Cadets To Become Officers During Armed Forces Day

Nearly 100 senior cadets will receive their commissions in the Army or Air Force Reserves today at the annual observances of Military Day. Following tradition, the kin of the cadets will go out on to the field to pin the lieutenant's bars on the newly commissioned men following the oath of office, to be administered by Dr. E. George VanBibber of the School of Education and an officer in the Naval Reserve.

2,000 Cadets To Take Part

More than 2,000 Uconn cadets in the Army and Air Force ROTC program will assemble at the Memorial Stadium at 1 p. m., led by the ROTC band. A demonstration by the Pershing Rifles, precision drill team of the ROTC, and an address by President Jorgensen will be features of the program.

In addition to the commissioning ceremonies, outstanding cadets of both the Air Force and Army ROTC will receive awards, ranging from sabres, trophies and medals to pen and pencil sets. As the concluding event, the ROTC corps will pass in review before assembled guests.

Military Brass Attending

Among the honored guests present will be almost a score of top military officials representing both the Navy and the Air Force. These officials together with representatives of numerous patriotic organizations throughout the state, will join with University of Connecticut administrators and members of the Board of Trustees in the annual observance.

For the cadets receiving their commission, this represents the culmination of a four year course aimed to develop qualities of character, leadership and group effort which fit men physically, mentally and morally for the pursuits of peace as well as war.

Open House Starts At 7

The fourth annual Student Union Spring Open House, to be held this evening, will feature a variety of events including a jazz concert, square dancing, a caricaturist and folk singing.

Tonight's activities will get under way with Jerry Ginsberg's jazz band, the Uconn Modern Sounds Ensemble, presenting a patio concert at 7 p. m. Following this, from 8 until midnight, there will be square dancing with "Doc" Tilley as featured caller.

Highlighting the evening will be the well-known caricaturist Cy Wallick who will sketch students in the Main Lounge for a small fee. Mr. Wallick has done work of this sort in Greenwich Village.

Informal Dance

An informal dance will be held in the Ballroom from 8 until midnight with music presented by Pat Dorn's "Glenn Miller style" 14-piece orchestra. The winner of this year's First Annual Union Talent Show, Maurice Goldsmith of Alpha Epsilon Pi, will be singing during intermission.

"Brown Derby" will be the theme of a Club 101 dance from 8 to midnight in HUB 101-102. Thomas Paley and the Folk Song Club will entertain in the Reception Lounge and two presentations of the movie "April in Paris" will be given at 7:30 and 10 p. m. in HUB 202.

Midnight permission will be given to all women students.

Martin Will Direct Antigone Saturday

The presentation of Jean Anouilh's version of "Antigone" Saturday evening at 8 p. m. in Hawley Armory will mark the first time a University student has directed a full length public production on campus.

William R. Martin, a senior majoring in speech and drama, has staged and directed this production as partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Bachelor of Arts degree with distinction.

The modern dress version of this legend by Sophocles will be played in formal evening clothes. The production features a plastic stage with levels and individual lighting effects.

In the leading roles are Doris Lee Allen, as Antigone; Jack Sullivan as Creon; Raymond Mihok as the First Guard and Janet Klinzman as Ismene.

The production is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Moody's Manual Must Materialize Immediately

Unless the 1955 edition of Moody's Industrial Manual taken from the library earlier this week is returned by noon today, all students taking the investment courses and certain marketing courses will be given an hour exam Monday. In addition a department spokesman announced all students in the courses will get incompletes or possibly F's.

The final decision will be made by the School of Business department heads.

WHUS Board Votes Brescia Managership

By WELLS A. TWOMBLY

The central figure in the Student Senate's recent controversy over control of radio station WHUS, Jack Riley has declined a renomination as station manager for next year. Riley's program director, Richard Brescia, has been named by the station's executive board as his successor.

In refusing re-election to the post, the 25-year-old Army veteran from Sigma Chi Alpha stated that he wished to devote more time to his other extra-curricular activities. A junior, Riley will serve as captain of Scabbard and Blade next year.

