The Band With 'Togetherness'

by George Chappell

The five high schools of the North Central Connecticut Conference have long been opponents on the athletic field but recently they have begun a program of scholastic togetherness, to get to know each other better.

A product of this intermixing was playing up a storm recently during a combined band concert held by the five schools—Suffield, East Windsor, South Windsor, Ellington and Stafford — at the East Windsor School.

With about 400 of their parents and friends in attendance for the concert, a week ago Saturday, 79 musicians from the five schools, under the combined directorship of the schools' music instructors, performed a program which ranged from "West Side Story" highlights to the first movement of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

The score was well received, and according to Theodore Catino, director of music at East Windsor High, the affair probably will be an annual event.

"The North Central Connecticut Conference originally was strictly athletic," he told The Bazaar on Monday, "but recently a program of intermixing was begun so we might get to know each other better." The band concert was the first actual product of the togetherness movement, although the members of the five student councils have

Yeah, Yeah, Yeah!

Well — it's happened a-gain. After nearly 200 years of congenial relations — i.e., independence — the USA has again been invaded by the English. And the beachhead stretches from Enfield to Miami to Mt. Everest.

Those poor, seventeen-million-dollar-aires have taken the youth of our country by storm. And, I might add — we didn't even offer a weak semblance of resistance. A far cry from the famous Tea Party!

Not only did we not resist — we've helped them to conquer us. Maestro Sullivan opened the door — and we're dead! They can't cut the records fast enough to keep up with our purchases.

And Kleenex — well the Kleenex organization doesn't even have any to mop up their own tears of joy. As they say in the theater "There wasn't a dry (cross) eye in the house!"

The throat lozenge people are happy too, of course. The frantic screams and moans issuing from young throats have produced the largest national sore throat on record.

The Beatles have really invaded every nook and cranny of our lives. The barbers — skilled or butcher - type — should be happy: The Beatle haircuts are a cinch. A comb and a pudding bowl, and voila! — a Beatle haircut.

So, we are faced with invasion — which we have welcomed with open arms. The record players have graduated from "Hootenanny" to "Cor Blimey," and even the tweeter and woofer buffs have been caught up in the national madness. Now they no longer have to search far and wide for sounds strange and alien to the common ear. A Beatle record will do the trick every time!

So, Beatles, we in the land of the free welcome you — with open-mouthed consternation and plugged ears. But, be warned, there is a strong undercover resistance movement. Most of the members are doddering, Frank-Sinatra-vintage-ancients — but beware. These are the people who retained their sanity through the first drop of "The Bomb" — so a few bombs like the Beatles will not faze them. Their concern is mainly with the assault upon the eardrums — hence the zoom in ear-plug sales!

The only ones who don't seem to be worried, however, are the musicians! Luckily for them, up to now, the Beatles have not yet invaded their field.

Yeah, Yeah, Yeah!

HERITAGE ROAD

BY JOHN TEENE

Shirts That Made History

One hundred and eighty-four years ago — in the winter of 1780 — General George Washington's army was in terrible straits. Encamped around Morristown, N.J., the troops were without decent food or clothing. Washington reported to Congress that the fighting force was worse off than at any time in its history, including the winter at Valley Forge.

When the new French minister, LaLuzerne, visited the American headquarters he was shocked at the ragged clothes worn by the Continental regulars. It look as if the independence movement was in danger of collapsing from the sheer nakedness of its rank and file.

Into this dire situation stepped the ladies of Philadelphia, led by Esther DeBerdt Reed, wife of the President of Pennsylvania. They organized a drive to raise money for the troops. With dignity, but with charming persistence, Mrs. Reed gathered support for a ladies auxiliary to the Continental army. She wrote to friends. She harranged gentlewomen at teas. She lined up female agents to canvass for money.

Before long, teams of women were knocking on doors. They were shrewd enough to publish the names of the donors and the size of each donation, thereby nudging the reluctant to open their purses a little wider. Some contributors remained anonymous. They were given pseudonyms such as "Miss Nobody" or "Miss Who You Please." (Occasionally, when the tough-minded collectors felt that the contributor was a bit too stingy, they gave them names like "Mrs. Pinching" or "Miss Worthlittle.")

