Meeting Planned On Gas Shortage

William A. Kiner, chairman of the Enfield Steering Committee on

Dog Kills Hen, Man Faces Fine

A Coolidge Dr., Enfield, man has been issued a summons for Circuit Court 13 appearance on March 4 for allowing his dog to roam at large and damage domestic animals.

Canine Control Officer Fred Provencher said the dog crawled under a fence on the property of Ed Jarmoc of 147 Abbe Rd., attacked and killed a pet laying-hen belonging to his children.

Provencher said this is the second similar offense against the man, who was fined $10 the first time. For the second offense, he is subject to a maximum penalty of $50 for his dog roaming at large and $25 for damage to domestic animals. Provencher said the man has been warned several times but was told the dog would not be tied up.

There are more than 4,000 licensed dogs in Enfield, said Provencher and if they were allowed to roam at large, the results would be "catastrophic". He attributed cold weather and snow to the large number of dogs presently at large because people do not venture out in such weather to tie their dogs up.

Provencher also reported a pet rabbit recently killed by a dog on Briarwood Rd. and another attempt by a dog to attack a rabbit was made on Trevor Drive.

Human Needs and Resources, is inviting all interested parties, both motorists and gas station operators, to a meeting to formulate a plan of action to cut down long lines at gas stations.

"To say that a severe problem exists in Enfield, is certainly no understatement," said Kiner. "Long lines, long waits, little or no gas, and angry customers have become an everyday reality. Both consumer and service station operator are adversely affected.

"Other Connecticut towns have made arrangements that have made the gas shortage a bit more bearable" he added, concluding, "Perhaps we in Enfield can formulate a plan of action to cut down those long weary lines that tire both customer and operator alike."

The meeting is scheduled for Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. at the Central Library.

Home Show Grows

General Chairman Robert H. Starr of Harry A. Starr & Son, reported today that preparations for the 8th Annual Home Show are more advanced at this stage than at any time in recent years.

"As of today, three-fourths of our exhibit spaces are filled and the event is still more than a month away," exclaimed Starr. He attributed the early response from exhibitors to the ever-increasing attractiveness of the event. About 5,000 people attended last year.

The 1974 edition of the Home Show sponsored by the Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce will be held at Enfield High School from March 22 thru March 24. The hours are: Friday 6-10 p.m., Saturday 1 to 10 p.m. and Sunday 12:30 to 5 p.m. About 60 area firms will exhibit

Crime Rate Down

Police Chief Walter J. Skower has reported that although the incidence of crime seems to have subsided in Enfield during the past week, there have been enough crimes committed to continue to be alert and wary.

He said there have been several cases of suspicious persons and motor vehicles reported by citizens and remarked this is good. "It shows," he said that people are alert and cooperating with police and this is a good sign." He said that with this attitude by citizens, thieves have to be more wary, knowing that they (thieves) must now not only be on the alert for police but must also be alert for people reporting their activities.

The chief, who attended a meeting last week between himself, Town Manager C. Samuel Kissinger and members of the board of directors of the Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce concerning the upswing in crime in Enfield, said, as a result of that meeting, a special burglary-alert committee has been proposed and is in the formulating stage.

Although the incidence of burglaries has abated, the chief said, there have been six burglaries reported in the past four days. These include three homes, two schools and one gas station. The homes entered are at 25 Wagon Road, 22 Longview Street and 28 Ellis Road. The two schools entered are Nathan Hale School on Taylor Road and Prudence Randall School on Brainard Road. Both schools were entered on the same day, Feb. 13. The gas station entered is at Hazard Ave. and Middle Rd.

Other offenses reported, said Chief Skower, were several acts of vandalism and three assaults on girls. The assaults on Heron Road, Church Street and Weymouth Drive. The latter case concerns a mother who reported two people forced their way into her home and assaulted her daughter.

Thefts reported during the past four days, concluded the chief, included a car, a stove and a bicycle.

Arrest Murder Suspect

By ERNEST A. MOKUS

Springfield police have arrested an 18-year-old Springfield youth for the murder on Jan. 27 of Karl D. Lee, retired Enfield Superintendent of Schools.

The youth, Richard C. Brown of 74 Lebanon St., Springfield, pleaded innocent to murder and robbery and assault charges Monday and is presently being held without right to bail in the Hampden County, Mass., Jail, pending his next court appearance Feb. 21.

Brown was arrested at a Gasland station where he worked, at 1200 Wilbraham Rd., by Detective Sgt. John O'Connor and Detectives James Bryans and Donald S. Breor. Detective Captain

Joseph Legarski, who headed the probe of the city's first murder of 1974 said an intensive investigation by himself, O'Connor and Bryans led to the arrest.

Lee's body was found on an ice-covered access road in Blunt Park by a man and two of his children on the day of his death. It was theorized that he was abducted in downtown Springfield Saturday night and driven in his own car to Blunt Park where he was beaten to death. The car was found two days later on Buckingham St. in the Winchester Square area. The spot where the car was found on a telephone tip to police, is about one mile southeast of Blunt Park and about a half mile north of Brown's home.

On the night of the killing, Lee of 13 Mountain View Ave., Enfield, told his wife that he was going to attend a hockey game at the Springfield Civic Center. When he failed to return home that night, Enfield police were notified who, in turn, notified Springfield police.

At the time of Brown's arrest, Springfield police reported they were seeking a second man in connection with the murder and another man as a material witness. The man sought as a material witness turned himself in Tuesday and was placed in protective custody for his own safety, said police. They believe he witnessed the death of Lee.

This is not the first time Brown has been charged with murder. Two years ago, he was convicted in the shooting death of Harold Collins, 20, of Springfield. At the time of the shooting, Brown was only 16 and was tried as a juvenile. He was found guilty of delinquency by reason of murder and given an indeterminate term to the Youth Service Board which is similar to Connecticut's Advisory Council on Children and Youth Services.

Brown was confined only two months in a group therapy home near Boston. He was freed by Judge Tullio Francesconi of the Springfield Juvenile Court, the same judge who sentenced him. This was in spite of the fact Brown's confinement record was not of the best, having run away while under sentence.

Trial For Arrested Reporter Feb. 28

The Town of Enfield has retained Atty. Philip S. Walker to represent it in the upcoming trial of Dennis Hogan.

