Home Show To Offer Free 4-Day Round Trip For Two To Bermuda

Someone who visits the three-day 7th annual Greater Enfield Home Show at Enfield High School March 23-25 is going to be lucky and win a round-trip for two to Bermuda and live high, wide and handsome for four days and three nights at a plush hotel on this famous resort island.

That's the grand prize of the show, and the winner will be known when the drawing is held Sunday, the 25th, at 4 p.m.

The winner gets a round-trip Celta Airlines flight from Hartford to Bermuda, a double room at the Bermudian Hotel, or one similar; breakfast and dinner daily; service to and from the airport; and also a five-hour cruise around Great Sound, which includes lunch, entertainment and rum swizzle party.

Arrangements for the trip have been set up by R.J. McKenna & Sons, travel agency, 810 Enfield Enfield St.

During the course of the show there will be numerous other prizes and give-aways; continuous entertainment; and plenty to see and admire in the way of displays of products to add to the enjoyment of modern family living.

One of the prominent entertainers to appear will be Johnnie Mac, a regular solo artist on KWFT Western Barn Dance Gig D, Dallas, Tex. He is John MacDonald of 11 Powder Ridge Rd., Enfield.

Johnnie is a widely known guitarist and composer; records with Decca Records; has traveled with road shows in Texas and Oklahoma and flies his own plane. He has carried his American country ballads all over the East Coast, from Haddon Hall in Atlantic City, to the resort hotels in Miami, Fla. He loves and sings about the natural things of life. Also, he is a documentary-travel and promotional film-producer and maintains studios in his home where his wife, Betty, helps put together the color film he produces. Johnnie does not limit his music strictly to country western, but includes show hit classics.

"Diversification," he says, "keeps me on my toes."

Johnnie will be heard Saturday, the 25th, from 6-10 p.m., and followers of country western are in for a real treat. The show hours on Saturday are from 1-10 p.m.

At the Friday night opening, Linda Lee Kapral of East Lyme, who is Miss Connecticut, and Vince Clements, star running back of the New York Giants football team, will be the headliners, and the show hours will be from 6-10.

Miss Kapral is one of seven Miss America Pageant girls chosen for a USO tour of Europe. She and her companions will leave July 1 and will spend six weeks on the continent. Miss Kapral was chosen for the tour for her outstanding talent in the modern dance, and for personality. The USO variety show will include song, dance and comedy routines by the pageant girls, with audience participation numbers.

Clements, a football standout since his Southington High School days, was acquired by the Giants from the Minnesota Vikings, and the trade proved a bonanza for the Giants. Moving up to the active squad when Charlie Evans broke his leg last year, Clements played in four of the final six games of the season and put on a spectacular performance.

The appearance of these three outstanding personalities is only a part of the program being arranged by Chariman Bov Staff and his committee to make this year's show another in a long series of successes.

Admission will be 50 cents, and no charge for children under 10.

Chairman Richard Laffargue of the U. S. Envelope Co. and Mrs. Carol Murphy of the Springfield Daily News. Members not present are Atty. Charles Alaïmo of Berger and Alaïmo and Richard Berozsky of Berozsky Photographers.

Charter Public Hearing Set For Next Wednesday

The Town Council, at its meeting Monday night, decided to hold a public hearing next Wednesday concerning the recommendation for at-large council elections made by the Charter Revision Commission. Approval of the recommendation can come only after the public hearing.

During Monday's meeting, Town Manager C. Samuel Kissinger stressed upon the council the necessity of passage of the commission's recommendation saying that time would not allow the commission to come up with an alternative plan in time for the November election.

Following the public hearing, a townwide referendum will be held May 3 on three revisions to the charter which will provide for at-large elections of 11 councilmen, no more than eight of whom may be of the same political party.

In the referendum, 15 per cent of the vote must be in favor of the charter changes for it to pass.

The council approved the commission's recommendation by a four to three vote with Democrats outvoting the Republicans.

John Adams, Town Attorney, told the council that he had been informed by Gloria Schaffer that other communities were in the same situation as Enfield and that she was recommending at-large elections for all the towns.

LWV Oppose Electing Councilmen At Large

One of the continuing concerns of the League of Women Voters of Enfield has been the Town Charter. In 1967, after an intensive three year study of the Town Charter, the Enfield League presented the following public statement to the Town Council:

"We support the council-manager form of government for Enfield and we believe the strengths of the charter provisions exceed its weaknesses and believe the charter contains no major provisions which inhibit good government in Enfield."

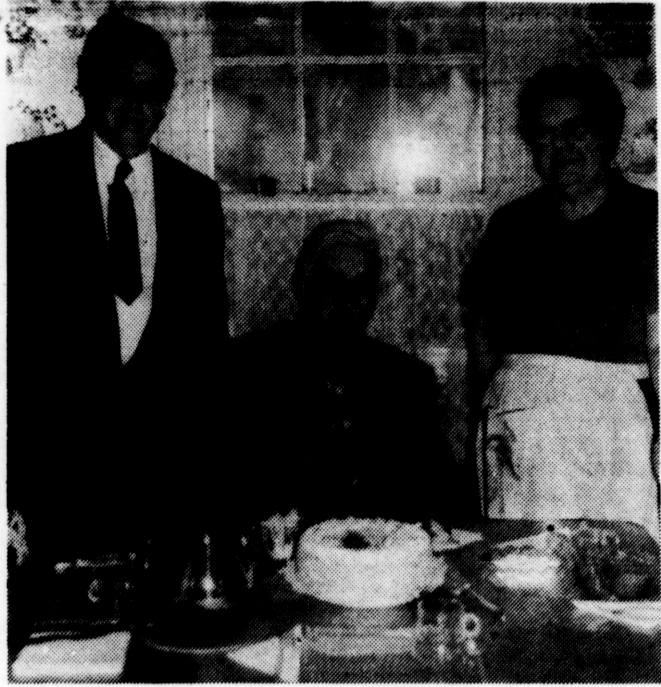

At its annual meeting last April, the league voted to maintain as one of its local ongoing concerns the Town Charter and would like to make public its views regarding the election of councilmen as follows:

"We favor the election of councilmen from council districts. The League does not favor electing councilmen-at-large because it does not guarantee representation for all areas or districts in town and it would be possible to have all Councilmen from the same section of town."

Garden Club Meets Next Wednesday

The regular meeting of the Hazardville Garden Club will be next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Library.

Governor Will Speak At Annual Prayer Breakfast

The Ramada Inn, East Windsor, will be the scene of the Eighth Annual Prayer Breakfast sponsored by the Enfield Jaycee Wives at 10, March 24. As in past years, Governor Thomas J. Meskill will again speak at the prayer breakfast. In addition to Governor Meskill, Lieut. Comm. Stephen R. Harris, intelligence officer on the USS Pueblo at the time of its capture by the North Koreans, will be speaking of his experiences as a POW and how faith in God sustained the Pueblo crew.

Mayor Frank Mancuso will also address the group. The invocation and benediction will be given by Captain Frederick W. Brink, Protestant Chaplain at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy. With Captain Brink will be 20 members of the Coast Guard Academy Chapel Choir who will perform. The Master of ceremonies will be J. Peter Mahony, Connecticut State Jaycee President. This year's theme will be "One Nation Under God."

This event is patterned after the Presidential Prayer Breakfast held in Washington, D.C., for the past 19 years. As has been stated in the past, the prayer breakfast has no political affiliation nor motivation. It is, instead, a vehicle of expression for community leaders regarding the need to bring God into every facet of the lives of citizens.

For tickets contact co-chairmen Mrs. William Anderson (749-7525), Mrs. Richard Davis (745-7972), or ticket chairman Mrs. Thomas Olynciw (749-7294). Donation for the breakfast is $3.25 and the menu includes juice, eggs benedict, assorted rolls and coffee.

The public is invited to attend.

Morrison Announces Support Of Equal Rights Amendment

Rep. John Morrison (D-58) has announced his support for the Equal Rights Amendment, which is scheduled for a vote by the General Assembly soon.

Rep. Morrison said, "The Equal Rights Amendment, which will put an end to discrimination on the basis of a person's sex, is not only an excellent thing but long overdue as well. Supporters of the amendment have shown very valid reasoning in wanting equal protection of the law for women in legal, educational and employment fields. In voting for ERA I recognize the hard work of those supporters who have pointed to the many inequalities which will be eliminated by ERA.

"I don't believe in the scare tactics being used by some opponents of the amendment, such as calling the ERA a Communist plot or arguing passage will mean the end of the family or separate restroom facilities," said Rep. Morrison.

"These arguments are totally false and divert attention from the true facts of the impact of the amendment and its necessity. The importance of ERA is the guarantee of just and fair treatment and recognition by law of equal rights for everyone."

The representative also mentioned that "some are saying the legislature shouldn't vote on the amendment but put it to a statewide referendum for ratification. To me this would be an evasion of the responsibilities of the General Assembly. We, as elected officials, should take a stand and vote on such a necessary and important piece of legislation."

Morrison also cited his total opposition to the proposed conveyance tax. He said that the conveyance tax is just another form of property tax which "we are trying to lessen and not increase." Morrison said "this tax would increase the present tax from $1.10 per thousand to $10 per thousand conveyance tax on all transfers of real property. This means that a house that sells for $30,000 would now have a tax of $300 instead of 33. This represents an increase of almost 1000 per cent."

The 58th District Democratic representative said he "was amazed that Governor Meskill finds nothing wrong in this proposal. In view of the fact that Governor Meskill brags about a surplus then why does he propose a tax like this? This tax would raise the price of almost every home $300."

"The burden of this unfair tax would fall on many of our young people who already are having a rough time trying to raise money for a down payment on a house and I will oppose this tax for it is another example of the governor's driving desire to build a surplus instead of facing up to his responsibilities and trying to help people," concluded Morrison.

Rep. Vella Pays Tribute To Local Retarded Childrens Association

State Rep. Rosario T. Vella (R-59) paid tribute to the Enfield Association for Retarded Children in testimony March 2 before the legislative Appropriations Committee.