In a few months Mrs. Reed wrote Washington that the committee had collected $300,634 for aid to his army. Although much of the money was in depreciated Continental currency, the total was remarkable. The colonies had suffered four hard years of war. Nearly everyone was poor, and funds of any kind were difficult to come by.

Swiftly, the ladies of other states copied Mrs. Reed: The wives of dignitaries in Maryland, North Carolina, and Virginia organized new drives for money. The Virginia ladies had jewelry to give. One list read:

Mrs. Sarah Cary of Scotch-town, a watch-chain, cost 7 pounds.

Mrs. Rebecca Ambler, three gold rings.

Mrs. Gilmer, 5 guineas.

Mrs. Anne Ramsay (for Fairfax) one half joe, three guineas, three pistereens, one bit.

Meanwhile, the army's condition grew worse. Some Connecticut regiments mutinied.

As the summer came on, the troops grew increasingly surly. They demanded food, clothes, and back pay. General Anthony Wayne, commanding the Pennsylvania Line, wrote, "We shall now try the experiment of making three short coats out of three old tattered long ones. I must acknowledge that they would answer much better for the spring than the coming fall. But without something done in this way, we shall be naked in the course of weeks . . . For God's sake, use every possible means to procure clothing for both officers and men."

The ladies went to work. They bought linen with their money. They organized sewing circles. By November, the Maryland ladies had 600 shirts finished at Baltimore. A short time later, the Philadelphia committee reported it had 2,000 shirts ready. A Mrs. Dagworthy of Trenton, N.J., sent 380 pairs of stockings to the army quartermaster. More articles were promised.

The clothing arrived at camp in wagons. It cheered the astonished troops more than anything that had happened in the last dark 12 months. They were not forgotten after all! Somebody cared whether they suffered and froze. The men put on the shirts and went back to their grim drills.

Many of the hard-bitten Continentals were still wearing the shirts, now tattered, when they marched on Yorktown in 1781.

Going Abroad

Judith Pease of RFD 1, Broad Brook, will be going to Wales and England this summer on the International Farm Youth Exchange Program. A junior at UConn she will go to Washington Apr. 18 for orientation and will return from Europe in November. She is one of 78 young people in the U. S. to be chosen for the program, sponsored by the National 4-H Club Foundation. She will live in farm homes in the host countries and participate in whatever home or field work the teenagers of the host families are engaged in. Miss Pease is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Pease and was reared on a small fruit farm. She has been a delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress.

to make their home in Indiana. Muriel and Reg Jackson tossed an elegant candle-light buffet at their new home on Sky Ridge Drive in Somers and Muriel greeted her guests wearing a gold frock of lure fabric, designed with a blouson top. Her gold shoes completed the gleam from toe to top. Marilyn Worthington, the pretty guest of honor, wore a yellow checked shift jumper with a white blouse, featuring long sleeves with pleated cuffs. Bill and Alma Goodwin were there too, Alma wearing a lovely soft aqua wool dress. Lil Stevens wore a good looking knit suit in shades of sand and bronze and Bev Weingartner looked adorable

The most wonderful news in the entertainment world has me in a complete tizzy! Don Crichton, Thompsonville's claim to fame in show business, has just signed a contract in New York to appear as the lead dancer in Carol Burnett's Broadway musical. Don, the handsome and talented son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crichton, has been a featured dancer on the Garry Moore Show and made his final appearance with that group last Tuesday. He'll soon go into rehearsal for the Broadway show due to open in May after prior showings in Boston and New Haven. Let's organize a theater party to attend this auspicious occasion at the Shubert and applaud this local boy who has made good.

When Don Crichton played in "Hazel Flagg" in New York, we saw the show five times and as busy as he was taking singing lessons at midnight and perfecting his dance routines, he took time out to play a scene for me when I was in Lee Strasberg's directing class at the American Theater Wing. He has that magnetic star quality and whenever he appears on the stage his joie de vivre is contagious to all. There's no other I know who deserves a star hung on his dressing room more than Don Crichton!

Add proud parents: Marian and Allyn Prior of Hazardville, whose son Richard is brightening the scene at Mt. Snow with his lively orchestra. Dick, who graduated from and earned his Masters at UConn, has been a band music supervisor at a New Jersey high school, has studied at Juilliard in New York and also played at the Hotel Commodore. We predict an exciting future for his merry musicians.

