Supreme Court Decision Causes Mixed Emotions

A recent Supreme Court decision, denying direct financial support by the states to private and parochial institutions, declared that aid laws are in violation of constitutional provisions for the separation of church and state.

The court ruling, which eliminates any possibility of tax credits and tuition payments to parents as well as direct reimbursements to schools for maintenance and testing, signified in Hartford's Archbishop John F. Whealon's opinion, "the end of years of effort to obtain government help for secular education in our schools." He lamented, "This is a sad day for many parents and students," and he predicted that "more and more nonpublic schools will gradually close."

Reactions from four officials of Enfield's parochial schools range from a non-expectancy attitude to the belief that government is advocating atheistic education.

Director of St. Joseph's School, Father John F. Tehan, expressed optimism about the future of his school. "We have been operating for 102 years and have no intention of closing our school. We feel it is going well and hope it will continue to." He admits that he would like to have seen help come to parents but he stresses that in St. Joseph's case, "the decision will not effect the immediate future of our school." Enrollment for the fall is 286 students in grades K-8.

At St. Bernard's School the situation was about the same, no one counting on government help next year. Father Patrick V. Fitzmorris said that the decision will not effect their plans "right now" though he feels that in the future "it will effect religious-oriented schools." Presently St. Bernard's enrollment is stabilized at 300 students.

Expressing her concern over the ramifications of the Supreme Court decision, Sister Dolucina, principal of Our Lady of the Angels Academy (OLA) focused on the immediate threats to OLA's future, the rising salary costs and the loss of teaching sisters. Supported by tuition and subsidies from the Felician Sisterhood, OLA's doors will stay open for the next two or three years unless there is a drastic decline in enrollment, which Sister Dolucina does not foresee. However, with the shrinking of the Felician Sisterhood, causing a decline in financial assistance, the school's operation is increasingly dependent on tuition.

Angered by the Supreme Court decision, St. Martha's School Director Father John B. O'Connor sees it as a prelude to the demise of parochial education in this country. "The Court is denying the right of Catholics to have their schools," he concludes, "and the government is taxing us out of existence."

Further attacking the Supreme Court, Father O'Connor accuses it of "making us teach an atheistic education." He believes that in self-defense Catholics will eventually form their own political party which he says is being proposed now.

With regard to St. Martha's operation, Father O'Connor feels that the school will continue to function "for a few more years" but he concludes that "with the prime rate going up, we are being taxed out of existence." St. Martha's presently has an enrollment of 350 with a waiting list for the lower grades.

LINDA THEVENOT

This Marine Is A Red Headed, Blue Eyed Girl

By PAT McKEON

Say "Woman Marine" to someone and wait for the reaction. You will no doubt hear . . . she must be six-foot-one weighing two hundred pounds with a deep voice and broad-shoulders or she is definitely a Woman's Libber.

Woman Marine recruiter Linda Thevenot, working part-time in Enfield, defies the stereo-types through no fault of her own. She just happened to be born with a petite frame, small voice, red hair and blue eyes. She is not a Woman's Libber, in fact, she says that it really "nauseates" her to listen to them. Linda has had no problem living up to the Marine tenet, "You are a lady first, a Marine second." She would like to see more fields open to women in the Corps but has no desire to man a bulldozer or carry a pack and rifle. The rules and regulations are kind of an equalizer, she feels, because promotions are on a job well-done, not a gender basis.

Acting on an impulse, Linda quit her beautician job in her native-state, Illinois, to go through basic training at Parris Island, So. Carolina. The Marines offered her the opportunity to travel ("I hadn't been anywhere outside of a 50 mile radius of my home town"), seeing places beyond her rural Mecan, Ill. farming community. Enlisting in the Spring of 1969, she recently re-enlisted for another four years. "I can't think of any corporation or company in the United States that would offer me as much as the Marine Corps", she says contentedly. With medical benefits, insurance coverage, clothing allowance, food and housing, Linda appreciates the fact that her paycheck is really her own.

Working out of the Marine Recruiting Office in Hartford, Linda's job is "Public Affairs and Community Relations". It requires that she travel through Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island interviewing perspective applicants (mostly women), screening them, and showing them what a woman Marine does look like. Because there is a scarcity of female recruiters, Linda works long hours and admits that Marine life, at times glamorous, is "not all fun and games." "It is glamorous in some sense," she says, "but you really have to work for those stripes. The job comes before the socializing." Before coming to Hartford, Linda worked in "personnel administration" in Washington, D.C. Her tour of duty included the Naval Annex, the Pentagon, and the Department of Defense. The excitement and glamor of the capital city left behind, Linda is taking a course in "Anthropology and Ethnology" at the University of Hartford. She would eventually like to study criminal law. Attracted to unusual female pursuits, Linda practices shooting and hopes to try sky-diving soon.

Attractive, single, and 22, Linda dates both enlisted men and civilians. Asked how civilians react to dating a female Marine Sargeant, Linda says that some take a "see you later attitude." She attributes this attitude to a lack of understanding regarding the function of women in the Marine Corps. Some are curious about her involvement in a male-dominated profession while others think that because she is a sargeant then she must be "hard and cold." "It really depends on their (dates) level of maturity", Linda feels.

Being in the corps with the smallest number of women (2,000 nationally and overseas), Linda enjoys the uniqueness of her profession. A self-described "good listener", she believes that her ability to take instruction and non-rebelliousness helped her qualify for the job.

What impact has the Woman's Lib Movement had on the Marine Corps?

"It has not had a large effect yet," said Linda, "though it has opened some eyes in Washington . . . opening up more fields to women."

Advertising the new look in Woman Marines through her job, Linda is showing the nation that they are not "big bruisers," as the prejudices have suggested.

Carl Pagella, new owner of Peters Chevrolet on Enfield St., announces he is in business now. Hailing from West Springfield, Mass., Pagella had been associated for the past eight years with West Springfield Chrysler-Plymouth before coming to Enfield.

Being service conscious, the motto for his new car dealership is PWS, "Price With Service."

New Law Bars Discrimination Against Women To Obtain Credit

State Rep. Rosario T. Vella (R-59) warned retailers, lenders and others who extend credit that they have only 12 weeks to revise corporate policies and procedures where it is necessary to do so to conform to a new statute barring discrimination against women.

The Enfield legislator was co-sponsor of two bills prohibiting such bias in credit transactions, one approved by the General Law Committee and one by the Committee on Human Rights and Opportunities. The latter measure passed both Houses and has been signed by Gov. Meskill.