Speaking in support of Gov. Meskill's proposed budget for the Office of Mental Retardation, Rep. Vella said that "in no other area in our entire public structure in Connecticut" is so much accomplished for people in need "with so small an infusion of public funds" as in the mental-retardation field.

Rep. Vella called the public-private partnership for which the OMR budget provides "one of the most effective mechanisms in our entire state government."

He noted that the Enfield association serves not only Enfield but the neighboring communities of Suffield, Somers, Windsor Locks, East Windsor and South Windsor.

He said the association "provides essential service to the mentally retarded and their families which would cost many times more if those functions had to be assigned to a state agency."

The Enfield lawmaker pointed to the association's continuing program in such areas as public education, recreation, home care and vocational training as well as formal and informal social services. He added: "I know of no area where private, voluntary associations have taken on so substantial a load of public responsibilities, thanks in large part to the grants-in-aid and other forms of support given them by the state."

Rep. Vella also called for long-term legislative provision of expanded regional and community-based services.

With such a plan, he said, "I guarantee that the Enfield association will discharge its responsibilities enthusiastically and effectively — and the same will be true for all the local associations which are working with determination to make Connecticut's program for the retarded the best in the nation."

claimant. One of a team of attorneys would then decide if compensation is called for and if so, how much.

In difficult cases or appeals, a three-layer panel would hear evidence and make a decision. The commission would also take into account any welfare or court-ordered reparation payments.

DeMolay Chapter Installs New Officers On March 17

Pinemeadow Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will join more than 2,500 other chapters in the observance of International DeMolay week, March 11 through 18.

Public spirited young men between the ages of 13 and 21 will acquaint the public with the purposes and activities of DeMolay's character-building programs.

Jeff Winter, Master Councilor elect of the local chapter said that the 1973 theme, "Something in Common," was chosen because it is indicative of the common principles believed in by the members of Pinemeadow Chapter. He further stated "that in addition to providing worthwhile activities for a young man, the order builds character and leadership qualities while helping better the community in which we live."

During the week of special activities, the chapter's program of events will include a teenage dance on March 16 at 9 p.m.

featuring the music of "Peace Inc." The dance will be held at St. Mary's Hall, 383 Hazard Ave. and is open to members of the Order of DeMolay, Rainbow for Girls, and their guests, an installation of officers will be held March 17 at 8 p.m. at the Masonic Hall at 129 Pearl St. Open to the public is a special church service at 383 Hazard Ave.

Revalue Program Is On Schedule

The revaluation program for the Town of Enfield, being conducted by James R. Laird and Associates is moving on schedule toward its completion date of Oct. 1.

To date approximately 95 per cent of all residential dwellings have been inspected by the Laird Co. New data cards and pricing schedules are being developed for use by the Town.

Currently, the Laird Co. is conducting sales analyses to ensure that all future land and building values will be in agreement with what is happening in the market place.

Once all the new values have been established, a review of land and buildings will be undertaken to eliminate any factual errors and insure that the new appraisal values reflect the current market value in Enfield.

At the conclusion of the revaluation, all property owners will be notified of their new assessment by mail. Should there be any questions relating to the new values, informal hearings will be held by the Laird Co. so that property owners may discuss them.

NEWS OF SOMERS

Reporter: Sandra Burns — 745-3348

Stevenson Sees Growth In Real Estate Market

Don Stevenson, newly elected president of the North Central Board of Realtors, speaks enthusiastically and from experience concerning the real estate market in Somers, where his business has been located since 1959, and that of the surrounding areas of Suffield, Enfield, Windsor Locks, and East Windsor, which together comprise the North Central Region.

According to Stevenson, not only has the market for homes increased, but the number of homes (statically speaking), available, and the rapidly increasing number of realtors throughout the area makes buying a home all the more simple and easy. The North Central Board of Realtors, with its "very capable" executive secretary, Mrs. Dot Bent, has opened a central office at 276 Hazard Ave., Enfield, to assist and co-ordinate with the real estate brokers and realtors throughout the area.

In December 1971 there were 30 members of the board of realtors. Now there are 42. The number of associates of the board of realtors has increased from 54 to 146, the number of affiliates has increased from 11 to 13. Figures further show that presently there are 35 offices in the central area that are utilizing the Multiple Listing Service (MLS).

Don Stevenson makes special reference to the term "Realtor." "Realtor," that is, with a capital "R." "All brokers are not realtors." In order to become a realtor a person must take several educational courses toward the goal, go through board indoctrination and attend regular meetings of the North Central Board of Realtors to further increase his/her knowledge and keep abreast of the ethics and trends of the real estate market in the Somers, Enfield, and Suffield area as well as across the nation.

With the able assistance of his partner and wife, Bette, Don Stevenson has been dealing in real estate in Somers since 1959.

During the years he has become aware of the interests and trends of homeowners and potential homeowners in the Somers area.

Most people that look to Somers as an ideal place to live are "generally looking for the second or third home." They want a "bigger house, more land." Due to a promotion or feeling that they have already put enough into their present home, families look to the "open spaces" of Somers. Although some of the older homes in Somers may have small lots, more recent zoning requires that each home be placed on a "builders' acre." Each homesite must have at least 175 feet of frontage and a minimum of 40,000 square feet. Furthermore, according to Stevenson, if an architectural design calls for a "home to be two or more stories, each of those stories must be finished." The old line that "of course, the upstairs could be finished." is now a bygone as far as newer homes in Somers are concerned.

Stevenson feels that potential buyers should ALWAYS consider the resale value of their investment. It is fine to say that a home will be one's last but when buying you should remember that good or bad fortune may cause you to make a change.

In discussing Somers with respect to the types of realty and the country setting the environment affords, Stevenson and his wife regard Somers as "on a par with Suffield." As in Suffield, the availability of period or "antique" homes on the market is almost non-existent in Somers. "If one does happen on the market and is priced right, it goes in a day or two."

The types of homes presently being built in the Somers area vary according to the "tastes of the builders." Raised ranches with colonial accents make the scene. The Colonial, sometimes garrison, sometimes Dutch, sometimes, just plain colonial, is also readily available and a few homes of strictly colonial design are being built.

(Stevenson's son, Peter, a builder, favors the strictly colonial and his training in historical design makes him pay the closest attention to authentic detail.)

Somers is a nice place to live. The lots are large; the architecture generally attractive; the countryside, charming. As Don Stevenson concluded "prices are going even higher." Rumor has it that interest rates will be going even higher. If you are thinking of buying or building, do so now. Your investment will certainly be worthwhile.

EAR WAX IS THE "SNEAK THIEF OF SOUND"

Many hearing problems can be due to excessive ear wax. One way that ear wax can impair your hearing is as the hairs lining the ear canals grow coarser and stronger they might eventually form a barrier and prevent the wax from getting out. This, of course, will also diminish sounds trying to get in.

If you do suspect a hearing problem of any kind, the first step is to consult your physician to find out the cause. Should it turn out to be a build up of ear wax there are products he can suggest to remove existing wax, prevent build up, and help you practice good ear hygiene.

How Much To Spend?

A proposal of Assistant House Majority Leader Rep. Astrid T. Hanzalek of Suffield (R-61st) to limit the amount of money public utilities companies should spend on advertising in any calendar year, resulted in a pitch-battle at a public hearing of the legislature's Committee on Banks and Regulated Activities Monday.

The bill, which would limit all types of advertising by gas, electric and telephone companies to one-half of one per cent of their gross revenues for the preceding calendar year, brought vigorous protests from companies which would be affected by the restrictions.

The bill provides for a penalty for those who spend more money on advertising than allowed. In such cases, the bill stipulates that the company "shall be fined an amount equivalent to the amount of excess funds expended and shall in addition be required to reduce its advertising expenditure for the succeeding year by such excess amount."

Representatives of various utility companies and of the Southern New England Telephone Co., as well as the Connecticut Daily Newspaper Association, strenuously opposed the bill.

They claimed the restrictions would place them in an unfair competitive situation as regard oil companies, and John Betts of United Illuminating Co., declared "it would be inequitable." Atty. W. Robert Bartigan, representing the newspaper group, asserted "any prohibition against advertising is a prohibition against bringing before the public a point of view."

The bill was branded as "discriminatory" by those who opposed it, and Charles P. Cooper of Connecticut Natural Gas told the committee that the energy shortage "has increased our need for advertising." Charles R. Bragg of Northeast Utilities also objected to the restrictions, and said his company "must advertise for employment competition."

Similar expressions came from representatives of the telephone company, Southern Connecticut Gas Co., and others in the utilities field.

Supporting the bill was Hartford Corporation Counsel Alexander A. Goldfarb who said the public should not have to pay, through their utility bills, for the advertising and public relations expenditures of the public service companies.

Sen. George L. Gunther (R-Stratford) claimed that Connecticut utility companies were spending more than $15 million a year for advertising and public relations and inquired "who is the competition?"

Rep. Audrey P. Beck (D-Mansfield) said "the telephone company is using my money for questionable purposes."

Joseph Bober of the Connecticut State Labor Council gave his support to the bill, stating that "there is no need to advertise a product that you can't get along without and also is in short supply."

Two leaders of the Connecticut Citizen Action Group (CCAG) called on the legislature to "begin the rescue of consumers from the disastrous policies of the Public Utilities Commission" by approving the bill.

Toby Moffett, director of CCAG said "utility regulation in Connecticut is an absolute farce. The PUC, supposedly the watchdog on utility companies for the average taxpayer, has now established one of the coziest relationships in the country between a state regulatory body and the industries to be regulated."

Martin Rogol, who represented CCAG before the PUC in opposing recent rate increases granted Connecticut Light & Power and Hartford Electric Light, told the committee that "in some cases the public is harmed in two ways by utility advertising. First, they are made to pay for ads and then they are subjected to ads which are sometimes simply not true."

Rep. Hanzalek said that "the reason for this legislation has to do pretty largely with facts" and that it was necessary "now and then to rap some knuckles" when public service companies "go too far." She believed considerable of the advertising was unnecessary and she questioned the need of the telephone company to "go into the retail business" with its "Phone Shop."

Kill Gold Fever

Last November a congressional subcommittee studying international monetary issues, headed by Rep. Henry Reuss, Democrat of Wisconsin, may have touched on the heart of the problem.

