CONGRESS ONCE MORE. Both Branches Get to Work Again After the Holiday Recess.

NOT A LARGE ATTENDANCE. Senator Call Had a Couple of Closely Related Cuban Resolutions, and Senator Peffer Spoke For His Monetary Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The senate reassembled at noon today, after the two weeks' holiday recess. The meeting was without unusual incident, the attendance on the floor and in the galleries being somewhat meager.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) called attention to a petition of unusual interest which he presented. It was from Charles Francis Adams, president, and others of the Massachusetts Historical society, urging that the old ship Constitution be permanently preserved and placed at the Washington navy yard.

Among the bills introduced were those by Mr. Peffer (Kan.), 'to improve the banking business,' and by Mr. Shoup (Ida.) as to alien ownership of land in territories.

Call's Resolutions. The first reference to Cuba was in two resolutions offered by Mr. Call (Dem., Fla.). The first requests the president to send to the senate, in secret or open session, as he may deem best, all reports relating to the condemnation to life imprisonment in chains by the Spanish authorities at Havana of Julio Sanguily, an American citizen.

Mr. Peffer then addressed the senate, reading from manuscript, on his resolution for a national monetary commission. The resolution recites that, whereas the result of the recent election did not show a majority of voters favorable to any one monetary policy, a commission of five members be created to investigate the entire monetary subject and report within a year.

There was a fair attendance in the house when that body reassembled today, after the holiday recess. The galleries also were well filled. The following resolution was adopted on motion of Mr. Broderick (Rep., Kan.):

"Whereas, There are large and valuable tracts of land in Kansas embraced in the grant to the Union Pacific Railroad company to which patents have not yet been issued, and

"Whereas, Most of these lands have been sold by said company to bona fide purchasers, who are in possession and who have made lasting and valuable improvements thereon, and

"Whereas, The land offices at Topeka have allowed and are allowing homestead entries to be made upon these lands without apparent legal authority; therefore,

"Resolved, That the secretary of the interior be directed to report to the house the cause of the omission to issue patents to said lands and the authority under which the land officers pretend to act in permitting these entries to be made."

Under the order the debate on the bill will close tomorrow. It was arranged that Mr. Loud of California and Mr. Quigg of New York should control the time for and against the measure.

AN ARCTIC SUMMER HOTEL. A Real Novelty in Seventy-eight Degrees North Latitude.

I mentioned in my last article the hotel that had been erected on the little spot of land in Advent Bay, and, as a hotel in latitude seventy-eight degrees north is a novelty, it may interest some readers to have a description of it.

An enthusiastic Norwegian sportsman had made it his headquarters, and there were also some English ladies patronizing it. Once a week the Norwegian company which put it up runs a mail boat, carrying passengers and letters; it has its own postoffice and its own stamps, which, however, only frank letters as far as Tromso.

The scenery all around us was very grand, but the hotel, flaunting its Norwegian flag—Spitzenbergen, though claimed by Russia and Norway, is really no man's land—almost forbade the belief that we were actually in the region of the pole; yet we were then a good deal north of the spot where Franklin and his gallant crew died.

The Efficacy of a Countersign.

While Colonel Gillam, with the Middle Tennessee regiment, was occupying Nashville during the late war, he stationed sentries and patrols in all the principal streets of the city.

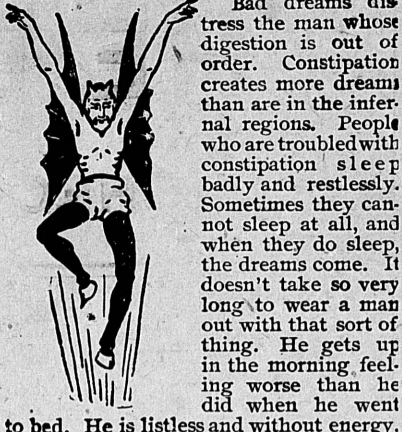

"Halt! Who goes there?" "A citizen," was the response. "Advance and give the countersign."

"Well, begorah! ye don't pass this way until ye say Bunker Hill." The citizen, appreciating the situation, smiled and advanced to the sentry, and cautiously whispered the magic words.

A Curious Prayer.

At an Armenian meeting in the East End of London the other night, Mr. Benn relieved its seriousness by the relation of an incident at once grotesque and pathetic, says Tit-Bits. At a Salvation Army meeting recently, he said, a fervent Salvationist prayed, with all the intensity of his faith, that God would "break the Sultan's heart."

General Walker.

