Father Paul stands before the school he built to educate parish children.

'Father Paul' Retired But His Work And Influence Will Never Fade Away

by Sandra Burns

As long as the people and parishes have problems they will turn to Father Paul for guidance! These words, written on the occasion of Rev. Paul Bartlewski's 25th anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood, are still applicable nine years later at the time of his retirement.

"Father Paul's unique personality and dynamism which propelled these projects (paying off the church debt, building a convent and a school) to glorious fruition have been felt far beyond the confines of his parish. He has left his beneficial imprint on the entire community—indeed, upon many sections throughout the State of Connecticut. He has worked tirelessly to promote improved labor-management relations. He has been active in behalf of veterans . . . in fact, there is no field of civic endeavor in Enfield which has not profited from Father Paul's unflinching desire to help." Affectionately known to parishioners, friends and townspeople as "Father Paul," Rev. Bartlewski has been pastor of St. Adalbert's Church on Alden Ave. in Enfield for the past 34 years.

Father Paul, who was 75 in March, retired last Sunday as pastor. He will continue to live in town. A native of New Britain, Father Paul's education, religious commitment and diocesan experience prepared him well for the task awaiting him upon his arrival at St. Adalbert's in the spring of 1938.

The depression was still ravaging the area. Many people were out of work. Food and heat were short. Money seemed to be even more scarce. Under Father Paul's leadership, parishioners were willing and became inspired to raise funds with bingo parties, picnics and dances, to alleviate the church debt. Seven and a half years later, the previously overwhelming debt was paid off.

Nine years later, on Nov. 21, 1954, St. Adalbert's Convent was completed.

One of the finest parochial schools in the diocese was completed by St. Adalbert's and formally dedicated Aug. 16, 1959.

Father Paul began his religious education at Sacred Heart School and the New Britain public school. After graduating from St. John Kanty College in Erie, Pa., Father Paul completed his studies at the conclusion of World War I when he traveled to Switzerland to study philosophy and theology at the world-famous University of Fribourg in 1924.

Prior to coming to St. Adalbert's, Father Paul served as assistant pastor at St. Joseph's in Willimantic; Holy Name of Jesus in Stamford and St. Stanislaus Church in Meriden.

He is a former Connecticut state chaplain of the American Legion and of the Polish Army Veterans.

Although he is today officially retired, Father Paul will remain affectionately known throughout the town and be active in the Enfield community.

The Rev. Adolphe Renkiewicz of New Britain has assumed duties as pastor of St. Adalbert's.

Taxpayers Group Meets Wed.

The Greater Enfield Taxpayers Association will hold a meeting next Wednesday at the Central Library on Middle Rd. at 8 p.m.

Topics for discussion will include a pending law suit against the Connecticut Education Association and the Enfield Teachers Association, federal income tax reform bills concerning property tax and home mortgage interest repeal.

Alfano Commended For Efforts On Community College

State Senator Charles T. Alfano of Suffield, President Pro Tempore of the State Senate, has been commended for his long years of work on behalf of a community college in North Central Connecticut.

State Senator Robert D. Houley, Chairman of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee, said the new North Central Regional Community College which opens its doors in Enfield this fall, "stands as a tribute to the leadership and persistence of Senator Alfano."

Saying this recognition is long overdue, Houley added that "without Senator Alfano's unflinching efforts over a period of several years, this new college would not be a reality."

He noted that it was Senator Alfano's leadership and persistence that persuaded the Appropriations Committee to include funds for the college both in the 1971 and 1972 budgets.

"Unfortunately, although our committee and the General Assembly itself approved funds for the college in 1971, Governor Meskill refused to release the money and the college could not start operations that year."

Final Plans Set For 'Old Fashioned' Town Celebration For This Sunday

Final plans have been set for the schedule of activities to take place at Enfield's Brainerd Park during the sixth annual "Town Celebration" this Sunday. The event, which has been nicknamed "An Old Fashioned Fourth", is sponsored annually by the Enfield Jaycees, in cooperation with the Town of Enfield, to provide an opportunity for the town residents to join together for a safe and fun July 4 weekend celebration. The "Town Celebration" also gives Enfield citizens the chance to meet and mix with politicians at several levels of government.

The Brainerd Park activities will begin following the arrival of a parade which starts at Enfield Plaza at noon, proceeds north on Enfield St. and east on Brainerd Rd. to the park. A flag raising ceremony will take place at the park and will be followed by brief addresses from several honored guests. Among the dignitaries expected to be present are Mayor Frank Mancuso, Congresswoman Ella T. Grasso, State Representative Rosario Vella, and State Jaycees President Peter Mahoney.

A picnic atmosphere will prevail, with Jaycees members cooking charcoal grilled hamburgers and hot dogs for everyone at the good old fashioned price of 15 cents each. Draft beer and soda will also be available for 15 cents.

The festivities will include rides, contests, and games for children and contests for adults. The program includes the traditional greased pole climb and an egg throwing contest for the older generation. The kids will have puppet shows, train rides, pony rides, 40-yard dashes, 100-yard dashes, sack races, relay races, wheelbarrow races, marble-in- spoon races and more. The children's games will be separated into several age groups and there will be recognition awards for all participants with special awards for the winner in each category.

