A horse attached to a delivery wagon belonging to Charles C. Betts, was hitched in front of the L. B. & Co. mill at Winnipauk about 11 o'clock this morning, when something fright-ened him and he broke the hitch-line and started for home. Later he came tearing down Main street, around the corner by the Boston store, and up Mill Hill to Mr. Betts' residence. No damage was done either to the horse or wagon. The marriage of Mr. Harry C. Woodworth, connected with the Bridgeport National bank, and son of B. L. Woodworth, cashier of the First National bank, Westport, and Miss M. A petition to the Railroad Company asking that the 9 a. m. express from New York stop at South Norwalk, is receiving the signature of nearly every business man in Norwalk and South Norwalk. There are quite a number of men who do business here and live in New York who would be greatly accommodated by the change, and it would also suit those who want to start for Boston and other points east after 9 and before noon. The petition will probably be granted.

Mrs. Jessie Couthoui-Shandrew must have had some very pleasant experi-ences in her travels. She is so popular as a reader that she rarely comes into a town, whether she has been there be-fore or not, that some admirer who has heard her does not beg for some special favorite from her repertory. We have heard two or three persons in Norwalk speak of first one selection then another they would so like to hear repeated. ### Another Accident.

Seven or eight freight cars went off the main line of the Central New England & Western road at Copake, N. Y., at 11:30, yesterday morning. The cars went down an embankment, but no one was injured, nor were the cars very badly damaged. The track was ripped up somewhat. The accident is attributed to the negligence of a switchman.

The Advertiser is out $500. Patrick White, an elevator boy employed at 363 Pearl street, Yew York, was instantly killed yesterday after-noon, by falling through the hatchway sixty feet to the floor below.

He had one of the coupons of the

A Test Case Missed.

Edgar B. Vinton, of Bridgeport, recently brought suit against D. C. Wood, of Stratford, to recover damages for injury to his bicycle, which one of Wood's teams upset and drove over. The bicycle had been left standing in the cutter resting against the ing in the gutter resting against the curb. Mr. Vinton was backed by the curb. Mr. Vinton was backed by the L. A. W., and the case was put in the hands of Major Burdett. It was hoped to carry it to the Supreme Court and make a test case on the rights of bi-cycles in the street. Mr. Wood, however, has settled the case by paying the claim with costs.

His Heart on the Wrong Side.

George Robinson, a little colored boy aged two years, who is at the Gil-bert Home, having been sent there temporarily from Watertown, is appar-ently an anatomical freak. The little fellow is deformed to begin with, the joints of his limbs being out of shape, but the most peculiar thing about him is that his heart appears to be situated on the right side of his body. There the beats can be distinctly felt, while on the left side there is nothing to indicate the presence of that important organ. Dr. Pratt, who has seen the boy several times, says that he has never seen but one similar case before. -Winsted Herald.

Senator Platt Explains.

A special despatch to the World from Meriden yesterday, has the following of interest to Connecticut readers: United States Senator O. H. Platt, accompanied by Mrs. Platt, left this city to-day for their winter residence in Washington.

The Senator's attention having been called to the epigram, "It is better to be safe than to be sorry," the origin of which is credited to Mr. Depew, he

"That saying has been variously credited to Dr. Depew, Judge Holman and other eminent public men, but it was, I believe, first used in a public speech by myself in the Senate in 1880 or 1881, and instead of being new now it was old then. The epigram did not originate with myself, and in my speech I told where I found it. I was riding along with an old acquaintance years ago, when, as we reached the foot of a hill and before beginning its ascent my friend got out of the wagon and began to examine the harness. I could not see that anything was out of order and inquired if the harness was not all right. 'Yes,' was his reply, 'but it is better to be safe than to be sorry.'" May Russell.

The rain, which came down in tor-The rain, which came down in torrents last night when the time for going to the theatre came, prevented many from attending the May Russell performance. Those who braved the storm were well repaid, for the entertainment was exceptionally good. Fish and Richmond in acrobatic comedy and Edward Estus the equilibrist were consciolly fine. The entertainment was especially fine. The entertainment was one of the best of the season and manager Adams deserves credit for his selection.

The Knights of Columbus. The quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the Knights of Columbus was held in New Haven, Thursday, in the office of Daniel Colwell, the general secretary. Grand Knight J. J. Phelan, of Bridgeport, presided. The quarterly report of the finances showed the extent of the benefit business during the past three months to be $20,000 in a membership of 6,000. The arrangements for the Columbian celebration were discussed. It will probably take place on either October 11 or 12, 1892, with a parade of 8,000 men.

A Strange Story.

Luman E. Benson, a corset ironer employed at Warner Brothers' factory, Bridgeport, disappeared from his home on November 23, and no trace of him could be found.

