An Expert at Work.

At the meeting of the directors of the Norwalk Horse Railway company last evening, Mr. Lewis C. Green was elected a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Hyatt. A reso-lution was passed authorizing President Kimmey to equip the cars with fare registers, which will be done at once. The duties of the superintendent of the road were defined and the secretary notified to have the same typewrit-ten and posted in the office. Under the new regime the superintendent will have care of the men and the tracks, horses and cars. A resolution was also passed to have the books examined by an expert accountant, and Mr. George H. Broomfield is to-day going over the Well Known in Norwalk.

The Wallingford correspondent of the New Haven Courier writs thus of a journalist who has a record—such as it is—in various parts of the state:

Colonel Darwin C. Pavey, formerly editor and manager of the Wallingford Weekly Times, now associate editor of the Portsmouth, N. H. Evening Times, and Miss Annie E. Smart, a drawing teacher in the public schools, were married in the Episcopal church in Portsmouth, N. H., Sunday afternoon. Colonel Pavey's former wife is still living here on Elm street, with her five children, and says that if she and her husband are divorced she does not know it. Colonel Pavey's record while in this town was not a very creditable Another Sudden Death. Bridget McMullen, wife of John Harty, died very suddenly, this morning, at her home on Franklin avenue.

Mrs. Harty got up shortly before 6 o'clock, as was her custom, and commenced to prepare the breakfast for the rest of the family. As she was about her work she became suddenly ill, and calling her daughter Mamie, bade her summon a doctor as she feared that she was going to die, and was then assisted to her bed. Dr. W. J. Tracey arrived soon after, and did all in his power to save the woman's life but she sank into an unconsciousness from which she did not awaken, and a few moments after 7 o'clock she was dead. She leaves four children, Charles, John, and Mamie Harty, and Mrs. M. Hurd, of Danbury. She was about 60 years of age.

Quartermaster General's Report. Quartermaster General Rudd's report—to September 30, 1892—is issued. No extensive improvements have been made at the state camp grounds; it is recommended that the mess houses be provided with floors. The report covers two encampments. The expenses from July 1, '91, to September 30, 92, were $90,329.25; receipts $100,735.07. The special account, made necessary by the dead-lock in the Legislature, shows that Governor Bulkeley advanced $45,000 July 23, 1891, which was paid back with $684.64 interest May 21, 18-

The C. N. G. requires new trousers and forage caps; 700 blouses have been drawn from the United States government and 1,800 more are needed, as the old blouses are worn out. The Peabody rifles, with which all the regiments but the First are armed, are considered as unserviceable and the national govern-ment should furnish something better.

New York East Conference.

About 300 ministers were in attendance upon the New York East Conference which opened in Danbury yesterday. Since 1855, when the body assembled there before, it has more than doubled its membership and quadrupled its benevolent collections. At that sessions sion the amount received for missions was $9,753.53—for the Tract society $3,970.37, for the American Bible society 970.37, for the American Bible society $2,069.20, and for conference claimants $4,131.14. Last year the contributions were: For pastors, presiding elders and bishops, $365,365; missions, 51,549; conference claimants, $11,934; church extension, $4,553; Sunday school union, $1,330; tract cause, $1,288; Freedmen's Aid Society, $4,336; education, $3,609; American Bible society, $2,340: Woman's Foreign missionary $2,340; Woman's Foreign missionary $0.500; Woman's Home missions, $4,-290; Pastoral and Church Aid society, $3,039; and for miscellaneous objects,

At Hartford.

There was an exciting wrangle in the House over the appointment of a judge of the common pleas court for Litchfield county. Some time ago a resolution appointing A. C. Roarback, a republican, to fill that position was passed by the House. Later on a resolution appointing Arthur D. Warner, a democrat, to the same position was passed by the Senate. A majority of the judiciary committee had reported the judiciary committee had reported unfavorably upon Warner's nomina-

The resolution appointing Warner came up in the House, and it passed, 120 for 95 against. A few minutes later Gunn of Milford moved that the resolution authorizing the appointment of a special committee to investigate the state prison scandal be taken from the table. This motion was defeated 106