The "Town Celebration" was first organized by the Jaycees in 1967 to commemorate the opening of Brainerd Park and to provide a locale for the people of Enfield to gather in celebration of the birth of our country. The "Old Fashioned Fourth" event has been growing in popularity each year and last year saw an estimated 3,000 people participate. This year's program continues that tradition and is expected to be bigger and better than ever.

take advantage of the state's lower interest rate which would be about two percent lower than the market rate. The homes are more likely then not to appreciate in value and could be sold by the state for more than what it paid for them. It should not cost the state anything to run this program.

Something more than what we now have must be done to meet the housing problems. In Enfield alone there are about 600 senior citizens on the waiting list for homes. The state tax abatement program and the assessment freeze which we now have while helpful, is not working well enough. I know this from experience as a member of the Finance Committee."

Rep. Bigos concluded saying "Since the governor disappointed of the recommended bond issue of $10 million for more facilities for housing the elderly we must find some other way to house these citizens with dignity and my proposal seems to be an alternative which will at least handle the problem in part."

the Appropriations Committee Chairman said.

If the Governor had released the funds a year ago in compliance with the legislative mandate, the college could have started last September and the people of the North Central area would not have had to wait another year.

"The Governor claimed he was refusing the college funds because of the prospect of a state budget deficit", Houley said. "We knew at the time this was not the case and now the Governor himself is admitting that he was wrong."

This year Senator Alfano doubled his efforts to get the college started.

"Through conferences with the Appropriations Committee, the State Board of Regional Community Colleges and Governor Meskill himself", Houley said, "Senator Alfano built a case for the college that could not be denied. The Legislature again appropriated the necessary $260,000 to get the college going and at long last Governor Meskill has released the funds."

Houley said it is amusing now to see the Governor and others attempting to claim credit for this newest addition to the State's higher educational system.

"The truth of the matter is", he added, "that the North Central Community College was Senator Alfano's baby from the start. It was he who worked incessantly to get the funds allocated and it is to him that the credit must go now that the college is ready to open."

Racing At Stafford On Saturday And Monday

Points and cash reach epic proportions this weekend as the second annual Permatex 250 National Championship race next Monday night, highlights the agenda at Stafford Speedway.

With over $3,000 and as many as 250 national points available, the super-quick half mile is expected to host most of the top modified drivers in the northeast, as the like of Bernie Miller, Ed Flemke, Bugs Stevens, Fred DeSarro, Ron Bouchard and Charlie Jarzombek take aim at current national leader Jerry Cook.

A 30-lap modified feature highlights Saturday's program which also includes a 20-lap All-American Sportsman battle and the popular mini-midgets. Action starts at 8 p.m.

The modifieds return Monday. At least $1,750 in purse and accessory money and 200 points await the winner of the 150 lap haul. Stevens will be looking to repeat last year's winning run and notch his seventh National Championship win at Stafford. The race gets under way at 8 p.m.

The Permatex Co. also has trophies for the winner, pole sitter and best appearing car and crew.

Both time trial fans and heat race believers get their due in what promises to be an action packed struggle to make the 30-car starting field. Time trials begin at 6 o'clock.

Gene Bergin's modified qualifying record of 20.89 (86.16 mph) is expected to fall as the entire entry list runs through the clocks, the fastest 10 times winning the first five rows. The top three times are worth $100, $75 and $25 respectively, while breaking the existing record pays extra dividends.

Two heat races will fill starting positions 11 through 26. A consolation event fills the field. In addition to time trials, the program offers 180 laps of racing.

Among those hoping to spring a surprise on the point chasers are New York entry Bill Henry, Andy Romano, and Ray Sitterly; Pinto Revolution NASCAR newcomer Don LaJoie; fast racing George Summers; and Mustang stalwart Ray Miller along with Stafford regulars Bob Santos, Billy Harman, Ed Yerrington, George Hewitt, Bobby Vee and Ernie Gahan.

The Payroll Savings Plan is for people who can't save a buck.

Image Discussed The Enfield Police And You

By CHIEF WALTER SKOWER

The Police Department, its organization, mission and public image as we know it today is the product of many divergent needs, changing attitudes and social problems. It is interesting to note, however, that organized departments around the world which are the product of many different cultures, though unique in some ways, are remarkably similar in their general concept and organization of mission and duties.

To attempt to explain the influences that have molded the Police image would require research and insight beyond the capabilities of any ordinary individual. This paper will restrict itself to a brief discussion of police appearance and its general effect on the public and in particular the police - public relationship of the Enfield Police Department and citizens of the community.

The Enfield Police Department has a compliment of approximately 50 officers and serves a community of some 48,000 people. It is a typical suburban community with some of the problems of the big city and some of the problems of the rural community. The Department, just as the community, is experiencing rapid change and is re-assessing its mission and relationship to its citizens. As such, it is probably as close to an average as you can get in a nation of extremes. In this country many police departments are extremely complex in organization and their compliments run from several hundreds to thousands and, as in New York City, to tens of thousands. Yet the vast majority of organized departments have less than ten officers.

Police Departments, just as most agencies, are influenced by their original reason for existence. In this country we were heavily influenced by the British Constabulary and night watch system of civilian protection. This consisted largely of order maintenance by fellow citizens. Actual criminal process was largely in the hands of Magistrates of the Court who often empowered hired citizens to serve warrants of the Court. Though imperfect, this system was by and large adequate to serve the predominantly rural community.