Mrs. Benson has just received a let ter from him written in Jacksonville, Fla., asking for money with which to pay his fare home. How he reached Jacksonville he says he does not know. He is about twenty-six years old, and lived with his wife and child at No. 2 Summer street. He had been playing the races, and his friends suspect that his mind is affected. Money has been sent to him.

Dom Pedro Dead.

Dom Pedro, ex-emperor of Brazil, died at Paris yesterday afternoon of diabetes. He had been ill for some time. His daughter, Isabella, is dangerously ill and her recovery is doubtful.

Dom Pedro came from a family that had ruled Brazil for years. When that country became a republic he was ban-ished and since has been living quietly in Europe. He loved his country and was held in great esteem by his subjects. He made an excellent ruler and it has only lately been hinted that he would be called back.

The Milton Aborn Comic Opera Company will appear at the Opera House for two nights, commencing Monday, December 7th, in Richard Stahl's latest nccess, Said Pasha, which has had a long run in the West. The music is long run in the west. The music is bright and catchy; the choruses are all effectively written, with good harmony and strong climaxes, and the cast very strong. ## The Chief Justice Smiled.

At the hearing of the Burr Osborne will case in Bridgeport yesterday an episode occurred. The Bridgeport Farmer says: "Lynde Harrison, the noted politician and lawyer and general 'adjuster' of things came into the court room while Mr. Fessenden was cross-examining a witness. Mr. Harrison walked up to the state attorney and whispered in the latter's ear. Mr. Fessenden turned to Judge Andrews and asked if a five minutes' recess might not be taken."

"Have you finished with the witness?" the chief justice asked.

"No, your honor."
"Then I guess we had better proceed with the case," said the chief justice dryly. Mr. Fessenden's embarrass-ment was evident. He wanted to continue examining the witness and he wanted to talk with Mr. Harrison. For several moments he divided his time between asking questions of the witness and whispering to Mr. Harrison. Even the chief justice smiled at the adroit manner in which he did two

Judge Birdsall Dead.

Daniel C. Birdsall, formerly of West-port, and well known in Norwalk, died at Hartford yesterday of Bright's dis-ease. He was about fifty-five years old and quite prominent in democratic politics in this state and New York. Some years ago he was the editor of the Hartford Telegram.

Twenty Lives Lost.

Twelve brick barges coming down the Hudson River were struck by a violent wind storm off Croton Point at nine o'clock last night and were capsized. Twenty lives are reported to have been lost in the wreck. The bodies of ten had been recovered at midnight.

Have a Hotel Project in View.

W. R. Schneider, who represents the Norwalk, Florida, will to-morrow sail with his wife for Florida on the steamer "Kansas City" of the Ocean steamship line. Mr. Schneider is one of a number of propingnt Bridgeout good number of prominent Bridgeport gen-tlemen who have been considering the project of opening a mammoth tourists' hotel at Norwalk. The scheme was started by the late W. F. Swords, whose extensive property holdings in Florida were mostly in and about Norwalk.— Bridgeport Farmer.

Cattle Perish.

Charles French's barn on Holland Heights in Fairfield, was destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock last night.

In the fire were consumed 16 head of valuable live stock, embracing a half dozen horses. About 50 tons of hay and 40 of rye, were also burned. Some at No. 37 Chestnut-s and 40 of rye, were also burned. Some farming implements were also destroyed. The exact amount of the loss and 7,30 p. m. could not be ascertained, but it will reach well up in the thousands. There is some insurance.

The origin of the fire is supposed to be incendiary. Mr. French is at a loss to understand who could have been mean enough to fire his barn.

Quo Warranto.

The supreme court judges will meet at New Haven to-day on the Morris-Bulkeley quo warranto case, to consider the evidence which they took at Hart-ford last week. Judge Morris in an in-terview says that he thinks the supreme court will find that they have jurisdiction in the matter, and that the matter will be speedily settled, probably before Samuel Merwin says the people are anxious to have the matter settled. He thinks that should the court not pass upon the question to-day, and should they allow it to go over to the legisla-ture, that body will again adjourn.

They Were Mad.

From twenty to twenty-five swearingmad pedestrians were seen wending their weary way to South Norwalk last night at the close of the May Russell entertainment. They had been informed early in the season that the horse railway would run a car to South Norwalk after every performance in the Opera House, consequently they braved the storm last evening and came up town. When the entertainment closed and a driver on the road went after a entertainments and allowing them to walk home is wrong, and Mr. Hyatt no doubt will see that it does not occur again.

The Railroad Disaster.

The frequency of collisions and wrecks on the New York and New England road are alarming. Hardly a day passes but that the telegraph ticks us a report of a wreck on this road. Either the method of running trains adopted is wrong or else the system of train despatching is defective. The wreck at East Thompson yesterday, says the New York Herald, is well calculated to arouse popular indignation, resulting as it did from the most inexcusable negligence. It comprised three separate and distinct disasters. First there was a col-lision between two freight trains, then a passenger train crashed into them, and finally a second passenger train plunged into the whole wreck.