It was apparent that there was something wrong, and a warm discussion ensued. Judge Wood finally moved to reconsider, but more members had in the meantime arrived, and the motion was dost, 121 for to 98 against. The Litchfield republicans entirely favored

Mr. Warner's appointment.
When the turmoil subsided somewhat Judge Wood moved for the resoluwhat studge wood motest reference to receive the regular prison committee to proceed with the investigation. Mr. Gunn substituted a motion that the special committee resolution be taken up. The latter motion prevailed, 107 to 92 against, a number of republicans voting in its favor. not yet named its members. The sweeping pool room bill was taken up. As reported by the committee it excepts nothing from its stringent provisions against gambling. Judge Beardsley of the committee spoke eloquently from manuscript in behalf of

The nomination was referred to the committee on executive nominations.

There was a lengthy discussion on the bill ordering selectmen in all towns of the state to display the stars and stripes on all public schools. An amend-ment was offered making it compulsory for selectmen to do this only upon the application of five tax-payers of the town. Senator Morgan spoke in favor of the amendment, and the whole matter was recommitted to the committee on education.

The bill which recently passed the House ordering manufacturers to re-port to the factory inspector all accilents occuring in their factories, was indifinitely postponed.

The committee on education met and discussed at length the normal school matter. They have reached a decision and are now preparing their report. They said, however, that they will not make public the result before next Tuesday. The Sunday fishing bill to which opposition has arisen in all th along the shore will be rejected by the Legislature. Senator Jones of Greenwich who introduced the bill appeared before the judiciary committee in Hart-ford and stated that he desired to with-draw it. He had no desire that it should become a law and there was a great howl against it. The bill provided that persons caught fishing on Sunday should be fined, not to exceed $10.

Before the committee on temperance a hearing was held on a bill which, if passed, would give to hotel proprietors keeping a hotel where at least 25 sleep-ing rooms are provided, the right, under their license, to serve intoxicating liquors to guests at the table or in their room, at any time on week days or Sunday.

Major John C. Parsons, A. Elijah
Hart, Ward W. Jacobs and ex-Senator
Catlin of Bridgeport appeared before the committee on banks on the bills concering the investments of savings banks and enlarging the field of legal investments by savings banks. Senator Ferris read the provisions of a proposed bill under which savings banks and dinvest 30 per cent of their demuscle and a pair of stout oars will be the motive power. The boat was built under his direction. It is a staunch little craft of the skiff pattern, ten feet long, four feet wide and thirteen inches deep. The top is covered with a canvass awning which may be erected or taken down at will.

He expects to complete his journey in about ten weeks, although the disstance, in the roundabout way in which he must travel, is at least 4,000 miles. His plan is to reduce the danger to a minimum by keeping close along shore, a plan very practicable as his item draws but eight inches of water.

To Ferris read the provisions of a proposed bill under which savings banks could invest 30 per cent. of their deposits in other than real estate loans and 10 per cent. on personal notes with two indorsers. Under the present law savings banks may loan not to exceed 5 per cent. of their deposits on mercantile paper. Treasurer Hart of the Society for Savings said that he didn't believe it was good policy for savings banks to take paper of that kind, indorsed by two persons. Either might die and the settlement of the estate involve much trouble to the bank.

that there should be enacted some strong measure to prevent and protect. A question came before the commit-tee on roads and bridges which interests all towns with a navigable stream. Mr. Landan of Guilford, stated that two drawbridges in his town had been closed by the railroad company against precedent and right according to his view. He stated that inconvenience had been the result of such closing. As the channel over which bridges passed would permit vessels of 150 tons, loaded to move. He thought a bill should be passed compelling the come pany to re-open the draws.

Trained Fish.

Fish have many times been taught to perform tricks, and it would appear as if they had much more intelligence than grasped the fact that there was no cable is attributed to them. Mr. J. A. Bailey of circus fame once had two brook trout in a small aquarium in his private residence that would jump out of the water bell when they required food. They would also leap over little bars of wood placed about two inches above the surface of the water.