Riley found himself in the middle of a Senate battle over control of the station this semester. The station was voluntarily shut down last spring to avoid penalties for illegal radiation by the Federal Communications Commission. In applying for a new license, the Student Senate, who has controlled the station since 1939, was refused by the FCC. The Senate has made an appeal for an FM permit. The FCC countered with a proposal which would allow the University's Board of Trustees to hold the license. In advocating such a move, Riley was opposed by members of the Senate who wished to retain the responsibility for the station. The Senate upheld Riley and voted to let the trustees hold the license.

Lauds Trustee Control

Brescia, a junior from Theta Chi dismissed criticism that the trustees might try to interfere with the student's operation of the station. "The Senate's decision was a mature and far-reaching one. The students have placed a vote of confidence in the administration," he stated. "I anticipate no trouble with the Trustees. Our joint operations will bring the students and administration closer together," he added.

Alumni Group To Assemble On Saturday

A full program of events has been planned for the Alumni Day on Saturday, with 14 official class reunions and a total of 500 alumni returning to campus to view the changes that have taken place during the past years, according to George E. Pinckney, alumni secretary.

One of the highlights of the day is a Water Carnival which will be held at 2 p. m. in the Brundage Memorial pool.

Following the registration in the Student Union Building, the annual Alumni Association business meeting will be held in the United Nations Room of the HUB.

At noon, class luncheons will be held in the Main Dining room. President Albert N. Jorgenson will give a welcoming address and the Alumni Association will present two awards to outstanding alumni.

During the afternoon all of the buildings will be open for alumni inspection and staff members will be on hand to welcome the returning graduates. At 4 p. m. the University orchestra will present a band concert on the Student Union patio.

In the evening the University Drama Department, will present a modern Greek play, "Antigone" directed by William R. Martin, a senior majoring in speech and drama, in Hawley Armory at 8:30.

A Final Word

By THE ARCHONS

There has been an increasingly loud cry by students over the past four years calling for greater cooperation between themselves and the University administration. It is significant that those leaders who have been in the closest daily contact with the administrators have been those most discouraged with the current lack of accord.

Perhaps one of the largest contributing factors to the lack of progress in settling this problem is a lack of understanding on the part of the administrative staff on what students mean by the terms "cooperation" and "communication."

Co-Ordination?

When student leaders state they would like to see more cooperation they are talking about the need for coordination with the staff before final action is taken on any particular problem. Coordination is not achieved, as many administrators would have us believe, after definite action is taken. It is continuous process, with the administration in constant contact with the students on problem as they arise; it is a constant search for the facts and opinions necessary before an intelligent decision can be reached. Coordination, to be effective, must be begun while the decision is being considered. The students, having been consulted beforehand, are more apt to get behind the final action and support it once it is formally announced.

Reid's Stay Here: A Job Well Done

There seems no better time than the present to extend a word of thanks to a man who has done much for the University in his one year here. Mr. Gordon Reid, who stepped into Rueben Johnson's shoes as assistant director of student personnel in charge of men's affairs, has filled that position to the utmost of his ability. Mr. Reid's tenure in office will end June 29 with the return of Mr. Johnson from a year's leave of absence.

Mr. Reid's duties were many and varied but the work he carried on above and beyond duty is what makes his departure all the more deserving of a thank you note. From his appearances in the Mansfield Town Court to speak for University students, to attending IFC meetings to clear up situations concerning administrative policy, or to fraternity speaking dates, he proved his real interest in the school and its student body. Anyone who came in contact with the personable Amherst graduate knew the right selection was made in picking him to make Room 116 of the Administration Building headquarters for a year.

His fine job is all the more remarkable when the pressure under which he worked for several months is considered. A statement he made in October concerning swearing-in, following several complaints by people on campus, was blown up into a front-page joke by a number of state newspapers. This seemed quite ridiculous considering administrators at other schools in the vicinity have made similar statements in recent years.