Hogan, a reporter for an out-of-town daily newspaper, was arrested Jan. 7 during a Town Council work session after he refused to leave when requested to do so. Hogan claimed, in supporting his refusal, the council had not voted to go into "executive session". He was charged with disorderly conduct.

Hogan said he would not go until the council voted to do so, referring to Public Act 499 of the state Freedom of Information statutes which calls for such a vote.

Town Attorney John D. Adams, whose duty is usually to represent the town in all legal matters, has disqualified himself as he may be called upon as a witness in the case which comes up in Circuit Court 13 in Windsor on Feb. 28.

Walker is with the law firm of Day, Berry and Howard of Hartford.

Walker will also represent Town Manager C. Samuel Kissinger in a $50,000 libel suit he has against Mrs. Emmalou Kirchmeier of 228 Abbe Road, Enfield, concerning charges she made against the Town Manager during her unsuccessful bid for an at-large council seat on the Republican ticket in the Nov. 6 election.

Small Claims Court Reform Bill Is Filed

Informal hearings requiring only that "substantial justice" be done are provided for in a small claims court reform bill being drafted by State Rep. Rosario T. Vella (R-59).

Vella, House chairman of the State and Urban Development Committee, said that his measure would dispense with most statutory provisions or rules of practice, procedure, pleadings or evidence governing small claims hearings.

A small claims court defendant would also be netitled to a jury trial if the case involved the sum of $500 or more.

Rep. Vella said Massachusetts, New York and Vermont already permit jury trials. He said this would eliminate motions to transfer cases to the regular docket of the court in which small claims was placed.

Hearings would be held at times and places convenient to claimants and defendants under the Vella bill, and a night hearing would be held if either a claimant or defendant requested one.

This, he said, would give consumers of limited means access to the court during their after-work hours and free them of the need for taking a day off.

The Vella bill would permit appeals of claims exceeding $100 to the court's appellate division. The appeals panel would limit its review to questions of law. Four Northeastern states already permit appeals.

Rep. Vella said the final draft of the small claims bill is nearing completion, and he is hopeful of gaining "broad support among legislators for a measure that would make these courts far more accessible and thereby fairer to the person of average income."

William J. Napolitano and Mrs. Winifred W. Notman, Enfield's co-chairmen admire the 1974 Heart Fund goal at the recent annual Dutch-treat Kick-off Dinner. The goal was set for the 29 towns served by the Heart Association of Greater Hartford during their month-long drive in February. The funds support cardio-vascular research programs, community service activities and public and professional education.

Five Area Men Take A.F. Exam

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lowell Weicker, (R-Conn.) has nominated five Greater Enfield Area men among 30 for appointments to the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs.

Nominated to fill three vacancies at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs are: George M. Drakeley II, 1233 Halladay Ave., Suffield; Michael J. Garlan, 14 Steele Rd., Anthony J. Giovanetti, 28 Powder Ridge Rd., both of Enfield.

Also nominated by Senator Weicker were: Neal B. Talbot, 329 Reed Ave., Windsor Locks and Richard B. Whinnem, 69 Prospect Hill Dr., Warehouse Point.

Town Heart Fund Drive Goal Is Set At $5,000

ENFIELD — Mrs. Kenneth King and Mrs. Alan Clapp have been named chairmen of the town's Heart Fund drive.

The women, appointed by local campaign cochairmen Mrs. Winifred Notman and William Napolitano, will direct volunteers here to visit friends and neighbors, distribute information and collect funds to help reduce premature death and disability from heart disease.

The high point of the campaign is the door-to-door drive which will end Feb. 24. February is American Heart month, and about 450 local volunteers will join more than 2 million others across the country collecting funds and supporting Heart Association programs.

Napolitano said heart and blood vessel diseases, the nation's number one killers, are responsible for more than a million deaths each year in this country. These diseases will cost the nation an estimated $19.7 billion in lost wages and medical expenses this year, according to Heart Association figures.

The town's Heart Association has set a goal of $5,000 for this year's drive, which Napolitano said, will go towards supporting educational and community programs as well as research, a prime function of the Heart Association.

"Through research and other programs, we can reduce premature death and disability from heart disease," Napolitano said.

Cochairman Mrs. Notman said headway is being made against the disease, which reportedly causes 53 per cent of all deaths in the country. She said since the early 1960's, coronary care units have reduced the in-hospital death rate from heart attack by about 30 per cent.

"But despite achievements in the fight against the nation's number one killer, more help is needed," Mrs. Notman said.

Other members of the local Heart Association include: Gary Smith; Town Councilman Dick Cressotti; Edward Gervais; Patrolman Norman Reed of the town's Cardiac Alert Unit; Hurlburt Frew; Harold Rosen; Mrs. Frank Carona, Barry Cohan and Mrs. Tony Lombardo.

The landfill will be closed Feb. 18, and will resume its normal schedule the following week.

Police Chief's Remarks Noted In Distant States

By ERNEST A. MOKUS

Enfield Police Chief Walter J. Skower has received two letters, one from South Daytona Beach, Florida and the other from Damascus, Arkansas.

Both letters referred to comments made by him concerning local school children being injured by motor vehicles while going to school in the early morning darkness of Daylight Saving Time.

The first letter was from a 16-year-old high school junior, Nancy Mallett of Damascus, Arkansas.

In her letter, Miss Mallett referred to the chief's comments on accident occurrences since Daylight Saving Time began. She said her opinion did not matter but the lives of children do. She referred to a fatal accident of a six-year-old, apparently in her area. In remarking about the case, Miss Mallett said the child was an only offspring and asked the chief how he would judge the case.

As the driver stated she couldn't see the child, should the parents blame themselves for not dressing the child in white or should the driver be blamed for not seeing the child or should the child be blamed for not moving out of the way of the car.

The second letter was from a writer who signed himself "Mr. X" from South Daytona Beach, Florida. The writer enclosed a front page article from the Daytona Beach Evening News. The subject was accidents occurring during the darkness of Daylight Saving Time. It quoted Chief Skower as saying, "We had several accidents right after the (time) change, but Daylight Saving Time didn't really have anything to do with most of them."

The article, by the Associated Press, said eight children have been killed in early morning accidents in Florida since DST took effect whereas only two died in the same period last year. The AP spot check also showed that one youngster died in Virginia, one in Ohio and two in California. In addition a woman pedestrian in Connecticut (this occurred in Enfield) and an adult school crossing guard in South Carolina, were killed in pre-dawn auto accidents.