The obvious question arises, Why was neither of these passenger trains signalled? One of the road officials seeks to shift the responsibility by say ing there was a fog. But this only showed the necessity of greater vigilance not only in the running of the trains but also in the matter of signaling. Had due diligence been exercised the wrecking of the passenger trains at least would have been prevented. When human life is sacrificed through lack of diligence the public authorities have a duty to perform which cannot be shirked with safety to the community.

Killed in a Collision.

PENNINGTON, N. J., Dec. 5.—Frederick McLaren and Thomas Fitzpatrick, of Philadelphia, and Michael Maloney, of Trenton, were killed in a collision between the Baltimore and Ohio fast express and a gravel train. The engineer of the express train, Frederick Rodriguez, was badly crushed and scalded, and was taken from the wreck in a dying condition. The names of the injured are Isaac Marquis, of Philadelphia, three ribs broken, several slight fractures

James Isaacs, of Philadelphia, badly injured about the head; Charles Wilson, of Germantown, artery severed by broken glass; Charles C. Druiding, of Philadelphia, shoulder fractured and badly cut about face and neck.

Want Adams Reinstated.

Boston, Dec. 5.-All the leading newspapers and publishing houses here have signed a petition for the reinstatement of Mr. John Quincy Adams in his position in the second class postage department of the Boston postoffice.

Roberts and James Maslin, who are adepts at handling freight. Station agent Raymond has supplied their places during their enforced absence.

Fred. Quittman is an inventor with several useful articles to the credit of his inventive brain. But they are not what we wish to speak of in this paragraph. The other day he received advices from Germany that his nephew had sailed from the place where West-phalia cheese is supposed to be made. He in company with another nephew went to New York to welcome the 'imwent to New York to welcome the "Imported" inephew, and learned that the steamer would stop at Hoboken. And so it did, but only to land cabin passengers. Fred. was there on the steamer's arrival, but the nephew for reasons best known to himself, had chosen a steerage ticket, which would not permit of his gaing askers until the vessel. mit of his going ashore until the vessel arrived in New York. And just here was where Fred's inventive brain became useful. In some way he smuggled the South Norwalk nephew aboard the steamer and the Westphalian nephew ashore, and then the South Norwalk nephew demanded that he be allowed to go ashore, which demand was acceded to. The trio then started for South Norwalk, the nephews' firm in the belief that their Uncle Fred. was one of the smartest men in the "Yankee kingdom." Mr. Quittman was some-what nervous for a few days though, when he was told that a New York detective was here for the purpose of ar-resting him for his bit of inventive deception.

Cyrus Field's Condition.

New York, Dec. 5.—Cyrus W. Field's condition is unchanged. The story that Cyrus W. Field had disinherited his son, Edward M. Field, by a codicil to his will, is denied by an intimate friend of the family. Assignee Gould said that there was abso lutely nothing new in the matter of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co. In regard to S. V. White's affairs, Mr. Gould said that everything was in a promising condition and that he would soon apply for a discharge as as-signee, and as soon as that occurred Mr.

Evidence Concerning the Treatment of Policy Holders of the Connecticut Indemnity Association.

tion, Waterbury, Conn.
GENTLEMEN:—Your agent, G. A.
Franke, having just handed me a New York draftfor $368.57, I wish to publicly thank you for your promptness and square dealing. I am satisfied from my experience with you that since I was insured for five thousand dollars, with weekly accident benefits of twenty dollars in 1889, that your company al-ways will act for the best interests of its policy holders.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 6th, 1890. Gentlemen:—Letme thank you most corncob this morning. It outranks the kidney bean.

The most marked improvement in this city is the placing in good form of the walks on South Main, Concord and Chestnut streets.

Chief Vollmer will attend church in Newark, N. J., to-morrow, with his family who have been visiting in that city for some time.

GENTLEMEN:—Let me thank you most sincerely for your promptness in paying me my claim of $1,000 on the policy issued to my late husband, Isaac Watts. I shall always bless the day that he insured his life in your company. You have done me a great favor by paying the claim before it was due. My husband had only paid in $97.76, and I have received such great benefit.

Yours very gratefully,

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 24, 1891. The Connecticut Indemnity Association: Let me thank you for your prompt and courteous treatment. Mr. W. A. Armstrong formerly of Norwich, Conn., was insured in your company more than six years ago, and the entire cost to him, at the age of 58, to carry $1,000 insurance, providing $5 per week in case of disability, was only $101.75, or $16.40 per year. Deducting the benefits paid him during his life, the net cost of his $1,000 insurance was only $11.75. This money will prove a great $11.75. This money will prove a great help to me. Had he invested the same money in the savings bank, he would have realized nothing during his disability, and would have left me only $113.16, instead of the $1,000 at death. Old line companies would have paid but $303 insurance for the money paid to your company by my husband.

