YOUNG REPUBLICANS are shown dancing to music played by Richard Prior and his combo, at the Eisenhower Campaign Dance which the club held Wednesday night in the Student Union.

The affair, the first Young Republican social event of this semester, was held in conjunction with the Presidential election which will be held next Tuesday all over the nation.

'Dorms Ignore Senate Letter On Social Rules,' Lankarge

Senator Carol Lankarge, Pi Beta Phi, charged that the individual living units are ignoring the Student Senate and its policy on the new social rules and regulations, at the Student Senate meeting Wednesday night.

Miss Langarke's charges came after she had directed questions to the chair attempting to gauge the response received to a letter sent by the Senate to the individual houses concerning the rules. She asked for a show of hands by the senators as to how many of their houses had received or heard of the letter. Senator Tracy NCAC president was the only senator to raise his hand.

Senate President Flahive was then asked by Miss Lankarge if the letter had been sent out. Receiving an affirmative answer from Flahive she declared "Apparently from the negative response of the senators, the house chairmen are ignoring the letter sent by the Student Senate. It is a waste of time and effort if these people are not going to cooperate with us."

The discussion was then cut off by a motion offered on the floor. Senator Lankarge made it known that she intended to investigate the matter further.

The letter in discussion concerned a motion made two weeks ago by the Senate to the effect that the Senate did not recognize the social rules as it has never approved the social policy committee which set up the rules.

HUB Club 101 Features Band

An "A's and I's" party will be held tomorrow evening at 8:30 in HUB 101. This is one in the series of Club 101 dances to be presented throughout the year by the HUB Social Committee.

A band will provide the music for the dance which is free of charge. The first couple to arrive will be awarded a beer mug and another will be given to the last couple leaving the affair.

Another affair sponsored by the HUB Social Committee is the Gerry Mulligan jazz concert which will be presented in the Student Union Ballroom at 2 p.m. on Nov. 11. Tickets for this event are now on sale at the HUB control desk at the price of $1.50 per person.

Meeting Features Faculty Research Work, Activities

In commemoration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of the University of Connecticut, the School of Engineering is sponsoring an engineering symposium all day today.

The day will be divided into two sessions, early series and late afternoon series.

The early series, from 2 to 3:30 p.m., will consist of a group of simultaneous technical talks given by members of the civil engineering staff, electrical staff, and the mechanical engineering staff. The main idea of these sessions is to present the research work and engineering activity of the staffs to the public's eye.

The general session, in the Little Theatre from 4 to 5 p.m. will be devoted largely to the general trends in an engineering education.

There will be an open house in the School of Engineering from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. There will also be an exhibit of faculty work in the lobby of the Auditorium.

Egyptian Government Warns Total War And UN Withdrawal

BULLETIN

CAIRO, Nov. 1—The Egyptian government has pledged "total war" against Israel, Britain, and France, has severed diplomatic relations with the latter two nations, and is considering withdrawal from the United Nations.

By United Press

CAIRO, Nov. 1—The Egyptian army today took over one French and two British oil companies and also assumed control of all public utilities.

Meanwhile, the Anglo-French planes bombed the outskirts of the city in their ninth raid of the day. Israel and Egypt report their heaviest action since the Israel offensive started Monday night.

The air attacks are said to have done considerable damage to civilian facilities in Cairo, including Trans-World Airline hangers. Bombers concentrated on an area with big military and civilian airports.

NINE KILLED

Nine persons reportedly have been killed in the capital city. British and French planes also are said to have strafed and bombed Egyptian units crossing the Suez Canal and sinking an Egyptian tank-landing ship. This clogged canal navigation.

OCCUPIED AREA

Israel says it has control of the Egyptian Sinai Desert and that the Gaza Strip is an occupied area. They report 5,000 Egyptians have been killed, wounded or captured against light Israeli losses.

Egypt disclosed it is regrouping its Sinai troops to a more defensible area west of the Suez. The United Nations General Assembly opened an emergency session late today and promptly handed Britain and France a defeat. The Assembly overwhelmingly voted down the two powers in deciding on a full debate of Israeli - Egyptian fighting and Anglo-French intervention.