With the growth of cities, conditions changed rapidly. In the early 1800's the city of Boston experienced violent upheavals which the night watch could not control. Military troops were brought in to restore order. They restored order at the cost of much personal injury and loss of personal freedom to the city's population. Faced with the problem of too little protection by the old system and over-reaction by the military, the City of Boston created an organized police department staffed by local individuals who would not be present as invaders but rather as representatives of the citizens of Boston.

Since the Department was a compromise arrangement between two extremes, various characteristics of both the night watch and the military were incorporated into the organization. Perhaps the most visible and longlasting of those was the adoption of military type uniform and rank designation from the military.

This innovation and concept was modern and revolutionary in its day and was eagerly adopted by newly forming departments in emerging communities throughout the nation. It is interesting to note that other nations, for various reasons, adopted similar uniforming and military rank designation for their police departments.

The Town of Enfield initiated an organized Police Department

ment some 50 years ago. In changing over from its part-time constabulary-type system, it also adopted military type uniforms and rank organization. Until fairly recently, most small police departments maintained only fully uniformed departments. The reason being the lack of specialized units. Any individual officer by necessity had to be a jack of all trades and visibility and easy identification were and are of paramount importance. Larger departments enjoyed the luxury of placing specialized units, such as Detectives and Juvenile Officers, in civilian attire.

Enfield's Department presently has four working detectives and one juvenile officer in civilian clothes. It is presently outfitting its supervisory or headquarters personnel with feature blazers of various colors to identify the various supervisory ranks. Additionally, it has non-sworn civilian personnel, such as dispatchers, sub-professionals, and office personnel, who wear non-military apparel. The Department recognizes the need for citizens to feel that they are not being intimidated by a uniform in certain circumstances.

Uniformed and non-uniformed police each have inherent advantages and disadvantages of uniformed personnel — high visibility to the civilian public. If they are stopped by an officer or seek his aid they immediately know who he is and what they can expect. The mere presence of a uniformed officer can deter most crimes in an immediate area and can insure orderly conduct in most instances. A person in need of immediate aid knows help is near when he sees an officer. People feel secure and know the police are on the job. Uniforms deter on-duty officers from engaging in illegal or unethical practices. In public, the police presence is public and generally accountable to the public.

Apprehended criminal suspects are hard put to claim in court that the officer did not properly identify himself in making an arrest or initiating a search. Small children easily identify with the police uniform and mothers can instruct them to go to the policeman when they are lost or in trouble. A highly mobile American population has little difficulty identifying uniformed police officers wherever they travel. Several generations of citizens have grown to know and accept the police image as it is and any radical change would have to be nationwide and widely advertised to be effectual to any acceptable degree.

The non-uniformed police image is less intimidating to certain groups of persons. A person being arrested or involved in an investigation would often prefer that neighbors or friends not see a uniformed officer at their home or in their place of business. It is preferable that juvenile offenders not be stigmatized by being visibly confronted by uniformed officers in his neighborhood or the public schools. A suspect who hates police may talk more easily to a man in civilian clothes.

Investigators and patrolmen are more likely to see criminal activity and traffic violations when they are not in an obvious uniform. Persons complaining of police brutality or unethical police activities feel more comfortable when there is no uniform present. Persons who do not trust the system are quicker to relate to someone who does not represent the "Repressive System" which, in their minds, is represented by the "uniform of the repressive establishment". On the deficit side of the ledger is the problem of identification and accountability. Children and adults seeking immediate aid cannot easily spot a policeman who may be nearby. Suspects involved in criminal activity often question whether an officer properly identified himself before taking action. Persons who illegally represent themselves as police officers for various criminal or perverted reasons are hard to detect or identify. When the majority of a police department are not in uniform, many citizens begin to feel they are being watched by an anonymous "Big Brother Is Watching You", or Gestapo type, secret, police organization. Non-uniformed officers also find it easier to "goof off" or to engage in illegal activity due to lack of easy visibility.

There are, of course, many additional statements that can be made about uniformed or non-uniformed police. The question, of course, is how do you get the most benefits with the least problems. Various softening of the image techniques are being experimented with by various departments. They range from entirely eliminating police uniforms to wearing civilian attire with police crests on the jacket to modifying distinctive uniforms to less severe military markings and rank designation.

The Enfield Police Department is modifying its image. It wants the community to feel that the police are its representatives and not its keepers. We feel that the uniform or non-uniform question is primarily a problem of the changing times. It is a symptom rather than a cause. It is a matter of trust. When the vast majority of citizens feel that the police are fair and effective, it will matter not what they wear.

The only question will be what better serves the needs of the community. It would be unrealistic, however, not to recognize that there are alienated elements within the community and that certain modifications in such areas as police dress and organization can help in bringing the police and some groups of citizens closer to mutual respect and understanding.

There are other police actions that can be taken to improve public relations, such as providing a non-jail cell-like temporary detention room. Many arrested persons are not hardened criminals and must be placed temporarily in cells until bonding can be arranged. Being placed in a cell for just a few hours can be a traumatic experience for an Elderly Citizen or a mother who has made a minor mistake. A comfortable room with a normal-appearing but self-locking door can be used to satisfy security needs and put a person at ease. Lack of space presently rules out such a facility but such a proposed room will be envisioned in future police building plans.

