of steel and hearts of iron, in place of normal weapons they carry Hydrogen bombs and atomic rockets, in battle they feed upon destruction and human flesh and right now wait only for the chance to break their chains and ride the wind to the West.

Frightened officials have reported that these air force cadets are as numerous as ants and locusts. They are as brave as lions, so that none of the fatigues or hardships of war can injure them. They satisfy their hunger with dried meat and wash it down by opening a vein in their enemy and drink the blood.

When they effect a conquest they leave nothing alive, either large or small. No mountain or river can arrest their progress. They cross over oceans and zoom over continents to meet their enemy.

The Premier fears that when King Winter, the furrier has clothed the hills and heartland with ermine, when rivers are frozen to depths, a flight of jets — devils for democracy, and numerous as the falling raindrops will streak above frozen rivers with the speed of sound and flash of fire. The roar of their jets and the scream of their rockets will be like thunder and lightning and their wrath will be felt by our people. What are we to do, or better yet; what can we do?

The above does not express my sentiments but might at this time, or perhaps at some future date, express those of the Russian people.

Les Smith.

Down In Front Education Or Pro Career Confronts Collegiate Star

with BOB SOKEL Ass't Sports Editor

Class "A" or B.A.? ...

An education or a possible professional baseball career? Many college ball players presently find themselves at these crossroads not knowing which way to turn. Ed Flynn, a fourth semester Physical Education major here at the University of Connecticut, was classed in this category at the close of last semester.

At that time, the Baltimore Orioles offered Flynn a chance to go south to Georgia for spring training with several top farm clubs. A lucrative baseball career appeared to be his for the asking. However, he had to decide between the two since he had always wanted a college education. Just what should he do?

To go back a few years, Flynn came directly to Connecticut from Meriden High where he was a two letterman in baseball and football. After his first year at Uconn, he left school for two years of active duty in the Navy. While stationed at Bainbridge, Md., he caught for two years on the base team and hit .306 as a regular in his final season against top notch service opposition.

After being seen in only one game, Flynn was approached by Baltimore scout Poke Whalen who recommended him to the front office for a class A contract. Just before his discharge from the Navy, he was invited to Baltimore for a weekend in the latter stages of the season but got little chance to display his wares due to inclement weather. Out of the service and the baseball season over, Flynn decided to come back to Uconn and thus prolong his inevitable decision to either play ball or remain in school.

After consulting with Husky baseball coach and athletic director J. O. Christian as well as his family and close friend Frank Corkin who is Sports Editor of the Meriden Record, Flynn finally arrived at the wise decision to remain in school.

Orioles Loss, Christy Gains ...

However, such a decision should have no effect on Flynn's status with the Orioles or any other major league team that might show interest in the burly catcher. The reason for this being that with the number of minor leagues diminishing every year, the big leagues are looking more and more toward colleges for future prospects. They seem to feel that why should they spend good money to prepare a young ball player for a possible major league career when college ball will serve the same purpose as a minor league and at no cost to the ball club.

During his next three years at Connecticut, Flynn will get ample opportunity to overcome his two major faults of not running on his toes and not hitting a long enough ball. With added experience plus an education, he will then have much more to offer the big leagues and will be in a more favorable position to demand more than presently offered.

Many former major league stars who experienced only fleeting moments of glory are strong supporters of an education before a career. Notably Spec Shea who at one time was tabbed the fabulous Connecticut Yankee and who just recently was released by the Washington Senators. So, hats off to Ed Flynn and other college athletes who when confronted with such a decision, likewise made the choice of school over a highly possible short-lived professional career.

Stieglitz Third In IC4A, Sets New School Record

By MARK HAWTHORNE

Uconn's Lew Stieglitz raced to a third place and a school record in the two mile race of the IC4A, one of the country's largest collegiate indoor track meets, last Saturday at Madison Square Garden. Teammates Dick Keeler and Allen Frazier failed to qualify for the finals in the 600 and 1000 yard runs.

In taking third Stieglitz broke the old Uconn indoor record, which he had held previously. His time for the circuit Saturday was 9:16.6.

The position of the finishers was:

1. George King, N.Y.U., 9:07 (championship record); 2. Robert Sbarra, Manhattan, 9:14.4; 3. Lew Stieglitz, Connecticut, 9:16.6; 4. Alex Breckinridge, Villanova, 5. Don Townsend, St. John's.

Pressure was on the runners throughout the race, not only in regard to their individual performances, but also about the points which they would snare for their teams. If Breckinridge beat Sbarra, Villanova would win the meet by one point, over Manhattan. Before the race Breckinridge was favored to take second, ahead of the Jaspers' ace, Sbarra.

Close Race

The race was tight for the mile and a half, the first five runners bunched. Stieglitz was fourth, close behind Breckinridge. At the 1 3/4 point, Stieglitz started to move up, and overtook his man. He held this short lead over Breckinridge to the finish line, Villanova lost its chance to win the meet, and Stieglitz broke the Uconn record. The winner, George King, set a new IC4A mark with his clocking.

In the trials for the 1000 yard run, held in the afternoon, Husky Keeler failed to qualify for the evening finals, placing fifth.