NCAC Motion

Bill Defeated By NCAC To Kill Presidents' Group

The North Campus Area Council defeated a motion last Tuesday night to disband the Presidents' Council, by instructing presidents of dormitories not to attend its regular monthly meetings with Sumner M. Cohen, assistant director of men's housing, and Thomas J. Cusick, university administrative assistant.

The Presidents' Council, composed of the presidents of the quads, Hicks and Grange Halls and all North Campus dorms, meets with administration to discuss problems of each dorm and problems common to all.

Motion Amended

After some discussion Wesley Tracy, NCAC president, and James Panico, McConaughy Hall, advocates of the motion, amended it so as to place the Presidents' Council under and responsible to NCAC.

Commenting on the motion, Tracy stated, "I believe the Presidents' Council can be of some help to NCAC, and it would be better not to dissolve it. The council would be stronger under the auspices of NCAC, and NCAC would also become more powerful with it as a subsidiary committee."

Other reasoning behind the motion was that since these monthly meetings with the administration could be accomplished by and through NCAC, it was therefore taking some power away from NCAC.

Discussion Only

Dale Blake, president of Hurley Hall, responded with an argument to the effect that since the Presidents' Council has no governing authority and only meets to discuss problems, it is therefore in no way endangering NCAC's power.

Another point brought forth was that since NCAC is the governing body of North Campus and all North Campus presidents are automatic members of NCAC, the presidents' business should all go through NCAC.

Practice Ends With Tryouts

Final tryouts for dolphinettes were held this week after a month of practice sessions. The purpose of the practice sessions was to give all girls interested in this organization a chance to learn and practice the skills which are required of all members. Approximately 15 girls will be chosen.

The program for the Dolphinettes' annual show which will be held the Sunday evening of Winter Carnival Weekend, is being planned now, and as soon as the new members have been chosen, rehearsals for the show will begin.

The numbers used in the show are worked out by the choreography committee of Dolphinettes. Each member of the committee generally works alone on different numbers which consist of stunt and synchronized swimming done to music.

Once the numbers have been planned, separate committees are formed for costumes, lighting and music.

The club is now composed of fifteen members. These members together with the newly chosen members will break down into two groups. One group will practice on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. The second group will practice at the same times on Thursdays.

In addition to practice sessions, business meetings will be held in the evenings whenever necessary. The separate committees decide their own meeting times.

4-H Presents Dance Tonight

"Country Capers," the annual banner dance sponsored by the UConn 4-H Club, will be held tonight from 8:30 to 12:30 in the HUB ballroom. The Rythm Ramblers will supply the square dance music.

Highlighting the affair will be the presentation of a banner to the county with the most points. Points are scored in proportion to the number of people present representing individual Connecticut counties.

Tickets are still available at the HUB control desk. Everyone is invited to attend, stag or with dates.

Deceptive Editorial Deserves Scrutiny

The Hartford Times' editorial comment about tuition costs at this university needs some close scrutiny. The Times states that Governor Ribicoff was "astonished" that out-of-state students pay "only" $250. Of course, no mention was made that this $250 dollars is in addition to the normal fees paid by an in-state student. Thus, it should be said, for accuracy's sake, that out-of-state students pay $410 dollars per year in basic fees.

The rationale to which they attributed the Governor's remark was that there "is no reason why the people of Connecticut should subsidize students from other states."

Two paragraphs later, The Times states that "no thinking person would deny the gifted student an opportunity to develop his talents as well as possible. He is pretty certain to repay society for funds it advances in his behalf."

With these two paragraphs in mind, one could ask the puzzling question: what is to be done if an out-of-state student who is gifted is refused admission in favor of an in-state student whose gifts are much lesser in magnitude? Stated more simply: shall we refuse a brain from out-of-state and then admit a dunce from in-state? We don't think so.