Only the questions concerning the liquor situation at the University have gone unanswered. From all the evidence gathered, it seems now that a number of contradictory statements issued by several uninformed administrators helped to cloud the situation, which had the student body, faculty and even the administrators perplexed for quite a time. It seems now that the situation arose through rumors, poor judgement and unofficial-official statements on the part of many here in Storrs.

Mr. Reid faced many complex problems, but a sincere and concerted effort by the capable administrator proved enough to handle the situations which arose. Once again, Mr. Reid, in behalf of the entire student body, we wish to say thank you for a job well done.

From Our Readers:

Beanery Revisited

TO THE EDITOR:

We wish to endorse Mr. Franklin M. Wright's well-taken and thoroughly justified criticisms of the Main Dining Hall; further, we wish to mention an additional criticism and several recommendations for lessening the inconvenience caused weekend diners.

On the morning of April 28, 1956, the Main Dining Hall was being prepared for a banquet, thereby closing the sole eating facility at approximately 8:45—45 minutes early—and remaining closed during the time of the noon meal. Due to lack of wide-spread notification of the intended action, many students went without breakfast or were forced to pay off-campus prices for breakfast.

Question: Why wasn't there sufficient notice concerning the shutdown of the "beanery" on the 28th? Also why wasn't another dining room facility open for students during the noon meal?

To help eliminate weekend-eater's-misery, we recommend the following action:

1—Posting of sufficient advance notice in all dormitories, dining facilities, student publications, and daily notices concerning scheduled conferences whose members will utilize the Main Dining Hall. Likewise, the same action should be instituted when the hall will be closed for banquets.

2—Opening of the Grille or other campus dining facility when the Main Dining Hall is either closed or its facilities overtaxed.

Lastly, we wish to support Mr. Wright's comments concerning the menu and food quality.

The Hidden Crowd

Thousand Branchites In Three Locations

By Marge Schmidt

Each year over 1,000 University of Connecticut students go to classes, vote for a student senate and cheer on the "Huskies," yet never see the Storrs campus. These are the Branchites, the students who find time to attend classes, join activities, commute and hold down part time jobs in cities near their home towns.

At the present time there are three Uconn branches in the state. Those at Hartford and Watbury have been in operation since 1939, when they were organized at the request of interested citizens to meet the educational needs of the people within the community. At first only a few undergraduate courses were offered through a division of the University extension program. In 1946 they were expanded to meet the demands of war veterans, and fulltime staffs and personnel were employed. The influx of vets made necessary the beginning of a resident staff, and the "colonies" were termed branches.

The Hartford branch is also in its third location. Originally housed in the Barnard school, it was later moved to a third floor corner of Hartford High School. The present site on Asylum Street covers 16 and a half acres. Facilities include an administration and classroom building, a science building, which houses the library, and a combination snack bar and bookstore.

Stamford Branch Established

In the spring of 1952 the University was requested to establish an undergraduate program in Stamford to meet the educational needs of the students in that general area. At first only five courses were offered to freshmen and sophomores. Classroom facilities were provided in Stamford High School. In just four years the extension has been expanded to the point where it offers 43 courses to the 200 full and part-time students who attend.

In the past branch enrollment has increased at the rate of about 50 additional full time students a year. At the present time the Waterbury branch the 700 students, 420 of which are full time, while

The Hartford extension has a slightly larger enrollment. There is a possibility that almost all freshmen and sophomores will be required to spend their first two years at the branches, while the Storrs campus will be used for juniors, seniors and an expanded graduate school in the future. There are also plans being made for the establishment of two additional branches in the state, sometime within the next ten years.

Have Same Dreaded Courses

The branches offer most of the freshman-sophomore requirements found in the corresponding schools here at the University. Course content is as nearly identical as possible. Students can register for courses required for nearly every major. They even have interdepartmental 100 and Army ROTC. However there are no physical education courses, and as they come to the Storrs campus as full-fledged juniors they never have to complete two years of non-credit gym classes.

Because the branches are set up as integral parts of the University they have identical entrance requirements. Both students and prospective teachers must have the same qualifications required here at Storrs.