(Signed) ELIZABETH ARMSTRONG. DANBURY, CONN., June 16, 1891. I thank you most sincerely for your very prompt payment of the insurance money due under policy 921, on mylate husband, J. Beardsley. He had been insured in your company since 1884, and had always found you generous and reliable in your dealings with him as a policy-holder. My thanks are especially due your company because pecially due your company, because, although Mr. Beardsley, while temporarily deranged, committed suicide, still you in no respect questioned the validity of my claim. The payment was not due me by the terms of the policy till August 27th. You have paid me seventy days in advance.

DEAR SIR: I hardly know how to express my thanks to your company for the great kindness shown me. My hus-band, Eddie McGuo, insured in your band, Eddie McGuo, insured in your company, April 24, 1891, for $1,000, paying $13.33. He died of typhoid-pneumonia, July 19, and to-day, July 22; your general agent, Mr. Hastings, handed me your check for the full amount of my claim. He made out all papers for me, and kindly brought me your check. your check, thereby saving me much trouble and annoyance. I feel that this promptness and attention on your part should not be overlooked by me; therefore I shall be glad to do anything in my power to let my friends and others know how you do business. I think the benefit of your insurance, as shown in my case, should lead many others to insure with you. Yours was the only company in which my husband was insured. Thanking you with all my heart for what you have done for my heart for what you have done for me. I remain Yours very respectfully, BRIDGET McGuo. LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., July 28, '91.

E. A. WRIGHT, SECRETARY: Allow us to express our satisfaction with the methods of your company in paying death claims. We were appointed executors of the estate of the late Samuel M. Arlington, of this city, formerly of Norwalk, who had been insured with Norwalk, who had been insured with you more than five years, having a pol-icy for $1,000, and we wish to thank you for your prompt payment in full. We acknowledge receipt of your check two months before the claim was actually due. Yours very truly,

ALBERT D. COLEMAN,

sad havor with the large cross on the steeple of St. Mary's Church, and this morning early pedestrians on looking up at the clock, discovered the cross bent over upon its body. Looking with the naked eye the cross appears to be broken off at the base, and suspended by the lightning rod, but by the use of strong glasses it was discovered that the cross is simply bent, and as far as the cross is simply bent, and as far as can be seen not even a crack is noticeable. The force of the wind must have been terrific in the upper regions last evening as the cross is of solid copper, and weighs over 1,000 pounds. It was placed in position only a year ago, by the prince of aerial performers, "Steeple Charley," at considerable expense, and it was supposed would easily withstand any sort of action of the elements for ages to come. "Steeple Charley" is now at Hartford, repairing the clock on the High School, and he will be sent the High School, and he will be sent for as soon as possible to repair the

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1891. FOUR TRAINS IN A SMASHUP.

A Frightful Wreck on the New York and

New England Road.
WOONSOCKET, R. I., Dec. 5.—What is probably the worst wreck the New York and New England railroad ever experienced occurred at East Thompson, Conn. Four trains, two passenger and two freights, piled up near the overhead highway bridge about an eighth of a mile east of the station. It appears that the accident might be divided into three divisions. First, a west bound "Southbridge special" freight, which bad been made up at East Thompson, rashed into a special local freight on the main line, bound east, piling up the cars in great confusion. Soon after the Norwich boat express passenger train, bound east, while at full speed dashed, into the wreck, adding to the already bad smashup. Then the eastward Long Island express came along and maintains the wreck riled the along and mounting the wreck piled the cars into a confused mass. The wreck took fire and a car of the boat train was entirely onsumed, one victim being cremated.

The killed are Harry Tabor, engineer of the Long Island express; his fireman, Jerry Fitzgerald, and an unknown man who was

The injured are Engineer Wild and Fireman Bayers, of the special freight, both are seriously injured; a man named Chandler, of Chestnut Hill, Boston; Express Messenger Marshall, of the boat express, shoulder injured, and Baggage Master Chase of the same train.

The four engines are a total wreck, some of the coaches and freight cars are burned to ashes, together with their contents. The cause of the first collision is declared to e been a bad frog, which allowed one of the freights to jump the track.

READY TO MEET DEATH

Murderer Loppy Willing and Anxious to Sit in the Fatal Chair.

BUT HE IS AFRAID TO SLEEP

Warden Brown Says the Electrical Machinery Is in Perfect Condition for the Execution and He Is I amatient to Have the Job Off His Hands.

SING SING, N. Y., Dec. 5. Martin D. Loppy, condemned to die in the electric chair as soon after midnight Sunday as Warden Brown chooses, eats sparingly. There is neither day nor night for Loppy now. The glints of sunlight which find their way into the death house give him no pleasure, and the lighting of the gas when darkness comes no longer marks the approach of the hours of slumber.

He sleeps when the feeling overcomes him, and there have been spells of two or three days at a time since he came to Sing Sing that he has not removed his clothing when he lay down. He seems afraid to sleep, perhaps because visions of his murdered wife haunt his sleep, forcing him after a few short hours of dreaming, to again take up the restless pacing of his cell.

