Gone to the Beyond.

The past few days have been most notable in the record of eminent dead. Ex-President Hayes, Phillips Brooks, Justice Lamar, General Doubleday and James G. Blaine, have all passed to the beyond. Of them all, Mr. Blaine in his conspicuous personality, filled the largest place in the world's consideration. No man since Henry Clay had so wide and so warm attachments of his fellow men. His nature was large and grand. His presence magnetic, his oratory captivating and his arguments convincing. He was over all and above all, an intense AMERI-CAN. His lofty patriotism and sagacious statesmanship led to frequent differences with his own party leaders on matters of public policy. This was notably the case when he opposed the Force Bill and entreated in the interests of the Republican cause and the welfare of the Nation, that the Mc-Kinley tariff bill should not raise duties so excessively high in many of its schedules and the strenuous and almost pathetic appeal he made in behalf of incorporating in that bill, the principles of Reciprocity. His prophetic predictions and warnings were more than fulfilled in the results of the last fall's election. With all his high and splendid endowments, his loving heart and great nature, most endeared him to all who came within his charming influence. He was as fearless as a warrior, tender as a child, generous to opponents, lavishly helpful to the distressed and never weary of serving his countrymen. In such lofty service has his public life been consecrated and his death sanctified. May we not divine a prophecy, fitting his own departure in the closing on the martyred Garfield, in which he

The stately mension of power had been to him the wearisome hospital of pain, and be begged to be taken from its and by begged to be taken from its prison walls, from its oppressive stifling air from its homelessness and its help-le-mess. Gently, silently, the love of agreat people bore the pale sufferer to all longed for healing of the sea, to tive or to die, as God should will, within sight of its heaving billows, within sound of its manifold voices. With wan, fevered face tenderly lifted to the cooling breeze, he looked out wistfully upon the sea's changing wonders; on its far sails whitening in the morning light, on its restless waves rolling shoreward on its restless way to break and die beneath the noonday sun; on the red clouds of evening arching low to the horizon, on the serene and shining pathway of the stars. Let us think that his dying eyes read a mystic meaning which only the rapt and parting soul may know. Let us believe that in the silence of the receding world he heard the great waves breaking on a farther shore, and felt already upon his wasted brow the breath of the eternal morning." sun; on the red clouds of evening arch

The petition of Bee Theresa Johnson, of Fairfield, who asks the Legislature to grant her a divorce from her insane husband, is one of those cases which rarely arise, there baving been only one similar in this state in many years. The last was that of a Milford man who a few years ago asked the General Assembly for a divorce from his insane wife and who thereby became the subject of wide public animadversion. Between the Milford case and the case of Mrs. Johnson, howmadversion. Between the Milford case and the case of Mrs. Johnson, however, there is considerable difference in most of the attending circumstances. William P. Johnson, as is alleged in the plaintiff's petition, became violently insane less than five years after her marriage to him. He was taken to the Middletown Insane retreat about May 1, 1888, and his condition since his confinement in that institution has steadily grown worse. The plaintiff is destitute of property and in order to support herself and two children she has been compelled ever since her has been compelled ever has been compelled ever has been compelled ever has been compelled been compelled eyer since her hus-band's affliction to resort to daily labor. The calamity, as she avers, is without any fault on her part; she is 45 years of age and unable to bear any part of the expense of her husband's maintenance. It is set forth that John-son's condition daily becomes worse that there is absolutely no prospect of any improvement; that all of the pur-poses of the marriage contract are de-feated and that a divorce will assist in relieving the petitioner of great hard-ships. The plaintiff's maiden name was Walch and two children have resulted from the uniou. The petitioner seeks relief through special legislative enactment instead of in the courts because insanity is not a statutory ground for a divorce.

A Three-Cent Swindle.

The latest swindle is a three cent one but it has been worked with good results to the worker in different towns in the state. The swindle is a small in the state. The swindle is a small one, but in the aggregate the swindler has secured considerable money. The swindler, is described as a young man hardly out of his teens and of prepossessing appearance, about medium height, with smooth face. His plan has been to enter the various stores in a manner indicating haste and and hurriedly ask to be accommodated in the change of a piece of money, usually a change of a piece of money, usually a half or a quarter of a dollar. He al-ways named some sum which he deways named some sum which he desired to secure to pay some imaginary debt and which would in all cases induce the merchant to pay him in 10-cent pieces and in nickels. Having received the change he would look it over carefully and then call the accommodating merchant's attention to the fact that one of the 10 cent pieces was in re-ality athree-cent piece. In receiving the change he would substitute the three-cent piece for the 10, sometimes substituting two threes for tens. In nearly all cases merchants have been deceived into the belief that they had in reality given three-cent pieces for 10 and without question took them back and gave in exchange ten-cent pieces. This would net the swindler about seven cents on each piece he was Albert H. Kellam collector of the port at New Hayen, died this morning.