The Vella measure makes it unlawful for any creditor, whether seller or lender, to discriminate on the basis of sex or marital status against any person in any credit transaction.

It also sets up the machinery by which any woman who feels she has been discriminated against may obtain redress.

The new law assigns jurisdiction over such complaints to the State Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities. It also directs the State Banking Commissioner to cooperate with the commission in supplying any information needed "for the effective administration of this act."

The complainant is asked to file a statement with the commission, explaining the circumstances and details of the claimed violation. The commission may also initiate complaints on its own.

If the commission determines after a hearing that there has been a violation, it may direct the offender to pay damages to the complainant.

Rep. Vella said he prepared the legislation after numerous complaints that women were having difficulty obtaining credit cards and charge accounts in their own names from sellers and lenders who "never refuse to issue a qualified man a card in his own name."

Other complaints cited difficulties in qualifying for mortgages that women have encountered, Rep. Vella said.

He said that such discrimination is "all the more intolerable in an age when the long-overdue elimination of employment barriers is enabling more and more women to work full time at good jobs and become financially able to assume full responsibility for credit."

It is "a major step forward" for the state to bar, "though belatedly," and "unconscionable pattern of prejudice," Rep. Vella said.

Bike Outing

Stopping for a soda or lemon ice (above photo) on the last day of school are Harriet Beecher Stowe School participants in the third-annual bike outing. Teachers chaperoning the outing were

Pagella Is New Owner Of Former Peters Chevrolet

Carl Pagella, new owner of Peters Chevrolet on Enfield St., announces he is in business now. Hailing from West Springfield, Mass., Pagella had been associated for the past eight years with West Springfield Chrysler-Plymouth before coming to Enfield.

Being service conscious, the motto for his new car dealership is PWS, "Price With Service."

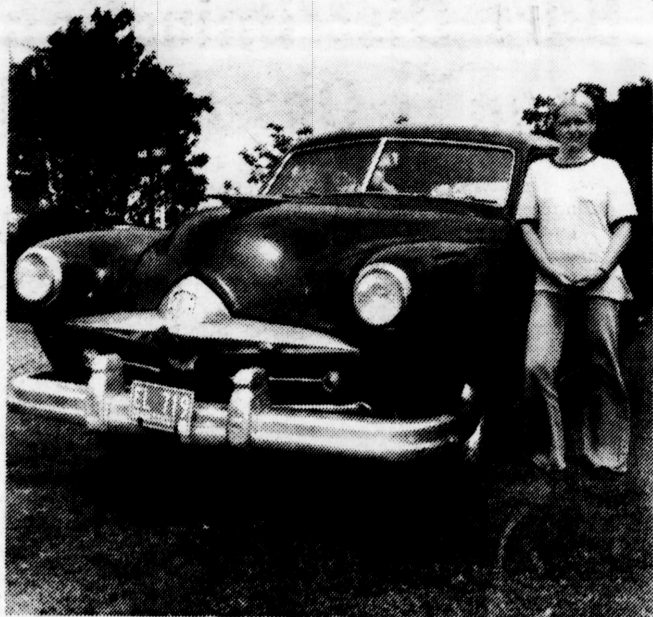

Pagella says that he is interested in keeping the "individual happy so that he'll come back, bringing his family and friends."

Claiming to be very easy to do business with, Pagella is offering good service in comfortable surroundings. He is renovating the entire facility, the main features being a service lounge and air-conditioned showroom. Service hours will be extended on Thursday nights until 9 p.m.

Adding to the new look are new faces in the managerial and sales departments. Car buyers or traders will be served by Sales Manager Robert Mann, Agawam, Mass.; Service Manager Roy Menard, Enfield; Office Manager Lawrence Hall, Jr., Enfield; and Parts Manager James Prior, Enfield. New mechanics have also been hired.

Value as well as service is offered in discounting new cars and selection of used cars. "Over 100 new cars are coming in", says Pagella, "and we now have two storage lots." To offer the best selection of used cars, Pagella wants the public to know that he needs used foreign cars, so come in for a trade or just a look!

SHARON KARAT

Music Maker Can Tune Up A Car And Make It Hum

With no boys in the family, Sharon Karat took her place beside her father to learn from him and by trial and error about the workings of an automobile. Today, at 21, Sharon is owner of a 1928 Peerless, a 1951 Frasier and a member of the Veterans' Motor Club of America.

Restoring and maintaining the cars mostly by herself (with a little help from Dad), Sharon says that "it's a fascinating hobby but can be expensive." She hopes to support her hobby someday as composer-arranger for a rock group.

Spending the summer at her Middle Road home with parents George and Dorothy Karat, after four years in Boston at Berklee School of Music, Sharon will have plenty of time to work on the Frasier she purchased a month ago.

Parked in the front yard, a curiosity to passers-by, the Frasier is green with three doors and a "dummy" door with a spare tire attached to it on the inside. This remnant of an era that gave us "sloppy joe" sweaters and saddle shoes has a dual-circulating air system which draws fresh air into the car and stale air out. Seating four comfortably, the car's back seat folds down making it almost as serviceable as a station wagon.

As pianist and mechanic, Sharon has the versatility to play a sonata as well as adjust a carburetor. A rare combination of talents.

Tag Sale At St. Joseph's

There will be a Tag Sale July 7 at 1336 Enfield St. for the benefit of St. Joseph Residence. Many interesting items have been collected and will be sold at bargain prices. Also included will be a food and bake table.

The proceeds of the sale will be used by the Little Sisters Of The Poor, who staff the residence, to purchase additional recreational equipment for the residents of St. Joseph.

Any one wishing to donate items may call 745-1030 for pick-up, or drop items off at 1336 Enfield St.

Vella Named Chairman Of Regional Committee

Rep. Rosario T. Vella of Enfield was appointed to the Council of State Governments' Eastern Regional Committee on Consumer Protection. He was elected a member by that committee to serve as its chairman, it was announced by Speaker of the House Francis J. Collins.

This Committee is composed of approximately 30 legislators and state administrative officials from the ten northeastern states (Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the six New England States). Each appointee has been chosen for his or her knowledge and interest in the consumer protection programs of his or her state.

The purposes of the Committee are two-fold: First, it serves as a forum for exchange of ideas and information about consumer protection programs in the ten-state region, and second, it provides the members with an opportunity to analyze and discuss various model consumer bills which have been drafted by or for the Council of State Governments which may be helpful in dealing with problems confronting their state. Parenthetically, at the May meeting of the Committee, Representative Vella led a lively discussion of legislation affecting such consumer-related areas as advertising of drugs and cable television regulation.