To solve the current rash of speculation about international money values among trading nations, the committee said, the "mystique of gold" first must be removed. Its suggestions for accomplishing this were to have official international banks freely buy gold on the private market to reduce individual and business speculation, and to permit ownership of gold by the citizens of the United States of America.

Whether these solutions would work is open to question. Would for example, the central banks have enough dollars, marks, guilders, francs, yen and lira to reduce the price of gold if it rises to $100 on the private market? Also, if Fort Knox were opened for private gold sales, Americans would very likely stage a 1973 gold rush. The bullion likely would wind up under mattresses and in socks.

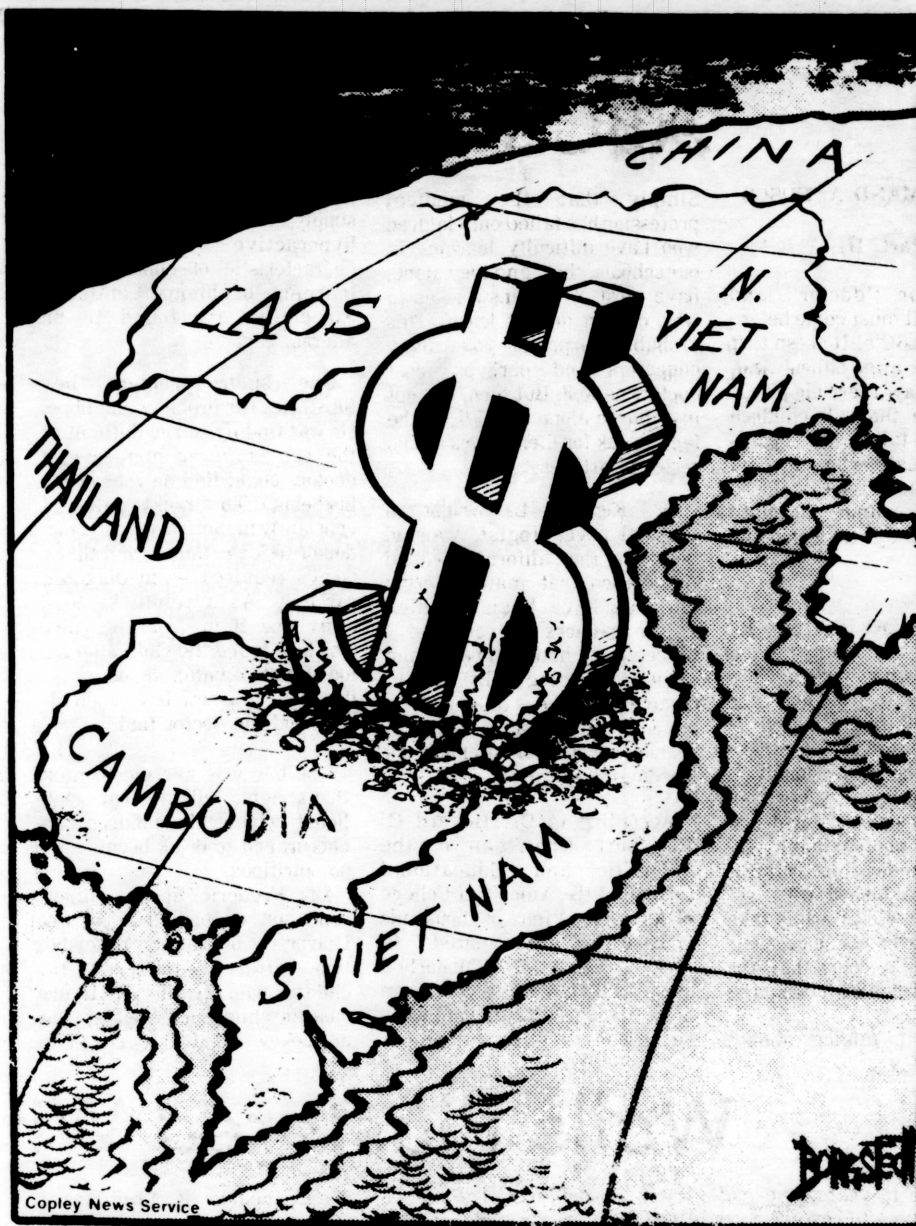

It is an inescapable fact that while people do not understand the mysteries of the international financial system, they do value money that can be stroked, admired, bitten, buried or carried in a valise across any border in the world and redeemed for value.

Against this backdrop, the exhortations of economists that gold has no value in international finance falls on deaf ears, although they are right. In reality it is the technology, strength and resources of a nation not its metals or paper that are the cornerstones of business.

However, the current gold rush in Europe exhibits that even the most sophisticated of traders and financiers revert to basic human fondness for gold when uncertainties arise. Along with private citizens they would rather convert their liquid assets to gold and hunker down to ride out financial storms. In short, they also fall victim to the gold mystique.

Thus along with the esoteric questions of currency values and trading regulations the group of nations that now will meet to search for solutions to the present fiscal problems also must deal at the outset with the psychology of gold.

If they cannot at least dampen public trust in the precious metal, whatever financial structure the group arranges will be subject to frequent attacks of gold fever.

Not part of the pullout

Public Billed For 'Clean Air' As Utility Earnings Soar

Connecticut's antiquated, utility oriented Public Utilities Commission has survived countless attacks from its critics with hardly a ruffled feather.

Now, however, the first tremors of possible legislative reform are beginning to be felt. The reason — fuel adjustment rate increases — that have ignited widespread and continuing consumer discontent. These added charges to customers are the result of a nationwide attempt to combat air pollution.

Dan Lufkin's State Department of Environmental Protection, in compliance with the 1970 Federal Clean Air Act, has reduced the legal limits of sulphur in fuel oil to one half of one per cent. As a consequence, the electric power companies, whose generating plants consume huge quantities of fuel oil, have seen their cost of fuel more than double.

Commissioner Lufkin, nevertheless, is enthusiastic about the results. "Our department's most significant breakthrough has been in the area of air quality controls," he states, emphasizing that "63 per cent of the State's population favor rigid enforcement of anti-pollution laws." While the Commissioner may be statistically correct as to desired results there is sharp division as to how the high cost of environmental improvement should be borne. Yet, in November, 1971 the PUC approved applications from the electric utilities allowing them to adjust monthly bills to reflect the price differential between the new and old fuels.

IN OTHER WORDS the high cost of "clean air" was to be borne entirely by the customer. Since there was some delay in fully implementing the new policy the full impact of the "rate adjustment" wasn't felt until the past few months — and the cries of surprise, anguish and indignation haven't stopped since.

Our knowledgeable expert estimates that more than $40 million in rate adjustment will be passed on to the consumer in 1973 alone. Nor is the amount spread evenly throughout the State.

The United Illuminating Company, principally serving the

Connecticut Spotlight

By RICK DIAMOND

New Haven and Bridgeport areas, currently has an astounding rate adjustment amounting to a near 20 per cent increase in the total charges. This combined with a 1971 rate increase, and a sales tax imposed by the legislature, has pushed the average electric bill up almost forty per cent in a little over a year.

Hartford Electric and the state's largest utility, the Connecticut Light and Power Company, have a rate differential considerably less than the UI because over one-third of their power is obtained from non-fossil sources, mainly atomic energy. Nevertheless their rates have also risen sharply.

ELECTRIC COMPANY executives continue to present a united front. Their applications to the PUC document rising costs, profits below statutory levels and an inability to attract expansion capital.

The difference between their poverty pleas before the PUC, however, and their pronouncements to stockholders, contained in their annual corporate reports, would lead most people to question whether they were talking about the same companies. The fact is that most of the State's utilities are showing record 1972 revenues and profits, with the outlook for 1973 even better. It is no wonder that utility stocks are beginning to find favor with the investment community.

Consumer advocates, indignant over the contrast between runaway charges and record profits raise a number of questions.

1. Why should the utilities not share in some of the costs of environmental protection?

2. When the cost of this protection is passed on directly to the customer does this not reduce the incentive for the utilities to bargain for lower costs?

3. Is the engineering division of the PUC aggressive enough in supervising the operations and efficiency of the utilities — or is it as lax as some of its critics claim?

4. Are the industrial rates (only 60-65 per cent of the residential rate) truly proportionate to overall costs?

5. Does the decision of the PUC to allow some utilities to become holding companies — engaged in outside business — make it difficult to properly allocate costs and regulate profits?

All of this boils down to the one important question — is the Public Utilities Commission doing its job in providing Connecticut's citizens with the best service at the lowest possible price?

A mounting body of critics say no. What is needed, contend these critics, is an adversary system — publicly appointed group empowered to represent the consumer in hearings before the PUC, a system some progressive states have already adopted.

By embodying both the investigative and judicial function, as the PUC is now constituted, perpetuates a system that does a disservice to the public interest.

Our Schools

ABC's Should Start With 'D'

By DR. ARMAND A. FUSCO

(Part II)

"D" is for "doctor" and "diagnosis." It must come before teaching the ABC's! It doesn't! It seldom comes after either! And, the children pay a terrible price!

We assume that all children who walk and talk, whose hearts and pulse beat, who eat and sleep, who hear and see, and who look and act within "normal" limits are ready to learn the ABC's.

Damn it, it just isn't true for millions — yes millions — of our children in school. When they don't learn the way we hope and expect, we call them hundreds of different names. The contrary is true, we — the professionals — are the slow learners; yet, we fail the children instead of ourselves. Among the professionals involved, the medical doctor must be first to be lashed with wet noodles, but it will probably take a lashing of 2 x 4's just to get their attention — it's clear that the research evidence isn't doing the job.

What am I talking about?

Simply that the medical profession has failed our children who have difficulty learning in our schools; they, and they alone, have most of the answers as to why children do not learn. This probably surprises you, many educators and perhaps most doctors as well. But then, it is not my charge alone and I'll let the facts speak for themselves in this series of articles.

Dr. Kenneth L. Wright, a clinical psychologist, warned doctors at the California Medical Association that many allergic children have been labelled "slow learners," "retarded," "perceptually handicapped," and even neurologically handicapped. And he is talking about one of the many medical problems which affect children's learning — allergies.