Mr. Kellam was deputy collector of the port under Collector Beers. When the Democrats came in power in 1884 he engaged in civil pursuits. Later he was elected secretary of the Republiscan league in that city. After the election of President Harrison he was appointed collector of the port, which position he had held until the present time. In 1881-82 he was lieutenant collectors of the Collector of the port, which onel on Governor H. B. Bigelow's staff.

The libel suit of George E. House of Toledo, against the Findlay Republican ended yesterday in a verdict for the plaintiff, the damages being laid at 5 cents. He sued for $5,000. The case was one of great importance to newspaper publishers, as it involved the point whether a journal is responsible where an alleged libellous article is reprinted from another newspaper.

House formerly lived in Fostoria, and the Times of that city in December 1891, published a rumor that the man had more than one wife living. The Findlay paper clipped the item and properly credited it, and a few days later, without solicitation, published a denial of the story. The same matter was handled by two Toledo papers and House brought suits against those papers for an aggregate of $45,000 damages. After nearly a year he compromised those suits and began new ones against the Findlay papers. NO BOUNDS TO SORROW

Grief for Mr. Blaine is Not Limited to the Nation.

A WHOLE WORLD PAYS ITS TRIB-UTE TO WORTH.

Doctors Tell the Causes of His Death.

His Family With Him When the End Came—The President Issues a Proclamation - Action of Congress - Sorrow in Washington and Elsewhere - Funeral Arrangements—Comments of the Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—At the bedside of James G. Blaine when death's angel heard the statesman's answer to the last roll call were those who were to him nearest and dearest.

Those present were Mrs. Blaine, Miss Harriet Blaine, James G. Blaine, Jr., Mrs. Walter Damrosch, the eldest living daughter, and Mrs. Blaine's sister, Miss Staysil Dodge, better known by her literary nom de plume, "Gail Hamilton." Robert Blaine, a brother of James G. Blaine, was not present when death came, not having been notified that a crisis had occurred in time to arrive at the house until all was over.

Mrs. Blaine was almost completely overcome by the shock occasioned by her husband's death, and, notwithstanding his long and serious illness, had been led to believe that his life would be prolonged for some time. Mrs. Blaine said that she wished to have no autopsy and no embalment of her husband's body, and desired, moreover, that the funeral should be a quiet and unostentatious one, and take place as early as practicable.

Dr. Johnson said that he was perfectly him, and that he died without suffering. The doctors late in the day issued an official statement of the cause of death. The earliest signs of disease were due to gout. Later came kidney troubles de-

There will be no autopsy and the body will not be embalmed, the family objecting to any disturbance of it.

The President Hears the News.

The President received the news of Mr. Blaine's death soon after 11 o'clock, and immediately notified the members of the Cabinet by telegraph over the department wires. A few minutes later he started for the Blaine residence. The President remained but a few minutes. He left a message of sympathy for Mrs. Blaine, saying that he could sincerely and thoroughly appreciate the great loss which she had sustained.

The visit of the President and Secretary Foster was quickly followed by calls from the Postmaster-General, Secretaries Elkins, Noble, Tracy and Rusk, and Attorney-General Miller, each of whom remained only a few minutes and then went to the White House, where the Cabinet assembled at 12.30. It remained in session a few minutes only, during which the following proclamation announcing the event was agreed upon and

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Jan. 27, 1893

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27, 1893
It is my painful duty to announce to the people of the United States the death of James Gillespie Blaine, which occurred in this city today at 11 o'clock.
For a full generation this eminent citizen has occupied a conspicuous position in the nation. His first public service was in the Legislature of his State. Afterwards for 14 years he was a member of the National House of Representatives and was three times chosen its Speaker. In 1876 he was elected to the Senate. He resigned his seat in that body in 1831 toaccept the position of Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Garfield. After the tragic death of his chief he vesigned from the Cabinet of President Garfield. After the tragic death of his chief he vesigned from the Cabinet, and devoting himself to literary work, gave to the public in his "Twenty Years in Congress" a most valuable and enduring contribution to our political literature. In March, 1889, he again became Secretary of State, and continued to exercise this office until June, 1892.