Further, if Governor Ribicoff did make the statements that the Times attributes to him, we feel that they are misguided. The reason why the people of this state should support deserving out-of-state students is that education in this country must be altruistic if we are to have a strong nation. To us, obligation to state breaks down when welfare of the whole country is at stake. We agree with the Times that no talented person should be denied opportunity. However, we must qualify their narrow statement by saying that no talented person regardless of geographical origin should be denied opportunity.

It must also be pointed out to those advocates, old and new, of raising out-of-state fees, that only 100 out-of-state students were accepted at the university this year. Two-thousand applications were received. Of this 100, we assume that a good percentage is comprised of athletes. But the point is, raising tuition fees for these students is just a drop in a very big bucket. It will cure no problems and deny opportunity to a few deserving students.

As to raising tuition for students who are from this state and whose parents can afford to pay more, The Times is way off base. There are few people like this at Connecticut. Most parents have enough trouble paying for their children's meals, books, clothes, and entertainment. So this is just another drop in the bucket.

Essentially, The Times is advocating a smaller budget for a growing, ever more expensive commodity, education. This cannot be done. Even their comments on the one and one-half million dollars being spent on a sports arena and football seats are miles off the track. They would have this money cut from the budget.

We, too, have our doubts about the wisdom of spending money in this manner. But our doubts are based on chronological, rather than economic, factors. That is, we feel that a Social Sciences or a Humanities Building should precede any football seats. But we do not believe that money should just be cut from one arm and not added to the other.

The responsibility of maintaining this university belongs, not in any one group of individuals, but to the state as a whole. To criticize tuition fees and admission policies is just scraping the surface. It does a great deal of harm to the public. The Times editorial was too deceptive and too shallow to be of any value.

Politics Revived....

A national magazine recently commented to some extent on the fact that college students have a relatively small working interest in politics, and considered, in the face of a national election year, that the condition was a reprehensible state of affairs.

Although several reasons for the situation were given, and attempts were made to stimulate the interest of students, who are the future administrators and legislators of the country, the story was little more than a statement of existing fact.

It is interesting to note the renewed interest that has become evident in the face of the current Egyptian and Hungarian situations, and college students everywhere, along with the general public, are beginning to take acute notice of "world politics" and the views of local politicians regarding the international situation.

The importance of the present international crisis cannot be over-emphasized. With the memory of Korea still fresh in the American mind, the word "war" has far from been dropped from the national vocabulary, and the ramifications of its prospects are more apparent than ever. It is a time that will surely test the strength of such things as the United Nations, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and world disarmament policies, which may well affect the destiny of this generation and many to come, and could alter the course of world history.

The factor that strikes most deeply at the minds of college students is the prospect of war itself. A diplomatic blunder in the face of such strained conditions, or a change in the U.S. foreign policy could understandably side the country with one or another of the forces now at odds in Egypt, and the mobilization of an army would appreciably effect a number of undergraduates.

Although a variety of undergraduate opinions may be chronicled regarding the stand they think should be taken on Egypt, and many allegations have been rendered regarding the relative justices and injustices that have been taken, the predominant student attitude is along the lines of non-intervention, for reasons of personal expedience, if nothing else.

No one wants to march from a classroom to an Army barracks, and although the prospect of military service faces almost all undergraduates, no one is particularly interested in hastening the day of reckoning. With this attitude in mind, scholars around the country are eyeing the statements of national candidates with a new hyper-criticism, for the decisions that these aspirants make within the next term of office could easily affect a multitude of college careers presently in progress.

"If they're old enough to fight, they're old enough to vote" has long been a cry in this country, and had a war scare occurred a month or so sooner, this could easily have become a national presidential issue. It is perhaps fortunate for the candidates that such was not the case.

Whatever the events of the next few weeks, college students the world over are realizing that they are not so far removed from the mundane world of politics as they might have supposed, and it is not ill advised to expect that these coming events appreciably alter the undergraduate attitude toward politics and policies in the election years to come. Perhaps the national worriers about the attitudes of college students have found their panacea for political apathy, but it is indeed unfortunate that it is the fear of an increased draft that has done the job.