The late General Walker who died so suddenly in Barton on Tuesday morning was one of America's most notable scholars and public men and a life-long personal friend of the editor of this paper. During the war he was on General Couch's staff and at Gettysburg, was seriously wounded in the battle, and was also a prisoner of war. He was a man of marked ability and of rare achievement. He was a student, a thinker and a man of affairs. His talent was largely in practical directions, and it found a fitting field in his position as head of the Institute of Technology of Boston. Here he was highly energetic, thoroughly intelligent, and evinced a marked capacity for administrative direction. His services in this sphere have been invaluable, and it will be difficult, indeed, to fill the vacancy made by his loss. He was a man apparently instinct with vitality and with a capacity for effort that is not often equalled. As a thinker, he was bold, vigorous and independent. His first contributions to authorship were in the newspapers of the land, he having been connected in early life with the Springfield Republican, where that remarkable judge of men, the second Samuel Bowles, fully appreciated his capacity.

His war record was of the most creditable character. He was the same strong, self-reliant man there that he was throughout life. His contributions to the study of political economy are held in high estimation. He never failed to give his attention to important public questions, and to devote his best power to information and argument with regard to them. In him is lost one of the most useful of citizens, and one who will long be remembered for the impress of his character upon the generations in which he lived.

These men came from New York, New Rochelle, Mamaroneck, Portchester and other way stations. By the time the train reached Stamford it had aboard the regular complement of gamblers, some 250. The detectives had mingled with these men and conversed with them without exciting any suspicion. When Stamford was reached the detectives alighted from the train and in company with the gamblers walked to the pool rooms. As the scene in both rooms was practically the same a description of but one, the Eastern News and Money Transfer company, will be given. After passing the doors without being questioned, the detectives passed a few minutes in examining the room and the occupants. There was nothing transpiring at first; but not many minutes had passed before the second betting of the Black-Jack races was called. After the odds had been written on the blackboard and thoroughly scanned the bets were placed. Several of the detectives placed bets, in order to secure additional evidence.

A few minutes passed and then the signal agreed upon was given. The detectives made for the office, which was separated from the main room by a railing surmounted by ground glass. The door was locked; but this did not stop the men. It was kicked in and entrance effected. The attack was a complete surprise. For a moment those in the main room did not realize what had occurred. Then someone spoke up with the cry of "Police." The scene that followed defies description. There are several exits to the place, provided for similar emergencies. Towards these the 150 men in the place raced as if for dear life. It was every man for himself and in consequence the only ones who escaped were the first few through them. Packed into the narrow doorways was a cursing, howling, frightened crowd. Those in front were unable to go forward and those in the rear would not stop from pushing toward the door. In consequence not a few were bruised.

While this scene was being enacted in the main room, another was occurring in the office. After the officers broke through the door they grabbed for the men there. A little resistance was made. Chairs were raised and in two instances, revolvers drawn. The detectives, however, were not there for fun and they too drew pistols. This had the effect of taking all the fight out of the pool room employes and made their capture an easy matter. No other arrests were made. The spectators and the race players, who were in the main room were not molested.

The other pool room was one run by Michael Feehey. The crowd in this room was as large as in the other. The employes were all captured. This room although supposed to be the property of Feehey, is said to be backed by John H. Lee and John McDevitt. The Eastern News and Money Transfer company is one of Gleason's rooms. Joe Leslie and Thomas A. Plunkett managed it for Gleason.

The raid was no sooner over than operations commenced. The races were finished and the rooms closed. It is said by those who are in a position to know that the rooms will be open to-day as usual. The places were stripped of books, slips, blackboards, desks, and everything else that might be used as evidence. The stuff was carted to the police headquarters, and will be taken to Bridgeport to-day.

The special session was adjourned until Saturday, Jan. 15, when the evidence in the case will be submitted by the Law and Order league and the cases disposed of.

AN EMPHATIC "YES."

That is the Answer Norwalk Gives.

Not long ago we inquired the condition of Norwalk's citizens. We asked if they were troubled with bad breath, hawking, hemming, gagging, nausea, husky voice, drooping into the throat, bad taste in the mouth, loss of the senses of taste, smell or hearing, slime in the throat, weak eyes, matter collecting in the eyes, sounds in the ears, excessive sneezing, scabs in the nose, or pain across the eyes; we asked if they were subject to frequent colds, headaches, backaches, side aches, neuralgia, itching and burning of the nose, visions of spots floating before the eyes, and sleeplessness caused by a stuffed head, or by throat filling on lying down; if they were troubled with catarrh in any or all of its forms. And from hundreds of throats came the answer, "Yes. In Norwalk more than any other city in the country, do people suffer from this humiliating disease."