And Mr. and Mrs. Myron Spazzarini must be so very proud of their two children—Robert, a rising young attorney, and Ann Marie, a drama major at Albertus Magnus College in New Haven. On a snowy morning, over a cup of coffee at the kitchen table, Ann Marie told us about her interesting work at school, including a recent production with students of the Yale Drama School. She's now directing her own show and this smart Spazzarini gal is really going places.

Harvey and Marilyn Worthington are being royally entertained before they leave

Other guests were Elaine and Lloyd Hunt, Jane and Bill Ross, Amy and Jim Wood, Gwen and Frank Trudeau, and Dick Weingartner and Howard Stevens. The sing-along-with-Gwen-and-Muriel at the organ ended in fond farewells for the Worthingtons. Their thoughtful friends gave them a handsome magazine bucket of maple and copper to remind them of their fun days and friends in Somers.

And it happened again! Another farewell party for the Worthingtons, this time co-starred with the Lions Club Ladies Night at the Olde Homestead Inn. The guests included Bob and Harriet Sagers, Shirley and Joe Kulas, Dr. and Mary Palomba, Betty and Joel LaChance, Ronnie and John O'Dell, Flo and John Skipper, Myrtle and Bob Pixley and others also at the Jackson's party. This time the Worthingtons received a pewter stein engraved with their names and the Lion's emblem.

Cocktail chatter: Who's the actress driving around Somers in a shiny red Volkswagen convertible (first name's Shirley and she appeared in "Lady in the Dark," with Don Crich-ton, also in "Claudia")? Who's that tall, dark and handsome young man who is an excellent speaker at the Enfield Speakers' Club and also treats the lady members to whiskey sours? Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brainard: Who's that lady I saw you with at the Mountain Laurel wearing a bright orange hat? Has anyone told that nearby radio announcer that the illustrious Tatoian family does not pronounce their name Tatoshun? Has Jane Keeney changed that blue velvet cast on her broken leg for a new spring daffodil print? How do you like the sportive look of a home economics teacher who relaxes over the weekend in lime stretch pants and red felt boots? She teaches in Enfield but lives in Somers.

Did you know that Jim Middleton, Powder Hollow Inn's proprietor, has a beautiful blonde sister who's a model? Sally Middleton, a former Miss Connecticut, just returned from making a film in Puerto Rico accompanied by husband Dan and a fabulous tan. Have you heard certain members of the Windsor Jesters greeting each other with "Haya, Tiger," ever since Patty Lavuar attended their meeting with Allen Widem, Hartford Times theater critic? Who's the cute date from Green Manorville David Keeney took to the Suffield Academy dance? And how about that gal at a recent cocktail party who tried a new hair rinse intended to be golden bronze but instead turned into bright green? She joined her friends saying, "I'm a bit early, but Happy St. Patrick's Day!"

TRADING POST, 51 Church St., Open Thurs. & Fri. 2 to 5, Sat. 10 to 5. — A little boy with a marvelous tooth-missing grin came into the T.P. recently and asked if we had a pair of shoes that would fit him. He looked through the shoes and found a pair. He then held out his hand with two quarters to pay for the shoes. We took a quarter and told him thanks. A little later he was back again with the other quarter and found a pair for his little sister. He left proud and happy with his purchases. We were happier too, to see him happy. Why don't you stop in too, browse around and take advantage of our bargains. We still have more linoleums, not a large selection, but the prices are low. Winner At Flower Show

Mrs. Hermina Spaulding and Mrs. Terry Leonaitis — both of Spaulding's Thompsonville store — with their prize-winning flower-show exhibit, "Tones of White."

By Beatrice Parsons
Spaulding Gardens — of Suffield and Thompsonville—captured two prizes, a first and a third, for its "Tone Displays" at the annual Connecticut Valley Flower Show in West Springfield, this year.

The first - prize winner, Tones of White, prepared by the Thompsonville store, was beautiful for its purity of design. White snapdragons, calla lilies, ranunculi, gypsophelia and tall white candles were used, with crystal for sparkle. The warm brown of a mahogany lowboy at the opposite end of the stall bore a candle floral arrangements striking in its simplicity. Above, a mahogany shadowbox with a similar arrangement against the mirrored back, carried out the theme. Other designs arranged artistically against the walls of tiny figured terra cotta-colored wall paper, created a lovely picture which drew many spectators.