The Council of State Governments is a national non-profit organization which distributes publications dealing with state government issues, sponsors seminars and conferences on various subjects of interest to state officials and seeks to enhance the ability of state officials to do their job in a more effective manner.

Rep. Morrison Blasts Republican Leadership

Representative John Morrison, 58th District, Enfield, has called on Republican Chairman Koseian to take off his blinders and look around and see what is really happening in the state and in the nation instead of wasting his time namecalling. The 58th District Representative said that it was quite ironic that only one week after he informed the Democratic Town Committee of Republican state tactics that John Dean and Senator Lowell Weicker were informing a shocked nation about GOP tactics on the federal level. Senator Weicker shocked the nation with his emotional expose about how he was pressured as a member of the Watergate Committee. "I hope," said Morrison, "that Chairman Koseian doesn't start calling Senator Weicker or John Dean crybabies for exposing this disgusting situation or perhaps he might even criticize them for not being good team players." The Enfield Democrat said he didn't mind the "heat in the kitchen" but he did object to the rotten smell coming from the kitchen, the smell of rotten politics of the same type that Senator Weicker spoke about. Morrison said he wanted to clarify his remarks made before the Democratic Town Committee about hating Republicans. "I was speaking," said Morrison, "about Republicans who use the tactics described by myself on the state level and by Senator Weicker on the federal level." The former councilman said he has a great deal of respect for the Republican Party and that he counts many Republicans among his close personal friends. The 58th District Representative said his main objection to the Republican Party is the disgusting and distrusting leadership that they have on the federal, state, and especially the local level.

In another matter, Morrison announced the opening of the state's new Information Bureau. The bureau began operations on July 2 to provide citizens with a single telephone number to which inquiries and requests for help can be directed.

He said that Connecticut citizens will now be able to call toll free from anywhere in the state. The toll free number is 1-800-842-2220. In the Hartford dialing area, the number is 566-2750.

This bureau, said Morrison, will be staffed by competent personnel who have experience in a wide variety of state agencies and problems. Morrison said he believed that this bureau will be of great assistance to all the citizens of Connecticut and urged the people in the 58th District not to hesitate to use this service.

SMART BOMBS

On June 11, 1972, the U.S. Command in Saigon announced that B-52 bombers using laser-guided "smart" bombs had destroyed a major hydroelectric plant near Hanoi.

New Water Tower

To improve fire flows and additional storage for peak demands, the Connecticut Water Co. is constructing a new water tank holding 1 1/2 million gallons. To be completed in the Fall by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Construction Co. of Maryland, the tank is 50 feet in diameter and 106 feet to overflow. The old tank will be used for five to ten years more. Location of the tank is at Enfield St. and the eastbound ramp of Route 190.

Over 100 Enrolled In Summer School Band Music Program

Once again enthusiasm is running high in the summer instrumental music with 105 students participating in the varied program, held daily at JFK Jr. High.

The program is made up of two sessions, the first held from 8 to 10 a.m. encompasses the beginner through intermediate students with the second session meeting from 10 to 12 a.m. for the more advanced instrumentalists.

Many students find that the summer vacation offers them the opportunity to study a secondary instrument by playing their secondary instrument in the first session and performing on their major instrument with the advanced group in the second session.

Olsten Aiding Job Seekers

Olsten Temporary Services has launched a major campaign to place local college students in summer jobs under its own "incentive" program which offers this city's management, a rate inducement to hire students, it was announced by the head of the local Olsten Temporary Services company, Reba Martyn.

"A large number of college students will be joining the ranks of job-seeking Americans this summer, complicating an already tight employment picture, and one in which Government budget cuts have depleted employment incentive programs for students and other specialized groups," noted Reba Martyn.

"We are contacting all our clients here, asking them to look seriously to the college student labor force now for help in handling seemingly small but essential jobs that are usually held off until later in the year. Included among these are inventory control, file maintenance and transfer, record updating, special mailings and many other plant and office functions.

"We have considerable faith in the student work force and strongly believe this is one positive way in which Olsten Temporary Services can extend itself to benefit both sides of a currently clouded labor picture."

Jehovah's Witnesses Convene

Richard V. Hanson, presiding minister of the Enfield congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses said that one of the largest series of religious conventions in history will be staged this year by Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society in New York has revealed completion of plans for 69 "Divine Victory" international assemblies in 46 countries around the world.

Charles Molohan, international travel director and tour coordinator, said in New York that hundreds of thousands of delegates are preparing to attend these giant meetings.

"For example," he said, "a total of 16,000 persons will be traveling to 43 different countries in Central and South America, Africa, Europe, the South Pacific, the Mideast and the Far East."

Molohan said there are approximately 20 tours involved for American travelers. Four to Europe, four to the Mideast, one to the Orient, five to Africa, two to the Middle East, two to South America, one to the South Pacific, one to Hawaii and another to Puerto Rico.

"All those on tour will be going by regular commercial flights," Molohan said. "23 planes are chartered for Hawaii with 5,600 delegates involved, 12 planes are set for Puerto Rico with 4,100 scheduled to participate and 16 planes to Europe with 2,800 traveling abroad."

"Additionally, there are 33 aircraft scheduled to come to the U.S. from Europe to attend 12 different conventions this summer," he said.

The sites include the largest facilities in the United States: Yankee Stadium, New York; Veterans Stadium, Philadelphia; White Sox Park, Chicago; Tiger Stadium, Detroit; Astrodome, Houston; Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh; Royals Stadium, Kansas City; Oakland-Alameda Stadium, California; and Atlanta Stadium, Georgia. Gulfstream Park near Miami also will be used.

Hanson said most local delegates would attend the convention in New York. He made it clear that the conventions are not affiliated with any other religious movement, such as Key '73.

Funtime Is Here

With no more books and teachers looks for the summertime, these young boys have already chosen their vacation activities... endless hours of baseball, basketball, and bicycling. From left, John Brooker of 36 Alden Ave., Enfield, and Sal Calcasola of 35 Church St., Enfield.

PARENTS NEEDED

About 170,000 children are adopted each year in the United States, with 60,000 hard to place (mixed parentage, disabled or older) children currently awaiting new parents.

Red hot Ron Bouchard and car owner Bob Johnson have their eyes set on the top prizes in Stafford's unique Drivers-and-Owners Point Fund, but the field is loaded with contenders determined to derail their hopes.

Among the top contenders Saturday night are defending track champs Fred DeSarro and master car builder Len Boehler; Bugs Stevens and owner Sonny Koszela; consistent Bobby Santos and owner Art Barry; Don Flynn and the Stock Car Magazine Vega; Ed Flemke and Pinto Revolution innovator Bobby Judkins; and Leo Cleary in Carl Gustafson's Mota Chevrolet Vega.