From Our Readers

Dissatisfied

To the Editor.

In recent weeks articles in the Daily Campus have been degrading in respect to various departments of the University, attitudes of the students, and issues of importance to the University as a whole. We suggest that more articles emphasizing the better features of the University for the students' benefit and the students' feelings toward these things be published because public opinion is largely formulated by what is read in the Daily Campus which is distributed to many students' homes. Also newspapers writing articles about various aspects of the University frequently obtain their information from the articles which appear in the Daily Campus. We believe that articles giving the University's good points would greatly improve the present relationship of the University to the students, the community, and the state population. Good will cannot possibly be promoted among the above groups by usually presenting unfavorable viewpoints and omitting the favorable ones.

There is no doubt that this state university is one of the best in the country and we are continually improving. Like any large organized institution Uconn has its growing pains, but one cannot afford to overlook its excellent qualities. Rather than being ashamed, more students should be proud to say that they go to Uconn. We definitely have something to be proud of and we would like the Daily Campus to emphasize this more frequently.

Sincerely yours,
Rita M. Burich
John A. Bond

(Ed's note: Perhaps Miss Burich and Mr. Bond should read the paper more carefully. We have been saying all year that students here have plenty to be proud of. And as far as emphasizing the good side of the University, did you Miss Burich or you Mr. Bond take the time to read the special 75th Anniversary edition or the special Homecoming Weekend edition, or for that matter the many other editions in which we praised various departments and areas of our university?)

To the Editor:

Anything but apathy was shown by Uconn students when the Bloodmobile was on campus last spring. I had made an appointment to give blood, but when I arrived I was told that they already had more donors than they could take care of. I had a choice of either waiting an hour or coming back this fall. I waited; and so did several other students, who were not motivated by the childish desire to win "another gold-plated trophy." There was no war to arouse national spirit to a "fever pitch," yet walk-in donors and many who had made appointments were turned away because facilities were not adequate to handle the huge turn-out.

Sincerely,
Lois Long, 5-B

University Scholars' Program Selects Foremost Students

The highest honor that the University can bestow upon a student is that of being chosen a University Scholar. Selected on a basis of cumulative quality point ratio, the scholars are members of the junior and senior classes having the highest scholastic standing. This program is part of a general program which the faculty of the University has organized to encourage better students to higher scholarship. The scholars will be announced during the next few months.

Not more than four students may be selected at the end of their sophomore year and there may never be more than six students from any class at one time. The maximum number of University Scholars is ten. Usually there are six seniors and four juniors but there may also be less than the maximum. Students not quite eligible in their junior year may become Scholars in their senior years.

University Scholar requirements

To be eligible for University Scholar, one must have completed 54 credits at the University of Connecticut and must have completed the freshman-sophomore requirements. This applies to transfer students as well as to students who have been on the campus since their freshman years. Once a student has been chosen a University Scholar, he remains one until graduation.

The students chosen to be University Scholars are notified sometime during the summer so that they may make the desired alterations in their schedules, which they are allowed. The selection remains closed to the public until the official announcement is made in the fall. At that time, a reception is held for the new Scholars and their parents, and the Scholars receive certificates.

The student is relieved of all scholastic requirements. The privileges granted to the Scholar are; there is no limit to the number of credits that he is allowed to hold. Certain fees and charges may be removed. There is no maximum to the amount of credit to be taken in special topics. He has permission to take 300's courses. He may use the University library stacks and the faculty grill. He receives priority in registration for regularly offered courses and he has preference of dormitory rooms available. He may add or drop courses at any time throughout the year.

Students Work With Faculty

All ordinary degree requirements are removed for the Scholar. If he wishes, he may work under a committee which consists of three faculty members appointed by the Committee on Scholastic Standards. The faculty members aid the student with his course plan, and they have some relationship to the student's major or his common interests.

What engineers are doing at Ford Instrument Company

GUIDED MISSILES:

Typical of FICo is its work on the guidance system for the Redstone Missile and with the Army Ballistic Missile Agency on research, development and design of more advanced systems. Ford is also working with the Air Force and Navy in the missile guidance field.