It is a very simple matter to teach the fish these tricks. At first a little tower containing a tiny, sweet toned silver bell was fastened to the iron work of the aquarium with a piece of string attached to the tongue of the bell extending into the water where the trout were. On the loose end of the string an insect or other tempting morsel was placed, which the fish would at once seize, and pulling the cord the bell in the tower would naturally tinkle. After this had been repeated several days the fish were left without food for some little time until they made the discovery that they could obtain it by pulling at the string to which the delicacies had been attached. This they never failed to do ever afterward when they were hungry and as that was nearly all the time the little bell was constantly tingling as the fish were continually pulling the cord, and it was quite a pretty and novel sight.— New York Herald.

The Hawaiian Death Prayer.

Upon the minds of such a people as the Hawaiians were, while under their ancient form of religion, it was but natural that superstition should gain a rooted hold. The most curious and effective belief to which they were made subject was that a man can be prayed to death-a belief that survives among the natives to the present day. For the success of the tragical death prayer it was necessary to obtain some hair or a piece of finger nail of the intended victim. A priest was then employed to use incanta tion and prayer for his destruction. Always informed of the doom that the priest was invoking upon him, the vic-tim generally pined away and died.

There is a story current that an Englishman in the service of Kamehameha I, having incurred the displeasure of a priest, the latter proceeded to "remove" him by the death-prayer process. The Anglo-Saxon, however, set up an opposition altar in derision, and jokingly pro claimed that he intended to pray the priest to death. Alarmed at the threat and overwhelmed at the failure of his own incantations, the sorcerer died, proving by his death his faith in his religion. E. Ellsworth Carey in Californian.

He Was His Own Grandfather. Of all genealogical curiosities the one set forth below is probably the oddesta singular piece of reasoning to prove that a man may be his own grandfather! Here it is: There was a widow (Anne) and her daughter (Jane) and a man (George) and his son (Henry). This widow married the son, and the daughter married the father. The widow was therefore mother (in law) to her husband's father and grandmother to her own husband. By this husband she had a son (David), to whom she was of course great-grandmother. Now, the son of a great-grandmother must be grandfather or granduncle to the person to whom his mother was or is great-grandmother, but in this instance Anne was great grandmother to him (David), therefore grandfather.—St. Louis Republic. Gibraltar and Spain. It may be objected that, although Gibraltar might be useless to us as against Spain, it would still, in wartime, be useful to us as against any other power. It certainly might be useful to a very modified extent. It is nevertheless a matter of notoriety that Spain ardently desires to regain possession of the fortress, and it is scarcely conceivable that, unless we were actually fighting for the protection of Spanish interests, Spain would remain rigidly neutral while another power was attempting to expel us from the rock.

In order to secure the more or less active co-operation of Spain the other power would merely have to give some secret pledge that, having once gained possession of Gibraltar, she would hand it over without charge to its ancient owners. France, there is no doubt, would, with things standing as they do at present, be very glad to see Spain take our place there, and though Italy might not like it she would not spend a single centesimo to prevent it.—Fortnightly Review.

A Creature From the Fire.

Aristotle believed that some creatures were capable of supporting life even though confined to the devouring element. He says: "In Cyprus, when the manufacturers of chalcitis (lime) burn it many days in the fire, a winged creature something larger than a great fly is seen emerging from the stone and leaping and walking about in the fire. These creatures perish immediately upon being removed from the furnace."—St. Louis

The reply was, "Will you have to a few or boughten teal"—New Tork Sun.

Colonel Hale's Short Visit to Town. Colonel Hale blew into a rapidly growing western town recently and quickly road. With everything gone but a silk hat and $125, he spent $100 for admission in a swell local club and proceeded to exist on the remaining $25. He gathered and take flies held between the forefinger about him the leading moneyed men and thumb and would also ring a little laid bare the scheme of millions in a cable road. He agreed to obtain the franchise and put it through for $30,000, part of which was to paid down as a guarantee of good faith. The colonel dusted up his silk hat and attacked the aldermen next. A Curious Naval Law.

A. curious discovery was some years ago made among the archives at Southampton of a box containing the original naval laws of that port as early as the fourteenth century. Curious Mode of Catching Turtles.