The likes of Ernie Gahan, Moose Hewitt, Ed Yerrington, Jerry Dostie, Ray Miller, Bobby Turner and Jim Landry will also be out to improve their standings in the $15,000 point fund.

Frank Walmsley, Wayne Thrall, Ernie Affricano, Gary Ryan, Tom Sylvester and Wayne Tack are all still very much in the point race and will be out to curtail the speedy Frank Naumec, winner of the recent special 50-lap Sportsman race.

The Coachlight Does It With "Anything Goes"

By SANDRA BURNS

The Coachlight Dinner Theatre has brought another delightful Broadway hit to the East Windsor "theatre in the square" and has done a most commendable job with its production. Costumes, choreography and acting talent combine to bring fresh light and gaiety to Cole Porter's ever-lovable "Anything Goes".

The action of the play takes place on board the S.S. American; the story is simply told through song, dance and a poignant script.

Pat Carroll as Reno Sweeney was most effervescent and certainly appears to thoroughly enjoy her self on the stage. She is splendid in her rendition of "I Get a Kick Out of You" during the second act and "Blow, Gabriel, Blow" in the third. She does not just sing the words; she adds depth and meaning to the unforgettable Cole Porter numbers.

Pat Carroll's talent is diversified and well developed for her role in "Anything Goes." A native of Louisiana, Pat Carroll did free-lance radio work and 250 roles in comedy, drama and musicals in legitimate stock before her first season on the "Red Buttons Show" in 1953. She was an "Emmy Winner" in 1956-57 and also has played in smart supper clubs throughout the country. During her career she has worked with just about every top funny man in show business, Jimmy Durante, Red Skelton, George Gobel, Dick Shawn, Danny Kaye and Danny Thomas. With a fast ad lib or answer Pat Carroll is one of television's most sought after game show players; she has appeared with Carol Burnett and has been involved in one of TV's longest playing annuals, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical version of "Cinderella." In the Coachlight's "Anything Goes", produced and directed by Cash Baxter, Pat Carroll illustrates her versatility and, in particular her enthusiasm for the theatre.

The musical director at the Coachlight, Pembroke Davenport, is in "his element" in this production having been Cole Porter's musical director for ten years, guiding hit musicals, including his greatest hit, "Kiss Me Kate." His work is known across the country and twice he won Tony Award nominations for Best Musical Direction. "Anything Goes" is the fourth musical Davenport has conducted for Coachlight, and his zeal for the Cole Porter hits in the current production are obvious.

As choreographer, John Montgomery, has made use of every inch of stage space available. The song and dance routines move gracefully and swiftly around and about the stage to provide the audience with a clear view to the graceful movement.

Thom Christoph as Billy Crocker, the young man falling in love with Hope Harcourt, played by Marsha Zamoida, is well-cast despite a sometimes weak voice at certain moments during the particular performance which I viewed. The tender quality and his sincere enjoyment of his role more than make up for the occasional weakness.

Haskell Gordon has had years of theatrical experience and as "Moonface" in "Anything Goes" does an excellent job. His facial expressions are delightful; the character he portrays, funny.

Marsha Zamoida's beauty and delicate voice provide moments to be cherished during the first and third acts. Pamela Hunt as Bonnie adds yet another dimension to the Coachlight production. As Moonface's compatriot, she is straight-forward and likewise funny. She has that refreshing all-American look (of the 1930's) that charms and disarms at the same time.

Each member of the cast, 15 in all, does not over play nor under play his or her role. An attempt has been made and it has been achieved to co-ordinate all phases of the theatrical production. Taken from most any angle, costuming, choreography, singing or acting, the production "works." The costumes, for example, are typical of the period yet have been adapted to make the dance routines easily executed and the coloring of the costumes has been well thought-out to provide variety, balance and harmony all at the same time.

ILLIA OVERTHROW

A three-man military junta overthrew the Argentine civilian government of President Arturo Illia on June 28, 1966.

Asnuntuck Community College celebrated its first year of existence June 14.

According to ACC President, Dr. Daniel R. McLaughlin, the first year has witnessed exciting growth and the beginning for many of college experiences. Dr. McLaughlin cautioned that the faculty and staff will not rest on their laurels, but will be striving towards an even greater year.

Among the important achievements this year was gaining Correspondent Status with the New England Association of Schools and

STEEL WAGES

The total cost per hour including benefits for hourly employees in the steel industry was $7.44 in February, 1973, compared with $7.08 average for 1972, according to the Iron and Steel Institute.

ACC Completes Its First Year

Colleges. The number of curriculum options has increased from five to twelve with the addition of data processing, medical secretarial, marketing, retailing, legal secretarial, pilot management and fine arts. Dr. McLaughlin noted that several other options are in the planning stage in the areas of general studies and gerontology.

Dr. McLaughlin explained that while the student body has already reached 300, there is still room for an increase in numbers of both full and part-time students. With the increasing student population and projected growth, he explained that additional classroom space, faculty and supporting services must grow along with the school.

Dr. McLaughlin issued an invitation for all residents of the North Central area of Connecticut to contact the college and take part in one of the many social, cultural, or educational programs being offered. Asnuntuck is truly "taking college to the people!"

He Builds A Different Sort Of Colonial Home

By SANDRA BURNS

Peter Stevenson of Stebbins Rd., Somers, builds a different sort of Colonial home. Speeding by, the homes that he builds appear to be "very nice," "authentic," "neat," and an asset to the Somers area. Next time be sure to slow down. Peter Stevenson's homes ARE "very, very nice," most "authentic" using the finest of materials and hand craftsmanship, "really, really nice" and a pleasure to see.

Stevenson, to architects and art historians lingo, has a good working knowledge of "Colonial architecture" gained through academic and field study as well as actual work on old buildings. Though busy throughout the year with building and supervising, Peter Stevenson makes it a point to continue studying, to visit restorations and to keep up his membership in the Association for Preservation Technology.

He tries, at least on the exterior, to stay within the framework of northeastern Colonial styles and tries not to mix these styles and periods. According to Stevenson, these designs "mix well with the New England landscape and are more apt to look old." He tries to be basic and authentic noting that along the coast due to climate and, often, the origin of the builders, Colonial homes may tend to be more varied and "true to form."