And it can be cured. Five hundred people in Norwalk are to-day rejoicing in the discovery of the fact that California Catarrh Cure is the kind that cures catarrh. And not only from Norwalk, but from all New England come words of praise. Hear what Charles Genereaux, manager of the City Lumber company of Woonsocket, R. I., recently said:

"I had catarrh for 25 years and spent probably $1,000 for treatment, with no relief. I suffered much from constantly recurring severe frontal headaches. A few months ago I began to use California Catarrh Cure, and have not had a headache since; and as a reliever and cure of chronic nasal catarrh I believe California Catarrh Cure has no equal." California Catarrh Cure is sold at R. H. Plaisted's, South Norwalk. A great big bottle for 40 cents, and one three times as large for one dollar.

Three special bequests are made to Rosa, Bertha and John Christmaz, nieces and a nephew of the deceased, and the residue is to be equally divided between Charles F. Pfister and Louisa F. Vogel, her adopted children.

Owing to over-crowding and bad ventilation, the air of the schoolroom is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung and throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles, no other remedy can compare with it. Says A. C. Freed, Superintendent of Schools, Prairie Depot, Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I have no hesitation in recommending it to all who suffer from coughs, lung troubles, etc." For sale by E. TRAINING TO WALK.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON A GREAT WALKER AT FIFTY-EIGHT.

He Tells How to Treat the Feet, What to Eat, Etc.—Temperance a Necessity, for a Man Must Have a Clear Head in Order to Walk Well.

While training for his Christmas walk, Edward Payson Weston, who made the first record of 550 miles and won the Astley belt from the best foreign pedestrian, explained to a Journal reporter how he won his victories, and why he was a great walker at fifty-eight years.

WESTON TRAINING TO WALK.

"There is no great secret in this business," he said, "so far as I am concerned. The old army regulations recognized fifteen miles as good average, every-day marching. When pressed, an army will march from twenty to thirty miles a day for one or two days, and a small detachment, specially prepared, will sometimes do even better than that for a single day. But there is not one man in a thousand who can start off in his normal condition, without training or preparation, and walk fifty miles in twenty-four hours. So, when a man has a tramp of a hundred or more miles before him to be covered within the limits of a day, careful training is a necessary prerequisite.

This training consists not merely in getting the system in perfect condition through proper diet, exercise, sleep and mental control, but, more than all, the feet (which alone bear the body on the long journey) must be carefully looked after. Ten miles of continuous walking will pretty effectually use up the average feet accustomed only to the ordinary tasks of every-day life, and when one's feet are well blistered walking becomes unendurable torture. It is therefore absolutely necessary, as a preliminary, that the feet be toughened. Use them until blistered, and then let the water out with a needle and pickle them. This removes the fever. Thus callousness will be induced on the tender parts formerly disposed to blister. By persistence the feet will become thoroughly calloused before the great effort is undertaken, and no serious trouble need to be apprehended from that source.

In my training, as well as when walking, I rigidly eschew all alcoholic stimulants and tobacco as well. The effect of stimulants may be advantageous temporarily, but that is of short duration, giving place to greater weakness and lassitude as soon as the alcohol has done its temporary work. To rely on such artificial stimulants calls for the use of increased quantities at shorter intervals, until the brain becomes muddled and one is rendered incapable of giving that calm attention to his work that is essential to success. A clear head, next to properly prepared feet, is a most important requisite in any attempt at great physical exertion.

As to food, for four weeks before a trial I confine myself to a diet of rare beefsteak, eggs and mutton chops, with plain vegetables and rice pudding. Tea, coffee, milk and water are my only beverages. Thus I seek to thoroughly nourish the body, avoiding whatever may tend to excite the nervous system, impair the digestive organs or weaken the stomach. The object sought is to produce the least possible fatty growth, to harden and strengthen the muscles, to induce perfect action of all the functions and establish the most substantial condition of general health, both physical and mental.

The Worm Turned.

A fastidious lawyer had under cross-examination a simple-looking youth, who rejoiced in the name of Sampson, and resolved to raise a laugh at his expense.

"And so," questioned the legal light, "you wish the court to believe that you are a peaceably disposed and inoffensive kind of person?"

"Yes."

"And you have no desire to follow in the footsteps of your illustrious namesake and smite the Philistines?"

"No; I've not," answered the witness. "And if I had the desire I ain't got the power, just at present."

"Then you think you would be unable to rout a thousand enemies with the jawbone of an ass?"

"Well," answered the ruffled Sampson, "I might have a try at them when you are done, but I'll be teetotally swamped if I'd want to use your jaw." —Columbia Falls Republican.