His devotion to the public interests, his marked ability and his exasted patrictism histe won for him the gratitude and affection of his countrymen and the admiration of the world. In the varied pursuits of legislation, diplomacy and literature his genius has added new lustre to American citizenship.

As a suitable expression of the hational appreciation of his dyeat public service and of the general sorrow caused by his death, I direct that on the day of his funeral all the departments of the executive branch of the Government at Washington be closed, and that on public buildings throughout the United States the national flag shall be displayed at half staff; and that for a period of 50 days the Department of State be draped in mourning.

John W. Foster, Secretary of State. Funeral Arrangements.

It is understood that the funeral will occur Monday afternoon and that the interment will be at Oak Hill Cemetery, on the slopes of Red Creek bank in Georgetown, where He the bodies of his children.

The casket will be of red cedar, covered with black cloth and devoid of ornament except for the solid silver bar handles.

After Physicians Failed, Hood's Sarsaparilla Perfectly Cured.

Great mental agony is endured by parents who see their children suffering from diseases caused by impure blood, and for which there seems no cure. This is turned to joy when Hood's Sarsaparilla is resorted to, for it expels the foul humors from the blood, and restores the diseased skin to fresh, healthy brightness. Read the following from grateful parents:

"To C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "We think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most valuable medicine on the market for blood and skin diseases. Our two children suffered terri-bly with the Worst Form of Eczema for two years. We had three physicians in that time, but neither of them succeeded in curing them or even in giving them a little relief. At last we tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a month both children were perfectly cured. We recommend friends but the jamily demurred. The ceremonies will be as unostentatious as possible, Mrs. Blaine having great repugnance to an exhibition of grief. At Mrs. Blaine's request, the emblems of mourning for ex-President Hayes will not be supplemented by any sombre decorations for the ex-Secretary. Sorrow in Washington.

Hood's Sarsaparilla as a standard family medicine, and would not be without it." Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Soller, 1412 2nd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mr. Blaine's death has created a profound sorrow in Washington, where he has lived for nearly 30 years. His children were nearly all born here; this was the scene in his triumphs of political diplomacy and statesmanship, and Mr. Blaine constantly expressed his love for Washington and his desire to be buried here when his life should be ended. The whole city is in mourning today. Congress adjourned; distinguished men and women, including the President and his Cabinet, hastened to the house to express their sorrow; telegrams of sympathy poured in from all over the world, and the fact that Blaine was dead was discussed to the exclusion of all other topics. The social festivities of the capital, now at their height, have been suddenly halted, and will not be resumed until after the remains of Mr. Blaine are laid away forever.

The Funeral Programme. The details of the funeral ceremonies Monday are as follows: At 11 o'clock prayer will be offered by the Rev. Teunis

S. Hamlin, D. D., at the house. Only members of the family and their inti-mate friends will be present. Immediate-ly thereafter the body will be borne to the Church of the Covenant. Here also the services will be of the simplest charconscious up to within a few moments of acter, consisting of the reading of the his death, and recognized all those around Presbyterian burial ritual and prayer by Dr. Hamlin. There will be no music, save that of the organ, which will be played by Mr. Walter Damrosch, the dead man's son-in-law. Seats in the church will be reserved for the President, veloping into chronic Bright's disease.

Vice-President, members of the Cabinet and their families, members of the Diploby heart trouble and a general shattering matic Corps, and the friends of the deceased. These reservations will nearly exhaust the seating accommodations of the building. From the church the cortege will move to Oak Hill Cemetery, where interment will take place. There will be 12 pall bearers selected from among Mr. Blaine's personal and official friends. Naturally the larger portion will be from the ranks of official life. They will be announced

The arrangements for the funeral were communicated last evening to President Harrison and Baron Fava, Dean of the Diplomatic Corps.

Messages of Condolence. Last evening Mrs. Blaine sent a note to President Harrison in response to his message of sympathy which he left in the morning with Mr. Blaine, Jr.