The AP article said most officials were reluctant to put all the blame for the accidents on DST. They noted that weather was a factor as was possible carelessness by some drivers.

Year round DST went into effect Jan. 6 as an energy saving measure. A recent AP survey of utility officials showed the effects of the switch so far have been minor — with an electricity saving of less than one per cent.

Bloodmobile Here Tuesday

On Feb. 19, the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at St. Adalbert's Parochial School, from 11 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Two hundred donors are needed in order to make the quota for the day.

Mrs. Paul Mueller of Warehouse Point is chairman of donor recruitment and will have a group working on the telephone to contact known donors, but anyone who can donate is urged to do so. All that is necessary is good health and the will to give, if you are between 18 and 66. Young people may donate, with written parental permission.

Forms for parental permission may be obtained from the school nurse, in either town high school, or by calling the Red Cross at 745-7253.

Walk-in donors will be welcome.

More Aid For Families Of Retarded

HARTFORD — The families of retarded children and adults in the north central region of the state should receive more help under proposals included in

Governor Meskill's budget address last week. Meskill asked for $1.2

million for the North Central Regional Center for the retarded. The money will be used to establish a "network of minicenters" in the 14 towns of the region, including Enfield and Suffield.

Most of the other regions, Dubrow pointed out, have institutions for the retarded such as Mansfield or Southbury. "We don't intend to build such places," he said. "Rather, we're going the group home route."

students as much as we'd like," said Dubrow. "We have to step into the breach and make life as normal as possible for them."

Besides making group home facilities available within the region for retardates who require them, the state's program will, through the minicenters, offer services to all retarded members of the community.

The north central region was the last section of the state system put into operation by the office of mental retardation. For the past few years its center has been in rented quarters in Bloomfield.

Diagnostic and testing services will be performed in the mini-centers. Social workers and recreation specialists will help develop community programs for the retarded.

"We happened to locate the administrative offices there because space was available in the old Blue Hills school," said Dubrow.

"Other children, in school for the most part, don't want to associate with retarded

The center also operates a day-care program for retarded children in the Wilson Congregational Church, Windsor.

Dubrow said the office of mental retardation had not yet decided where the minicenters would be established, or where any future group homes would be located.

In addition, the state office of mental retardation is setting up group homes in the region to allow retardates to live near their own families and communities in non-institutional settings.

"We've recently opened a group home for the retarded in Enfield, which becomes the responsibility of the Regional Center," said Arthur Dubrow of the office of mental retardation.

"We're also negotiating for a facility in Simsbury that was a former convalescent home."

"A third home in Somers is tied up in a court battle where neighbors of the proposed residence are attempting to block its establishment. "We have some reason to hope the judge will rule in our favor," Dubrow added.

Residents of Mansfield Training Center will be moved into the group homes first. Since the purpose of the homes is to help prepare retardates to live on their own or with their families, spaces will gradually

Teacher Certifying Bills Revived

HARTFORD — Teachers organizations and the General Assembly's Education Committee are at odds again this year about standards for certifying teachers in Connecticut.

Last year the committee considered a number of bills that would have made sweeping changes in the certification and tenure laws of the state. After strong opposition from teacher's groups, all the measures were dropped.

This session, the committee hoped to present a much more moderate approach to certification standards, emphasizing a longer period of provisional certification, during the beginning of which the teacher would be closely supervised and evaluated.

But at a public hearing last week, teachers and teachers' association spokesmen said that the bill would endanger teachers' tenure rights and lower rather than raise existing standards.

"Until criteria, procedures and programs for evaluation are tested, developed and implemented, this may be a step backwards," said John Santini of the Association of Colleges and Universities for Teachers of Education.

Spokesmen for the Connecticut Education Association, CEA, said they feared superintendents of schools might use the evaluation provision to deny certification arbitrarily to teachers.

Instead, the CEA suggested, three year's renewal of a provisional teacher's contract by a school system should be the qualification for permanent certification.

State Rep. Astrid Hanzalek, cochairman of the subcommittee working on the bill, said the committee intended to incorporate some of the teachers' suggestions in the measure, including a clear right of appeal of denial of permanent certification.

Rep. Hanzalek said the subcommittee also intended to make sure that teachers who could not complete their provisional period immediately because of illness, pregnancy or some other reason would be able to qualify for permanent certification later.

The teachers also objected to the elimination of the requirement for a Master's degree after the first few years of teaching, claiming it would dilute education standards.

Rosa Brown of the CEA suggested the state require a masters degree or 30 credit hours of graduate work.

"It would allow and encourage teachers to take advantage of offerings from a variety of colleges and in a variety of fields," she said.

"Admittedly, it would make possible a search by some teachers for "snap" courses, but if students from kindergarten through high school are being offered freedom to select desired learning activities, and self-motivated independent studies, then surely college graduated professionals should be allowed a similar choice," she added.

Question: Not What But How?

HARTFORD — One of the biggest topics of discussion in the General Assembly this year is not what bills to pass, but how to get to Hartford to pass anything.

Legislators' responses to the gasoline shortage have varied, during the pre-session period, according to how hard their own community has been hit by fuel problems.

One Cheshire representative, who said two weeks ago that no state action was necessary on gasoline shortages, announced recently that he had done a quick turnabout. "Monday there were lines of three or four cars, and by Wednesday it was more like twenty or thirty," he reported.

Most Enfield area legislators simply say, as did Suffield Rep. Astrid Hanzalek: "I wait in line like everybody else." Lawmakers from farther away, particularly those from Fairfield County, recount long odysseys down the Connecticut Turnpike, stopping at each visible station to beg a dollar's worth of gas.

One of the reasons for the truncated legislative schedule of this session, with Wednesday voting sessions and Tuesdays and Thursdays reserved for committee hearings, is to allow lawmakers to spend a night or two in Hartford and finish up their week's work before sacrificing the gasoline to return home.

Partly because they feel as frustrated as the general public, and partly because they believe the people of the state want them to act, legislators have been talking about passing some sort of measures to deal with the crisis.

"The people in this state are tired of waiting for gas," said State Sen. Charles Alfano. "I don't know if rationing is the solution. The Oregon plan might help, if gas stations are going to continue the policy of opening only a few hours a day. They blame the consumer for topping off, but if the stations would fill tanks Hanzalek. Talking to people I get the impression they aren't sure if it's real or artificial. Even those in decision-making positions find it difficult to get the facts or the right answers."