According to Dr. Howard G. Rapaport, Chairman of the Scientific and Educational Council of the American College of Allergists, "tens of thousands of cases are unrecognized." In fact, Dr. Ray C. Wunderlich suggests that allergies can cause brain damage — slight damage — because it interferes with proper nutrition and proper oxygen supply to the brain. "Many hyperactive (a common characteristic of children with learning problems) children especially, are found to be allergic."

One such problem boy illustrates the problem and hope. He was finding school difficult at the age of seven and several doctors could find no reason for his being tired, cranky, pale and constantly in motion. Finally, one doctor took the time — and that's what's required — to diagnose carefully. As a result, he took away one item from his diet which he found the child allergic too. Presto, within 48 hours — that fast — a new boy resulted. What did the doctor find?

The boy was allergic to milk, that's right, milk — that white liquid which all children are encouraged to drink because it's so nutritious.

Dr. Frederic Speer, clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of Kansas, describes two different patterns for children who are allergic. In one case the child is lethargic — slow and pokey — and always tired. In the other case, the child is restless — hyperactive — and constantly in motion. And often, both patterns persist in the same child.

He states that "as many as three thousand patients . . . were found to have allergic tension-fatigue syndrome — almost all of them previously unrecognized" in just one year in his clinic alone. Apparently, a not-so-rare condition. I ask then, how many children who are having difficulty in school are diagnosed for allergies?

Another medical problem which has been found to cause hyperactivity and short attention span in children is slightly high lead level in the blood. High lead level can cause convulsions, brain damage and retardation. Obviously, low lead levels can cause "slight" damage according to Dr. Oliver David, a psychiatrist.

This research, which is taking place at Downstate Medical Center in New York, did not mention how the lead gets into the system. Most people are aware that it can happen from eating or chewing lead-based paint.

However, other recent reports indicate that polluted air caused by lead from gasoline fumes can also cause lead poisoning. And who knows how many other ways lead can enter the body. I ask, how many doctors diagnose the child with learning problems for lead level?

Blue-blindness is still another problem which is overlooked in diagnosis. Is it so rare? Not according to Dr. Humphrey F. Sasoon, Texas Research Institute, who claims that "as much as 11 per cent of the population may be affected." This disorder can be triggered by diabetes, malnutrition, and drugs of various kinds.

The researchers state that "many cases are being missed, especially among the young, because of poor diagnostic equipment." Why is blue blindness important to note? Because great quantities of duplicated materials are used in the schools and blue is the common color of the print. I ask, how many doctors diagnose slow learners for blue-blindness?

Next week, Part III will continue to examine the medical iceberg.

Walls Plastered With History

During the 15 years, I've had the good fortune to cover a good many events and people, some of whom have now gone down in history. The walls of my office are so plastered with pictures and mementoes of the years there isn't room for more. Since I have no intention of stopping, the only solution is to put up more walls.

Occasionally, with the changing times, something you thought was great and enshrined on a wall becomes passe and means little today. An example might be a picture of an old girl friend. As a matter of fact, all my girl friends are old now.

There's a 2 x 3 foot enlargement of Dave Garroway demonstrating fiber optics on the old Garroway Show back in the 50's. Remember Dave, who ruled supreme from 7 to 9 a.m. every weekday morning? Not many people do, but when the picture was taken, he was on top of the heap. Sitting next to him is a young singer named Florence Henderson. She's probably better known than Garroway today. But the picture stays up, because it brings back memories.

There's one here taken back in 1960 of a guy named Bert Bachrach. He was a famous columnist and might still be writing his column. He has a son who spells his name differently, but it sounds the same. They tell me he writes songs, like "Rain Drops Keep Falling on my Head."

There's another shot on the wall of a fellow named Jim Britt, a sportscaster who was the voice of the Boston Braves. I don't know what happened to Britt and I dare you to tell me what happened to the Braves.

There's one picture of real sentimental value; me at age 24, height 5' 11", weight 131. It adorns a New York State license to carry a pistol. This is up just to prove to my kids their father was once young. Polly, now 14, still doesn't believe it. She doesn't believe anyone over 20, let alone 30.

There's one wall reserved for history and changes in our taste in entertainers or writers won't change the importance of the men in the pictures here. There is also one woman, not as a gesture to the militant females, but because she deserves to be in such company.

It's difficult to say where you begin in describing a collection such as this. Among the pictures are those of three late former Presidents, all signed by them and inscribed to me. Two of them I took, among several hundred others of the same subjects.

On the same wall there are framed letters from two of the Presidents, and a former Vice President. This isn't being written to show how important I was, but how big these men were; that they could take the time to drop a note was amazing.

As an example, in 1963 I took a number of pictures of Harry S. Truman at a political dinner. One was a typical Truman shot and I thought he'd like a copy. So a couple of enlargements went off in the mail to him at Independence, Mo. The cover letter asked if he could autograph one for me.

The reply came back in a week or two and read:

"It was a pleasure to sign the picture you enclosed with your letter and it is being returned herewith.

"I more than appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending me one of the pictures for my collection. Thank you very much."

It was signed: "Sincerely

yours, Harry S. Truman."

On Oct. 26, 1963, I followed the Vice President of the United States around Connecticut for 15 hours, taking roll after roll of film. One of those pictures is on the same wall, inscribed by Lyndon B. Johnson, just three months later. A month after the picture had been taken, he became President.

Six years later, LBJ was in retirement in Texas and to be honest, I missed him. Not being one to hide his feelings, I sat down and wrote President Johnson, telling him he was missed. Shortly, a letter dated Oct. 20, 1969, with the gold embossed shield of the President of the United States, and the initials "LBJ" came from Austin, Tex. It read:

"It's good to be missed and have a note like yours. Thanks for writing it. Sincerely, Lyndon B. Johnson."

You can understand why a wall like this won't be touched.

Tribute To Mrs. Sheridan

Mrs. Evelyn G. Sheridan, former postmaster of Enfield, and several other postal employees were feted at a recent testimonial.

Curtis S. Breen, who worked for Mrs. Sheridan at the Hazardville Post Office, composed this poem dedicated to her service and retirement. (Editor's Note.)

By CURTIS S. BREEN

We love this dear and gentle girl
Our pride and joy, a special pearl
Whose equal would be hard to find

In most of those who come to mind

For she is of a special blend
A gracious lady and a friend
Sent from heaven above and thus
An angel to the least of us
Always pleasant and saying
"please"

And thereby putting us at ease.

She's warm and thoughtful, has a voice
So sweet and earnest we rejoice
That we could serve with one so nice
Who is so easy with advice.

We think back to the rain and snow,
Of wintry winds that strongly blow,
Of summer days as sun would beat

Upon our heads with sultry heat
And all of this we proudly stand
Because we served with one so grand.

And those who did their part inside
As maintenance or clerk with pride

Or on rural routes way out far
Or other tasks dissimilar —
We all had lots of self esteem
Serving with Ev'lyn as a team.
Her manner made our work a joy
And laughs and jokes served as a buoy
To keep our spirits lifted high
This I'm sure you'll verify.

"Ev" knows a secret some don't know
Which makes a person live and glow,
We all can learn it if we wish,
If you will listen it is this:
To ev'ry person that you meet
In a building or on the street
Let them know by a word or glance

That you will love them in advance
As God taught us we all should do
And they will show this love to you.

"Ev" started back in forty-eight,
Sorting early and sorting late,
Because her efforts did not stop
She earned her way to the top,
And who deserved it more than she,
Who served with such humility.
Now though it's done and she's retired
We'll carry on what she's inspired —
She, who served with a graciousness you bet
You can be sure we won't forget.

Don't ride brake is good advice

Many people who use their left foot to brake are guilty of "riding the brake" while driving.

This habit is a major cause of premature brake wear and early failure.

Temporary Tower Permit Sought

The Enfield Planning and Zoning Commission has been asked to issue a temporary two-month permit to allow a 50-foot high tower to be erected on the Jarmoc property on Abbe Rd.

Peter Kaleka of the Research Corp. of New England told the commission the tower is essential in testing temperature and wind velocity and to raise investigators above sea level in an area where trees are 30 to 35 feet tall.

Kaleka said tests are being conducted at the large residential development where 90 per cent of the homes use gas for heating purposes. He said his concern was making the tests for a non-profit corporation whose name he was not at liberty to divulge.

The purpose of the study is to determine if gas heaters cause air pollution.

SPORTS HINDSITE

by Art Landry

LAST GAME FOR E.A.C.

The Enfield Athletic Club will bring its first regular season to a close this Sunday night at eight at the Enrico Fermi High School gym. If you are a lover of basketball and really enjoy the sport, we urge you to attend this game.

The Bristol Cassins will be in town to take on the E.A.C. and it should be quite a game. Players from the Hartford Caps and many colleges play with the Enfield Athletic Club as well as former Enfield High School players. We are pleased to see semi-pro sports in Enfield. We are hoping that the trend will continue.

Maybe we can become the Foxboro of Connecticut. What could we offer the N.Y. Giants football team, or the Mets or Yankee baseball teams. It would take a lot to induce them into any area. The most it would take would be a nice new stadium. The only problem with Enfield is that most of the land is already taken or is being taken for housing units.

We do have a good semi-pro club in town, and this will be your last chance to see them play a home game this season. They will play in the New England Basketball Association playoffs but these will be held in East Hartford.

MORE SPORTS FOR ENFIELD

We understand that more sports will be added to the schedule for the two high schools in Enfield. Some of the sports which were discontinued will be reinstated according to some reports.

Wrestling was discontinued when the school board tightened up on funds for athletics. We have heard that golf and tennis will be coming back. Of course we will wait until it happens since the school board will most likely have its annual budget message to give to the people. This usually says that the board will be forced to cut out all varsity sports unless the taxpayers and Town Council gives it every cent it wants. We don't expect this year to be any different.

It would be nice to see more sports in the schools including a good intra-mural sports program. It seems that everyone talks about the future but not many people want to do much about it.

Remember the good old days when teachers were all dedicated to the art of teaching? They didn't care how long they spent in the classrooms or even in the pupil's homes if they could be assured that they were turning out better citizens. There are still some teachers like that today. They are called dedicated.