Presently the Enfield Police Department will maintain a high visibility uniformed patrol division. We feel the community will, on balance, be best served in this manner along with a mix of non-uniformed detective and juvenile forces for special assignments. In addition to changing from police to civilian-style dress for staff personnel at police headquarters, we have softened the appearance of our police cruisers by replacing traditional "Police" lettering with "Law Enforcement" and "Public Safety" lettering. We are in the process of re-evaluating supervisory designations with an eye to eventually eliminating military rank.

It would be foolish to make changes just for the sake of change and some publicity.

"XL" Means You Wait, Baby!

Every now and then, I wonder if other people live under the same kind of circumstances that becloud my life. A couple of years ago, there was the problem of getting spare parts for an appliance. We're still waiting for the refrigerator repair man to get the manual that'll tell him how to fix our ice maker. He took it all apart and left the screws inside the freezer compartment. Last week, we had a whole tray of ice cubes with a screw inside each. They had rolled off the tray into the old fashion ice cube tray we placed there.

My current problem is in getting stuff I order from catalogs. There are two major mail order houses in town and every month or so, we receive a catalog or two emblazoned with such headlines as "July - August SALE! 672 Price Cuts!" These are in addition to the usual Summer and Winter volumes that seem thicker than a New York telephone book.

In the old days, before such exotic entertainment as television and x-rated movies, the mail order catalogs were known as the Dream Books. They still have an appeal and I religiously go through each as soon as received. Invariably, there is something that looks good and I'll call in my order.

A year ago, two days after Christmas, one of those catalogs was in the mail box. If there is ever a time when you don't feel like buying anything, it's two days after Christmas. This didn't stop me from picking out a couple of items that looked like good buys and for which I found an excuse for buying.

I can't remember what one was, but the other was a ream of typewriter paper at a price of 88 cents. A week after the order was placed, the catalog order store called me to say the item was out of stock and did I want to re-order.

Lou Edman Describes

Now get this; the catalog arrived by mail on the first working day after a holiday. The order goes in the same day and suddenly, the item is out of stock. Would you believe that the order was re-entered a half dozen times before the merchandise was delivered three months later? For 88 cents, it was pretty lousy paper, but it wasn't much for 500 sheets of white paper.

Times haven't changed. Six weeks ago, another one of those abbreviated catalogs landed in the mail box, this one announcing a "Summer Sellout." By chance, it came in the midst of my every-other-year compulsion to redecorate my office. This usually involves painting the place a completely different color.

Every time I do something as drastic as this, it leads to an unplanned upheaval. The change of color requires new drapes, new slip covers, or whatever else clashes with the new color scheme. In this case, the grey rug in the sitting room looked awful with the "New Caledonia Green" splashed on the walls. So what happens? A new catalog arrives on the same day the painting starts.

What's on Page 4, but a great offer of "easy-care, long-wearsculptured 100 per cent nylon" carpeting. And one of the colors was just what the doctor ordered: gold. The paint was still wet when I rushed to the phone to order a 12 by 9 foot easy-care, long-wear, sculptured 100 per cent nylon rug to go with my New Caledonia Green office walls.

After placing the order, I asked the clerk when I could expect delivery, figuring it would be four or five days.

"Oh, this item is shipped direct from the factory and will take three weeks," she told me. Having committed myself, I said nothing.

A week later, on a Friday morning, the phone rings in the middle of my breakfast and a clerk from the mail order house informs me a mistake was made in my order and it's been returned to the store. Did I want to re-order the item? Sure, I tell her, thus delaying delivery for another week, plus three.

Today, it is a week past the second delivery promise and as the girl at the other end of the phone told me: "We only send in the order; I don't know what they do when they get it."

What do you do in such cases? My walls are a lovely shade of green, but the matching carpet is somewhere in limbo, between the factory and the mail order house that has a secret code known as "XL." When you see that in your catalog, it means "shipped from the factory." Evidently, it also means "Customer waits a long time." The clerk didn't realize her hand wasn't over the phone when she discussed the order with another clerk.

Letters To The Editor

RETURN THE ATHLETICS

To The Editor:

A few days ago, the Board of Education voted, by a narrow margin, to eliminate athletics from the programs offered to our students.

To the four members of the board who recognized the vital importance athletics plays in the development of our youth, I raise my cap. To the four members of the board and the board chairman, whose vote was the deciding factor, I ask, "What do you propose for those students who can no longer participate in organized sports?"

Though it may be true that the number of students involved in our secondary school athletic programs is only a small portion of the total enrollment, I can not bring myself to believe that there are some who have little or no regard for our young athletes.

The president's program on physical fitness is evidence enough that our national leaders recognize the need for a sound body as well as a sound mind. I realize that physical education classes will continue, but without interscholastic sports, the competitive spirit will soon become a thing of the past. Is the situation so bad that we have to deny our athletes the opportunity to compete?

The last census indicates that we are a community of 46,000 people with a projected increase of another 30,000 within the next 30 years. This alone should serve as the inspiration to all of the taxpayers to voice their opposition to the abandonment of sports in our community. Without an active sports program in our schools, we certainly can't appear too lucrative to potential industries. There are many of us who wonder about today's generation. By taking interscholastic sports away from them, can we help but wonder what they think about the establishment?

I wonder how many of those gentlemen voting against athletics stopped to think about what these young people will turn to? What will take the place of the Saturday afternoons in the fall, or the winter nights in the gymnasium?