A curious mode of catching turtles is practiced in the West Indies. It consists n attaching a ring and a line to the tail of a species of sucker fish known as the remora. The live fish is then thrown overboard and immediately makes for the first turtle he can spy, to which he attaches himself very firmly by means of a sucking apparatus arranged at the top of his head. Once attached to the tur-tle, so firm is his grip that the fisherman on drawing the line brings home both

Who hath seen the summer parlor of the king?
Lovely and lofty, shut from view;
Walled with green and ceilinged with blue;
Round about it the singers sung;
Ross and lily their odors flung.
I myself that speak unto you—
I have seen the summer parlor of the king.

Who sat in the summer parlor of the king-

Who sat in the summer pariot of the king.
His custom of an afternoon;
When summer came, when earth was boon;
When round about his singers sung,
Rose and lily their odors flung;
When summer came, when all was June?
The king! in the summer parlor of the king!

Lol this was the summer parlor of the king.

Made fit for him and fashioned fair.

Open only to delicate air.

Royal songs for the world to sing
Seemed writ round the walls in jeweling;
For I myself have seen them there—
Have sat in his summer parlor with the king.

The Expansion of Solid Bodies.

An ingenious instrument for measuring the expansion of minute solid bodies is found in the list of inventions. The substance is placed in the field of a microscope and an image of it magnified several times is thrown on a screen. This image is further magnified by two micrometer microscopes which accurately determine the expansion. The substance is heated in a little platinum oven through which an electric current passes, and the temperature of the oven is arrived at by observations on the melting of standard substances. By the use of this instrument the thermal expansion of any substance even to the smallest diamond can be determined until the temperature of combustion is reached.—Exchange.

Silk worms are not the sole source of the production of silk; it is also obtained from several vegetable substances, but of an inferior and less durable description. Excellent colored silk is obtained from the prepared and finer fibers of the bamboo, which is much in demand for clothing in tropical countries from its lightness and porosity. Another form of silk is obtained from the pods of the silk cotton tree, of which there are several varieties in existence, the material obtained from them being known as vegetable silk.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Several Million Dollars Invested in Its Manufacture in the United States.

Very few people have a correct idea of what dynamite is, of what it is made, and the uses to which it is put. To the French belongs the honor of its discovery and its practical use.

Nitro-glycerine is the force of all high explosives. Dynamite is the name most usually given to these explosives, though other names are sometimes used.

Dynamite is simply nitro-glycerine mixed with various ingredients. Nitroglycerine is made by mixing sulphuric and nitric acid with sweet glycerine, the same that is used by the ladies to prevent chapped hands. Mixing the acids and glycerine is where the great danger lies in the making of nitro-glycerine. The mixing tank, or agitator, as it is called by dynamite makers, is a large steel tank, filled inside with many coils of lead pipe, through which, while the mixing is in progress, a constant flow of ice water is maintained. This flow of ice water is used to keep the temperature of the mix below eighty-five degrees, as above that point it would explode, and a hole in the ground would mark where the factory had been. The nitro-glycerine is stored in large earthenware tanks, which are usually sunk in the ground to guard against blows or severe concus-

The other ingredients for making dynamite are: Nitrate of soda, which is found only in Chili, carbonate of magnesia and wood pulp.

Dynamite is put in paper shells usually 1 1-4 inches in diameter and 8 inches in length, and weighs about one-half pound to each shell or cartridge. It has largely taken the place of black powder for blasting, as it is many hundreds of times stronger, and consequently more economical. It is used chiefly in mining all kinds of ores, coal and rock, and submarine blasting and railroad building. Without its aid many railroads, especially those crossing the Rocky Mountains, could not have been constructed; without it Hell Gate in New York harbor could not have been destroyed, and without it the miner, at prices now paid for mining ores, could not earn his bread.

Dynamite will not explode from any ordinary fall or jar; it will burn without explosion, and freezes at 42 degrees, 10 degrees above ordinary freezing point. The bomb of the Anarchist is made of metal or glass and filled with pure nitroglycerine arranged so as to explode by severe contact with any hard object. These bombs are, of course, never made by a reputable dynamite factory.