Since neither the federal nor state government has yet acted directly on the shortage problem, some Connecticut towns have already acted, imposing versions of the "Oregon plan" that either assign cars certain days to fill up according to license plate numbers. Other towns have told service stations to set a three dollar minimum on gas sales.

State Energy Chief Eckardt C. Beck has sent a five-man team around the state to encourage service stations to apply under a new regulation that permits the Federal Energy Office to raise quotas for stations that can show an "adjusted growth factor." So far, the response by interested station owners has been less enthusiastic than anticipated.

The Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association, CGRA, is trying to encourage gas dealers to open at 7 a.m., keep regular hours and discourage motorists from purchasing gas if their tanks are more than half full.

The CGRA is having trouble getting widespread support for the proposals, at least partially because owners want to try to keep their gas supplies for regular customers.

"Stations shouldn't restrict sales to regular customers only," said Alfano recently, "if we had legislation compelling them to sell to everyone it might help." "There's a question of whether the federal government has the legal wherewithal to handle the confusion," noted Rep. Hanzalek. "I think there will be a lot of state legislation."

Connecticut's Commemorative

The state's American Revolution Bicentennial Medal, designed by Milford artist Birney Lettich celebrates the "Fundamental Orders of Connecticut," first written constitution in the U.S. It was rendered into bas-relief by Clarence Doore of Westport and struck by the Medallic Art Company of Danbury. On the reverse side is the state's coat of arms and information about why the medal was cast. Medals will go on sale to the public Oct. 1 through the commercial banks and loan associations. Proceeds will be used to support the programs of the Bicentennial Commission. It has been struck in a limited silver edition of 2 1/2 inches of 2500 medals. 1 1/2 inch medals are in both silver and bronze.

Utility Bill Tax Is Dying

HARTFORD — The utility bill tax was breathing its last in the state capitol last week.

The quick removal of the 6 1/2 percent levy on all gas, water and electric bills was a forgone conclusion even before Governor Meskill asked the legislature last week to get rid of the tax by March 1.

Public hearings are supposed to give legislators new input before they make their decisions on proposed measures. But the hearing on the utility tax last week began with a suggestion from Finance Committee chairman Sen. Larry DeNardis that if the testimony finished quickly, the committee could vote to approve the repeal by the end of the afternoon.

And the committee did just that.

Following testimony from some representatives of the business community and senior citizens, the committee voted unanimously to send the measure to the House for approval.

The only controversy about the bill involved an amendment to raise the present exemption from the tax from $10 to $250. The bipartisan coalition supporting the proposal wanted to eliminate the tax for homeowners but keep it for big commercial and industrial customers. The amendment failed on a 7-7 tie.

The utility bill raised $22 million for the state last year. If the repeal goes into effect March 1, Connecticut will lose $27-$29 million from this and next year's state

The legislature's Banks and Regulated Activities Committee is planning to hold public hearings around the state in March on the fuel adjustment question. income.

Some legislators are uncomfortably aware that getting rid of the utility bill tax will not really solve voters' complaints about the high price of their electric bills.

The utilities have permission from the Public

Utilities Commission to pass on any fuel costs beyond a base price to the consumers through a fuel adjustment rate. It is the fuel adjustment that is causing electric bills to soar.

John Betts, vice-president of United Illuminating, told the Finance Committee public hearing that eliminating the utility bill tax would have saved UI customers $3.4 million in 1973.

Under questioning from DeNardis, Betts said the fuel adjustment rate for the same year cost UI customers $23 million. This year the amount is expected to be much higher.

made it 26-21 at half time. Barnes stretched the lead to 44-33 at the three quarter mark and finally won it 63-47 going away.

What Justice?

From what has been disclosed about the criminal correctional system in Massachusetts, it certainly isn't being operated in a way to protect society from the undesirable and unstable elements committed for major crimes.

This inference must be drawn from the apprehension of an 18-year-old suspect in the murder of retired Enfield Superintendent of Schools Karl D. Lee, 81, in Springfield after he attended a hockey game in that city.

The suspect had a criminal record dating back to 1969, and included the slaying of a Springfield man when he was only 16 years old. In Juvenile Court he was found guilty of delinquency by reason of murder and sentenced to an indeterminate term in custody of the State Department of Youth Services. The department committed him to a detention center.

What is hard to believe, and certainly needs a lot of explaining, is that after serving only two months he was released. There was supposed to be a procedure for this, which included a psychiatric evaluation, and a conference with the sentencing judge. Whether this was done appears doubtful.

But, in any event, anyone who has taken the life of another, regardless of age, could not, by the farthest stretch of the imagination, be considered rehabilitated that fast.

A crime of this nature cannot be forgiven — and that's what it amounts to — in a matter of a couple of months. Persons have served longer sentences for relatively minor offenses.

The wanton murder of Mr. Lee should cause Massachusetts to look long and deep into its system of criminal justice, and make corrections in a corrections system that has some serious faults, or is being administered by incompetents?

Controls Fail

The announcement that the cost of living went up 8.8 per cent in 1973, the highest rate of rise since 1947, was no surprise to anyone who's been paying the bills for a family.

Our concern at this point, however, should not be what happened in 1973, but what's going to happen in 1974 and beyond.

Unfortunately, the prospects for an early end to the inflationary spiral are not bright. And most disturbing is the fact that neither the President nor Congress appears to have any real solution to offer.

Three years ago, the nation was plagued by increasing inflation at a time when unemployment was rising also, threatening a recession accompanied by higher prices, a situation unique in the nation's economic history. Public concern and fear that his reelection would be threatened by a recession led President Nixon to change economic policies and announce a freeze on prices and wages, followed by a series of economic controls by government.

Although they were sprinkled with inequities, the controls worked well enough that they slowed inflation, and the economy rebounded sufficiently that unemployment was gradually reduced. However, just a year ago, Mr. Nixon declared the battle against inflation won and loosened the controls, lifting them from some segments of the economy and leaving them in effect for others.

Then came a series of shortages, led by food and fuel, which pushed prices up sharply. Some temporary controls on individual items, such as beef, proved a disaster. The Nixon administration seemed helpless to do anything other than make repeated predictions that if we are patient, things will get better. Congress was no more helpful.

The administration and Congress now are pondering whether to do away entirely with controls when the present laws expire in April and go back to an economy where supply and demand determine the price levels.

Considering the value of the present controls, which seems to be practically nothing, we believe total abandonment of controls is worth a try.