What does this have to do with sports? A good intra-mural program requires good physical education teachers and quite a few of them. These teachers must be paid for working overtime. This takes money. The school board is always crying poverty. Add it up. We will be surprised if the school board allows the sports department enough money to continue operation of present sports programs. Enough money to add to the programs would astound most of the people in town, including yours truly.

SCHOOL BASKETBALL IS BACK

The junior basketball programs held at the various schools around town will get back on schedule this week. We hope the youngsters will remember to get back into action.

Play was suspended for three weeks while a townwide tournament was being held for the youngsters. Our congratulations to the winners of each division and to the Most Valuable Players chosen for this award.

BOXING TOURNEY IS COMING

If you are interested in taking part in the boxing tourney sponsored by the Enfield Park and Recreation Dept. you had better get yourself over to the Enfield Youth Center in downtown Enfield.

Angelo Lamagna is still registering boys for the tournament but the bouts are rapidly being filled up.

You must be between 6 and 19 years of age. Tryouts are conducted at the youth center from 6-8 p.m. on Tuesday - Thursday nights. The boys are well taken care of. It is always a good show and the least the boys get out of it is some instruction in the manly art of self defense.

Fenton Ford forfeited a contest to Forest Garage 1-0 to give Forest undisputed possession of first place.

Enfield Lanes played a good game as they overpowered the Bantam Division leading Gonyea's Hardware by a 1-0 score. This was only the second loss for Gonyea's as the team has been tied once. David Jensen scored the game's lone goal. Jack McDonald, Robert Russell and Gilles Lirrette were outstanding on defense.

The Enfield Mites All Star team continues to astound the hockey world by remaining unbeaten in league competition. The Mites first played Agawam who were undefeated at the time and tied them 4-4. South Windsor was the next victim for the Mites as they played at Hartford Arena with the Mites winning 10-0. The two teams squared off again the following week with South Windsor winning it 2-1. The game was later disqualified by the officials and the Mites maintained their unbeaten record.

The Mites next saw action against Windsor in the new Olympia Arena in West Springfield with the Mites again winning 2-1. The Mite's first line defensemen, James Coffin and Jim Garini have not yet been scored on in any game.

This week the Bantam Division will have action on Sunday with Starr Homes playing Enfield Sport Center at Glastonbury at 6:45 a.m.

Southwood Pharmacy will take on V.F.W. at West Spfld. at 6:30 a.m. and Hal's Shell will play Barnes Construction at Glastonbury at 4:30 p.m. Both games are in the Pee Wee Division and both are on Sunday. Also on Sunday the Enfield Squirts will play Hartford C.B.T. at Hartford Arena at 5:30 p.m. and Dairy Mart will play Nelson Electric at Avon Old Farms at 6:30 p.m.

The Enfield Mites will play Glastonbury at Glastonbury Arena at 3:15 p.m. Sunday.

Big Wrestling Event March 17

The only man ever to beat Buddy Wolf in hand to hand combat is Pedro Morales... and that figures. Morales is the world heavyweight wrestling champion. If it weren't for him, Wolf would hold that title and he means to do something about it.

That something will be a challenge to Morales' crown, coming on March 17 at the Springfield Auditorium as the feature of another outstanding big time wrestling program. This one has fans humming. They can't wait for it.

"From the moment we announced it, the bout has been getting a lot of reaction from the fans", so says promoter Vito Tallarita who has been trying to line up this attraction for several months. "I'm being overwhelmed with requests for reservations. That's how hot this match is."

The last time they met, Morales scored a victory over Wolf. The setting was Madison Square Garden and sitting in on the bout were some 22,000 people — the largest indoor outpouring of wrestling fans in the history of the game. Morales won, but it was a cliffhanger. Wolf has been aching for the chance to get at Pedro ever since.

Wolf is a 6-4, 275-pound giant from the midwest. He has been an overnight sensation in the sport, even though he is regarded as one of the game's "bad guys". He doesn't mind tossing an errant elbow or two and he frankly states that's the type of wrestler he is.

Tallarita has lined up a fine supporting cast for this program which will consist of a six-bout card. Telephone reservations — 745-6972 is the dial number — have been going fast.

Two Enfield Judo Players Honored At State Capitol

Two Enfield residents, Scott Merrill and Herbie Paulman, were among the 11 Connecticut youngsters honored in ceremonies at the State Capitol yesterday. The boys were mentioned in a joint House and Senate resolution of Congratulations for their participation in last year's North American Junior Judo Championships sponsored by the United States Judo Association and sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Merrill of 17 Queen Street, took third place in the 11 year old lightweight class and Paulman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Paulman of 91 Till St., competed in the 13 year old heavyweight class. Last year's championships drew over 350 competitors from all 50 states, Canada and Hawaii as well as players representing American dependents in Spain and Turkey.

Both boys will be competing in the 1973 Connecticut AAU Junior State Championships next Saturday at Roger Ludlowe High School in Fairfield. Merrill is one of the top junior players in all of New England and will be a strong favorite to capture the state championships next week. A sixth grade student at Eli Whitney School, he was a gold medalist in both the 1972 junior Olympic Championships and the 1972 Northeastern Interscholastic Championships. Since last year's nationals there has been only one tournament in which he has failed to win a trophy, on Feb. 17th he won a Silver Medal in the 1973 Interscholastic Championships.

Paulman, a student at Kosciuszko Junior High School, is the state's defending champion in the 100-110 pound weight class. Both boys are students of Ken Washington of the Northern Connecticut School of Judo in Suffield.

Three former residents of Enfield, the Murray brothers formerly of Douglas Dr., were also honored. The Murrays, who now live in Fairfield County, lived in Enfield at the time they competed in the Nationals. Jim Murray, the runnerup in last year's state championships, took fourth place in the North American Championships in the ten year old class. Former students of Ken Washington, they now represent the Roger Ludlowe Judo Club. On Sunday, Scott traveled to Albany, N. Y. and again took a gold medal.

Whalers Squeak By Raiders, 59 To 54

BY LARRY AVERY

The Enfield High School Raiders basketballers traveled to Middletown last Thursday to play the New London Whalers in the C.I.A.C. Class "1" Playdowns. The Whalers won the game 59-54 to eliminate Enfield from further competition.

Paul DaSilva opened the scoring with a base line jump shot to give the Raiders the first lead. New London, using the cold shooting of Enfield, and the play of 6'6" sophomore center John DeLagrange and Ray Fahey, took a 16-5 lead after one period. The Raiders came back to score 18 points in the second period but the Whalers netted 21 points.

The Raiders were like a new team in the second half as Pete White hit on two jump shots. DaSilva and Mike Shirley each scored a basket and the score was 35-31 in favor of New London. The Whalers came back with two buckets but a drive by Steve Binette and outside shots by Tim Murphy and DaSilva brought the Raiders to within four points 45-41.

The Whalers increased their lead to eight points early in the final period. The Raiders kept chipping away at the score but couldn't quite muster enough to pull the game out. New London finally won it 59-54. It was a valiant effort by the Enfield squad and a worthy game to end the season on.

DeLagrange led New London with 16 points and 15 rebounds. Fahey, Calvin, Ladson and Jim Johnson each scored 10 points for the Whalers. DaSilva led the Raiders with 16 points and 8 rebounds. Pete White added 13 points and Steve Binette netted 10. New London outrebounded Enfield 41-21 and there lies the story of the game.

Religious Census Starts March 19

A religious census by telephone is planned for Enfield from March 19 through 28. This will be accomplished through the combined efforts of both Catholic and Protestant church members, working co-operatively under the Key '73 Ecumenical Committee in Enfield. (Key 73 is a continent-wide ecumenical evangelistic endeavor in 1973 with the theme "Calling Our Continent to Christ". Local activities are decided by local churches.)

A community religious census is recommended by the national Key 73 program as a means of understanding the changing religious profile in America and getting better acquainted with the needs of local communities.

The Rev. Richard Purchase, co-ordinator of the census in Enfield, has stated that the purpose of the census is to learn more about the changing community of Enfield, its religious preferences, the churches people attend, the average number of children per family, occupations, and the involvement of residents in local church education programs.

The census headquarters will be located at the Enfield Congregational Church, where a bank of phones will be installed for the duration of the census. All calls will be made from this center. Key Sort cards will be used to tabulate the information gained from the census. A report will be available to the local community consisting of general information gleaned from the tabulation. Individual information, however, will only be released to the church preferred by the person who gives the information.

Sub committees have been formed: 1. to recruit and train volunteers for telephoning and related jobs (Arrangements Committee - Mrs. William O'Neill, chairman); 2. to prepare the Key Sort master cards for every family in Enfield (Preparation Committee - Mrs. Donald Jenen, ch.); 3. to inform the public so they will be responsive to the census (Publicity Committee - Mrs. Frederick Fisher, ch.); and 4. to visit those who have no phone or who have an unlisted number (Home Visitation Committee - Mrs. Dale Thayer and Mrs. Lawrence Hamilton, co-ch.).

Alarge scale recruiting program is now under way to secure all the workers who will be needed for this project. Lay representatives in 15 churches are at work getting volunteers from their churches. Anyone else who would like to volunteer their services should contact Mrs. William O'Neill, 1126 Enfield St., (745-4346).

Training sessions for volunteers will be held at the Enfield Congregational Church, 1295 Enfield St., March 12 at 10 and 1:30 p.m., and March 13 at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The sessions will last approximately 1 1/2 hours.

The General Committee asks all groups in town to inform their members of the census and to request co-operation of the members in furnishing information to the callers.

MLS Breakfast On March 14

Multiple Listing Service of the North Central Connecticut Board of Realtors will have a breakfast March 14 at 9 a.m. at the Ramada Inn, East Windsor. Reason for the breakfast meeting is a realtor's sponsored symposium on truth in advertising.

The speakers will be Dexter S. Burnham, Enfield Press and Bazaar, Miss Nancy Hoveland, Thrifty Shopper and William Powell, Journal Inquirer.

All active and associate members are urged to attend this very stimulating meeting. Any additional information can be obtained by calling Multiple Listing executive secretary, Mrs. Dorothy Bent at 749-2432.