Five or six millions of dollars are invested in the manufacture of dynamite in the United States, and its use is constantly on the increase. The fumes of nitro-glycerine produce intense headache. which can be cured by taking a very small dose of it internally.—Detroit Free

Steaks of Horse and Mulc. Many Parisians are rather progressive than dainty in the selection of their food. In the time of the siege of the city by the German armies rats were among the favored dishes of the people. At the present time hippophagi is increasing at big strides. There are in the city 794 horse butcheries where last year 21,231 horses, sixty-two mules and 277 donkeys, a total of 21,570 head, were slaughtered. There is a league of hippophagi at Paris, which held a banquet the other day, the menu of which contained no other meat than that of the donkey, horse and mule. The butcher generally buys animals that can no longer be used for pulling, riding or carrying burdens, and are, therefore, cheaper than cattle. Thus the price of Henry Durant, the founder of Wellesley College for Women, and a very wellknown lawyer in New England, studied law in Butler's office when a young man, and was admitted to the bar on his recommendation. On one occasion Butler and Durant were opponents in a case, and the contest was very heated. Butler suddenly turned to the court and

"It is the chief regret of my life that I recommended that young man for admission to the bar.'

Durant as quick as a flash replied: 'Your Honor, it is the great wonder of my life that his recommendation had any weight with the court."-Minneapolis Journal.

A Useful Animal.

A useful South American animal is the kinkajou, which, as the dictionary will tell you, is a procyoniform quadruped, with a protusile tongue and a prehensile tail. The chief reason for asserting that the kinkajou is useful is that, in addition to his fondness for fruit, he has a great liking for insects for lunch, and when tamed is a valuable assistance in southern homes, where fly paper is unknown and where a mosquito net is more expensive than a silk dress.

and there, singular blocks of what look like weather-beaten, mossy, gray stones, of various size. But if you attempt to roll over one of these rounded boulders, you will find yourself unable to accomplish it. In fact, the stone is tied down to the ground-tied down by the roots; or in other words, it is not a stone, but a block of living wood.

Friendship Between a Horse and a Dog. A plumber at Narragansett had a horse 27 years old, which was used for carrying around his master's material when that was necessary, but spent most of its time in a small pasture. A fox terrier, also belonging to the plumber, was an inseparable companion of the old horse. When the old horse was harnessed to the cart the dog was on guard to see that nothing was stolen from the cart. In the pasture the dog was always sniffing around the horse and was never so delighted as when the horse would begin to roll in the grass, which it often did, apparently to please the dog, which would jump about in every direction and bark for pure joy.

At night when the horse was put in the barn the dog always entered with its friend and slept on the animal's body. One day the neighbors heard the most dismal howls coming from the pasture and found that the old horse had died. There was the terrier on the dead body, howling out its sorrow and misery. The dog remained with the body until it was removed for burial.—New York Tribune.

A Pocket Life Saving Apparatus. In 1874 Lieutenant Brunel of Dieppe introduced his pocket life saving lines, of which already upward of 3,340 are being used in France, where they now rescue annually some 285 lives. Nevertheless these admirable inventions are almost unknown in our empire. Brunel's small pocket line consists of a wooden float, round which some 90 feet of stout cord is wound. The other end of the cord terminates in an efficient grapnel armed with four small hooks. The whole apparatus complete weighs only five ounces and is the most convenient of all life saving lines. Hence I urge its adoption everywhere, especially for officials and others engaged about our coasts and inland waters. These appliances could be profitably retailed for about 1s. 6d. each, and any one can make them.—London Vanity Fair.

A Magnetic Detecter. A clever contrivance has been invented for the detection of small pieces of magnetizable metal, such as needles, tacks, steel and iron chips, etc., that may have entered the human body unawares and hidden themselves in the skin or deeper tissues. The instrument was devised by Dr. J. B. Williams and consists essentially of a partially astatic combination of small magnetic needles suspended within a glass tube, the tube being covered with tinfoil to minimize electric action, except for a small space through which the needle can be observed. It is claimed that the instrument is sufficiently delicate to detect the presence of one-eighth of an inch of steel or iron wire at a distance of six inches from itself.—New York Telegram.