Loppy keeps as accurate trace of the flight of days, however, as though he had a calendar, and fully realizes that this is the last week the law allows him to live. Loppy does not smoke, but after sending away the remnants of his meals he takes a generous chew of tobacco and resumes the reading of his Bible, which he almost constantly pe ruses.

Ready to Meet Death.

The heartless badinage of the cold blooded McIlvaine can stir the mild mannered Trezza to protests, but it falls unheeded upon the ears of Loppy, who is apparently preparing to meet his end with fortitude. To Chaplain Edgerton, the prison clergyman, who is giving the condemned man spiritual consolation, Loppy said he hoped no efforts would be made to obtain a reprieve for him. He is ready to meet death, and he would rather accept his fate now than to be grant-ed a respite with the dread of the awful chair always before him.

The last test of the machinery of death has been made, and Warden Brown says it is in perfect working order. He will not try it on another animal unless the scientists request such an experiment. The inclosed walk leading from the warden's private apartments to the chamber of death, by which it is expected to prevent the prying eyes of reporters learning when the witnesses proceed to the electrocution, was finished this morning. Nothing now remains but to await the arrival of the witnesses. Warden Brown says he desires to get the grewsome job off his hands as early after the legal hour arrives as possible. This is taken as an indication that he means to electrocute Loppy early Monday morning.

Loppy Has No Friends.

The dead line will be established Sunday evening, after which time no one but those invited by the warden to witness the electrocution will be permitted to pass the armed guards who will patrol the prison boundaries. If the electrocution occurs by daylight the raising of a flag on the slender staff which stands out from the cupola on the warden's house will signify that the sentence of the law has been executed. If the warden chooses the hours of darkness for the killing, a signal light will be run up on the halyards. Loppy will not be informed of the day he is to die, and until he is summoned to walk to death he will remain in ignorance of the time, but by the increasing attention of his spiritual advisers he will be able to judge that the end is near.

He knows that he may die at any hour after midnight Sunday, and of course will be momentarily expecting the summons. Loppy, having no friends, will be buried in a coffin filled with quicklime alongside of the giro on the bluff overlooking the prison.

A Last Appeal for His Life. NEW YORK, Dec. 5.-Lawver William F Howe has sent a letter to Governor Hill begging of him to grant Martin D. Loppy the condemned murderer, a further respite for a week in order that he (Howe) might ascertain whether there was still an oppor### tunity to seek the interposition of any court in his behalf. A Boston Man Missing.

Boston, Dec. 5.-Fred Kruesler, aged twenty-four, superintendent of one of the departments of McCormick's brewery, Roxbury, disappeared last Monday, since when his Boston friends have had no knowledge of his whereabouts. No reason for his absence is known and it is concluded that he may have become demented. The police are endeavoring to find the missing man.

This reasoning applies with particular force to furs. How many ladies would claim to be judges of sealskin, for instance? Very few. Then is it not of some value to a purchaser that she buy her furs at an establishment whose name alone is a sufficient guarantee of quality. It seems plain. EVERTHING IN FURS.

A Crank Demanded $1,200,000 or the Financier's Life.

THEN CAME AN EXPLOSION.

Russell Sage Was Badly Injured and the Dynamiter Killed.

Four Other Persons Were Also Killed, Some of Whom Were Blown to Atoms and a Number Injured, Among Whom Was General H. W. Slocum, Sage's Brother-in-Law-Mr. Sage's Injuries, It Is Said, May Prove Serious-The Tragic and Brazen Affair Took Place in Mr. Sage's Office, and the Interior of the Building Was Completely Wrecked.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Shortly after noon Friday a man entered the office of Russell Sage, the great railroad man and financier, at 71 Broadway, demanded $1,200,000, and un being refused exploded a bomb of some sort which killed himself and several others, injured Mr.-Sage and a dozen occupants of the building and wrecked the interior of the

A United Press reporter saw Mr. Sage in the drug store into which he was carried after the explosion. Mr. Sage said:

"A man who gave his name as H. D. Wilon came to my office just now—I have hever seen him before. He had a carpetbag in his hand and said:

"A Million or Your Life!" "If you will not give me $1,200,000 I will blow you all to pieces. "I know nothing further except that I heard a great explosion, fell on the floor and regained consciousness here. The dead man lying out on the floor of the drug store there is, I believe, the same man who asked me for the money."

, Many Killed and Injured. There were hundreds of people in the building at the time the explosion occurred. Besides the dynamiter four are said to have been killed and at least a dozen more or les injured. Among the latter are General H. W. Slocum, Russell Sage's brother-in-law and Washington E. Conner, the well known broker, whose offices adjoin those in which the explosion occurred

At the time of the shock Broadway wa thronged by business men and clerks going to and from luncheon, and by brokers hurrying around on business connected with the various exchanges, which are all near by The first intimation that anything unusual had occurred was the rattle and crash of hundreds of panes of breaking glass. The Building Wrecked.