Date Line and All

Sportswise the branches are limited to intercollegiate competition with other two-year schools. They compete in basketball and baseball, and in addition have tennis and golf intramural teams.

Both the Hartford and Waterbury branches have newspapers which are published on a monthly, or sometimes bi-monthly, basis. Hartford's Bark of the Branch has offices in the same building which houses the snackbar and bookstore. This "student union" also has facilities for lounging and reading between classes.

Hillside Highlights, the Waterbury paper, has just recently acquired its new name. When the branch was moved from the Bengal School the name Bengalight became inappropriate and a "Name the Paper" contest was held. The paper looks much like the Campus, with its "Little Man on Campus," letters to the editor and news and feature stories. In fact they even quote us on occasion... date line and all!

The two older branches both have active student government groups and drama companies. The latter produce three or four plays a year and in addition, a few sketches. The schools also sponsor dances and have a number of active clubs.

Daily 22-Mile Drive

Students commute from as far away as 22 miles daily to attend classes. And we complain about walking from "Aggie" to Rostov! This means that they must be early risers (or perhaps fast drivers.)

Mr. Stuart H. Manning, assistant director of University extension, feels that academically "branchites" are as well prepared for their junior year as the resident students here at Storrs. "They have a tremendous advantage in having these transition years between high school and a large university," he stated.

Summer school is held at both the Waterbury and Hartford branches as it is here on campus. In this way a part-time student with a job can earn as many as 18 credits in a single year. The session runs from June 25 to August 3.

"There is no doubt that the branches have proved very successful in meeting the needs of the students in their respective areas," Mr. Manning stated.

A Successful Year:

Debating Team Terminates Season With 29-27 Record

by Muriel Keating

Travelling over 5,000 miles by train, plane and auto, the University of Connecticut debate team has participated in 78 intercollegiate debates this year, recording 29 wins, 27 losses and 22 non-decision debates.

Tournaments were held at the University of Vermont, Connecticut, Pittsburg, Bridgeport, New Haven State Teachers and Worcester Polytechnic Institute. There were three public debates, one against Cambridge University before the Uconn student body, one at New Britain before a YMCA adult education program, and one at Torrington for the Industrial Management Club.

Topics Varied

Topics ranged all the way from the guaranteed annual wage, racial integration in public schools, and benefits of a planned economy, to the pros and cons of another Republican Administration.

It was an award year, too. Achieved were first place in the novice division of the University of Vermont tournament involving teams from 50 schools; first place in the New Haven State Teachers tournament; second place in the Uconn Clarification Debate tournament; second place in the Bridgeport University debate tournament and certificate of excellence in the New England Forensic tournament.

Debate at Uconn is not a club activity. It is a recognized activity, financed and supported by the administration and operated under the supervision of the Speech and Drama Department. Dr. Huber W. Ellingsworth, instructor in speech, is in charge of the program.

Other Activities

Besides debates, other forensic activities are sponsored by the organization such as the Student Congress, which is like a Mock Legislature, extemporaneous speaking, oratory and interpretive reading.

Any undergraduate student is welcome to try for a place on the intercollegiate teams. Most of the members had no previous experience in debate or public speaking. In fact none of the present members is a speech and drama major. Because debate usually appeals to the above-average student and because the participants are learning facts pertinent to their studies, the QPR average of the present group is 31. Members spend an average of two hours a week for debate, although in the fall they spend six or seven hours a week preparing for trips which sometimes take four or five days.

Young Dems Pick Harrison As Head

Irwin Harrison, a junior from Alpha Epsilon Pi, was elected president of the Young Democrats Club for the 1956-57 school year. Harrison, a government major, has been active in the Young Dems for the past three years, serving this year as treasurer.

Vice presidents elected were Alan Rievman, Alpha Epsilon Pi; Judith Pulin, Unit 7-B, and Norman Ayers, Middlesex Hall. Other officers are secretary, Florence Wagman, Unit 5-B; treasurer, Edward Albert, Project E-3B, and executive board delegates Richard Cromie, Rho Pi Phi, and Russell Pray, Beta Sigma Gamma. Alternates for the board are Christopher Green, Litchfield Hall and Alan Rievman, Alpha Epsilon Pi. The New England Council delegate is Norman Ayers of Middlesex Hall.