I sincerely hope the members of our Board of Education will see fit to reverse their decision and give our young adults the opportunity that was extended to us.

ON "X" RATED MOVIES

To The Editor:

To all Church Groups: If you're looking for an ecumenical worthwhile project, why not a "Ban X movies from Enfield" project.

Are we going to let our town become a haven for such movies?

Already the Enfield Cinema has had two double billings in succession rated X and Cine Enfield had a showing of Calcutta, which according to one newspaper article deserved a Z rating.

When church groups in Weymouth, Mass. protested the showing of Calcutta, movie house officials canceled the movie rather than go through a court hearing.

Why not take a stand for restoring decency to movies — it would certainly be a good example for our youth.

PLAUDITS FOR POLICE

To The Editor:

My family and I would like to publicly thank the police of Enfield for their kindness when my husband was recently stricken with a heart attack.

Their quick response to our call, and their rapid and efficient action was indeed a comfort. Though nothing could be done for my husband, we are reassured that his death was not due to a lack of immediate care.

I want particularly to thank Norman Reed, Michael Dunaisky, and William Doyer.

Their help, kindness, and compassion is very deeply appreciated.

DISPUTES HOSPITAL LOCATION

To The Editor:

In the Friday, June 23 edition of the Springfield Daily News, a headline announced approval for a hospital in Northern Connecticut. This is nice. Stafford Springs will then have two facilities of the Johnson Memorial Hospital, neither one of which will contain a maternity ward.

If the Board of Directors of the Connecticut Hospital Planning Commission or the Health Planning Council of Hartford approve of this, then they must know more than the citizens of Enfield who are expected to become the patients and pay the fees of the hospital. The Enfield residents number 46,189 while Stafford numbers 8,680 so it is hard to understand why Stafford should have two hospitals while Enfield has none.

Does it seem right that a health facility for Enfield should be so treated? Do these state officials know that Enfield has been declared an area with a dire shortage of doctors? Do they know that by Federal Law a medical center must be established in Enfield and that the Federal Government intends to supply doctors to relieve this shortage? Now if federal funds were approved for an Enfield hospital doctors would locate here voluntarily and eliminate paying for both Johnson Memorial and the doctors.

It is interesting to note in the article that the new hospital location off Route 190 will be about four miles from the center of Enfield. Now lets hope that the Johnson Memorial officials of Stafford have a better knowledge of medicine than they do of geography. The center of Enfield is approximately fourteen (14) miles from the Stafford border where it is intended to build. Is proximity to Enfield one of the criteria for obtaining federal funds?

Why has $800,000 in Hill-Burton funds been earmarked for this new construction when the Felician Sisters construction in Enfield could not get federal approval? Will this approval be given without a public hearing? Will the Federal Government finance a hospital fourteen miles away from its patients on a two lane road in a town which already has a hospital? Since the Government has already stated that the need is here in Enfield why should it spend our money in Stafford?

Are there individuals in Enfield who have financial interests in this intended construction. Will selfishness or self-interest be held higher than the public good? Could this be one of the reasons why the Felician Sisters fund drive for a hospital was not successful?

Come on Enfield, wake up! You are not a country town anymore. Abandon provincialism—grow up! You were declared an All - America City recently, while on the front lawn of your town hall a drive for funds was being made for a hospital. No, not an Enfield hospital, but one in another town 14 miles away which does not make sense at all.

Let us now see if Dr. Franklin M. Foote, the State Commissioner of Health and Chairman of the State Council on Hospitals gives his approval. Watch the newspapers and remember that you and your family should have a hospital closer to your home.

Where's The Punishment?

The recent spate of aircraft hijacking again has raised to a new high the concern among public officials and airline executives, as well as a general feeling of helplessness among citizens of several nations.

The problem today is the same as when the bizarre crime first began to plague air transportation in the 1960s, and the question is simple — what can be done about hijackers without unduly endangering the lives of innocent travelers?

Some straws in the wind offer encouragement. While the decision of Algeria to offer asylum to two recent hijackers is deplorable, it is encouraging that its officials did return the ransom money. Under those circumstances, there will be no financial reward for hijackers to seize an aircraft and flee to that land.

It also is likely that the aerial piracy which involves parachutes as the getaway aircraft refinements are making it more dangerous for the desperados to jump and partly capturing the ransom money they obtained.

The glaring area of weakness in alleviating the problem, it seems to us, is what fails to take place once the hijackers are apprehended. In 1961 Congress made hijacking a crime punishable by penalties ranging from 20 years in prison to death. We have yet to read about one captured hijacker who had the book thrown at him promptly and the key tossed away when he was convicted.

It's time to do both.

Big Time Wrestling At Springfield On July 22

Big time wrestling gets back into the groove at the Eastern States Coliseum July 22 with a championship match topping off a card which has every headliner in sport on it.

Pedro Morales will defend his title against Professor Toru Tanaka, the karate expert from Japan who is regarded as the most dangerous of the champions will have faced all year.

The bout has created so much controversy that the World Wrestling Federation has ordered promoter Vito Tallarita to come up with a referee who is able to keep the two competitors from tearing the place apart.

"I've been busy for the last week trying to line one up," Tallarita declared, "and I have just the man. He'll be right in the middle of things if anyone gets too frisky."