The Spaulding display, prepared by the greenhouse on Mapleton Ave., Suffield, Tones of Yellow and Orange, was striking with its orchids and the carnations tinted in tones of yellow through orange, some almost rust colored. The display was posed against walls of brown shingles which brought out the colors and beauty of the arrangements. Miniature ceramic toucans perched here and there among the blossoms and Bird of Paradise plants gave the display an exotic air, most unusual.

As far as could be learned no other local florist, garden club or individual exhibited in this year's show.

"Ice cubes stuck, dear?"

"Why doesn't he ever sneak off from practice like other kids?"

All to the Good

by U. S. Senator Abe Ribicoff

My favorite sport is golf. Like many golfers, I use the "chin stroking" method of lining up putts. (Stroking my chin helps my concentration if not my putting!) One Monday morning last summer, after a pretty good Sunday on the links, I developed an irritating rash on my chin.

I visited the doctor, and he asked me some clever questions: Did I do any home gardening? Did I play golf? If so, did I rub my chin while I played?

The gardening, I assured him, was left to my wife. But I surely did play golf — had just played Sunday. When I had enough bad shots, I naturally was puzzled, and rubbed my chin.

That was it. "You know," the doctor told me, "you have pesticide poisoning." Most golf courses are sprayed with pesticides to keep the bugs away. Each time I picked up the ball, he explained, my fingers picked up some pesticide spray from the green or grass. When I rubbed my chin, I unwittingly applied the poison to my face.

You may have had a similar experience. You may even know of more serious accidents caused by human contact with pesticides. Or you may have seen fish killed by chemically contaminated streams or pheasants stunted by pesticide residues in the insects devoured by their mother hens. In any case, you have probably read or at least heard of best-selling author and biologist Rachel Carson and her book, Silent Spring.

We know that pesticides help us grow the world's most abundant and nourishing food crop and, by killing disease-killing insects, help curb illness. We also know that pesticides are poisons. If people unwittingly consume large amounts of these poisons, they can cause injury, and even death.

What don't we know, then, about pesticides?

Simply put, we do not know their long-range effect. We don't know what effect the constant application of very small amounts of highly toxic chemicals have on our food, our wildlife and ourselves. We do not know their effect on nature's cycle. Brief exposure to a little bit of DDT may cause no harm at all. But what effect will the accumulated DDT now in our bodies have 30 years from now?

The inquiry I have been conducting since last May for the Senate Subcommittee on Reorganization seeks the answers to such questions. In 13 sessions we have heard testimony from 38 individual witnesses accompanied by 24 technical experts. In the 1,000 pages of transcript taken can be found opinions ranging all the way from "all pesticides are the staff of life without which we could not survive and are really safer than aspirin."

Last week I held another, especially interesting hearing.

In one morning's session, we heard seven government experts testify on the use of pesticides on tobacco. This hearing was prompted by the issuance of "Smoking and Health," the report of the Advisory Committee to the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service.

Pesticides are used to spray tobacco leaves and keep insects from destroying this money-making crop. But, just as pesticide residues are found in food, so they are found in cigarettes. Though "Smoking and Health" found that cigarette smoking contributed substantially to the American death rate, it dismissed the danger of pesticides in cigarettes in this brief section: "Trace amounts of TDE and Endrin (two pesticides) have been detected in commercial cigarettes and cigarette smoke."

I asked Dr. Thomas G. Bowery of the National Institutes of Health — whose study on tobacco and pesticides was used as the basis of this committee finding — about this at the hearing. "This," he said, "was a poor choice of words." He explained his 1959 study showed that there had been 13 parts per million of TDE and two-tenths of a part per million of Endrin in cigarettes — more than a "trace" of TDE, certainly.

When I asked the Food and Drug Administration expert witness, Dr. Arnold Lehman, if his agency would allow food containing this amount of pesticides on the market for housewives to buy, he said it would not. Assistant Surgeon General James Hundley testified that the Smoking and Health Committee had found "no facts available" that pesticides play a significant part in making cigarettes a health hazard. When I pressed him, he said: "I can't say they have no effect."