However, if the free enterprise principle of competition regulating prices is going to work, government will have to assure that there truly is competition, which means cracking down hard on those firms which fix prices or conspire to fix prices.

Economic systems today are enormously complicated. Major corporations deal in billions of dollars. Government influence in one segment of the economy can affect other segments. Government spending is a big factor; so is over-all monetary policy. World trade and what happens with other nations' economies has influence too.

At best, we probably face a year or two of economic turmoil stemming from current shortages. This turmoil means more inflation, more unemployment, more charges and countercharges by industry, labor, government, consumer interests and environmentalists.

Unfortunately, those who are hurt most by this are the elderly living on fixed incomes and the poor, whose increases in income always lag behind cost of living increases.

With the failure of the selective controls imposed by the Nixon administration, our choice really is between total government controls of wages and prices and no controls at all. The prospects are that total controls, over any extended period, would cause more shortages and more problems than they would solve. They would erase competition and discourage initiative.

Encouragement of competition in a free economy atmosphere seems our best bet, but government must still be there to police performance by profit-seeking entrepreneurs looking for a way to corner the market on certain products and make a financial killing for themselves.

THE EXORCIST

Additional Half Million For Enfield?

By GAIL COLLINS

Enfield would get $499,330 in additional funds from the state under a budget proposed by Governor Meskill.

The money would come from a package of programs for aid to local communities. The entire plan is so confusing that even the General Assembly's financial experts were unclear last week about its total implications.

Some things about the Governor's budget message were much easier to understand. Meskill wants taxes lowered immediately — elimination of the utility bill tax starting March 1 and a half per cent drop in the sales tax by April 1.

He wants to greatly extend aid to the elderly, eliminating the capital gains tax when senior citizens sell their homes, and spending even more than the legislature had planned for property tax and rent rebates for the elderly.

But what about the local communities? Meskill has suggested a switch from the traditional method of helping towns through aid to education to an emphasis on block grants and property tax relief.

Traditionally, most state aid to towns has come through the ADM (Average Daily Membership), per pupil grants to local school districts.

The ADM now stands at $215 per pupil. The State Board of Education has asked the General Assembly to raise it to $300, to make up for spiralling school costs. Most legislators hoped for at least a $20 hike.

But Meskill asked the General Assembly only for a $5 raise. He proposed that the legislature make the hike effective for this school year.

The rest of the money for towns comes from two programs. The first is a block grant of $10 for each child in the public school system. The money would come from state revenue-sharing funds.

The other proposal would give communities $5 per resident to be used specifically for property tax relief. The 1970 federal census would be used to determine how much each town would receive — a method suburban legislators have claimed is unfair to their fast-growing towns.

Supporters of Meskill's program say that since most local taxes go to support schools anyway, the package really does amount to what the Republican leadership claims — a hike of around $40 in the ADM.

Others worry that since the $10 per-student grant will not be earmarked for schools, town governments will use most of it to cut taxes and allow educational systems to suffer under the weight of inflation.

One important difference between Meskill's package and a real $40 ADM raise is the question of how long it will continue. Although legislators appropriate the ADM money every year, it is politically difficult to cut back on the school funds once they have been increased.

If the ADM really was raised by $40, towns could feel reasonably secure that they would continue getting $255 per pupil in the future.

However the block grants and property tax relief could easily be a "one shot deal" as many Democrats claim. The GOP says it does not pass "yo-yo" finance bills — up one year, down the next.

But beyond the $5 ADM increase, towns will really not be able to predict how much of the local aid package would continue beyond the next fiscal year.

State Rep. Rosario Vella said he was pleasantly surprised by the budget address.

"I expected the Governor to request we eliminate the sales tax on utility bills and reduce the sales tax. But it surprised me that he asked that they be eliminated in this fiscal year."

"The $5 ADM raise for this year surprised me. I was surprised with the whole emphasis on doing things this session."

Vella said he was also impressed with the Governor's extensive requests for capital projects, and particularly happy about money for the development of the North Central Regional Center for the mentally retarded.

One disappointment, he added, was the Governor's request for a flat raise in ADM rather than a move toward equalizing the difference between wealthy and struggling school districts.

"Under the present system the rich towns get richer and the poor towns poorer," he said. "I didn't want to give Darien and Greenwich more money. I want to give it to Enfield, where it's needed."

Meskill's other spending proposals got an enthusiastic reception from the GOP. The Governor asked for $21 million for expenditures and $100 million for long-term capital projects for mass transportation.

He suggested more money for mental health, particularly for alcoholism rehabilitation, and increased programs to bring the retarded into closer contact with communities.

The Governor also indicated he would like to see elderly property owners given a choice between the new "circuit-breaker" program of property tax and rent rebates and the old tax freeze system — an idea many legislators have suggested.

Candy-Making At Crand's Castle

Crand's Candy Castle, on the corner of Pleasant Rd. and Rte. 5, is owned and operated by Robert and Thomas Crand. The Crand Brothers have been in business in Enfield for 20 years. Their candy factory is in "The Chimneys", a residential home built in 1820. The business was started by their father, John Crand, who spent 50 years making and selling candies.

THE FODNEANT — Robert Crand says reassuringly not to be afraid of the fancy name, the "fodneant" is simply a mixer, part of the process of making candy centers. The mixer cools off the cream after it has been boiled on the stove. While in the mixer, natural fruit flavors are added.

CHOCOLATE MELTERS — Tom Crand explains that each melter contains a type of chocolate, a white or dark. When melted down and mixed together, the dark and white form milk chocolate.

CANDY MOLDS — Chocolate, white and dark, takes shape when it is poured into molds. Tom Crand is making Easter bunnies for the next big-seller season.

PACKING ROOM — The packing room is a sweet tooth's paradise, tables lined with boxes of chocolates ready to be packed, sold, and, alas eaten. Nancy Quos, holding today's big seller, has been working at the shop part time for 6 years. Nancy lives at 12 Broadleaf La., Enfield, and commutes each day to St. Joseph's College in Hartford.

FRONT SHOP — A variety of candies are sold in the front shop by Helen Colgen, who has worked at Crand's 19 years. Mrs. Colgen, 1467 Enfield St., Enfield, says the temptation to nibble lessens the longer you stay in the shop. Consequently, she is a slender woman with a great deal of self-discipline.