The annual Young Democrats picnic will be held next Tuesday from 4 to 8 p. m. at Mashamoquet State Park. Free refreshments for members will be provided.

Young ad man handles G-E jet and rocket engine advertising

The first jet engine ever to power an American plane was built by General Electric in 1942. Since 1948, G.E. has supplied the Air Force with over 30,000 of its famous J47 jet engines. And General Electric's jet experience soon will be paying additional new dividends to national defense. Its J79—called the most advanced engine of its type in the world—will soon enter production.

The man responsible for reporting G.E.'s jet and rocket engine progress to its customers and the public is Roy O. Stratton, Jr., 27-year-old account supervisor in the Company's Apparatus Advertising and Sales Promotion Department.

Stratton's Work Important, Interesting

Stratton supervises the planning and preparation of direct-mail promotion, brochures, films and presentations, as well as public-informational space advertisements for Time, U.S. News & World Report, Business Week, Aviation Week, and other magazines.

Considerable personal contact with the Armed Services makes Stratton's job an interesting one. Last year he traveled over 60,000 miles, visiting many of the country's Air Force bases to gather necessary information and pictures.

25,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When Stratton came to General Electric in 1952, he already knew the kind of work he wanted to do. Like each of our 25,000 college graduates, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: when fresh young minds are given the freedom to develop, everybody benefits—the individual, the Company, and the country.

UC Still In Running For NCAA Playoffs

by Bob Sokel

Despite a double loss to New Hampshire last Saturday, Connecticut still has an outside chance to gain an NCAA bid if the Huskies show well in their remaining four games. A return to mid-season form could very easily result in Uconn getting one of the four at-large berths in the post-season tournament at Springfield.

Of the 34 teams eligible for the tournament, only 13 have expressed a desire to compete. Included in the 23 teams not interested in a bid are schools with impressive records that would be among the first considered for a playoff spot. Of the 13 schools from which the four entries will be selected, there are several that are all but eliminated because of either poor records or inferior schedules. Among these are Brown, MIT, Bates and Springfield. Bates has a fair record but among its victims are several sub-par opponents. Springfield is the big flop of the year since the Gymnasts were 1955 District I champions and represented New England in the national playoffs at Omaha, Neb.

Teams currently in contention along with Connecticut are Massachusetts (10-3-1), Vermont (9-3), Colby (7-2-1), New Hampshire (7-4), AIC (6-4) and Boston University (9-7). However, Vermont and AIC also have among their wins teams with sub-par ratings. This is an important factor that the selection committee strongly considers when picking the entries.

The selection committee meets in Boston May 27 at which time they will make known the four at-large schools to compete in the playoffs. Chairman of the committee is Husky coach J. O. Christian. The tentative dates of the tournament ment are June 1 and 2. Connecticut's four remaining games are against Colby, Maine and Rhode Island (2).

Suspension Dims Santee's Olympic Bid

NEW YORK, May 16, (UP)—The New York State Supreme Court today killed miler Wes Santee's hopes of running in the 1956 Olympics by turning down his appeal against the National AAU decision which banned him from foot racing for life.

The court, in denying Santee a permanent injunction against the ban, thus upheld the AAU's right to discipline its members for breaking its rules and extended the sport organization's record of never losing such a case.

The executive committee of the National AAU, by a 14-1 vote, banned Santee on Feb. 19 on charges he had accepted approximately $1,500 in excessive expenses for 1955 meets.

Fastest Miler

Santee, the former Kansas runner who developed into America's fastest miler, fought back in court. He won several early legal skirmishes, obtaining a preliminary injunction that permitted him to run in three amateur meets in New York, Milwaukee and Cleveland.