Frazier Third In Trial Heat

Allen Frazier, the other Connecticut entrant, took third in his qualifying heat for the 600 with a 2:25.5 time, but also failed to get a low enough time to be an entry in the evening race.

Frosh Council Plans Activities

The Freshman Council has formulated two new chairmanships for the present semester. Emil Levi, Tau Epsilon Phi, chairman of the Publicity Committee, will be responsible for informing the Daily Campus of Freshman Council events, and will coordinate the publicity for events of all other freshman council committees. Carl Larabee, Chi Phi, is chairman of the Block Dance Committee. This outdoor dance will be given some time in May.

Through the combined efforts of Anthony Reveaux, Quad II, and the executive Board of the Freshman Council, a bill was passed recently stating that the vice president of next year's freshman class will be allowed a seat in the Student senate.

At the present time the Freshman Council is also planning a talent show which will be written and directed by faculty members and open to all classes. This show will consist of music, and is to be held in Hawley Armory. There will be a sign-up sheet at the HUB Control Desk listing the types of acts desired.

worse but for the second half performance of Jimmy O'Connor. Surprising has been the word for the stocky New Londoner all season long. But last night the Sophomore find of the year saved Uconn's face with 18 points in the second half of the ball game.

Ruddy High For Uconn

Co-Captain Gordon Ruddy aided and abetted O'Connor with 16 of his 22 points coming in the second half of the game. The two Uconn's tallied as many points in the second half as the entire ball club did in the first 20 minutes of play.

Connecticut coach Hugh Greer held off on the Huskies' best defense—the full court press—until the Crusaders were ahead by a 37-16 bulge. The zone dispensed with, the Uconn's stayed even with the Crusaders the rest of the way.

The second half of the game was a blind exchange of baskets. The Purple, who held a 52-34 margin at halftime, used their height advantage in keeping a good 20 point lead on the Uconns throughout the period.

Third Worst Defeat

The 100 point plus score was a dose of their own medicine for the Huskies who have hit the figure innumerable times in the past few years. It was only the third time in Connecticut's history that an opponent has topped the century mark against them. The other two were Syracuse and St. Louis University in the first round of the National Invitational tournament last year at Madison Square Garden.

The Uconns face a two week layoff before they move into Madison Square Garden on March 12 for the first round of the NCAA tourney.

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF ROOM-MATES

Today we take up room-mates, a delightful phenomenon of American college life. Having a room-mate is not only heaps of fun; it is also very educational, for the proper study of mankind is man, and there is no better way to learn the dreams and drives of another human being than to share a room with him.

This being the case, it is wise not to keep the same room-mate too long, because the more room-mates you have, the more you will know about the dreams and drives of human beings. And that's what we're all after, isn't it?

So try to change room-mates as often as you can. A recent study made by Sigafos of Michigan State shows that the best interval for changing room-mates is every four hours.

Now let us discuss how to go about choosing a room-mate. Most counselors agree that the most important thing to look for in room-mates is that they be people of regular habits. This, I say, is arrant nonsense. What if one of their regular habits happens to be beating a great gong from midnight to three a.m.? Or growing cultures in the tooth glass? Or reciting the Articles of War? Or peanut brittle?

Regular habits indeed! I say that beyond quibble, far and away the most important quality in room-mates is that they be exactly your size. Otherwise you will have to have their clothes altered to fit you, which can be a considerable nuisance. In fact, it is sometimes flatly impossible. I recollect one time I roomed with a man named

Tremblatt Osage who was just under seven feet tall and weighed nearly four hundred pounds. There wasn't a blessed thing I could use in his entire wardrobe—until one night when I was invited to a masquerade party. I cut one leg off a pair of Tremblatt's trousers, jumped into it, sewed up both ends and went to the party as a bolster. (Incidentally, I took second prize. First prize went to a girl named Antenna Wilkins who poured molasses over her head and went as a candied apple.)

But I digress. Let us get back to the qualities that make desirable room-mates. Not the least of these is the cigarettes they smoke. When we borrow cigarettes, do we want them to be harsh, shoddy, and disdainful of our palates? Certainly not! What, then, do we want them to be? Why, we want them to be gentle, delicately-reared, and designed to suit the tempo of today's broader, easier life! And what cigarette is gentle, delicately-reared, and designed to suit the tempo of today's broader, easier life? Why, Philip Morris, of course! (I'll bet you knew it all the time!)

To go on. In selecting a room-mate, take great pains to find someone who will wear well, whom you'd like to keep as a permanent friend. Many of history's great friendships first started in college. Are you aware, for example, of the remarkable fact that Johnson and Boswell were room-mates at Oxford in 1712? What makes this fact so remarkable is that in 1712 Johnson was only three years old and Boswell had not been born yet. But, of course, children matured much earlier in those days. Take Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart who wrote his first symphony at the age of four. Or Titian, who painted his first masterpiece at five. Or Hans Otto McGrath, who was in many ways the most remarkable of all; he was appointed chief of the Copenhagen police department at the age of six!

(It must be admitted, however, that the appointment was less than a success. Criminals roamed the city, robbing and looting at will. They knew young McGrath would never pursue them; he was not allowed to cross the street.)