HAND DIPPING — The Crand Brothers employ one of the youngest hand-dipping artists in the country. A technique usually requiring a year's practice was learned by Sandy in three months. The art of hand-dipping candy, Tom Crand said, is dying, being replaced by machinery. (Sandy Driedon, Lynch Terr., Enfield, a full-time employee, is dipping butter crunch.)

HOBART MIXER — The Hobart Mixer, marshmallow, nuget and other candy centers. Robert Crand explains, is used to mix centers.

Kids Canvas For Terry

Saturday morning, a 12-year-old J.F. Kennedy Junior High School student read a local newspaper article about the plight of the Alfred Bouffard family, most specifically the critical illness of their infant, Terry.

Touched by the story, Wendy Castle and a neighborhood friend, Susan Bogardus, 8, set out to collect money in the neighborhood to help the sick child.

Wendy was particularly sensitive to the Bouffard's situation because only recently her mother had been hospitalized for three months with possible tuberculosis, later diagnosed as an incurable lung disease.

Eight-year-old Susan, a Harriet Beecher Stowe student, also identified with the Bouffard's painful plight because her young aunt died of a liver disease two years ago.

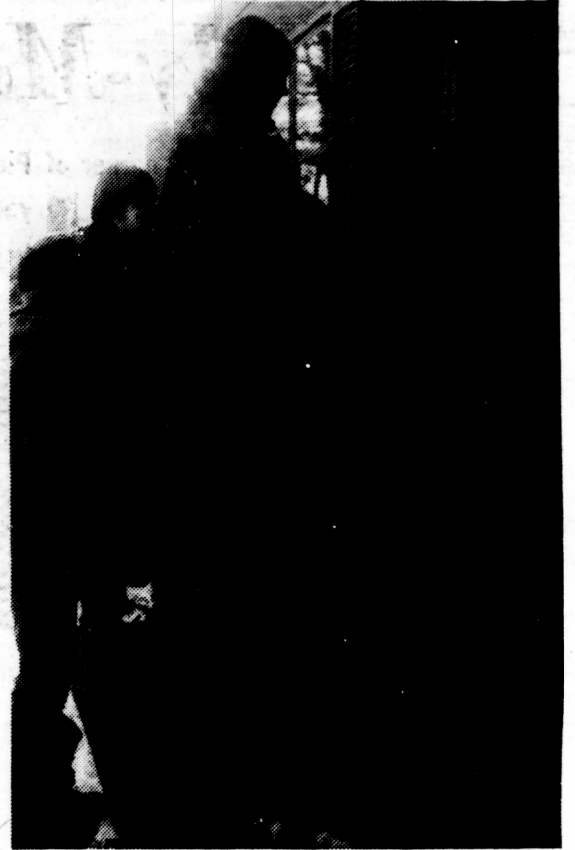

Both girls were joined in their door-to-door campaign by Wendy's brothers, Scott, 10, and Gary, 8, both Stowe students. They too understood the Bouffard's suffering, baby Terry's too, because of their mother's prolonged illness.

The Castle children's mother, Mrs. John Castle, explained that she always encouraged her children to help others whenever they could and she further remarked how helpful they were at home during her hospitalization. She believes, with her children as a fine example, there are many "good kids" in the community who fail to get proper recognition.

The children have canvassed their own neighborhood, Overhill Road, and several nearby, collecting $20 in two days. They made a poster using the newspaper articles so people would know about their cause.

When asked if they would like to someday meet the Bouffard family, all agreed they would, especially Wendy who loves babies.

Collecting for Terry Bouffard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bogardus, Overhill Rd., are, from left, Gary and Scott Castle, Susan Bouffard and in the front, Wendy Castle. So far the youngsters have collected $20.

BE MY VALENTINE — A. D. Higgins first-grader, Tim Holcomb, places a Valentine kiss on Cheryl Biathrow's cheek. An appropriate occasion for a tender expression of friendship.

Orientation is an opportunity to discuss courses with representatives from each department as well as to become better informed about graduation requirements, credits, etc.

Coffee will be served during the program.

Anne Bertinuson, a senior at Our Lady of the Angels Academy, has received notice that she is among the 15 highest ranking students of the state in the 1974 Betty Crocker Search for Leadership in Family Living.

therefore, is still being considered for a $1,500 or $500 Betty Crocker scholarship.

Anne said she was excited about the news because "now I have a chance to win the scholarship which I really need." She plans to attend Lyman Briggs College at Michigan State University, where she will major in botany.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Torvald and Teresale Bertinuson of Melrose.

Sports Hindsight

By Art Landry

SUPER-STARS

I have been watching the Super-Stars on television for the last few Sundays and find they are sometimes good for a laugh.

While most professional athletes are pretty good at all sports they even laugh at themselves when they try something they have never practiced.

Such is the case in the Super-Stars program. Contestants are not allowed to compete in the sport in which they make their living. Athletes usually do better in a sport related to their own, such as a boxer or wrestler trying weight lifting. When the boxer or wrestler tries bowling, tennis or swimming he doesn't seem to do as well.

The baseball and football players generally do pretty well at foot races, obstacle courses and bike riding. The boxer or wrestler seems to do better with feats of strength rather than speed, and feats of endurance rather than of agility.

It is unusual to see baseball players, football players, tennis players, boxers, wrestlers, hockey players, bowlers and auto racing drivers competing on common ground. All are professionals, outstanding in their fields. When you take them out of their own element, though, they sometimes flounder and that is where the fun comes in.

They even laugh at themselves when their efforts are too fruitless. They take it all as good sportsmen should even though they are competing for some pretty big money. A lot of the fun comes when they compete on the obstacle course.

They start by pulling themselves over a twelve foot wall on a rope, then scurrying through a length of pipe, hitting a bucking sled, running through a tire maze, jumping a 10 foot pool of water, high jumping over a bar and jumping a couple of hurdles on their way to the finish line.

Last Sunday one of the entrants didn't quite make it over the water hazard and fell in backwards to the delight of the crowd. Another announced, after bowling a bad game, that he can now be considered retired forever from the game of bowling. It is nice to know that even I might have a chance of beating some of the Super-Stars in bowling. Over all, though, I might take a beating.

Maybe that is what people like about the program. It humanizes their sports heroes and puts them on a level where a regular participant in a particular sport would have a chance to better the score of the Super-Stars.

Yes folks, those Super-Stars are human. Just don't try to beat them at their own game!