The hassle was climaxed by a five-day trial which ended before Justice Walter A. Lynch March 23. Justice Lynch had reserved decision pending a study of the evidence.

Charges Listed

The main AAU charges against Santee were that:

A Good Year . . .

It has been a good year for Intramurals. Participation has been well above the 2,000 mark, and interest is at an all time high. Right now, over 600 men are playing softball. Basketball had 721 players, while touch football drew 579 men. Bowling, by far one of the least liked sports, had 250 participants. Badminton and volleyball, long far down on the popularity list, increased tremendously this year due to the teaching of the sports in P. E. classes.

The only phase of the Intramural program that fell off was fall golf. This was due to the fact that the weather was poor nearly all fall. Rain and cold weather kept the golfers away from the course.

The weakest link in the program is the problem of communication between director and the various organizations. Bob Kennedy tried delivering schedules by mail in the beginning of the year, and he found that somehow or other, some houses never found their schedule. He tried giving the information to the members in the Intramural council, but often there were only 15 or so members present at the meetings, which doesn't even comprise half of the 44 residences in the Intramural program. Finally, Bob came up with the only logical solution to the problem. He has placed all information and schedules on the Intramural bulletin board in the P. E. building. Those houses interested can find facts there. Kennedy reports that he "always had the information posted on the board, but many people don't even know where the board is."

To show an example of the lack of communication, while we were talking to Kennedy, a softball player came hustling into the Intramural office asking where his team was to play that night. When referred to a specific diamond, he asked, "Where's that?" He was told of the Mural Bulletin board, which has a diagram of playing fields.

Another problem which Kennedy and the Intramural program faces is that of organization in the residences. From a study that Kennedy is making, it has been pointed out that fraternities tend to have an active interest in the activities, while the independents are loosely organized and show little interest. In their first year and part of their second, the independents take part on a large scale, but slack off in the junior and senior years. The independent residences have many "floor teams," few house teams, and this hurts the residence. There is just no organization.

Kennedy believes that this "floor team" problem will be corrected next year, when there will be a two team limitation placed on all residences. The reason for this limitation is that there is a question in the minds of the directors. Since the program is spreading out, where is all the necessary space going to come from in the future? The two team limitation answer will give the cream of the crop in all houses, as well as organizing the residences. There will be 88 teams in every sport next season.

Tennis In Fall . . .

Also next year, swimming and tennis will be pushed up to the fall, when there is leisure time for the activities. The spring semester is always crowded with too many sports. As it is now, a performer could play softball, tennis, and badminton all in season. In case of conflict, he will choose his favorite sport and ignore the other, weakening the program.

No matter where Intramural sports are played, the problem of finding officials is always present. Uconn is no exception. However, a solution might have been found this year. Residences had to supply their own officials, and the results have proved excellent.

Although there are many problems facing the Intramural program, the future looks quite bright. So long as the Intramural council continues to function and expresses student ideas and opinions, and Bob

Kennedy doesn't run out of time and his supply of energy, the Mural league will become bigger and better. This year has been the best ever, but "you ain't seen nuttin' yet Bub, wait till next year."

Stieglitz Saves Huskies From Ill-Fated Weekend

with BOB SOKEL, Co-Sports Editor

Bad Sports Weekend . . .

This past weekend was a poor one sportswisely for the University of Connecticut with the exception of the golf team which copped the Yankcon title and finished a strong fourth in the New England Intercollegiate Golf Tournament. Elsewhere, the tennis team was eliminated in the first round of the New Englands at Cambridge, Mass. At Orono, Maine, the track team finished fourth in a field of six entries in the Yankee Conference Track and Field Meet. The baseball squad was all but eliminated from consideration for the NCAA playoffs when they blew a double-header to New Hampshire at Durham.