That man should be able to handle any and all situations, since he is Gorilla Monsoon — the 450-pound mat giant who often takes on three and four opponents at a time. Monsoon often has been declared the "unofficial world champion" because Morales has been ducking him, just as other title holders did before him.

"Gorilla will keep the peace," Tallarita laughed. "Maybe if things get too hot, we'll see him winning the championship as the third man in the ring. He's strong enough to floor both Morales and Tanaka."

This will be the second coliseum venture of the current big time wrestling series and a big crowd is expected to watch the title bout, plus a lineup of outstanding matmen. Tickets are available at Tat's on Pearl St. Telephone reservations at 745-6972.

Chargers Practice Sun. At 1 P.M.

Enfield will again have a team in the Suburban Touch Football League this year. The team which went under the name of the Enfield Vikings last year and won the league championship will be sponsored by Nelson Electric this year and will be renamed the Nelson Electric Chargers for this season.

The team has scheduled a practice session at Enfield High School for this Sunday at 1 p.m. Anyone interested in playing on the team should report on this date. The teams play one hand touch football. The Chargers will be playing their games on Sunday mornings with the local team using the Enrico Fermi High School field.

The season will get under way in August. The Six Corner Merchant, South End Little Devils and Willow Glen are three of the others teams playing in the league. Dick Prayzner is head coach of the Chargers and John Porcello is an assistant coach.

Some of the players already signed are Mike Angelica, Russ Peterson, Bob Curry, Roger Frangimoro, Carl Russotto, Dick Chase and Billy Wilkins.

RED SOX PLAY RED SOX?

Every time the Boston Red Sox play the Milwaukee Brewers we get confused as to which player is still on which team.

Last week we saw a headline that said Ken Brett had beaten the Red Sox and the next night the paper said that Jim Lonborg had beaten the Red Sox. Brett always looked like a good pitcher to us and we wonder why the Red Sox gave him up to begin with. They held onto Jim Lonborg much too long and finally let him go when he was just starting to find his way around again.

Of course we realize that the Sox have great depth in pitching and this is probably why they keep giving up pitching in order to improve the club. Their pitching talent is really so deep that not many people are able to find it.

Then you read the story and find that George Scott was one of the hitting heroes and Joe LaHoud was another. They do say that traded players will come back to haunt you sooner or later.

Billy Conigliaro may not come back to haunt anyone. It seems he took off for parts unknown and no one can find him. Maybe the Sox did the right thing in getting rid of him. After all, they do have to do something right once in a while. They usually get the worst of any deal and have the record to prove it. Tommy Harper has worked out fine and they do get a good game once in a while from Pattin. They can't seem to get over that .500 mark though.

IS VIDA BLUE?

Vida probably isn't blue yet in spite of his 1-4 record since the Oakland Athletics must pay his salary come what may. You may remember that Vida Blue held them up for a pretty fair sized bundle before he would consent to lend his magnificent presence to the field of play.

Now it does really look as though Vida held them up in reality as he has failed to display his old form. We speculated in a recent column that maybe Vida was one of these flashes in the pan since he started out like a whirlwind last year and petered out over the last half of the season. Whatever he had, the batters seemed to get used to it as they faced Vida the second time around. The batters seem to have his number again this year as they are belting him around somewhat.

Is Vida worth what they are paying him? So far it doesn't look as though the A's got any bargain but it is really too early to tell. One thing is sure — if Vida doesn't do much better he might be blue as he becomes one of the highest paid players in the minor leagues. He certainly won't carry much bargaining power next year if he doesn't show a few more games in the win column.

RAIN CREATES HAVOC

About the only thing that has a chance in the weather we have been having is water polo. And the water may be a little chilly for even that. The rain we have been having is raising havoc with baseball schedules on the East Coast. We don't just mean professional ball. It strikes closer to home than that.

The Little Leagues are really floundering around in the water soaked fields. We understand there are a couple of managers who have been rained out of seven or eight games. Many of the coaches want to get every game in because they may have a crack at the play-offs. You can't really blame them for that. They have put in a great deal of time trying to play.

I was in Baltic last Friday night and a Little League game was being played in the rain. I asked the coaches why they were playing even though the boys were getting wet. They replied in unison that this particular game had been washed out twice and they were darned if they were going to try rescheduling it again. They had decided to play rain or shine and get in at least the legal four innings. They did play just four innings as everyone was getting soaked except the coaches who stayed in the dugouts. The kids didn't seem to mind and played a good game despite the heavy dew which was constantly falling.

This made us wonder why men and boys play such games as football and soccer in the rain and yet wince when it comes to playing baseball in the same weather. Why can't they wear light plastic covers over their uniforms to keep them dry? True the playing surface may get a little slippery but it gets slippery no matter what game you are playing. Rain does not deter the golfer and we have even seen tennis being played in the rain, which doesn't do much for the tennis ball.

Baseball has always been considered a fair weather game and it doesn't appear that it will change soon. We hope the sun comes out so the boys can finish the season or a reasonable fac-simile thereof.

BOWLING

With Art Landry

The summer slump is upon us at this time at the bowling alleys. Every year we experience a slow-down in bowling activities at this time. There are some summer leagues operating but not too many. For those summer league secretaries who are still employed we have a word of advice. It is much easier for us to give you more publicity at this time of the year than we can during the peak season. We are not as busy and do not have as full a column. If you want publicity you should leave the information at the control desk at the lanes.