The Food and Drug Administration can act to condemn a food product with too much (Continued on Page 12)

pesticide spray on it, and keep the American people from eating such foods. The Department of Agriculture can warn against the use of a chemical on tobacco. After it had notice of my hearing last week, it did withdraw approval for Endrin to be used on tobacco. But it has no way of making sure that farmers will stop using Endrin, and farmers can buy this product and use it despite the government warnings. This shows some of the complicated problems my committee is finding as it pursues its study of the use of pesticides. At the end, we hope to make constructive recommendations to the Congress as to what, exactly is the safe use of pesticides and what changes, if any, are needed in governmental control of their use.

One pint of oysters feeds six!

by Beatrice Parsons, Woman's Editor

With oysters at sky-high prices we have for you this week a recipe that will serve six persons from but one pint of the bivalves!

For good measure, here's a Crunchy Pineapple Cranberry Mold your family will love.

With the oysters for an entree and the mold for dessert, no need to have Lenten blues because meat must be eschewed.

"Barbecue Scalloped Oysters"

- | | |
| 60 Sunshine Barbecue Snack Wafers, $\frac{2}{3}$ of 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ oz. package | 1 pint small oysters |
| 1 cup melted butter or margarine | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup milk |
| | $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt |
| | Extra Sunshine Barbecue Snack Wafers for edge, optional |

Break wafers coarsely with fingers; toss with melted butter or margarine and set aside. Drain oysters and reserve the liquid. Place about $\frac{2}{3}$ crumb mixture in layer in bottom of shallow casserole, about 6 cups capacity; cover with oysters and top with remaining crumbs. Combine oyster liquid with milk and stir in salt; pour evenly over top. If desired slide a few whole wafers around sides to make a scalloped edge. Bake in slow oven (325°F) about 25 minutes, or until completely hot and slightly crusty on top. Yield: 6 servings. (If desired make in six shallow individual bakers.)

Crunchy Pineapple Cranberry Mold

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 (1-pound 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ -ounce) can crushed pineapple | 3 tablespoons shredded or chopped orange peel |
| 1 (6-ounce) package lemon flavored gelatin | 2 (1-pound) cans whole cranberry sauce |
| $\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice | $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped walnuts |

Easy Fluffy Dressing

Drain pineapple; add enough water to syrup to make 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups liquid. Heat liquid to boiling and pour over gelatin, stirring well to dissolve. Stir in pineapple and remaining ingredients, except dressing; turn into 7-cup ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with pineapple slices, crisp greens and holly, if desired. Served with Easy Fluffy Dressing. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Easy Fluffy Dressing: Stir together $\frac{1}{2}$ cup each mayonnaise and dairy sour cream. Makes 1 cup.

Bridge St. School is having its next P.T.O. meeting on Thursday, March 12. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. instead of 8, as previously scheduled, because of the children participating in the program.

"The Primary Instructional Program" is the subject of the evening. Coffee and dessert will be served. We hope most of you parents will make an effort to attend this interesting and important meeting.

About 50 members and their guests from Rosary Guild of St. Joseph's Church were conducted on a tour of St. Alphonsus College Sunday afternoon, Feb. 23. They were shown the main chapel, class rooms, library, gymnasium and kitchen.

Mrs. John Pohorylo said. "It was awe-inspiring." Everyone was impressed by the hospitality extended them.

Visitors are welcome to visit but are requested to telephone ahead of time. The college is having open house on April 18, 19 and 20.

The Rosary Guild of St. Joseph's Church will have its next meeting on March 11. Each member is asked to bring an article from home for a Chinese auction.

Mrs. Marcia D. Brackett recently received a letter from her sister, Mrs. John Bell of Greenwood, Mass. Mrs. Bell wrote that a son of a friend of hers was moving to Suffield in December of 1963. He was being transferred to the Chicopee branch of Spaulding.

Mrs. Brackett would like to locate Donald Strong. He has two small children. She is asking all you readers of this column if you know the whereabouts of Donald Strong, would you please call her at NO 8-5100 or me.

Mr. and Mrs. James Weaver of Miami, Fla., are parents of a son, Thomas James, born Feb. 19. Dr. and Mrs. S. Paul Coates of Suffield are the maternal grandparents.

Miss Judith Meier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Meier, is on the dean's list at Smith College, where she is a freshman. She was a graduate of Suffield High School in 1963 and valedictorian of her class.

Scoutmaster Roger C. Loomis underwent surgery at Hartford Hospital on Feb. 23 for an abscessed appendix.