Lew Stieglitz

A Smile And Hello

The sooner forgotten the better, concerning most of the results of last weekend's play. That is, practically all except the performance turned in by Lew Stieglitz in the Yankcon Track and Field Meet. One week ago Saturday, Stieglitz turned in an incomparable showing against Springfield when he won three races within 90 minutes. This past Saturday he set Yankcon records in the mile and the two-mile runs in scoring practically all of his team's points. In setting a new mile mark of 4:17.8, Stieglitz broke the old record of 4:21 that he set in last year's meet. He also smashed the two-mile standard with the time of 9:32.3 to eclipse the mark of 9:38.1 which was set in last year's Yankcon meet.

Dangerous Runner . . .

Every time Stieglitz enters a race there is that ever present threat that a new record will be set by the jet-propelled Husky. It has been a long time since any one man has been so outstanding in any one sport at Uconn. It is highly imaginable that Track Coach Lloyd Duff's eyes light up every time he scans the eligibility list for next year and sees the name of Lew Stieglitz back once again to haunt the opposition three times a year in cross-country, indoor and outdoor track. With Stieglitz back to spearhead next season's trackmen, Coach Duff should find sleeping nights far less of a problem than this year.

Credit To University . . .

Off the field Stieglitz is perpetually the perfect gentleman. Not only would he be a strong candidate for a top athlete award but a personality award as well. He is never without a smile which always accompanies a friendly hello to all acquaintances. His sportsmanship is beyond reproach and must set a tremendous example for the younger members of the track team.

In all respects, Stieglitz represents the ideals of the typical American youth. As long as the University of Connecticut has men like Lew Stieglitz wearing the school colors in athletics, the reputation of Uconn can do nothing but continue to grow and grow.

Track Team Travels To Boston For New England IC3A Meet

By MARK HAWTHORNE

Competition will be keen this weekend for the Huskies, as they will be battling between 15 and 20 New England other college and university track teams for honors in the annual New England IC3A track meet in Boston.

A total of about 275 athletes is expected to be on hand Friday and Saturday for the "festivities." Trials will be held tomorrow and the finals Saturday.

Boston University, the defending team, and the University of Rhode Island, the Yankcon champion, will probably fight it out for first place. Connecticut finished seventh last year with 15 points. If the Huskies had gotten one more point they would have tied for fifth.

Longball-Hitting Lennie: One of the top sophomore finds of the current baseball season has been leftfielder Lennie King. The tall righthanded batter punched a long triple last Saturday against New Hampshire that Coach J. O. Christian considered "the best hit ball of the season." King is a former Naugatuck High School and Cheshire Academy athletic ace. In the fall the blond slugger is an outstanding halfback on the football team.

Harvard Gains Net Title In New England Tourney

By ELLIOT BOHRER

Aided by Dale Junta's win in the New England Intercollegiate tennis singles championship, Harvard gained the team title with a total of 22 points. The three-day tournament took place last weekend at Cambridge, Mass. Williams placed second with 19 points and Yale was third with 14. Other team scores were Amherst with 8, Boston University 7, Middlebury 6, MIT 4, Vermont 3, and Brown, Trinity and Wesleyan 2 each.

Junta, a 19-year old sophomore, placed third in the pre-tourney ratings and won the title with a 6-1, 6-3, 7-5 victory over unseeded Karl Hirshman of Williams. In the semi-finals, Junta defeated Wally Jensen of Williams, who was seeded No. 2. Hirshman entered the finals after winning by default from top-seeded Eric Moore of Yale. Moore explained he does not play tennis on Sunday because of religious reasons.

Junta and Brooks Harris of Harvard teamed to win the doubles championship with a 17-15, 8-6, 6-4 victory over Sheldon Caldwell and Tom Kerr of Boston University in a three-hour marathon.

The only Yankee Conference team to score was Vermont. Rosenthal and Josephs scored in the singles and Gould and Savelle too.

a point in the doubles to gain recognition for the Vermont team. Connecticut's contingent of Chasnoff, Rothfeder, Fagan and Goldberg failed to score a point in the tourney. Massachusetts, Yankee Conference title holder, also failed to gain a victory in the match.

Little Depth

Coach Lloyd Duff does not feel that we have as much depth as we had last year. Uconn is sending eight varsity athletes and four freshmen.