He attempts, whenever feasible, to place the houses to fit into the lot area and surrounding landscape keeping as much of the natural environment as possible. For example, he brings the loam, the grade, up high so that very little of the cement foundation of the home shows to achieve the appearance of many early northeastern Colonials, particularly capes and gamel-roofed homes. The structure "hugs" the ground. Trees and natural material are incorporated wherever possible. Large stones are used for entrance steps; stone retaining walls are built rather than concrete; and wood shingles or asphalt simulating wood shingles are used for the roofs.

Stevenson pays a great deal of attention to proportion in window and door placement as well as the type and style of the windows and doors. For example, four or six panel doors are used inside and out; "six over six" or "12 over 12", small paned windows and small paned sliding doors are a "must." With regard to the "modern" intrusion of the sliding door, Stevenson likes, whenever possible, to place these at the rear of the home. Similarly, he likes to place bay windows at the rear, which, though often found in Colonial shops, were rarely found in Colonial homes.

Peter Stevenson is also very conscious of the "pitch" of a roof. If someone wants a ranch style home, Stevenson prefers to put a steeper pitch; a more authentic pitch to the roof to achieve the look of a Cape Cod style home. In achieving Colonial proportions regarding the height, length and depth of the architectural elements of the design, Peter Stevenson uses stock materials and some handmade items. As a general rule he "adapts whatever stock materials he can to his needs."

To keep as close to the "Colonial flavor" as possible on the interior as well as the exterior, Peter Stevenson generally uses handmade paneling. Today it is difficult to achieve "true" colonial layouts with the kitchen and bathroom specifications and most homeowners demand today. Still the feeling is comfortable and Colonial, particularly in the main rooms. Wide, pine board floors are installed, paneling reflects the various styles found in New England homes; chair rails and fireplace designs are distinctively Colonial.

Peter Stevenson's interest in building goes back many years. He graduated from Suffield Academy and later from Springfield College with a B.S. degree in history. His concentrated study in the design and restoration of Colonial homes took place during his years of graduate study in the Cooperstown graduate program at Cooperstown, N.Y. Stevenson was a candidate for a M.A. degree in History Museum Training and American Folk Culture in a program sponsored by the State University of New York at Oneonta and the New York State Historical Association in Cooperstown, N.Y.

By working for another contractor through high school and college, Peter Stevenson, learned the "how-to's" of house building. After his graduation, he served as research consultant in historic restoration for the New York State Division for Historical Preservation at "Olana", in Hudson, N.Y., the home of Frederic Edwin Church, a Hudson River landscape artist who died about 1900. In addition, he worked at "Lorenzo," a federal mansion in Cazenovia, N.Y.

Stevenson's knowledge of Colonial architecture has been gained through historical research; the results of this study can be seen in Somers today.

they may be collector's items.

Oris Guyette's skill and understanding of cabinet making is spectacularly illustrated in the grandfather's clocks presently on display and retailing at $3150. The European made, Willard styled works, cost $700 not to mention the more than 150 hours of labor to cut fit and construct the clock. Made of solid cherry, these clocks have three different sets of chimes and are trimmed in brass.

Oris Guyette, a second generation cabinet maker, admits that he feels his talents are perhaps best shown through the clocks but that unfortunately there is not a tremendous market for them in this area. The last one that he sold was sent to Boston.

Years of learning and skill go into the making of fine reproductions and in the art of restoring antiques. Apprenticed to his father, a cabinet maker, Guyette continued to work with wood during 19 years in the printing business. By request, he made special pieces for relatives and friends. Then, deciding that the printing business was not for him, he and his wife, Winifred, launched the Carpenter Shop nine years ago. Business has grown; custom work has continued. The Guyette's stock is unique and varied. Whether you need a wedding gift, an anniversary or birthday gift, or something special for yourself, visit the Carpenter Shop.

Unique Craftsmanship

By SANDRA BURNS

Looking for something unique in pewter? Something in ceramic cookware? In hardware or furniture cleaning supplies?

Want a piece of Colonial furniture, a reproduction that is custom made for you? Try the Carpenter Shop on Rte. 83 in Somers.

Owned and operated by Oris and Winifred Guyette for the past nine years, the Carpenter's Shop offers a selection of items for the lover of "Early Americana."

The Carpenter Shop carries 10 lines of pewter, most of which are made right here in Connecticut. Flatware, plates, candlesticks, salt and pepper shakers, ashtrays and even napkin rings are available. For the pewter, silver and antique collector there are special polishes and stains available to clean and preserve these treasures.

For the do-it-yourselfer there are knobs and latches specifically designed to compliment Colonial homes and furniture. Barn boards cut to specific length are available for the craftsman and signs for both the exterior and the interior of your home can be custom made.

Oris Guyette's specialty, however, is hand made furniture, reproduction restoration. The selection of chairs, tables, case pieces, storage boxes, clocks and planters is seemingly endless. Each piece is hand hewn, rubbed and given an oil finish.

Windsor chairs, made by an experienced craftsman in a variety of styles, some with arms, some without, are finished by Guyette to achieve a Colonial, almost primitive look. "Shaker Boxes" for storage of toys, boots and wood have become extremely popular during the past few years and are available in a variety of sizes. Made of pine, these boxes have been "antiqued" to achieve "an age old, beat up" look, stained and hinged for easy and pleasureable use in any room of your home.

Case pieces, such as cabinets, hutch cabinets and corner cupboards are all handmade. According to Oris Guyette a single, large corner cupboard with a curved back takes about "50 hours" of patient measuring, cutting, rubbing, staining and more rubbing.

Most often case pieces are made of either pine or cherry. Many woods are available, including barn board, birch and curly beech, for special orders. Dry sinks, stereo cabinets, tables (both round and of the trestle type) wash stands and chairs are made at the Carpenter Shop. Shelves are also a specialty to give a "Colonial air" to any room of your home.

Metal bound sap buckets, in a variety of sizes, are sold at the Carpenter Shop. These, according to Guyette, are made by the last surviving company in the state. Today the supply is considerable. A generation from now

Mark Twain Field Day

Sunshine, games, prizes, soda and candy was the "bill of fare" at the Mark Twain School's first annual Field Day event held June 19. The PTA organized and directed the day's activities, which included a bean bag and softball throw, a 3-legged race, the broad-jump, and the 50-mile dash. Ribbons were awarded to over three hundred winners but as one parent remarked, "Nobody could lose because all the children received soda and candy after the competition was over". The Field Day was originated by the PTA with Mrs. Hugh Flanders as chairwoman and Robert Hutley as director of the events. It has been adopted as a school tradition, to be held during the last week of each school year.

LADY BOXERS?