Now that they have a successful program for male Super-Stars it naturally follows that the girls will want equal billing. The subject hasn't come up yet but I am sure they will want a chance at some of this big money. And why not?

Surely the network could put together the same type of format for the girls and attract enough attention to gain a large audience.

The only trouble might be in deciding where to let Bobby Riggs compete. Billy Jean King might do him in again if she were to face him on the obstacle course and he certainly couldn't let that happen.

Speaking of Bobby Riggs, I see he conned Jim Ryan into a one mile race where he was given a half mile head start. That is quite a handicap and he proved that it was just too much by running away with the race. He actually ran a sub four-minute half mile. In fact it was closer to three minutes. If he had been given a quarter mile head start it would have been a closer race. The only trouble is that he probably couldn't go three quarters of a mile.

If Rigg is nothing else he is a good huckster. He manages to talk sportsmen into competing with him on his own terms. I imagine he is more famous now than he was at the height of his career in sports. Everyone knows who he is and they do tune in to his latest escapades. He captures the imagination, even when he does wear a bunny costume.

Seriously though, there are plenty of women sports professionals around who could compete in a female Super-Stars program and this would at least give the fair sex something to watch. I imagine quite a few men would be watching too.

Tanguay Promoted

HARTFORD Robert J. Tanguay of Enfield has been appointed assistant secretary in the group division at Aetna Life & Casualty.

Tim Flowers Wins MVP Game Award

Tim Flowers' was named the Most Valuable Player in leading the John F. Kennedy Junior High School Jayvees to a 46-39 victory over St. Patrick's CYO team. Flowers scored 16 points on 7 shots from the floor and 2 from the foul stripe.

Tony Conte won the Most Valuable Player award for St. Pat's as he netted 21 points on 10 baskets and a foul shot. Conte also was the game's highest scorer.

The game was kept quite close with JFK leading at the end of each period by scores of 13-9, 23-18, 37-26 and 46-39.

JFK had a little too much height and bench strength and the team was well drilled on the game fundamentals. St. Pat's was a fast breaking team with just one big man who did just about all of the rebounding for the team. St. Pat's played good defense and was also well drilled in the fundamentals.

The game was played as the first part of a triple header and was a crowd pleaser.

Let an EXPERT handle it!

50 Enfielders Use Commuter Bus Service

ENFIELD — Connecticut General Life Insurance Company, CG, is fast becoming a "local" firm to some 50 greater Enfield area employees who ride to the company's Bloomfield home office via CG's expanded commuter bus service.

The Enfield bus is one of 11 company-subsidized buses used to shuttle CG employees to the home office and back to their hometowns in the evenings.

John S. Wyper, CG vice president, said that the local bus "replaces more than 25 cars formerly driven by individuals and members of car pools in Enfield. The entire company-sponsored commuter bus program, involving 11 buses, takes 250 to 300 cars off the road."

The Enfield bus was begun, Wyper said, "due to the interest expressed by employees in the Enfield area who responded to a questionnaire published in the company newspaper. It is one very direct answer to the fuel shortage.

"Many of these employees now find it less expensive and more convenient to ride to work in one of our buses than to drive in their own cars," he added. Riders on all the new CG commuter bus routes pay $1 per day, round trip, on buses operated by the Connecticut Company.

"In effect," Wyper continued, "Connecticut General is becoming more like a local employer to our Greater Enfield Area people. They only have to worry about getting to the departure point. The bus does the rest."

The bus leaves Enfield at 7:05 arriving at CG at 7:45. It leaves CG at 4:15 p.m., returning to Enfield at 4:55 p.m.

Wyper said CG is studying the feasibility of offering sponsored bus service to and from other communities with significant numbers of company employees. In addition, he said, CG will continue to provide preferred home office parking spaces for employees who form car pools, a move that has already taken some 70 cars off the road.

Then, in overtime play West Hartford scored the winning goal.

At Bolton Sunday afternoon Vernon clubbed the Bantams 9-5. The game was strictly a wide open offensive show. Scoring for Enfield was Mike Gillen with the hat trick. Ray Tremlett and Steve Jensen also scored with 1 goal each. Assists went to Bill Moriarty with 3 and Ron Cudnik with 1.

State Representative Con O'Leary had some good words to say about the Department of Transportation, DOT.

About the recently instituted commuter bus service between northern Connecticut and the city of Hartford, he said, "This is certainly a step in the right direction, now we will have to keep them moving that way."

Buses will be leaving the Enfield Mall each weekday at 7, 7:15, 7:30, 7:45, 8:10, and 8:25 in the morning. Those buses will go directly to downtown Hartford where they will make a loop of the city stopping at the corner of Asylum and Trumbull Sts., Central Row, the Island of Safety, Market St. and Trumbull and Pearl Sts. The 7:30 bus will stop near Bushnell Theater.

Buses will be leaving the city for Enfield Mall and will make the same rounds at 4:30, 4:50, 5, 5:05, and 5:45 each evening. The 4:50 bus will be stopping at Bushnell Thaater as well.

The bus costs 75 cents one way, which is cheaper than the individual car. A car, the DOT estimates, requires 2 to 2 and 1/2 gallons of gasoline plus the cost of parking.

O'Leary hopes that if the widening of I-91 takes place it will provide an express bus lane between Northern Connecticut and the city of Hartford.

Grasso Says Freight Rail Cuts Would Be 'Disastrous'

U.S. Transportation Department recommendations for rail freight cuts in Connecticut and the Sixth District would have "a disastrous effect" on the state's economy and "add new cost factors to an already intolerable situation, and new transportation problems to our other economic difficulties," U.S. Representative Ella Grasso (D-6th District) said.

"It is my belief that the transportation department should be ordered back to the drawing board to formulate a more realistic plan for rail service in Connecticut," Mrs. Grasso said in a statement inserted into the Congressional Record. Mrs. Grasso said she plans to press for a revision of the Department's plan for Connecticut rail service at hearings on the proposal scheduled to begin in Hartford on March 11.

The proposals for Connecticut were among hundreds made by the Transportation Department in its recently released report on "Rail Service in the Midwest and Northeast Region."

Mandated by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, the report covers rail freight service in 17 states in the Northeast and Midwest. It indicates specifically which rail lines in which areas should be eliminated. In Connecticut, 26 percent of the rail freight trackage would be lost, while in the Sixth District, service on eight of 14 lines would be curtailed and 23 of the existing 37 freight stops would be abandoned.