Then came a quick, sharp report, which was heard fully half a mile away, and rattled the windows in buildings for blocks round. This was followed by a great cloud of dust from the windows of the second the offices of the Manhatta Elevated Railroad company, among which was Mr. Sage's private office, are located.

These offices consisted of a suite of several rooms on the north side of the building They are completely wrecked. In Mr. Sage's private office there remained after the explosion hardly an inch of plaster on the walls or a recognizable piece of furni-ture. Practically every window on that floor of the building was blown completely out, and there are few in the whole building which were not partially shattered.

Russell Sage's Injuries. The extent of Mr. Sage's injuries can be only guessed at. As soon as possible after the explosion friends placed him in a car-riage and he was driven rapidly away. When he was taken out of the building, says an eyewitness, his face was bleeding in many places as if it had been cut by fly-ing particles of broken glass, his hands and were blackened by smoke and powder and his clothing was badly torn.

From the excitement under which he was laboring when the reporters saw him it was evident that he had received a very severe nervous shock. He was hardly able to speak so as to be understood. A physician who was in the building at the time of the explosion, who said he knew Mr. Sage well, but who refused to give his name, said:

"The shock to Mr. Sage's nervous system must have been very great. He is more than seventy-five years old, and even granting that his physical injuries are slight, it seems impossible that the consequences can be other than very serious with him."

The Dead and Wounded.

The dead and wounded, besides those mentioned above, are probably all clerks in the Manhattan railroad offices and those of Washington E. Connor. One body, which was wrapped in a netting by the firemen and left lying in one of the wrecked rooms for some time, was mutilated beyond any possibility of recognition. A piece of flesh which was supposed to be the leg of a woman is said to have also been found by the

From six to eight badly wounded men were carried into O'Connell's drug store, nearly opposite the Arcade building, where the explosion occurred. The surgeons in attendance said that only one of these was likely to die.

Several men were in Mr. Sage's office when the awful affair occurred. Among them was Mr. W. R. Laidlow, who was shaking hands with Mr. Sage when the man with the carpetbag entered.

W. R. Laidlow's Experience. "This man," says Mr. Laidlow, "insisted on having an audience with Mr. Sage. I had my back to him, but saw the carpet bag. Almost immediately there was a terrible explosion. I was thrown down, my face cut as you see, and a big splinter of glass driven through my leg."

Mr. T. H. Tilton, of Fifth avenue, was standing opposite the Sage building when the explosion occurred. He was talking to Railroad Commissioner Doane. There was a loud report, a shower of glass fragments and then a body hurled through the air onto the Rector street sidewalk. This was supposed to have been General Slocum, but was afterward found to be that of another

Wilson Had an Accomplice. A story is told to the effect that the man Wilson had an accomplice named Robinson, and that the body blown through the win-

Mr. Alfred Weston, who is associated with Mr. Sage in business, says that at the time the explosion occurred Mr. Sage was standing talking with his hand resting on a man's shoulder. Both appeared to be perfectly calm.

"I could not see the stranger's face," said Mr. Weston, "for he wore a slouch hat, but I supposed that Mr. Sage knew him, for they acted in a very friendly way.

"I turned away for a moment and almost instantly there was a flash and a loud report. Then everything was dark.

"I made my way to the windows and broke one to get light and air, and climbed out. Secretary Williams, of the Manhattan Railway company, and his clerks were putting away their books, and they also climbed out of the windows. I heard no conversa-tion between Mr. Sage and the man who was with him, but they appeared to be friendly." The Force of the Explosion.

General Slocum's injuries are not serious He was struck on the head by some flying object and badly cut; but after being car ried down stairs and his head dressed, he walked back to the scene of the explosion nd busied himself in collecting scattered bonds and securities which belonged to Mr.

Sage. The force of the explosion was so great that the safe in Mr. Sage's office was blown open and its contents thrown about the room in great confusion and through the windows into Rector street below. It is highly probable that many valuable bonds and securities will be found to be lost.

An enormous crowd gathered about the building in an incredibly short time, and many of the flying papers were doubtless gathered in by onlookers or trampled into the mud of the street.

Sage's Comment. Mr. Sage walked out of the building as sisted by Officer Hummel. As he passed the door he said to the officer, "That was a terrible explosion—they meant it this time."

J. B. Thomas, of 136 West One Hundred and First street, who owns the cigar stand in the building was struck by a portion of the falling ceiling, but was only slightly in-

Dr. Matthew Field, whose office is in the building, escaped by the fire escape. He was slightly hurt by a falling timber.

Many others whose offices were in the building made their escape in this manner the only one injured being Dr. Field. Mr. H. W. Vanderpool, who was in the building at the time but escaped injury said that at the first explosion strong smell of powder, and a few seconds later another terrible explosion. He say that he is morelly certain that it was giant powder and not dynamite, as the odor of the two explosives is widely different.