ENFIELD LANES
We understand that the Enfield Neighborhood Youth Center Tournament is being conducted again. You may bowl at any time when the lanes are available. The tournament will continue for a period of two weeks. What do you say, bowlers. Let's get out and support this useful cause and maybe pick up a few bucks for winning it.

Sis Clark took over women's high single in the Monday Night Mixers with a 210 game. Dawn Prajzner set a new high women's triple with a 208 game and 520 for a total. George St. Martin topped all of the men with games of 172-192-198 for a total of 562. Bob Caparoula bowled a 536 series. Jim Divine rolled games of 175, 193 and 155 for a 523 series. What happened that last game, Jim? The Impossible Four are still in first place. Our Gang is holding down the second spot and F-Troop is in the third place position. Ed Desrosiers has high average for the men with a 186 average.

Many of the previous indoor learning activities including science, art, music conversation and story will be offered outside. Team teaching will be used in an effort to allow maximum intellectual stimulation for all children and to allow the children to learn from one another and experience new things together.

New and different field trips have been planned. Volunteers will be used to supplement the staff during these field trips.

The nutrition and Health program will continue as it has throughout the year. The Center employs a director, secretary, dietician, four full-time teachers, three assistant teachers and three Neighborhood Youth Corps volunteers. The Day Care Center functions to provide a service to families who need care for their children for the greater part of the day.

The Center is located at the Hazardville United Methodist Church Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. Services are offered for children between the ages of three and six. For further information call 749-8349.

EHS Band Uniform Fund Drive Reaches $3400

The Enfield High School Band Uniform Fund Drive, started in late March, has accumulated $3400 thus far in their drive to raise $13,000 for 100 new band uniforms. The bulk of the amount raised was earned through a raffle just completed June 7 with the drawing of the winning raffle tickets. Additional amounts were raised through several events, including two concerts, a car wash, a tag sale, and a bake sale.

The winners in the raffle were: first prize (color TV), Mrs. Betty Jameson of Hillyer Drive in Enfield; second prize (super 8 movie outfit), Tim Murphy of Gordon Street in Enfield; and third prize (stereo record player), Lorraine Lesvesque of Prospect Hill in Warehouse Point. The winning tickets were drawn at the EHS Band's Pops Concert by James Captain, Exalted Ruler of Enfield Elks, who sponsored the raffle in the band's behalf.

The uniform fund drive was initiated when it became apparent that the band would not be able to expect to get new uniforms through the town budget in the near future. The present uniforms are 11 years old, and badly need replacing. Furthermore, there simply are not enough of the old uniforms, regardless of their condition, to outfit the larger bands expected at EHS in the next few years.

The organization mainly responsible for running the fund drive is the recently formed EHS Band - Parent Association, made up of parents of EHS and JFK Junior High Band members. The group will resume its activities soon after the re-opening of school in the Fall. Meanwhile, there will be two more events during the July 4 weekend for the drive. The first will be a hot-dog roast in front of Bradlees on Enfield St. July 1. The second will be a benefit performance of the musical "1776" by the Saint Martha Players on Sunday afternoon, July 2, at the Permi High School Auditorium.

Other award winners were Joseph Cammelleri, Robert Fowler, Harlan Curtis, Robert Anderson, Douglas Collard, Richard O'Konis, Sandra DeCaro and Leah Porcello.

Certificates were awarded to the following student council representatives in honor of their participation and perseverance:

Ham Radio Club Field Day

The Northern Connecticut Amateur Radio Club held its annual field day to test portable emergency equipment Saturday and Sunday on Soapstone Mountain in Somers. The club covers Suffield, Enfield and Windsor Locks.

All three towns no longer have active civil defense programs, so this ham radio group serves a real need in time of emergencies — both from natural and man-made causes. In times of floods, for example, the hams can send messages all over the country to friends of those in the disaster areas. The club had 10 stations operating in the weekend tests.

SHS Seniors Graduate

The traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" formed the procession background for graduating seniors at recent ceremonies held at the Suffield High School. Following the invocation by the Rev. T. Chester Baxter, Debra Markowski gave the salutatory address entitled "The Spirit of Spontaneity." Class valedictorian, Karen Modzelewski, discussed "The Essential Magic" in her address. Prior to the presentation of the class by school principal Valentino Bertolini, the concert band played highlights from "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Frederick Sernatinger, chairman of the Board of Education presented the graduating class with their diplomas.

JFK Student Tutors Receive Certificates

At the annual awards assembly at JFK Junior High School, twenty-eight ninth graders were presented certificates for their participation in an Elementary School Tutorial Program. Planned by Carol Schlosstein, Elementary Supervisor of Education; Mrs. Catherine W. Warren, Guidance Department Chairwoman at Kennedy and Carl F. Ohlin, Guidance Counselor at Kennedy, the program operated during the second and third terms of the school year. The students, who had varied academic abilities and interests, were bussed to the four cooperating elementary schools twice a week after relinquishing their seventh period study halls. When the elementary school day terminated, the tutors arranged for their own transportation home.