What You Shoot In China.

A naval officer once told the writer that pheasant shooting in China was very fair and would be really good if there were not so many obstacles about to enjoying it comfortably. He said that the people were so numerous that if you let a gun go off almost anywhere in China you were pretty sure to hit a Chinaman. They seemed easy, however, to deal with, a small present as damages sending them away in a contented state of mind, and indeed this naval authority to get in the shooter's way on purpose to get these damages.—Macmillan's Maga-

Metal Ties For Roadbeds.

Numerous metal ties have been invented and many railroads have tried them, but all have proved unsatisfactory. The principal objections to them are based on their cost and their nonelasticity. A track laid on metal ties wears out rolling stock much faster than one laid on timber.—New York Tribune.

Tempting Providence.

"Mary Jane," said the Dakota farmer to his spouse, "it seems like flyin in the face of Providence to name the boy Elijah. It sounds too much like the old feller in the Bible that was carried away by a cyclone. I don't think it's a proper name at all fer this country."-Indianapolis Journal.

Man and Wolf Surprised.

A hunter and a wolf had an interesting mutual surprise party to themselves in the hills near Helena a few days ago, The hunter, arrayed in a heavy wolfskin overcoat, fur side outward, was examining some traps set the previous, night. He was stooping over one, rearranging the bait, when there was a fierce growl, and a heavy weight fell suddenly on his back, so that he barely missed being caught in his own trap. He managed to shake himself free, and recovering his feet found facing him a full grown buffalo wolf. The wolf seemed quite as much surprised as the hunter, and they looked at each other some seconds before the fight, which ended in the death of the wolf, began. The brute evidently was fooled by the coat and the hunter's stooping position and mistook him for another wolf.—Big Horn County Rustler.

A FIVE-MINUTE TALK.

Could we have the favor of a personal interview with almost any reader of this paper we are quite confident we could convince him of the honest sincerity of our belief and moreover, could produce reliable evidence to prove our statements. We do not admire and never use sensational advertising, believing that honest and exact statements together with the testimony of responsibl people, concering an article of true merit, will in the end gain the fullest confidence of the people. For this reason we shall tell you only what we postively know ynd can fully prove. During the last year numerous cases of obstinate blood diseases of long standing have been absolutely cured; victims of faundice and liver troubles have been restored to health: sufferers from constipation and its attendant evils, write us of relief and cure, and hundreds of people debilitated by disease, old age and overwork, who have no appetite and could not sleep, have been made well and strong again by taking Sawyer's Dandelion Compound. It contains no chemicals, has, no inert and dirty sediment, is better, purer and costs less than any other spring medicine.

The second night's production of the opera, Frogs of Windham, was given at Music Hall last evening to a very large and highly interested audience. The singing etc., was of the same high order as that of the preceeding night. The piece will be given to night for the last time.

Palestime Castle, A. O. K. of M. C. held another very enjoyable sociable at their hall last evening. It was well attended and all those present passed a very pleasant evening. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening's amusement, Heine's orchestra furnishing excellent music therefor. Professor Fred Buckley prompted.

People have no idea how crude and cruel soap can be. It takes off dirt. So far, so good; but what else does it do?

It cuts the skin and frets the under-skin; makes redness and roughness and leads to worse. Not soap, but the alkali in it.

Pears' Soap has no free, alkali in it. It neither red dens nor roughens the skin. It responds to water in stantly; washes and rinses off in a twinkling; is as gentle as strong; and the after-effect is every way good.

All sorts of stores sell it, especially druggists; all sorts of people use it.

Our Guarantee:

Our machines, including tires, are guaranteed to be free from imperfection, and we will replace, ithout charge, any parts returned within a year from purchase. In speaking of tires the pulic nas now learned that the best pneumatic tire has a removable inner tube. We have advocated this from the first, you know Victor Bicycles have inner tubes. The saving of time is very important; we must therefore have a tire which is easily repaired in case of puncture To accomplish this we need a tire from which the inner tube can be readily and wholly removed This should be done without the necessity of taking the wheel from the frame, so it naturally follows that we must have a two-ended tube removable through the rim. This is the Victor.