The messages of condolence and sympathy received by the family came from men of both political parties. Among the number were messages from Gov. Horace Boise of Iowa, Gov. D. Russell Brown of Rhode Island, Gov. Roswell P. Flower of New York, Gov. Pattison of Pennsylvania, Gov. Crounse of Nebraska, and Gov. Henry Cleaves of Maine. Grover Cleveland telegraphed as follows: "His brilliant statesmanship will always be an inspiration to the nation he has served so long and so well. Permit me to extend my sympathy on the death of your distinguished husband."

ACTION OF CONGRESS.

Both Houses Heard Tributes and Then

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Senate met yesterday in the gloom which the intelligence of Mr. Blaine's death an hour before noon naturally cast over that body and over the Capitol. The sad event was appropriately noted in the opening prayer of Chaplain Butler. As soon as the reading of the journal was completed Mr. Hale of Maine, one of Mr. Blaine's closest friends, rose and announced the death. He said:

He said:

Mr. Presipent: We are again summoned into the presence of death. A very great man has passed from this earth. The Hon. James G. Blaine died in his house in this city at 11 o'clock this morning. His long illness had in some measure, prepared us for that; but the dread event will carry sadness and mourning throughout the whole United States, and will awaken interest and sorrow wherever civilized man lives on the face of the gobe. Mr. Blaine's career was so remarkable and his public services were so great that in all the histories which may be written of his times he will stand as the central figure, not only as to his own country, but on policies and subjects that affected other great nations. He belonged, Mr. President; not to any one State, but to all the country; and Pennsylvania, which gave him birthplace and nurtured him, and Maine, where he made his home and where he became her first citizen, and which filled his lap with all the honors which she could bestow, mourn him no more today than do the dwellers by the shores of the great Gulf and in the cabins of the far Sierras. This is no time or place for me to speak in detail of his distinguished public life. He was for years a distinguished member on the floor of the House of Representatives of the nation, and for six years presided there as its Speaker. His services in this chamber covered years. He was twice Secretary of State, and was, until of late, a member of the present Administration. I do not think there is one Senator here who will not deem it fitting, in view of these facts and of the fact that he died where his last peaceful look from his cuamber window might embrace this Capitel, where his voice had been so many times heard, that we make a precedent at this time, and that, although Mr. Blaine was at the time of his death a private citizen, this body take immediate adjournment.

Mr. Cockrell (Dem., Mo.) moved that,

Mr. Cockrell (Dem., Mo.) moved that, in view of the announcement by the Senator from Maine, that the Senate do the Journal, Mr. Milliken of Maine rose amid profound silence and said:

Mr. Speaker: It becomes my sad duty to announce to this House the death of James G. Blaine. Mr. Blaine was for 14 years a prominent and leading member of this House. For six years he was the distinguished Speaker of the House. Every position he has held he has gilded with the light of genius, and he has given to the public services for a generation such devotion and such industry and such labor as has brought him to his death today. I doubt not that every member of this House will be glad to pay him a tribute of respect by an adjournment.

Mr. Holman paid a glowing tribute and the House adjourned.

NEW YORK COMMENTS.

Leading Papers of the Metropolis on the Dead Statesman.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—All the New York papers have lengthly editorials on Mr. Blaine. Following are extracts:

Tribune-Mr. Blaine, like Mr. Gladstone, has had the incomparable gift of inspiring enthusiasm. No other American since Lincoln has commanded in equal measure the love, confidence and loyal devotion of a great political party. Now that he has fallen, his enemies themselves being the witnesses, a nation will mourn him as the greatest American of his generation. oring genuine sorrow to many admirers, and to a smaller number of devoted personal friends, but as far as the great party is concerned with which he was so long and so conspicuously connected his career was closed at Minneapolis in June last. Admiration he could command; he could arouse the wildest enthusiasm; the considered confidence of thoughtful men he could not win, and, with all respect to the feelings of those who, in widely separated parts of the land, will sincerely mourn him, it must be written that it was better for the American people that he could not win it, since, in sober truth, he did not merit it.

Herald—Mr. James G. Blaine had sturdy friends and unrelenting enemies, but friends and enemies alike agree that he occupied a conspicuous position in the constellation of American statesmen. History will vindicate his right to that most honorable distinction, for it would be impossible to recite the events which threw this nation into chaos in the earlier sixties, or to name the men who moulded public opinion during the five years when the country summoned a super-human courage and rebuilt the Union on the graves of a million heroes, or to review the slow processes which, like a hot fire, have since welded the States into a har-monious whole, without referring to James G. Blaine as one of the foremost in the group of giants whose work is recorded in that strange chapter of our history.