We were down on Cape Cod for a few days last week and an interesting subject was being discussed in the New Bedford Standard Times. A couple of boxing promoters down there were trying to see who will be the first to add lady boxers to their boxing cards.

Lady wrestlers have been around for quite a while and they have attracted some pretty good crowds. But where do you find lady boxers? These promoters seem to think that the best place to find them would be the Roller Derby. The thinking is that the women in the Roller Derby do as much, or more, fighting as they do roller skating. It is felt that these girls would have the needed experience.

There are some problems inherent in women boxing though and it is doubtful whether these problems would be solved. As you know the men are protected by the rule which says you can't hit below the belt. Would a rule be proper for the girls which states there is to be no hitting below the neck?

Special equipment has been developed for protection of the men in case they do get hit below the belt. It would be difficult to invent a protective device for women's breasts. This is the one big stumbling block. The women would indeed have to be headhunters if the no hitting below the neck rule were put into effect.

Still, the fact that they don't have special equipment doesn't prevent them from being pretty rough in the Roller Derby action. They punch each other with fists, elbows, knees, feet and heads and don't seem to get hurt too often.

Another problem would be in changing the name of boxing. After all, it is now known as the manly art of self defense. Maybe we could change it to the human art of self defense. We certainly couldn't say the manly-womanly art of self defense. The women would probably want top billing anyway, i.e.; The womanly-manly art of self defense.

Is the whole idea practical? I would imagine that local boxing promoter Vito Tallarita is taking notes at this point. What do you think Vito, does the idea have any merit?

We can just see the whole idea blossoming into the lady boxers wanting to prove that they are just as good as the male boxers by challenging the heavyweight champion of the world to a battle of the sexes. From some of the women we have met in our lifetime the gals just might be able to win the championship. What would you call her? The Championess?

The women might win by default. After all it is ungentlemanly to hit a woman. That is if the present champion at the time of the challenge were a gentleman.

The idea could catch on. After all the girls are invading professional football. We hear they are trying to enter Little League play in some areas. They haven't succeeded as yet but they may make it into the Little Leagues next year.

You know what will happen then. The girls will want to play with the major leaguers. We don't say they shouldn't if they have the ability, but it would change the game somewhat. It might be difficult to assign roommates when the team is on the road. If a professional player's wife made the team it would mean that he would have to drag her all over the country.

And what if the girl had more ability than her husband? We can see the headlines now. Millie Smith is batting .330 while her husband Joe Smith is only hitting .245. Millie has 18 home runs compared to 3 for Joe. It would be most embarrassing and we don't believe Joe would let it happen.

One girl made it as a place kicker on a professional football team. They say that she quit because the boys were playing too rough for her. The truth is that the reason she quit was because her hair got so mussed up from wearing her football helmet and football shoes didn't come with open toes and a strap in the back.

There are many girls with great athletic ability but we believe they should compete against other girls and leave the men's games to the men.

Boxing is a man's domain and should remain so. We can't see the girls putting on the gloves unless they are the lacy type. If they do enter boxing they will probably have to use 16 ounce gloves at the very least. What woman would want to be known as a heavyweight? Or a bantamweight, flyweight or welterweight for that matter? They would all want to be called lightweights. The age of the boxer is always used in sports writeups too, and what woman would admit her true age?

Lady boxers might stir the imagination but we feel there may be too many stumbling blocks in the way of the girls getting into the squared circle. It would give the girls more fun than the sewing circle though.

BOWLING

With Art Landry

Where are all the Summer League secretaries keeping themselves these days? We only have a couple of leagues reporting on a regular basis and they tell me they are getting very good coverage. Why not publicize the doings in your league? We are sure your bowlers would appreciate some publicity for their efforts.

ENFIELD LANES

The youngsters in the Enfield Seniors League are still going at it strong. Andy Jackobek was the hottest bowler this week with a 183 single game and a grand total of 516. Tom Lusardi came in second with a 492 series for the week. Dale Arsenault was also right up there with a series of 474. What, no 600 series this week boys? The Fours are leading the Fourteens with the Twos holding down third place.

The Family is leading the Monday Night Summer Mixed League by just one point over the Four Devels (their spelling), the Four "D's", the Ringers and the Brooklyns. No new records were set in the league this week. Ed Strickland led the men with a 563 series. Merrill Bent rolled a big game of 214 and a 549 total. Mark Burt bowled a 542 series. Bill Nelson had the week's high game of 219 and Bill Davies bowled a game of 209. Helen Divine topped the girls with a 513 triple. Pat Piepaul rolled 201-498. Joan Harrison bowled a total of 483. Bery Sward had a high game of 193 and Viola Davies was right behind with a 192 game. Bob Caparoula is league President. Joe Orefice is Vice-President. Gale Kredar is Secretary-Treasurer.

Don't forget to practice this week.

Creedon Wins Morgan Award

Oboist Charles Creedon, 9th grade president of the John F. Kennedy Bands, was the first recipient of the newly established Jeffrey B. Morgan Award, which was presented to the school at its final awards assembly of 1972-73. The presentation was made by Robert L. Morgan, father of 19 year old Jeffery B. Morgan who died in an auto accident this year. The award was conceived by Morgan and Lawrence J. Climan, director of bands at the school. The plaque is to be given each year to a ninth grader who shows the most promise as a serious soloist. The name of each student will also be entered on a large 25-year plaque that will hang on the trophy wall of the band room.

Climan remembers Jeffrey as an extremely conscientious young trumpeter who was accepted as a first chair player in the Conn. All-State Band when he was only a ninth grader in 1968. He performed with the Springfield Youth Symphony several times during his years at Enfield High School. On many occasions he performed outside of school with professional dance groups. He was also active in many serious concerts throughout northern Conn. and Western Mass.

Charles Creedon, the recipient of the Morgan Award, is presently studying oboe at the Hartt School of Music at the Univ. of Hartford, where he has given recitals. He performed in the Central Northwest Regional Orchestra, received high scores in the Conn. All-State auditions, was soloist at the J. F. Kennedy Spring Concert and was recently accepted to attend Laurel Music Camp sponsored by the Conn. Music Educator's Association. Besides the Morgan Award, Charles received the 9th grade band pin and the Band Presidents' Trophy.

Families Greet Brazilian Visitors

Families from different parts of Connecticut were on hand Sunday at Bradley International Airport to meet their visitors from Paraiba, Brazil, who will spend the month of July in Connecticut homes as part of a cultural exchange program. The request for the visits came from residents of Paraiba, Connecticut's sister state in the Partners of the Americas.