Blown to Atoms.

Upon examination it was discovered that the fragments of human flesh in the fire-men's net were parts of several bodies instead of one. Among these fragments is a man's head completely severed from the body, but of itself not badly disfigured. It is that of a young man with thick brown hair and handsome features.

Mr. S. G. Calhoun, who was near Mr. Sage's office when the explosion occurred, was badly burned on the side of the face, but otherwise uninjured.

Very fortunately no fire accompanied the explosion, although gaspipes were twisted and broken and escaping gas filled the The absence of fire rendered the work of getting out the dead and injured comparatively easy, although the firemen and police were badly hampered in their labors by the crowd, which for a time swarmed unchecked through the corridors

The man who threw the bomb was among those carried into O'Connell's drug store. faintly for about five minutes and died shortly after the arrival of the ambulance

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Sage announced that the name of his assailant was Wilson, some claim that his name was Lord. There is little confirmation of this

Reporters who endeavored to see Mi Sage after he had been taken away were denied admittance to him, but it was an nounced that his injuries were not danger-

Jay Gould was down town at the time of the explosion, and on hearing of Mr. Sage's injury he dispatched his private physician, Dr. Munn, to his relief.

The building in which the explosion occurred is a five story structure, with a frontage of 50 feet on Broadway and 200 feet on Rector street. It is a fireproof structure. It is believed that five persons were killed outright. Another Version.

Another story of the affair says that a clearer, more deliberate plot to murder has not been recorded for years. Two men, entire strangers, entered Mr. Russell Sage's office, on the second floor, just before noon inquiring for Mr. Sage, and saying that they wanted to see him on important private

Mr. Sage, who was informed of the men's wishes, was at the time talking to his brother-in-law, General H. W. Slocum, of Brook-lyn. He was seated in a revolving chair at his desk. He told the clerk to get the names of the men. One of the strangers, who carried a grip, handed him a card inscribed with the name of Wilson.

Returning, he presented the card to Mr. Sage, who said, "Let him enter." The two men came in together. On this point, how ever, reports differ. Some say that only one man entered, while others have it that the two men entered. The clerks in the office say that there was little time to no-

Mr. Sage asked the men their business, and the man with the satchel said, very slowly, "We want $1,500,000, and we want them right now." Mr. Sage started at this proposal, but instantly recovering said that it was a great deal of money, and that he would have to think about it. He knew that he was dealing with a crank and was sparring for time, but subterfuges were in vain with this crank.

He said he had no time to wait. "The money is wanted now," he went on. "In this satchel I have pounds of dynamite, and unless you hand over the money up she Mr. Sage made one more attempt to temporize. He had not got the money, he said. His visitor must come again. At the word the man made an angry gesture and raised the satchel at arm's length.
"You will not?" he shouted. "Then here stop."

Then followed the explosion.

His Friends Claim That He Will Get 132 Votes on the First Ballot.

CERTAIN OF HIS ELECTION.

They Assert That There Is No Possible Combination Which Can Be Made by Which His Defeat Can Be Brought About.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The friends of Judge Crisp say that to a very great extent the speakership contest is practically over. That Judge Crisp, as every one calls him, will be the next speaker of the house, they say, is as sure as any such thing can be at this time. Of all the candidates he is the only one who has the names and figures to bear out the assertions which are made by those who have been assisting him in the fight. Mr. Crisp's estimate as to what the vote on the first and second ballot will be shows that he will win the battle beyond all doubt, and none of those connected with his canvass has any hesitancy in telling what the figures are.

The other candidates talk of the votes they expect to get or hope to get, but not one of them refers to the matter in the same tone of quiet confidence that characterizes Judge Crisp and his friends. The whole question has been narrowed down. The only hope of the Mills men is Springer. To the man from Texas and his friends Springer appears as an element of confu-

Springer Won't Withdraw. They don't mind his being in the race at the present time, nor would they object to his receiving a complimentary vote when the balloting begins, but beyond that they don't want to see him in the race as a candi date, because they think that if his strength could be swang over to Mills it would be a very nice thing for their candidate. To accomplish that has been almost the sole effort of those who are said to be working in the interest of Lills.

It is supposed that it was just those efforts which led the man from Illinois to make the assertion that he was not only in the race, but in it to stay. His remarks would cer tainly have been unnecessary had not some-thing been done tending to create the contrary impression. But, as for that, it is said here that Mr. Springer has been plumply asked to withdraw. He not only flatly re-fused to do so, but would not listen to any such proposition, no matter by whom made. It is known, at least, that one of the most bold attempts was made last night to stampede the friends of Springer. The delegation from Iowa was fearful that Mr. Crisp might be elected on the first ballot, and so Mr. Hayes made it known that he and his colleague would go for Mills when it came to the balloting if it seemed at all likely that Mr. Crisp would be successful on the first

A Critical Moment for Springer. That created a situation in the Springer camp over which there was the most inexcitement. It appeared for a time as if there would be a break, because Mr. Springer, strong in the belief that the nominee of the caucus would not be elected on the first ballot, had not objected to the proposition of Mr. Hayes. The excitement ran high when matters had reached that point, because it was a critical time. the four friends of Mr. Springer in the Indiana delegation appeared just in the nick of time. The quartet talked the situation over, and when they had done the Iowa men were informed that if there was to be any breaking away from Springer their four votes would certainly go to Crisp.