World—Mr. Riaine possessed most of the qualities of a great political leader. He had an attractive personality, of the kind called "magnetic." He was a dash-ing leader, adroit, audacious, resourceful. But his lacks were fatal to the success which his ambition craved. Mr. Blaine was wanting in some of the higher attribules of leadership. He compelled admiration, but he did not inspire confidence. Men applauded, but they did not trust him. Many loved him. Few teared

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The Assembly had adjourned before the news of Mr. Blaine's death got to the members. When the news reached the Senate, Senator Cantor, the Democratic leader, said: "Mr. President, the news has just reached here of the death of that eminent and distinguished American statesman, James G. Blaine. At this time I shall refrain from saying anything of his life and services to the people. A time will be fixed next week when an opportunity will be afforded to the members of th Senate to express their admiration of the services he has rendered to the public. I desire simply at this time to submit the following resolution:

The resolution was unanimously adopted. On motion of Senator Cantor, and by a rising vote, the Senate adjourned in respect to the memory of Mr. Blaine.

CANADIAN OPINION.

Kindly Expressions in Montreal—A Liberal Press Opinion. MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 28.-Mr. Blaine's death was one of the principal topics of discussion here and on all hands kindly expressions of opinion were heard regarding the great American statesman. Mr. Blaine, it was known, always took a deep interest in Canadian affairs, and Canadian public men who had anything to do with him while he was a the canadian to the canadian public he was a the him while he was at the head of the State Department speak highly of his broadmindedness and great ability.

The Witness says of his death: In a country where statesmen take a sort of pride in limiting their horizon so as to exclude any views of foreign affairs, he was among the two or three whose inter-est did extend beyond the borders of this own country. He would have liked the United States to play a larger part among the nations of the world in inter-national affeirs and he would have liked to extend her borders by securing the union of Canada, Mexico and Cuba with the United States.

Social Life Stands Still. WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.-Mr. Blaine's death means a personal loss to a great many people in both official and private life in Washington, and will make a material change in the social entertainments of the capital. Women prominent in Sen-ate and Cabinet circles said that all invitations out for dates between now and the time for Mr. Blaine's funeral would be recalled and engagements cancelled. In all probability the public receptions of the wives of Cabinet officers will not be sumed for the remainder of the season.

A Tribute from Michigan. LANSING, Mich., Jan. 28.-When Gov. Rich was informed of the death of ex-Secretary Blaine, he ordered the flags on Secretary Blaine, he ordered the hags on the Capitol building displayed at half-mast. In speaking of Mr. Blaine the Gov-ernor said: "In the death of Mr. Blaine the nation loses one who was in many respects the most remarkable figure in the history of this country. Though never President, he will occupy a conspicuous place in history long after many of our Presidents will live only in name."

Gov. McKinley Sends Sympathy. Columbus, O., Jan. 28.—The news of the death of the great statesman, Hon. James G. Blaine, was received in Columbus a few minutes after it took place and a feeling of profound sorrow was felt and expressed by all men, Democrats as well as Republicans. Gov. McKinley telegraphed his sympathy from his Canton home and both Houses of the Legislature immediately adjourned on the receipt of

In the Maine Legislature. AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 28.—The Legislature appointed a committee to attend the funeral of Mr. Blaine, and also one to draw up appropriate resolutions, and then adjourned until Monday. Memorial services will be held on Wednesday. Gov. Cleaves and Gen. Selden Connor, Chief of Staff, will represent the State at the funeral. Gov. Cleaves issued a proclamation to the people of Maine.

Flags at Half-Mast. NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Republican county executive committee adopted resolutions on Mr. Blaine's death. The flags on the Post Office and City Hall and on many private buildings were displayed at half-mast.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.-Richard Croker will leave town for the South next Wednesday. He proposes to be gone from New York more than a month. He will visit Texas and may go to Southern Cali-fornia. He may be back in Washington in time to see President Cleveland inau-gurated, but will not be a prominent figure in the ceremonies.