According to Arnold Freas, President of the Connecticut Partners of the Americas, the home visits were arranged by the Auerbach Service Bureau to promote mutual communication and understanding. Partners of the Americas concentrates on programs conceived, planned, and executed by members of the partner states to meet real and critical needs. Since its beginning in the early 1960's the program has involved many individuals and groups in programs for public health and medicine, business investment, special education, environmental improvement and cultural exchange.

Hospitality for the group of students is being extended by Connecticut families including, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cram of Enfield and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hedden of West Suffield. Governor Meskill is Honorary Chairman of the Connecticut Partners of the Americas.

The visits will offer opportunities for the families and the visitors to compare lifestyles, overcome language differences, and understand through participation, differences and similarities in attitudes, goals, family ways and even food and drink.

Volunteer Your Time, Find An Outlet For Your Talents

By SANDRA BURNS

There is an ever-continuing need for volunteers in the Enfield area. According to executive director, Mrs. Joyce Hall, the Enfield Voluntary Action Center (EVAC) needs volunteers of all types and ages, with diversified interests to volunteer their time and their talents for just a few hours a week.

Since its inception nearly 14 months ago the Voluntary Action Center has filled serious shortages of man power and willing help in the areas of social services, entertainment of the elderly, day care and arts and crafts, as well as to fill the secretarial and technical needs of the community on a part-time basis.

As the work of the Voluntary Action Center spread across the area, it has become a vital part of the continuing operation of many important organizations and projects, such as the parties and events at the Enfield Neighborhood Center.

As director of the Enfield Voluntary Action Center, Mrs. Hall tries, as much as possible, to co-operate with the Social Services department, supervised by Mrs. Dorothy Allen. In addition, the Voluntary Action Center supplies school volunteers to help in the classrooms and the school offices. Some volunteers work strictly with the elderly; others limit their activities to transporting people to doctor's appointments and shopping when needed.

Mrs. Hall emphasizes that a person does not have to commit himself on a long-term basis with EVAC. If the number of weeks the potential volunteer has available is short and the number of hours that volunteer has available likewise short, the person is still urged to call EVAC. They need you. For example, if you are currently interested in doing some type of arts and crafts project, whether it be making pot holders, candles, decoupage, or anything else, consider spreading your talents and energy. Teach the elderly the art — just a couple of hours a week for a few short weeks would probably "do the trick."

The Center serves as a "clearing house" for volunteers. According to Mrs. Hall, "most volunteers were originally recruited through clubs that they belong to." However, usually women's clubs in the area have such a strong community commitment already that members have little spare time." Consequently as time passed, volunteers were registered and subsequently placed on an individual basis. A person interested in serving in a specified area, notes this when he or she registers with EVAC and then his talents are matched with needs in the community.

By definition, "voluntary" is doing something "according to or acting on one's own will." The work is done by "intention" not "accident." The staff of the Voluntary Action Center never coerces a volunteer. What you want to do is what they want you to do if there is a place available.

St. Joseph's Announces School Staff

St. Joseph's School has announced its faculty for the coming year. They include: School Director, Rev. John Tehan; Advisors, Rev. Anthony Bruno and Rev. William R. Metzler. The Non-Teaching Principal will be Sister Irene.

Teachers will include: kindergarten, Sister Barbara; first grade, Sister Katherine; second grade, Miss Linda Leander; third grade, Sister Dorothy; fourth grade, Mrs. Parasiliti; fifth grade, Mrs. Hastings; sixth grade, Sister Sheila and Sister Luella; seventh grade, Miss Christine Sachelli; eighth grade, Miss Pauline Wise; and School secretary, Mrs. Scavotto.

area should not just be concerned with "volunteering" but with "voluntaryism," the principle of system that uses volunteers to support civic, church, social needs of the community without the help of the state.

The EVAC directors, clubs and individuals in the area are slowly beginning to adapt to this way of thinking. "Voluntaryism" is exciting and challenging. No volunteer is ever alone but a unique and necessary part to a continuing movement to better or brighten the daily life of our neighbors.

Both men and women of all ages are registered with EVAC. There are also a great number of pre-teens between the ages of 12 and 15 years old who want to volunteer, have the time and the talents but need a little more supervision so that their volunteer work will continue to be a good learning experience for them as they grow and become more community conscious.

To help young mothers with small children put their talents to work, Mrs. Hall is looking for a volunteer baby sitter to watch children while these young mothers put their talents to work and find a relaxing self-satisfying outlet for their energies.

Stop and think. Surely you can volunteer a few hours a week, or every other week. Perhaps you're too busy now. Consider offering your time in the fall when school vacation is over.

Whatever your interests there is a place for you. Perhaps you would like to help the retarded; if you are a nurse, maybe you would like to accompany the elderly on one of their many field trips such as a recent one to Mystic Seaport.

You can work in the schools, become involved with the daily life of the school and indirectly help your own children by being more aware of Enfield schools and their activities.

Maybe you could help at the Enfield Day Care Center. You could teach the children simple games and skills to further brighten their already busy day.

The satisfaction you receive from your volunteer work will be more than a just reward. The Enfield Voluntary Action Center operates in conjunction with the National Voluntary Action Center. Although EVAC is not a member of the national organization, volunteers and information are forwarded to this area's Action Center. Located at the Pickens Memorial Library on School St. in Hazardville, the center will be open Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9-11 a.m. and Wednesday evening from 7-9.

G. Fox Youth Council Active In Community

Under the sponsorship of G. Fox and Co. and the direction of Miss Nancy Costa, the Youth Council as it has been conducted at their Hartford store has developed and offered programs of interest to young people in the greater Hartford area.

With the opening of branch stores, the need has been recognized of developing programs for those in their teen years emanating from the branch stores. Since 50 per cent of the population of the town of Enfield is in the teen years, the community served by the Enfield Fox's was chosen for the second Youth Council.

Ten girls, representing high schools in the area elected Robin Jaehing of Suffield High School its first president. Others on the council are Nancy Crompton, Enfield High, Donna-Rae Hargraves, Fermi High, Terry Kelting, Fermi, Sue Kerlinsky, MacDuffie, Nancy Murphy, Kosciuszko, Franny Panek, Kosciuszko, Sue Piorek, Our Lady of the Angels, Kathy Sherwin, Enfield, Sue Sanger, Kosciuszko, Karin Smilgys, Fermi, Karen Kelley, West Hartford, and Amy Parker, South Catholic.