Lew Stieglitz will run the one and two-mile races, backed up by Charles Cohen and Allen Frazier in the mile and by Co-Captain Werner Gibelius in the two-mile. Dick Keeler will enter the 880-yard run, while Bruce Eldredge will be the Huskies' 440 entrant. Uconn's only field event man will be Don Rini in the broad jump and Dave Pritchard in the pole vault.

The freshmen will run in the medley relay. The four that will compete were determined by time trials held yesterday afternoon.

The only meet remaining for the Huskies after this weekend will be the IC4A on Randall's Island, N. Y., on May 25 and 26.

The Connecticut indoor record was 0-5 and its regular season outdoor meet record was 4-2. Defeated by the Huskies were Northeastern, the Coast Guard Academy, Springfield college, and the University of Massachusetts. Schools which beat Uconn were Rhode Island and Wesleyan.

All Star Game Sold Out

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The popularity of the All-Star baseball game has again been proven in rapid fashion.

Tickets were placed on sale yesterday. Twenty-one hours later, all seats in Griffith Stadium, Washington, were sold out.

The Washington Senators are handling applications for the classic between the American and National Leagues on July 10. A spokesman for the team said there were at least 25,000 applications filed and each customer had the right to reserve 4 seats. Naturally in a park which seats approximately 28,500, most applications will not be filled.

Final Word

To phrase this another way: Coordination is essential while the decisions are being formulated so that cooperation can be achieved in carrying out the action. It is only common sense that when someone participates actively and intimately in a decision-making process he is more likely to abide by the final action. We feel this is also true with the student body, and only needs to be tried by the University to be found effective.

The Case In Point

Consider the confused, chaotic issues we witnessed this past year: The cancellation of the Diamond Jubilee, the "on and off" suspension of nine fraternities at Homecoming, the $5 parking fee and the use of the auditorium for campus dances to name but a few of the more prominent situations. Is it not logical to believe that if the administration had talked these matters over with representatives before action was taken the confusion and hard feelings could have been avoided? We believe this would have been both possible and feasible.

However, prerequisite to effective coordination is a more basic need for improved communications between the two parties. Coordination is based on an adequate understanding of each others problem — on the ability of one group to communicate with the other. This is woefully lacking here at Connecticut.

Understanding Needed

To achieve an understanding with someone one must be interested in him. If the administration is to fulfill its obligations to the faculty and students it must maintain a genuine interest in their problems.

Yet one often receives the impression that the administrators are well removed from what students are thinking, saying and doing. What is even more discouraging is that there appears to be little concern on their part in remedying the situation, or in even calling in student leaders to find out what their fellow students think about certain problems before administrative decisions concerning the problems are reached.

What To Do?

To summarize, then, what is required to start us on the way to improved relations with the administration is: (1) a greater interest in the students by the staff, in helping them help themselves to an education; (2) a better informed staff as to what the students are thinking and doing; and (3) an intensive effort to discuss contemplated actions with student leaders before such measures are taken.

Meanwhile, some progress can be seen in the establishing of judicial systems which are being fostered by the administration and students and the sub committee of the Board of Trustees which meets with student leaders on student problems. But, overall there would appear to be a lack of a positive philosophy governing relations between the students and the administration.

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series by the Archons. The last will appear tomorrow.)

Group Discusses Orthodox Chapel

Plans for the building of an Orthodox Chapel on campus was the subject of discussion at the Orthodox Club's business meeting Monday night.

A chapel building fund committee has been chosen to raise funds and request a land grant for the chapel. Constantinos Coulombis will head a temporary board of trustees which will examine different chapel plans and determine the exact cost of building.

Presently, two working plans are being used to give an idea of the type of building that the club plans to obtain. The plans are Byzantine style adopted from a modern American style.

Club members feel that the growth of the Orthodox religion has greatly increased the need for an Orthodox chapel on campus. Last year, the state of Connecticut recognized the Orthodox religion as one of the major religious faiths in Connecticut.

The club also discussed plans for a picnic which will be held Saturday at the Church Cabin.