Bookmobile Here All Next Week

The Connecticut State Livrary's award-winning bookmobile "Curious Alice" will visit the local area during the week of March 12.

The traveling multi-media exhibit of vital information on drugs and alcohol is being co-sponsored locally by Asnuntuck Community College, the Enfield Public Libraries, and the Kent Memorial Library in Suffield as part of a state-wide "Curious Alice" tour.

It will be located at the Enfield Mall March 12 - March 14 and at the Suffield Village March 15 and 16. It will be open to the public without charge all week between 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

TTF Credit Union Meeting March 22

The annual meeting of the Tobacco Teachers Federal Credit Union will be held March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Warehouse Point Grammar School.

Annual reports will be given and election of officers will be held.

Lot Coverage Rule For PDIP Changed.

The Zoning and Planning Commission has unanimously approved an amendment to increase lot coverage in Planned Development Industrial Park (PDIP) zones, following a public hearing on the proposed amendment Thursday. Original zoning regulations for PDIP zoned land allowed only 25 per cent coverage by buildings. The amendment makes the lot coverage maximum be 40 per cent. Effective date for the change will be Mar. 16.

Speaking at the hearing, William Kweder, town planning consultant, said the 25 per cent ruling was restrictive and low compared with those existing in most of the surrounding towns. Kweder also said there is another factor involved. He explained that Connecticut labor laws now require more square footage in industrial buildings for the same number of employees. A number of industries in the state have had to rearrange or expand their buildings, he said. He added it takes more floor space now than two years ago.

Robert Winter chairman of the Redevelopment and Industrial Commission, said "We can use 40 per cent nicely. We need it here or we'll have no industry at all."

Henry Zavisza, second selectman, spoke in favor of the change because it would attract more people to the industrial zone.

Atty Samuel J. Orra, agreed, saying "This will help all industry — no one will be hurt."

There were no opposing comments offered when ZPC chairman George Stewart asked for them.

McKINLEY BORN

Crouse Accepted At Baseball Camp

Daniel Crouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Crouse of 33 Middlesex Dr., Enfield, has been accepted for enrollment at the Ted Williams Camp from June 11 to 17 for pre-season baseball training.

Daniel is a student at the JFK Jr. High School.

The Ted Williams Baseball program includes basic skills for beginners and advanced techniques for the more accomplished player. Competition is encouraged and boys practice with those in their own unit. The camper has the opportunity to put this practice work to use in his games. Older campers play with boys with equal or better ability under the expert instructions of experienced baseball instructors. Only experienced coaches serve on the staff of the Ted Williams Camp.

In addition, needs of the less able boys are recognized and dealt with by understanding leaders.

Every camper is assigned to an intramural team in his own age group and plays in every game. A complete schedule of games each week is played during his stay at camp. It matters not how little or how much ability a boy has but only that he likes the game of baseball and wants to play. No boy is out of place in our program regardless of his ability. All boys compete in a Camp League and the teams play approximately six games in five days. Beside all other activities and daily instructions, camp teams will be involved in nearly one-thousand (1000) ball games throughout the summer. No boy can leave this camp without having had the opportunity to play on a team in actual competition regardless of his ability.

TLL Final Signup Is This Weekend

The Thompsonville Little League will hold its final registration Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Town Hall. Registration fees are $2 per boy with a maximum of $5 per family. Boys from 8 to 15 years old are eligible. Any boy registering for the first time should bring his birth certificate.

An umpire's clinic will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall on the following dates: March 7, 21, April 14, 18. All umpires, prospective umpires, managers and coaches are urged to attend this informative clinic. Official Tells Historical Society Of Age - Old Custom Of Greetings

How many of you have sent a greeting card during the past two months? What kind of card did you send? Birthday? Get Well? Anniversary? What did that card represent? — Caring. People care about other people and like to send thoughtful expressions of affection and feeling. This idea is ages old.

Robert J. Prew, office and personal manager of Hallmark Cards, Inc., discussed the "History of Greeting Cards" and their manufacture during an illustrated lecture before the Enfield Historical Society recently.

According to Prew, the earliest form of greeting began when early Egyptians celebrated the New Year as a time of nature's awakening and exchanged small tokens. Later the Romans did the same as the Pagan New Year celebrations blended with Christian Christmas. A Roman feast, Lupercalia, led to our modern St. Valentine's day.

Charles, Duke of Orleans, sent the earliest known Valentine to his wife in 1415, when he was imprisoned in the Tower of London. Based on the medieval code of Courtly Love, St.

Valentine's day was well established by the mid-17th century. In 1669 a bound collection of verses was published in France. It was called a Valentine writer, and helped poor swains in writing flowery greetings to their loves. Handmade elaborate cut-out designs showed up in the late 1700's. These were delicate and intricately folded. The first known commercially printed Valentine is dated 1819. During the Victorian age, the comic "Penny" valentines put in appearance. They lasted long into the 1900's. Remember them? They carried insulting sentiments.

CUSTOM GROWS

The custom of exchanging greeting cards mushroomed after three developments. 19th century increases in literacy, modern ways to print color, and low postal rates brought about by the Penny Postage Act in England in 1840. The latter made mail service available to everyone. A man named Henry Cole is credited with the idea of sending Christmas cards. In 1843 he commissioned a friend, John Horsley of the Royal Academy to design a card for Christmas. At least 1000 were printed and many were sent to friends to whom Cole owed letters. That idea is still in existence, isn't it? Only a dozen of these cards exist today. According to Prew, two of them are in the Hallmark historical collection in Kansas City, Missouri. A photo of the card and other Victorian era cards is in this display. Hallmark's 1972 reproduction of the card is there, too. The next known example of a Christmas card is dated 1848, and by 1850 Victorian Englishmen and embraced the new custom. The first large edition of Christmas cards in England came in 1862.

LOUIS PRANG FATHERS GREETING CARDS

In the United States, Louis Prang of Boston is known as the father of American Christmas cards. His outstanding lithography in the 1870's sometimes required as many as 20 plates to create one multi-colored design. Up to this time, the most popular Christmas designs had shown children dressed in the height of fashion, flowers, landscapes, kittens, birds, animals — even reptiles. Prang began to reproduce religious paintings that looked so perfect, only experts could tell them apart from paintings. By 1881 he was printing 5,000,000 cards a year. He sponsored contests to woo designs from artists. Easter cards cropped up in England and America in the 1800's. Everyday cards for birthdays, illness, anniversaries, and just plain friendship appeared in the early 1900's.

Early in the twentieth century, Germany flooded the market with penny postcards. They monopolized the trade until World War I. But times were good in America and most of the major greeting cards published emerged in 1910, among them, Hallmark Cards.

By 1920 these publishers were meeting a public demand for better quality and design. In 1929 the depression hit — but Christmas cards staggered on. If you couldn't afford a gift, you could send a card. Cards after that reflected the feelings of the times in many ways. With World War II, Santas carried flags. Special cards for servicemen appeared, with "Missing You" and "Across the Miles" sentiments.

The Cold War years of the late 40's and early fifties sharpened a demand for humor — reflected in the contemporary card, and funny Santas. The 60's and 70's have brought Personal expression of love, peace, ecology into greetings.

In 1954, it was estimated that Americans exchanged 2 billion Christmas cards. This figure had doubled by 1972. When people move, they still send holiday greetings to old friends, and most people return the compliment.

REFLECT PERIOD OF MANUFACTURE

Antique cards are more than interesting collector's items. In addition to rarity and artistic merit, they reflect the manners, tastes and concerns of the times. Greeting cards have sharpened old traditions, sparked new fads, ridiculed or shored up moral codes, and frozen styles for future amusement just as today's cards will do in the future. Though the sentiments and designs may be outdated the traditions they celebrate do survive.

Easter Seal Goal Set At $1,325,000

The 1973 Connecticut Easter Seal goal to help crippled children and adults in Connecticut has been set at $1,325,000, it was announced by Miss Linda Lee Kapral of East Lyme, state campaign chairman and reigning Miss Connecticut.

Miss Kapral made the announcement at the state kick-off dinner Friday at Valle's Steak House, West Haven, attended by over 300 Easter Seal volunteers and state leaders.

"Over 90 per cent of all contributed income to this drive remains in Connecticut to finance rehabilitation services to crippled children and adults in the seven Easter Seal Rehabilitation Centers in Hartford, Meriden, New Haven, Bridgeport, Stamford, Waterbury, Uncasville and Camp Hemlocks in Trumbull. The remainder is used for research and education through the National Easter Seal Society," Miss Kapral said.

Last year the Easter Seal campaign for public contributions surpassed the set goal of $1,250,000 by $8,000.

Miss Kapral estimated that some 900,000 Connecticut families and businesses will be receiving Easter Seal appeal letters during the next ten days prepared by over one thousand volunteers. This year's goal is the Connecticut Easter Seal Society's highest goal in its history.

The successful kick-off dinner introduced eight Easter Seal Ambassadors along with the presidents of the state's seven Easter Seal Rehabilitation Centers. The Bridgeport Pipe and Brass Company from the University of Bridgeport with 25 vocalists and instrumentalists under the direction of Stanley J. Wietrzykowski provided entertainment with Bob Norman, television personality of WTNH-TV 8 as Master of Ceremonies. Commander Frank S. Kapral of the United States Coast Guard Academy was keynote speaker.

The Easter Seal Campaign is now under way through Apr. 22.

Felician Sisters Conduct Orientation Lectures

Sister Mary Felicita

6, 1973," To each as Jesus did," the Felician Sisters are conducting a series of orientation lectures to evaluate the quality of Christian Living taught in the schools staffed by the order.

The lecture sessions are held during the time of annual retreat when the sisters take serious account of themselves as ecclesial women. It is proper that the work of the teaching apostolate be considered. The sessions are pace-setting in nature and point to summer enrichment courses. During the month of July, 1973 studies in Scripture and Sacramental Preparation will be offered.

Sister Mary Felicita's recent lecture, "The Times Are a Changin'," considered the history and evolution of the catechism. Practical hints and suggestions on how to get the most use of both pupil text and teacher manual were also presented. These religious education sessions are sponsored by the Education Apostolate Committee of Our Lady of the Angels Province. Sisters from the dioceses of Hartford, Boston, Burlington, Manchester, Norwich, Providence, Springfield, Worcester, and Fall River were in attendance.