While at the elementary schools, the tutors worked with children on an individual and group basis. Some of the areas that the tutors worked in were Reading, Arithmetic, Science, Social Studies, Spelling, Art, Music and Physical Education. Their talents were also utilized in operating audio-visual equipment, offering clerical assistance, supervising playground activities, reading stories and various other activities associated with the elementary schools. The principals of the four co-operating schools, Mrs. Kathleen Boscardin (Edgar H. Parkman), William Kennedy (Harriet Beecher Stowe), Robert Griffin (Mark Twain), and Richard King (Nathan Hale), reported that the tutors performed these duties very effectively and most efficiently.

As a result of this year's successful effort by the tutors, the program is being planned again for next year. The students who helped make the program what it was are: Nancy Fontana, Susan Phillips, Nancy Crompton, Lise Lapointe, Karen Barry, Pauline Decharge, Robert Desaulniers, Linda Graham, Joseph Guidone, Cory Kelly, Kim Moynihan, Linda Nixon, Andrea Piotrowski, Kim Piotrowski, Jeremy Mark Baker, Carol Duclos, Nancy Guimond, Clifford Hoxie, Cheryl Jones, Richard Lavasseur, Gregory Lockwood, Holly Marcoux, Carol Saydowski, Debra Scanlon, Benjamin Smith, Valerie Smith, Susan Vannier and Laurie Wagner.

New Hospital State Approves

The third and final approval of plans for a new 77-bed hospital has been received by the Johnson Memorial Hospital. Notification was made in a letter to Robert C. Boardman, administrator, from Dr. Franklin M. Foote, State Commissioner of Health, advising of the necessary approval by the State Council on Hospitals.

The Council's endorsement closely followed similar approvals by the Connecticut Hospital Planning Commission, Inc., and the Health Planning Council of Hartford. Both approvals were announced last week.

According to Boardman, notification of release of $800,000 in Hill - Burton funds toward the new hospital's construction by the Federal government is anticipated within the coming week.

The new hospital will be located on a 70-acre site at the Stafford - Somers town line. It will service the Enfield - Somers - Stafford Springs area.

Greater Hartford Red Cross Flood Aid Quota Is $49,692

Greater Hartford Chapter Red Cross, representing 35 communities, will raise $49,692 to help victims of floods which have affected families in eight Eastern states and South Dakota. Connecticut's goal in the urgent appeal is $205,400.

The announcement of the fund appeal for flood victims was made by Morrison H. Beach, chapter chairman, in response to what the Red Cross has termed "the most widespread disaster in U. S. History." He reported that the American National Red Cross has scraped the "absolute bottom of the Red Cross financial barrel" and is now facing financing millions for emergency care and recovery of newly affected flood victims.

The national fund appeal goal for $10 million has been set following surveys of damage estimating that extensive assistance will be necessary from Red Cross for some 30,000 families. There are 112,000 men, women, and children now being fed and sheltered in 330 Red Cross disaster shelters who will require rehabilitation assistance when flood waters subside.

Reminding Connecticut residents of the flood damage here in 1955, and weather reports of last week, Beach noted that "we are most fortunate not to be among the disaster victims for whom this appeal is being made. A contribution in their behalf seems little to give in expression of our gratitude."

The Enfield Press, cognizant of the deaths, injuries and millions of dollars in damage caused by the widespread floods, is cooperating in this appeal by reproducing the coupon below for the convenience of its readers in making contributions.

Contributions, made out to Flood Disaster Fund, may be addressed to: Red Cross, 1000 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn. 06105.

Here is my contribution to help the flood victims who are depending on the Red Cross for assistance.

Student Prices Are Available For '1776' Matinees This Week

If you are one of those students who just finished a year of being bored to death in history class, then the musical "1776" is for you. It brings the writing and signing of the Declaration of Independence to life the way no textbook could ever do. Not only do the great men of history take on very human dimensions, but you are given indirectly a taste of the way of life in eighteenth century America, from dress, music, manner of speech, to the thinking of various colonialists.

The St. Martha Players, who are presenting "1776" are holding two matinee performances for students Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Enrico Fermi High School on Maple Street. Ticket prices are one dollar. For each dollar of ticket sales the Players will return 25 cents to the Music Departments of the high schools.

In addition to benefiting the school system, students will have an opportunity to see their friends perform.

Carl Rossi, who will play Judge James Wilson, the man who cast the deciding vote for independence, was graduated from Fermi High on Monday. But before leaving, he was voted Class Actor by his fellow students. Another Fermi student is Bill Donelan. Bill has the role of the Courier. Though the part is short on lines, Bill has a song that stops the show. Allen Sylvester will also be appearing as Dr. Josiah Bartlett of New Hampshire. This is still another role for Allen who has with the Players been every thing from a Jewish hatter in "Fiddler" to a lecherous muleteer in "Man of La Mancha." The youngest member of the cast is Rob April. Rob just finished eighth grade at St. Martha School. He will be attending the Big K next year. For more information and ticket orders, call 745-6211 (Anchorman Services).

Junior Theatre To Present 'Wizard of Oz'

Over 100 people from 8 to 18 years of age tried out for the current production of the Enfield Junior Theatre, "The Wizard of Oz," to be staged in early September at the Enrico Fermi High School.

There will be a call-back casting Saturday for several parts where more than one person was eminently qualified. Every one who tried out will be notified by telephone as to his standing.

Workshops in acting, dance, voice, make-up and other theatre arts will begin in early July.

There is still a need for older boys who are handy with tools and machinery to work on set construction. Russ Stevens and Nick Mule will be in charge of construction.