ELECTRONICS AND RADAR:

Ford Instrument engineers are doing advanced work in electronics for data handling computers. Radar design, transistor work, airborne equipment, and both digital and analog computer development are the backbone of the company's research. The techniques FICo has developed in this work have application in the design of commercial and industrial automatic controls.

CLOSED CYCLE GAS-COOLED REACTOR:

This peacetime application of nuclear power is being studied at FICo. Operation of this type of reactor is based on the use of nitrogen or helium under pressure as the working fluid for direct transfer of energy from reactor to turbine. The feasibility of building by 1961 a power plant using this type of reactor to propel an oil tanker is now being worked on in FICo laboratories.

AIRCRAFT INSTRUMENTATION:

Ground position indicators, course and distance computers and other navigation equipment developed at Ford

Instrument Company are being installed in the most modern aircraft. Instruments for jet engines, for polar navigation, and aerial telemetry are emerging from the laboratories and into the shops of the FICo plants.

For over forty years, Ford Instrument has been designing the computers and controls that aim our naval guns and torpedoes, direct our rockets and warplanes and more recently, control nuclear reactors. Not widely publicized for security reasons, but highly regarded by the experts in the field, the achievements of the 2500 people at Ford Instrument Company have been advancing control engineering and computer development in many fields. Very soon, FICo will interview applicants on this campus to fill engineering positions for some of the most rewarding and interesting projects in America. Watch for further announcements.

Huskies Meet Wildcats Tomorrow In Crucial Conference Game

Undefeated Uconn Harriers Host Yankcon Meet Here Tomorrow

Uconn, Bears Are Favorites

By MARK HAWTHORNE

Storrs will be the scene of the Yankee Conference cross country championship race at 2 p.m. tomorrow, and the University of Connecticut's strongest harrier squad in history will be gunning for the Yankcon title.

A Uconn victory would give Connecticut its first Yankcon cross country championship in the nine years the meet has been held. Chief opposition for the undefeated Huskies will be the University of Maine's unbeaten team, which has won the crown for the past two years.

Six Schools To Compete

Other schools competing tomorrow on the Storrs course will be the Universities of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont. So far this season the undefeated, untied Huskies have whipped Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Yale, Brown, BU, Springfield College and the Coast Guard Academy. Maine includes among its victims New Hampshire and Springfield College thus far.

A clear favorite for individual honors is Uconn's Lew Stieglitz, who was second behind Maine's Paul Firlotte in 1955. Firlotte graduated last June, so the nearest competition for Stieglitz will probably be Daniel Rearick of Maine, who finished third, 45 seconds behind the "Comet" in last year's race.

Personal Victory String

Stieglitz has won twelve consecutive dual and triangular meets over the past two seasons, and has set course records on four of the five courses he has run this fall.

Backing up team captain Stieglitz for the Huskies will be Allen Frazier, 24th in the Yankcon meet in '55; Herb Congdon; Charles Dyson; Richard Keeler; 33rd in '55; Clifford Stolba; George Parsons and Robert Niederman. Coach Lloyd Duff has noticed a "tremendous improvement by everyone on the team since last year, particularly by Frazier and Congdon."

Maine Stars

Maine's hopes rest in Rearick; Richard Law, 7th last year; Philip Emery, 16th; Karl Kraske; Dale Bessey and Carl McDonald.

Outstanding runners for Rhode Island are Thomas McIntosh and Harry Hampson, while New Hampshire will feature John Rasmussen and Paul Narkiewicz. Massachusetts' best runners are Thomas Flynn and Lee Chisholm. Robert Kushar and Larry Seymour head the University of Vermont slate of entries.

In the eight previous championship meets Rhode Island has won two (1948-49), Massachusetts three (1951-53), and Maine two (1954-55) with a tie in 1950. Vermont tied for first in 1950, but Connecticut has never managed to win the title, taking third last year behind runner-up Umass, and second the year before.

The race will begin at 2 p.m. on the Hawley Armory field and the runners will pass through there several times before finishing there.