Sister Mary Felicita teaches in St. Stanislaus School in Fall River, Mass.

In response to the call of the bishops in their Pastoral Letter of November 1972 and Archbishop Whealon's letter of Feb.

LaVoice Directs Players

"Hello, Dolly" Production

There is a "Forgotten Man" among the many personalities in "Hello, Dolly" — forgotten at least on performance nights. The audience sees only the end result of his intensive work — the show. They see the stage personalities in their roles, hear the band and enjoy the many lovely costumes . . . but never see the man who put it all together — the director, George LaVoice. He has spent five and six gruelling nights a week rehearsing his cast, getting them ready for that magical evening — opening night.

Prior to showtime, George can usually be seen pacing up or down the hall with a cigarette dangling from his lips. His mind is whirling with last minute details. He always ends up in the make-up room, lending a hand to Lorraine Redderoth, the Players make-up expert.

In a flash he's out the door giving last minute instructions to his sister, Leslie, St. Martha Players lighting director, only to return to the music director, David Jones, to tell him to pick up the tempo on a particular song in the show. If you handed him a needle and thread, he'd stop long enough to repair a hem and gulp a quick cup of coffee with the choreographer, Alan Morin.

As curtain time approaches he lines up the cast to check their make-up before they are allowed on stage.

The overture starts and the last we hear of George is "Alright, people, break a leg!"

George, with Natalie and Tony Lombardo, founded St. Martha Players back in 1968 and has since directed all their shows except "The Fantasticks" in which he played the part of the father, Bellamy. As director and actor, George has seen his favorite shows performed by the Players: "Man of La Mancha," "Fanny," "Fiddler," "1776" to name just a few. He has had offers to direct other theatrical groups, but he's usually in the midst of a Player production so chooses not to take advantage of it. He played bass for East Longmeadow's "Fiddler". At one rehearsal, the bass was unavailable, so he knelt on the floor for three hours and played the foot-pedals of an organ instead. That's ingenuity!!

George and wife, Vicki are the parents of two young boys; three and a half year old Matthew and 16 months old Damian. Besides being a busy husband, father, director and bread-winner, he plays piano week-ends at a local inn and is always ready to lend a hand whenever and wherever it is needed.

"Hello, Dolly" is SOLD OUT . . . But don't despair! Three additional week-ends are now definitely scheduled for Apr. 27, 28, May 4, 5 and 11 and 12. Get your bowling leagues and clubs together and reserve your tickets now before it's too late.

Dolly is being presented cafe-style at 8:30 p.m. at St. Martha School Hall on Brainard Rd., Enfield, Conn. Light food, mixed drinks and beer will be served from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. except during the performance. Ticket orders are being taken by Anchor Man System Answering Service at 745-6211.

Bishop Calls Special Episcopal Convention

The Rt. Rev. J. Warren Hutchens, Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut, has called a Special Convention of the Diocese of Connecticut to meet at Christ Church Cathedral on Mar. 20.

The Convention will act on proposals for the decentralization and reorganization of the Diocese.

The Convention will begin with the Eucharist at 11:30 a.m., followed by lunch and the business meeting at 1:30 p.m.

The new plan of organization calls for ten to fifteen Deaneries, each with its own council and representatives from each parish. The elected heads of the Deanery Council, the Dean and Sub-dean, one of whom must be a lay person, will be members of the Diocesan Executive Council. This Diocesan Council will, therefore, be composed almost wholly of elected persons; instead of about one-third as at present, the other two-thirds now being appointed.

Under the new plan, three Archdeacons will be appointed by the Bishop to carry out the necessary administration in each district. In addition, each Deanery may have a coordinator for local administration.

The new structure is designed to give the Deaneries the responsibility for developing programs, in place of the present Departments, which will be abolished.

Growth Pondered Population And Food

Can we stabilize world population growth and increase food production fast enough to avoid widespread disaster in the years ahead? Can we help underdeveloped countries achieve adequate nutrition and improve their conditions of life? What is the United Nations' role in organizing a worldwide effort to develop and preserve resources and protect the environment?

The March 15 meeting of the Auerbach Service Bureau International Relations Series, 10:15 a.m. to 2 p.m., Centinel Hill Hall, G. Fox, and Company Building, Hartford, will present the views of two authorities on these questions. Lester R. Brown, Senior Fellow, Overseas Development Council, Washington D.C., formerly Administrator of the International Agriculture Development Service and Consultant to the Agency for International Development. In 1966 he was selected by the U.S. Jaycees as one of the "Ten Outstanding Young Men of America."

W.J. Knight of the International Labor Organization, a specialized agency of the United Nations will report on the programs of his agency directed to solving world wide problems affecting employment.

Louis L. Gerson, University of Connecticut Department of Political Science, will moderate the meeting, second of the series, and present audience questions to the speakers following luncheon.

The meetings are open to anyone interested, and will conclude with the March 29 meeting. For information and registration contact the Auerbach Service Bureau for Connecticut Organizations, G. Fox and Company Building, Hartford.

Seeks "Host Families" For Runaway Youths

The Enfield Voluntary Action Center has been asked by the Social Service Dept. to assist in recruiting "host families" for their runaway program.

In 1971-1972 there were 139 runaway youths under 16 years of age. This year alone there have been 21 runaway youths.

The Enfield Voluntary Action Center is appealing to the conscience of every citizen, to realize this grave problem and consider volunteering as a host family. It would only be necessary to have a youth in your home one week while a team works at the cause of the problems involving the child and family.

Anyone interested in this program which began March 1, should contact the EVAC at 749-2626 or stop by the center at the Pickens Memorial Library on Mon. and Wed. 7-9 p.m. and Tues. and Thurs. 9-11 a.m. and 7-9 p.m. or call the Social Service Dept., Mrs. Allen's office 745-0371 Ext. 391 or 392.

Accent On Youth:

Marathon Contests, Useless Or Worthwhile

By JUDY WHITE

Three young people wrote to me about participation in a "Happy-Go-Lucky Gum" contest at their Pine Valley school. (Names of people, place, and product are fictitious, but the contest is real.)

"The contest," explains Beth Sanders, "determines which school in this area can turn in the most Happy-Go-Lucky wrappers or cards with the name 'Happy-Go-Lucky Gum' printed on one side. The prize is $500 and a band playing at the winning school's dance."

"At first," says Sandra Knudsen, "nobody really cared and progress was slow. Then there was a fifty-hour weekend marathon. I went just because it might be fun, with my first shift from midnight till two Saturday morning."

Tony Daniles tells of his experience: "This afternoon I went to school to help with the contest. About twenty kids sat at a large table writing madly. A few were walking around picking up the three-by-five pieces of paper. A couple were counting and packing them into a box. The radio blared Don MacLean's 'American Pie,' the workers mouthing the words as they went along."

"I sat down and made like the rest of them. When I got about twenty done, someone swept by and picked them up. Mr. Malory said they had people working all last night and the night before."

"HAPPY-GO-LUCKY GUM. The Osmonds were running through 'Down by the Lazy River.' We all knew the words by heart from hearing it so many times. At about three, somebody yelled, 'We have 608,000!'"

"HAPPY-GO-LUCKY GUM. Mr. Malory snapped another picture. Half the people there when I arrived had left, replaced by others who wandered in. Someone, picking up my pile, almost knocked over my root-beer."

"HAPPY-GO-LUCKY GUM. I could write it in my sleep. My hand was cramping, so I decided to help count. 'Jungle Fever' was playing on the radio now. Everybody laughed because it's such a stupid song."

"HAPPY-GO-LUCKY GUM. It was almost six, ending fifty straight hours of work. Mrs. Green urged people to hurry so we could finish with 640,000. I was counting like crazy. About 300 kids and fifty parents and teachers had participated, all working to get the 'Grass Roots' band and $500 for Pine Valley Junior High. We locked the room with 640,000 pieces of paper bearing those now-famous words. My hand still hurts."

I should think so. Sandra found the contest "really worthwhile: people working together to reach a goal, people who usually don't speak to each other at school. They really cared, so that, although there was a lot of fun and laughter, a lot got done."

Sandra was so enthusiastic after her middle-of-the-night stint that she twice returned to school — to work for eight hours Saturday and for six Sunday. "The feeling is hard to explain, but it made it all worthwhile. You worked with your friends and you worked with strangers. You counted, and wrote, you had assembly lines, and all the time you worked faster. When you accomplished another twenty-five thousand, not only you but the group had accomplished something together."

Beth Sanders took no part in the contest. She "grew sick of seeing cards littering the campus and kids wasting class time writing them. I am shocked by our school's reaction to the contest. I didn't expect so many people to waste so much time. I think the gum company irresponsible for involving schools in such tasteless use of time. Gum-chewing is a problem in schools; no it is promoted right where teachers try to get rid of it.

"One last thought: what will happen to all those three-by-fives? Will they be hauled to the dump, becoming part of our waste problem, or will somebody think just enough to have them recycled?"

Pine Valley students wrote "HAPPY-GO-LUCKY GUM" more than a million times before their participation in the contest ended. A diligent school reporter figured that at five slips per person per minute, more than 3000 person hours were consumed, hours the reporter thought "could and should have been put to better use — like cleaning up the school or even studying."

I'm inclined to agree.

PACE Offers Pregnancy Class

"Preparing for a baby? A free class on being prepared when your baby is born is offered on the third Monday of each month."

Parents who are taught simple breathing and relaxing exercises can share the birth of their baby as a family — having both mother and father involved. The film "Birthright" will be shown, in which a couple share the birth experience of their baby from labor room to delivery, having been prepared. A series of classes are available for interested parents.

This program is open to all surrounding communities. Bring all your questions and especially your husbands if possible.

The next meeting will be on Monday, Mar. 19, at 8 p.m. at the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Route 5, Enfield.

For more information, please contact D. Blessing, 745-1048.