That proved an effectual check to the ardor of the Iowa men for Mills, and the situation was quickly relieved of embarrass

Judge Holman got in town, and the ques should be called was quickly settled. All the candidates signed a paper requesting noon, which was presented to Judge Holman, whereupon he issued the following: There will be a meeting of the Democratic members of the house of representatives held at the hall of the house, commencing at the hour of 2 p. m., Saturday, Dec. 5, for the nomi-nation of candidates for the offices of the house for the Fifty-second congress

WILLIAM S. HOLMAN, Chairman of the Caucus. Mr. Mills, though he signed the paper with the other candidates, was not altogether in favor of having the caucus called at that hour. He based what objections he had on the ground that many of the repre sentatives would not reach town in time to attend the caucus. There is little fear of that, however, as all are expected to be here by tonight

Crisp Claims 132 Votes. With each new arrival those who have the interest of the different candidates in charge do a little more figuring, and the Crisp men now announce that they have 132 votes pledged for the Georgian. As there will be a total of 225 votes cast, it is not difficult to figure how many votes there will be left to be divided among the other candi-

Even if all should withdraw with the exception of Mr. Mills, thus leaving the field as he would like to see it, there is no possi ble combination, Crisp men say, that could be made which would help him in the least. In fact, if he goes to make any combinations he will simply add to the strength of Mr. Crisp, and that is the one thing above all others of which Mr. Mills and his friends are fearful. Not much speechmaking is expected at the caucus. Judge Holman said that he was against it. It is thought that Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, will present the name of Mr. Mills, and if such proves to be the case, it is likely that Congressman Isadore Rayner, of Maryland, will do the same for Mr. Crisp.

The Melbourne Crisis. MELBOURNE, Dec. 5.—The suspensions of banks and other financial institutions noted in yesterday's dispatches led to a run on the Standard bank of Australia, and it soon closed its doors. The bank's capital is £1,000,000, of which £250,000 was called up. The situation is easier, and it is believed the crisis is passed. Assistance has been offered by the principal assurance society of the colony. A bill to prevent loss to depositors through compulsory winding up of building societies contrary to their wishes was passed by the colonial parliament last night.

The Longenecker Jury Disagrees. NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 5.—In the suit of ex-Sailor Carbrey for damages against Commander Longenecker, of the United States navy, for violently restraining plaintiff of his liberty after Carbrey had been dis-charged from the service, the jury reported that it was unable to agree

WHAT MISS SPINSTER SAYS

That Mrs. Samuel Beatty is confined to the house with a severe cold. That Miss Henrietta Belden returned to New York yesterday.

That the ladies of Grace Church Guild will hold the first of a series of social evenings at Mrs. Weed's on Wall street next Wednesday evening.

That many people who wince at see ing a hores lashed, are cruel to their own perishable parts. They overwork their brain and abuse their body until, tough as they are, and were meant to be to fit them for the Jehu-like driving of their master, the soul, they yield under the unceasing strain. There is need of a Society for the Prevention of Crnelty to Oneself.

That people who suffer martyrdom, though unwillingly enough. from sit-ting in draughts in the cars, caused by the man who will have the window open, will be glad to hear of a recent invention for ventilating cars without opening any windows.

SHOE NEWS.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., December 5, 1891. The meather to-day: Clear.

I've written several times about my men's $3 shoes. I call them"Invincible $3 shoes' and stamp it on the bottom of each shoe. I know they are good shoes; I believe them to be the best for the price in the country. I think them fully as good as most shoes sold at

That sounds like bragging, but wait a moment, I know how they are made.

Now I want every man in own whether he wears $3 or $6 shoes to look in my window.

All the materials that go into these $3 shoes are arranged so every part can be seen, calf skin, soles, heels, linings, facings, insoles, thread, in fact every part.

Not many makers that care to show ALL that goes into their shoes.

Reducing His Bill.

This is the time when the gobbler ceases to be a gobbler and is gobbled. This is the time when he pools his issues with the frolicsome mince pie and goes the way of all turkeys. This is the time when, however long he has lived, no longer shall he live; when the carver gets in his fine work and when nothing but bones are left to tell the festive story. But there is another festive story. But there is another story as seasonable as the story itself. Open your ears and let it in. It is not a Thanksgiving fairy tale, though it sounds like one.