UC Soccer Team In HUB Tomorrow

By MILTON NORTHROP, Heeler

The Uconn soccer team will travel to Boston tomorrow to meet Boston University in an attempt to avenge last season's setback at the hands of the Terriers.

The two teams have played just one common opponent to date, M.I.T. The Huskies defeated the Engineers 2-1, while the Bostonians dropped their clash to Tech, 7-1. By comparative scores the Uconn appear to be a slight favorite to pick up their third win of the season as against five losses.

High-Scoring Star

B. U. has lost five starters from last season's squad which turned in a (5-3-1) performance. The high scorer from that team Jurgen Meyer-Curo, is back, however, and he will be the man for the Huskies to watch. Meyer-Curo, a native of Germany, has scored five goals in four games this season which is just half of the Terrier's total. Another foreign student, Brian Taylor, from Argentina, will be in the goal for Boston.

One player who will be counted on to help the Uconn to victory is Walt Marsh. Marsh, playing either at outside left or at an inside position, has scored 3 goals in the last two games to take the team scoring lead from the injured Billy Wiberg. The halfback trio of juniors Ray Farrar, Dick Kalinowski and Mike Gorman can also be depended upon for a strong showing.

Morhardt In Goal

In addition to these performers the blue and white lineup will also include Moe Morhardt in the goal with rugged Mark Shipman and Lou Roushon at the fullback slots. The Husky forward line will probably include Pete McDevitt, Pete Reckert, Doug Allen and John Oswald in addition to Marsh.

After facing the Terriers, whose record is now (1-1-2), the Huskies will have only two games remaining to be played. Springfield will be met next Wednesday in a road tilt and the Coast Guard Academy will provide the opposition in the finale on Dad's Day here at Storrs.

Frosh Gridsters Face Wildcats Here Today

By RUSS RAPHAELY, Heeler

Riding high after their 31-14 shellacking of the undefeated Rhode Island freshman squad last week, the Uconn pups will face the New Hampshire frosh here at 2 p.m. today. If the weather is good the game will be held in Memorial Stadium.

In their opening game last Friday, the Pups tripled the number of points in the first quarter that had been scored against the Ram frosh all season. Previously only six points had been scored by their opponents.

In last year's contest the Husky yearlings rolled up a 55-20 count. The local freshman made many long runs and looked good throughout the game.

Repeat Sought

A strong attempt will be made to repeat last year's performance this afternoon as the New Hampshire frosh have not won a game this season. In their two outings they have been beaten by Phillips Exeter Academy 34-6, and also by Rhode Island 12-0. Coach Nick Rodis will use the same lineup as he did in last Friday's game.

Commenting on last week's game, Rodis was well satisfied with his team's first appearance. The middle of the forward wall, especially Dennis Moynihan, Bob Slattery, and Bill Gillis, did a fine job. Praise was also given to end Barry O'Connell for his outstanding job on defense. The backs ran well, especially quarterbacks Bob Triskha and Gerry D'Avolio. The only thing which he was not altogether happy with was the downfield blocking. This has been stressed in practice during the past week.

New Coach

The New Hampshire Wildkittens have a new head coach this year, Bill Haubrick. They also have a new backfield coach, Frank Capone.

Pup Booters Top Academy

The University of Connecticut frosh football team warmed up for its important game against Springfield on November 10 by walloping Cheshire Academy 4-0 last Wednesday afternoon. By winning their third straight game and registering their second shut-out, the Pups are sure of at least an even season, and possibly a winning one.

In this encounter, the junior Huskies did not waste any time to go ahead. Five minutes after the opening whistle, Norman Edmonds, outside right, scored from 25 feet out to give his team a 1-0 lead. Cheshire Academy stiffened and the two teams left the field with the Uconn squad ahead by a goal.