The first program sponsored by the Council was a Beauty Forum that was attended by many young ladies in the northern Connecticut area. The second Youth Council sponsored activity was a picnic that was held at Brainerd Park and included the youth of the Whitacres Youth Center. Director of the Whitacres Youth Center Tony Pfannenstiel, a native of Kansas and a recent graduate of the University of Connecticut was responsible for assisting in making the picnic a possibility and discussed with Miss Costa the plans he had for developing and organizing the youth in that part of Enfield.

He was pleased that he had received approval for Project Evergreen, which members of the Whitacres Youth Center in conjunction with Asnuntuck Community College will create a much needed park in the greater Enfield area. Plans also have already been developed to revamp and re-plant Brainerd Park making it a more attractive play and picnic area. The young people are eager and ready to help develop their town ecologically and anticipate encouragement and guidance from their community.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rinaldi of 4 William Street Ext., Enfield, were married 50 years ago today.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rinaldi were born in Naro, Italy. Mrs. Rinaldi is the former Frances Fiore.

Deacon Assists At St. Adalbert's

Daniel Plocharczyk, officially referred to as the "Rev. Mr. Plocharczyk," is spending his last summer before ordination as a priest in the Roman Catholic Church, as a deacon at St. Adalbert's Church on Alden Ave. in Enfield.

At St. Adalbert's Daniel Plocharczyk's duties are many and varied. Basically his work as a deacon is a sort of "in service training program." There are only three basic things that he cannot do: he cannot say Mass; he cannot hear Confessions; he cannot anoint the sick.

Otherwise, when the need arises he acts. Today the diaconate period is a "wide open field." Daniel Plocharczyk assists regularly at Mass performing the duties designated for deacons of the church. In addition, he preaches the homily. He visits the sick, presides at wakes and assists at funerals and conducts marriage investigations.

During the summer period he learns how the parish operates and learns to put his knowledge to work. According to Rev. Mr. Plocharczyk, the church and parishioners attitudes toward the church have changed when he was in kindergarten and the early school grades the church was always right. There was no discussion. The church was right and its rulings accepted. Today, according to Plocharczyk, particularly among teenagers and priests of the parish there is greater interaction than ever before. Issues are discussed. Honesty, rather than law, prevails.

The pastor at St. Adalbert's Rev. Adolphe Renkiewicz, serves as a supervisor for Daniel Plocharczyk's activities. He is available for discussion and offers advice for improvement and suggestions for dealing with people as a priest.

Daniel Plocharczyk studied at St. Thomas Seminary in Bloomfield and college at St. Mary's Seminary in Baltimore where he attained a Bachelor's degree an advanced degree in theology. In September when he will serve as a prefect at St. Thomas Seminary where he will be in charge of a dormitory, assist the priests and teachers and serve as an informal counselor.

To Attend Theatrical Workshop

As Aug. 15 comes closer, Miss Regina Mon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gerard Mon of Debbie La., Enfield, gets more and more excited.

A sophomore at Fermi High this coming fall Regina has long been interested in theater and dramatics. She has worked with Saint Martha's Players and the Junior Theater in town, and now she'll be a participant in the National Wider Opportunities program for Girl Scouts, called "Spots and Props, sponsored by the Singing Sands Council of Niles, Mich. The program will involve workshops on acting and directing. Make-up, sound and lighting, sets and properties, and costuming seminars will be conducted by professional people including stage and screen celebrities.

The nine-day event will be held at Camp Shawadesee, a beautiful wooded setting near Lawton, Mich. One hundred and twenty Boy and Girl Scouts from all over the country will be taking part. Regina's deep interest in dramatics qualified her for acceptance as a participant.

She has been a member of the Girl Scouts for eight years, beginning as a Brownie. Two younger sisters are also in Scouting, and her mother has served as a troop leader both in Enfield, and prior to that, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

At Fermi High School, Regina is a member of the Lamplighters Club and the Girls Basketball Team. Her trip to Michigan will be her first plane trip and she's been carefully saving all her babysitting earnings to pay her own way.

The award was presented to Mrs. Jane Palmer and she was presented an engraved plaque by outgoing President, Mrs. Jean Meyer.

1972-73 was the most successful year thus far for the club. Forty-six new members were welcomed into the club and all joined in to help make the year a success.

The service projects this year included regular trips to Warehouse Point Receiving Home. At the annual graduation exercises of the State School of Connecticut Correctional Institute, Principal Charles Jones presented certificates to 59 inmates completing the day school program and 73 high school diplomas.

In his address to the students and representatives of the Department of Corrections, Warden Carl Robinson called correctional education "a keystone in any correctional program." He reminded the assembly that the participants in the school program are increasing. He also said that the key to a good program is the ability to provide levels of success.

Robinson expressed his hopes that "next year we will have an expanded program here." Throughout the state, planning sections of the Department of Corrections are working on a larger program.

A "double" feature has been launched by St. Martha Players. "Two By Two" and "Gypsy" are both scheduled for production in the fall. Casting for George LaVoice's "Two By Two" has been completed. Music will be under the direction of Ron Perell.

Tony DiMarco of Springfield, Mass. will play Noah, who in Peter Stone's delightful book is a 600 year-old slightly addled chicken farmer assigned the task of building an ark in preparation for the flood. It will house everything that walks, flies or creeps, plus Noah's immediate family.

Noah's wife, Esther, will be played by Ginny Zdebski. The only unmarried and youngest son, Japheth will be portrayed by Art Piedmonte, who involves himself with Goldie, a voluptuous, beautiful Golden Girl from the temple of the Golden Ram, played by Helen Rathbun. The most thrifty and financially minded couple on board is the eldest son, Shem, being played by Roger Potvin who is married to Leah, Vicki LaVoice. The gambling second son, Ham, being played by Norm Keene is married to Rachel, played by Conni April. They've had a very unhappy five years of marriage.

"Two By Two" is a theatrical rainbow — a testament to the eternal powers of human rejuvenation, enchanting us with truths that are so old they are new again, and so human they are both funny and touching.

Six musicians are needed for musical accompaniment: two violinists, an organist, a trumpeter, a drummer, and a bass.

Tickets for both shows will be available in a few weeks. Ticket price for each will be $3. If tickets for both shows are purchased together, the price is $5.

The stage is being relocated and additional comforts are being added to ensure the enjoyment of the patrons. Both shows will be presented at the school hall in a cafe atmosphere complete with light food, drink, and dancing after the shows.

Relaxed discussion with visitors from other countries in an informal outdoor setting — luncheon on the grass — a lazy summer interlude for interested men and women is the prospect at the Auerbach Service Bureau's International Picnic next Wednesday from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Hayes, 20 Orchard St., Avon.