Girl Scout News

LORRAINE SEELEY

Junior Girl Scout Troop No. 947 of Henry Barnard School, under the leadership of Mrs. Jacqueline Kemp, held a family swim session on Feb. 27 at the Kennedy Pool. The attendance of girls and their families was very good and all enjoyed a winter swim indoors.

Recently, an ice skating event was held at the home of Mrs. Carol Demeurs of Armstrong Rd. Hot chocolate was served to "red-faced" skaters. The troop wishes to thank Mrs. Demeurs for her willingness to have the girls at her home.

The "Juniors" are busy working on badges and are looking forward to camping at Timber Trails in May.

Karl D. Chambers of 12 Standish St., Enfield, has been named to the Dean's List for the past semester at Stonehill College in No. Easton, Mass.

Volunteers Needed!

Mrs. Inger Bolbuc, Program Coordinator for the elderly in Enfield, has asked the Enfield Voluntary Action Center for assistance in locating people to drive the elderly to supermarkets. Volunteers need only take an older person with them each when they go grocery shopping, and help with heavy bags upon returning home. (Mrs. Bolbuc, field worker at the Neighborhood Center, feels that many elderly persons refrain from buying more groceries simply because they cannot maneuver the bundles.)

Mrs. Bolbuc also needs an art teacher to give lessons to the elderly, and is looking for volunteers who bowl regularly to give an instruction class once a week from noon until three p.m.

Persons proficient in quilting, decoupage, needlework, embroidery, needlepoint, crewel, crocheting, and knitting, are also needed to share their time and skills by teaching classes between noon and three p.m. at the United Presbyterian Church on High Street. (The temporary home of the Neighborhood Center.)

Any interested persons are asked to drop in at the EVAC at the Pickens Memorial Library Mondays through Thursdays from seven until nine p.m., or call 749-2626 during those hours.

Hilda Kisilus, assisted by Miss Janice Kisilus, and the piano accompanist, Mrs. Ann Meyers.

Monday, Roger Gallant and the Kanine Kollege will return at 1:15 p.m.

PTA Holds 2nd Annual Sweetheart Ball

The Eli Whitney P.T.A. held its Second Annual Sweetheart Ball Feb. 10. Over 450 people were greeted by tastefully decorated tables and a delicious roast beef dinner. Brief speeches were given during dinner by the guest of honor, Mayor Frank Mancuso, Gregory Ringwald, school principal and James Baum, president of the Eli Whitney P.T.A.

Barry Cohan, dance chairman, thanked His Committee and everyone for coming and said that proceeds from the dance will be used to purchase three sets of encyclopedias for the library and band and athletic equipment.

At 9 p.m. 75 more couples joined the ball the lights dimmed and the Mainstreet Band began to play the music it has become famous for. During the band breaks, over 30 door prizes were given out which were donated by local merchants. An Ad Book was also given to everyone, which has many money saving offers.

The highlight of the evening was the crowning of a King and Queen. Mrs. Eileen Flemming of Vernon and Thomas Rolland of Enfield were chosen. The Queen received a dozen red roses and the king a bottle of Scotch.

Otto Dowd of East Hartford held the lucky raffle ticket, which won him a weekend trip to New York with hotel accommodations, dinner, and a Broadway Show.

An enjoyable evening was had by all and the PTA is looking forward to the ball.

HOME BUYER'S PARADE OF VALUES

Modern Apartments Emphasize Homey, High-Quality Features

Apartment construction accounts for over 50% of all housing starts, and is expected to increase even more within a few years.

Some of the prime reasons behind the trend to multi-family buildings, according to Apartment Construction News, are:

- the increasing cost of land
- the declining birth rate
- the rapid increase in the number of working wives
- the desire for no-maintenance housing
- the planned recreational and social amenities offered by multi-family complexes.

Another reason for the move to apartments is that quality, as well as quantity, is being emphasized. This is leading to a new look in garden and high-rise apartments and in attached townhouses.

The institutional look of "sameness" is on the way out and a warmer, more inviting home-like appearance is in.

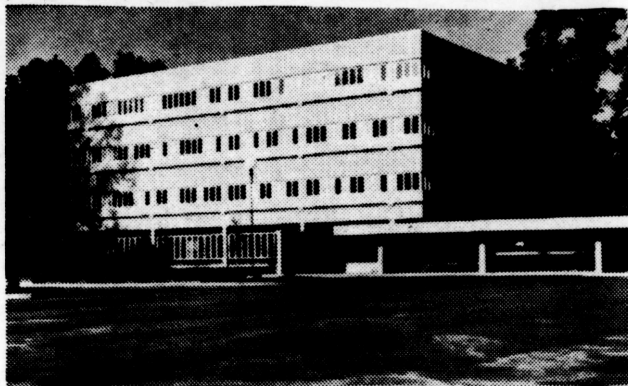

Quality materials, such as wood windows and panel or louver doors, are being used to accent the "character" of the overall design — be it traditional or modern. Their use is feasible because ponderosa pine windows and both panel and louver doors are available in stock sizes and come in a variety of contemporary and traditional styles. Residents find them attractive, designers versatile, and builders more practical and less costly than custom units.

A decorative plus of ponderosa pine panel doors is their design authenticity. Hand-somely detailed styles, such as Cross-and-Bible doors (with four upper panels resembling a cross, and two lower panels depicting an open book) effectively stress a community's Colonial architecture. Multi-paneled Mediterranean designs with ornate carving and open grillwork add elegant emphasis to more contemporary-styled apartments.

The variety of window styles offers appropriate beauty — plus other tenant benefits. Casement windows, for example, have slim lines and unrestricted glass areas that go well with modern decor. They give good visibility and open outward at a 90-degree angle for maximum ventilation. Double-hung styles are traditional, and bows and bays reflect Colonial decor.

Use of insulating glass in weatherstripped wood sash adds another quality bonus. The combination gives maximum protection against heat loss and condensation. This means year-round comfort for tenants, and lower heating and air conditioning bills for owners. Since storm sash isn't needed with insulating glass, there's less upkeep.

With apartment construction up, prospective tenants will have a wider choice. Owners know tenants go where the quality is, so they're taking care to provide it.

A unique window treatment allows tenants of this office building to control privacy, light and temperature in their suites through window selection. Two-thirds of the windows are Andersen casements with welded insulating glass. The remainder are opaque porcelain insulating panels which can be switched for the clear-glass units. Tenants can have any combination of clear and opaque sash they wish.

Authenticity Enters Through Panel Doors

Uniqueness is one way to express good taste. Authenticity is another.

In selecting fashionable wood panel doors for your home, either route is right.

For instance, instead of a drab front door, similar to all the others on the block, consider an unusual Mediterranean-style entry of ponderosa pine. They have as many as 32 panels — some exquisitely carved — with rich detailing and ornate grillwork. They'll look custom-made but are actually available in stock sizes at local lumber dealers.

For the tasteful touch of Colonial authenticity, Cross-and-Bible wood panel doors are available. They duplicate original designs, with four upper panels that form a cross, and two lower panels that depict an open book.

Midway between Early American and exotic decors are more traditional designs such as four, six and eight panel doors topped with fan or cathedral lights. There are also handsome contemporary styles with large, centered panels and classic French doors with many glass panes.

Most ponderosa pine entrances are available at local building materials dealers as complete packages. This includes the wood panel door (or wood duplicate doors for double entries) and the appropriate "matching" features such as overhead pediments, pillars, side panels and sidelights. They come ready to be assembled for easy installation, and provide a relatively inexpensive way to enrich the entire house exterior.

Many Multi-Family Dwellings Use Manufactured Components

The manufactured building technology is being used increasingly for apartment construction.

Figures released by the Bureau of Building Marketing Research indicate that during 1972, 53% of both single- and multi-family housing will be built with some components or manufactured units — the first year in which expectations for factory-builts exceed those for conventionally-built units. The report also shows that smaller builders of multi-family dwellings plan to use manufactured components in about 40% of units built this year. This is twice as much as in 1971.

In manufactured building, the major components of a structure are produced in plants. For apartments, these components might include wall and floor panels, roof trusses, or entire rooms or apartment units. The components are then transported to a building site where they are rapidly assembled into a complete structure — somewhat like a giant jigsaw puzzle. The basic benefits of this type of construction — speed of output and erection, in-factory inspections and good quality controls, and the cost stabilization possible with assembly-line production — are applicable to single- and multi-family dwellings alike.

But for apartments, particular advantages accrue:

- By their very nature — duplication of similar units one atop the other — multi-story structures lend themselves to the pre-built technique.

- The speed of erection allows for faster return on money — a spur to investment in apartment construction.

- In townhouse or low-rise dwellings, use of components and panelized packages permits effective design without excessive costs.

- Special components, such as the wet module, are especially suitable for use in multi-family dwellings. The wet module is a single, completely-finished bathroom-kitchen-utility unit that comes with plumbing already installed.

With expectations that apartment units will represent almost two-thirds of the housing market within this decade, the manufactured building technology offers tremendous potential for builder/developers. Not surprisingly, many representatives of the apartment market are expected to attend the third annual Industrialized Building Exposition and Congress to be held Oct. 30 to Nov. 2 at the Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville. Exhibits at INBEX/72 will include full-scale townhouses and other low-rise multi-family dwellings built with components, or as fully factory-finished modules.

INBEX will also offer a series of seminars dealing specifically with low- and high-rise construction. Other seminars have been designed for residential construction and for building manufacturers. INBEX is sponsored by the Cahners Publishing Company in cooperation with the National Association of Building Manufacturers. Headquarters are at 5 South Wabash Ave., Chicago.

That's One Nice Spicy Herb Shelf

A herb garden adds a dash of spice to cooking chores. So, why not create one in your own kitchen?

A wall panel of perforated hardboard will do the trick. The panel is easily installed over furring strips attached to the existing wall. Hooks for hanging baskets and brackets for shelves of plants fit into the perforations. Readily available at lumber dealers and building supply stores, the panels come prefinished or ready to paint.

In addition to the herbs' distinctive smells and delicious tastes, the hanging garden will make a refreshingly different wall accent.

HOME CONSUMPTION

The U.S. Commerce Department reports that 96 percent of all American firms sell only in the United States, and that three out of every five U.S. exporters have fewer than 100 employees.