Scott Stars

In the third stanza, Bill Scott was the whole show for the Huskies. The center halfback scored the first of his three goals. Dave Patterson set him up with a well-placed corner kick and Scott booted it home when the Cheshire goalie was unable to defend against it. Two minutes before the end of the third period, Scott scored again on a pass play from Edmonds to Patterson and then back to Scott who tallied his second goal. The Academy, trailing by three goals, rallied, but failed to score as Purdon, the Pups' net-tender and Mauricio Trujillio led the defense.

Edmonds Assists

In the last period, the Uconn squad missed many opportunities to add to their score and with only 45 seconds left in the game, Edmonds passed to Scott who scored his third goal of the game to close the score for the afternoon.

Gridders Seek Fifth Straight

By BOB SOKEL

"Another big one," were the words Connecticut coach Bob Ingalls used to describe tomorrow's football game between the Huskies and the University of New Hampshire. Yankee Conference publicist Bill Stearns announced in a recent press release that this week is a very big week at New Hampshire. Big in the fact that it is "Beat Connecticut Week."

The Wildcats are still very much in contention for a share of the Yankcon crown but must beat Connecticut in order for its hopes to remain alive. Coach Ingalls said that the Uconn scouting report indicated that the Wildcats have been steadily improving and may very well be at their peak for tomorrow's game. A "Beat Connecticut" chant has been echoing throughout the Durham campus all week.

New Hampshire is fresh from a 20-13 win over Brandeis which has the distinction of being the only blemish on Springfield's otherwise all-winning record. Brandeis tied the Gymnasts 20-20 two weeks ago but were no match for the improved Wildcats of Chief Boston last week.

Boston Winning Coach

The Wildcat mentor is now in his eighth year as head coach at New Hampshire and has posted an impressive 35-17-3 record during that time. The lifetime series between the two schools dates back to 1906 with the Huskies on the short end of an 8-16-3 mark. It is interesting to note that in 14 of the 27 games played, Connecticut was held scoreless.

The playing status of halfback Gene Green becomes more doubtful each day. His sprained ankle has not responded to treatments as expected and may keep him out of the entire game. Otherwise, the Huskies are in good physical shape.

Change Formation

New Hampshire has recently shifted from a power "T" formation to the split "T." This new formation allows for an improved passing game where as the old attack made for more concentration on running. Workhorse of the Durham eleven is sophomore fullback Ray Donnelly who has averaged over four yards per carry so far this season.

Coach Bob Ingall's main concern at the present time is more the mental attitude of his team than the physical condition. Aware of possible over-confidence, Ingalls remarked on the outcome, "The results of the game depend on how badly the boys want to win."

Yugoslavian Ensemble To Present Chamber Music Program Sunday

The Solisti di Zagreb, a Yugoslavian ensemble of 14 artists, will present a recital of chamber music in the Auditorium Sunday at 3 p.m.

The program is an event in the university chamber music series which will present a number of theater, dance and choral groups at the university during the year in celebration of the 75th Anniversary. The event will be open to the public without charge.

Radio Zagreb in Yugoslavia's capital city organized this small ensemble early in 1954, and the group is now in its initial American tour following acclamation received throughout all of Europe.

The musicians were hand-picked from among the best players in Zagreb, political and cultural center of Croatia, one of the six Yugoslavian republics. Antonic Janigro, considered the country's most distinguished cellist, is its director and conductor.

Solisti di Zagreb consists of four first and three second violins, three violas, two cellos and one bass viol. The repertory of the group includes early music and masterpieces ranging from the early baroque to the chamber works of such modern masters as Paul Hindemith. The American tour will take the Yugoslav ensemble to 40 cities.

Where's the right career for the young engineer?

Take a long look at the big projects awarded Convair — proof of engineering challenge, opportunity and security.

Convair, has the greatest diversity of aircraft and missile projects in the country — to offer you the unlimited career opportunity you seek.

Current long-range projects at Convair, San Diego, include high-performance fighters, new commercial jet airliners, the Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile, a completely integrated electronic development program — plus a study of nuclear aircraft.

The Convair engineering department is a real "engineer's" engineering department — imaginative, energetic, explorative. You will discover top-notch engineering facilities, excellent working atmosphere, salary, personal job advantages, opportunities for continuing education.