The Change is Very Slight. CHEYENNE, Wyo., Jan. 28.—The vote in the Legislature for United States Senators was: Warren, Republican, 12; New, Democrat, 11; Clark, Republican, 7; Brown, Populist, 5; Holliday, Democrat, 4; Richards, Republican, 3; Corn, Beck, Democrats, 2 each; Hinton, Populist, 2; Kabis, Democrat, 1. The change is very slight.

At the "Little White House." LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 28 .- Mr. Cleveland has sent a letter to Judge Walter Q. Gresham and the latter is expected to answer in person. He is now among the best of Cabinet possibilities. Mr. Cleveland would say nothing for publication about Mr. Blaine's death. It is probable that he will attend the funeral.

RUIN FOR ONE MAN.

Ex-State Treasurer of Nebraska Responsible for the Lincoln Bank Losses. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 28 .- The latest developments heighten the sensation caused by the failure of the Capital National Bank. Under the new law which went into effect first of the year, the State is liable for losses in approved State depositories, and when the bank failed with $25,000 of State money on deposit the impression prevailed that the loss in case the bank was unable to pay would fall upon the State. But the Attorney-General has made public an opinion in which he says that ex-State Treasurer J. E. Hill, who retired Lanuary 1 is responsible for who retired January 1, is responsible for the loss, the money having been de-posited by him and not by Bantley, his successor, who alone acted under the new law.

This opinion has caused a big sensation, and if sustained, it will undoubtedly result in the ruin of Hill. His bond was for $250,000. Upon examination the affairs of the bank are found to be in very bad condition, and it is no longer contended that depositors will be paid in full. Claims are being offered at 50 per cent. President Mosher is in the custody of the United States Marshall, under direction of the Grand Jury.

The American Board of Foreign Missions Denies Charges.

Boston, Jan. 28.—The committee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions have prepared an exhaustive reply to the complaints of the several churches as to mismanagement and partiality in the matter of appointments to missionary fields. They deny explicitly every allegation against them and explain in detail the methods em-ployed by them in selecting missionaries. They assert that of the 206 applications for appointment in the past two years only 69 were successful and of the 139 rejected applicants only two were refused on theological grounds. One was a Unitarian and the other a Universalist.

The committee also denies that candi-

HOLOCAUST

One Hundred and Thirty Men Entombed in a Mine.

NINETEEN BODIES TAKEN OUT BY RESCUERS.

An Explosion the Cause--The Flames Still Raging.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.—An explosion from cause still unascertained took place in a coal mine at Tokod Gran yesterday. Fire broke out immediately after the explosion, and is still burning.

About 150 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion. The shaft was not impaired, and the cage was sent down almost at once.

The bodies of 19 men who had been killed were found near the bottom of the shaft and were brought up. The cage then went down again, but returned immediately, as the smoke was so dense that the rescue party were unable to remain below. Two of the party were unconscious before they reached the top. About 130 men are still in the mine.

Machinery was taken out from Gran to partially flood the mine, but as yet there are no signs that the fire is abating.

The whole population of Tokod is around the pit's mouth, but no effort has been made to send down a rescuing party.

The wives and children of the miners are moaning and urging the rescuers to save their husbands and fathers, but nothing can be done.

All the 130 miners in the bottom of the pit are undoubtedly dead. No attempt at rescue can be made for several hours.

A New Use for Electricity. The new method of twisting strings for musical instruments by electricity is being utilized in producing strings banjos, guitars, violins, harps, bass vials and many other musical instruments. The work is done by electric motors, one machine being used exclusively for making banjo fourth strings, which are only .0023-inch thick when finished. It will make a string forty inches long in forty five seconds, the wire 'used for winding the silk being .003-inch thick. This fine wire is carried and directed by hand, and two wires can be wound at once. such a string there are no fewer than 13,333 coils along a 40-inch length.

The motor used for this purpose runs at 2,100 revolutions per minute, driving the string machine by means of a fibre gearing at 13,000 revolutions. Another small electric motor, which runs 2,200 revolutions, actuates a machine making 5,600 revolutions, used for the making of violin G strings, covered with copper wire, silver plated, and only .006-inch thick. By this machine a man can make 108 strings an hour. Another machine, which is run by a larger motor, is so arranged that every kind of string can be made on it, from fifteen to eighty-four inches in length. The wire used for the various kinds of strings runs from .006 to .0017-inch in thickness. — Globe-Demo-