Mrs. Grasso noted that adoption of the Transportation Department recommendations for Connecticut "would mean more crowded highways, greater air pollution, and severe economic hardship and dislocation." It would also result in higher prices for "badly needed products," she said.

"At a time when we must do everything in our power to provide alternatives to highway transportation, due to grave energy shortages, doing away with rail lines is simply incomprehensible.

The abandonment of 175 of Connecticut's 664 miles of rail trackage — as recommended in the Department of Transportation's report on Northeast and Midwest rail service — would have a disastrous effect on the economy of my state, and add new cost factors to an already intolerable situation and new transportation problems to other economic difficulties," Mrs. Grasso said.

Vella Supports Pat Piscopo

State Representative Rosario Vella, D-Enfield, announced his support for Pat Piscopo of Thomaston for the Republican Sixth Congressional District nomination.

Rep. Vella said that "Pat Piscopo is one of the finest men I have ever had the opportunity to work with in public service." He continued, "the ability of Pat to understand and formulate programs to meet peoples needs is outstanding." Vella said "the people of the Sixth District deserve a person who can relate to the complex problems of the District in employment, environmental affairs, consumer protection and other vital areas." He said "I look forward in the coming months to continue to work for Pat and convince him that his continued public service can be most beneficial serving the people in Congress.

Rep. Vella said, "it was Pat Piscopo's understanding and knowledge of consumer affairs that created the pioneering work which was completed in 1973 to provide interest rent security and tax region accounts."

Rep. Vella becomes another of the growing number of State Legislators who have publicly announced support for Pat Piscopo who now serves as Deputy State Banking Commissioner. Rep. Vella is House Chairman of the State and Urban Development Committee, Chairman of the Committee on Consumer Protection of the Eastern Regional Conference of the Council of State Govern-

SOMERS NEWS

Reporter: Sandra Burns — 745-3348

"Money Talks," a mini-course offered at Somers High School is an in depth study of how to make the best use of money in today's world. Pondering the question are, from left, Mary Lou Waite, Lee Ann Oliver, Peggy Legere and Cathy Gosselin with the guidance of their teacher, Mrs. Esther Shoup. Missing from the picture are the other two class members, Bill Borg and Jeff Krol.

Resourceful "Money Talks"

The home economics department at Somers High School is a busy place. In addition to the usual full schedule of cooking and sewing classes, the department is offering a series of three mini-courses of nine weeks each focusing on: "Food Ecology; "Clothes Ecology;" and, for the second year, "Money Talks."

Under the direction of home economics teacher, Mrs. Esther Shoup, the "Food Ecology" course deals with the "best use of our food resources." Wise shopping, label reading, cooking hints and safety with food in the kitchen, code dating, unit pricing and meat labeling are stressed. Canning, freezing and jelly making are also important.

Laundering, equipment, ironing, pressing and buying clothes are all studied and discussed. There is a right way and a wrong to play your wardrobe and to buy. "Clothes Ecology" guides students on the right path. As a special project, students are required to "recycle" an old garment into a usable, 1974 version.

"Money Talks" deals with how to make the best use of your money in today's world. Banking, insurance of all kinds, consumer laws, organizations, state and national, income tax, credit ratings, guarantees, investments, installments, loans, savings, and the principles of budgeting are all discussed. Each student, whether he or she be planning to attend college, work, get married or live at home, is required to make up a budget for the coming year that is realistic and workable. Students learn to write checks and balance their accounts; to make the best use of their money resources.

Somersville Women Meet

The Somersville Women's Club will meet next Thursday at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Ellsworth Wood on Fletcher Rd. to study and discuss her antique bottle collection. If anyone attending has any antique bottles and would like to bring them for discussion and identification they are urged to do so.

Mrs. Louis Gowdy will serve as hostess.

Gym Team Vaults Ahead

The Somers High School gymnastics team is a winning one this year with two more meets to go, one Monday and one Thursday, Feb. 21, the team hopes to gather enough points to compete as a team on the regional and the state level during the coming months.

The gym team has only been in existence officially for the past three years. During that time the talent, interests and ability of the girls, the upperclass men and the seventh and the eighth girls that work out with the group, is outstanding on the apparatus and, particularly in the floor exercise competitions.

The results of their grueling, three hour work-out sessions are directly seen in their 5-2 winning over larger and more experienced high school teams such as: South Windsor, Suffield, East Catholic, Montville and Ellington.

In judging gym meets the entire skill is considered. For example, the qualifying and subsequently winning student must be superior in most of the following areas: general impression, composition, originality, amplitude and execution. When vaulting, pre-flight, contact, and post-flight position and skills are considered.

The team is composed of three tri-captains: Donna Fitzgerald, Debbie Tikky and Kim Hale. Others on the 14 member team are: Karen Dustin, Terry Butler, Pauline Ardioli, Diane Metayer, Cheryl Hutton, Nancy Tikky, Mary Beth McClelland, Loretta Peck, and Linda Park. Eighth graders, Sue Hutton and Taryn Schaneman, are also on the team.

The girls will be competing Monday at home at 3 p.m. and Thursday, Feb. 21, also at home. Admission is free; parents and friends are urged to attend.

Make Drugs Obsolete

At their meeting Thursday, the Somers PTO focused on drugs. Merlyn Bishop, chairman of the Social Studies Department at Somers High School, and member of the Connecticut State Police Department were the featured guest speakers.

In his remarks, Merlyn Bishop focused upon the history of the drug problem and programs developed to combat and alleviate the occurrence of drug use. He observed the need for drugs as a part of a person's behavior must be alleviated. Educators and parents should work together through the school and social curriculum of the students to make the need for the use of drugs obsolete.

Faculty members in every department, kindergarten through 12th grade, have been informed about drugs and wherever applicable, the social sciences, home economics, and physical education departments, the subject has been used as topic of discussion and study.

Co-curricular activities have been increased; after school events and athletics have been expanded.

Parents can do their part by supporting these school programs, and acting positively, by participating in Little League, Girl Scouts, the Teen Center and specific school events.

Decision Makers

Representative, and Herbert Legg; front row, Charlotte Stopa, Patricia Warner, chairman, Superintendent A. J. Ouillette and Virginia Finley.

Improved Soil Maps

Suffield Conservation Commission Chairman Chester Kuras and member David Sawyer have been empowered by the commission to study suggested wetlands maps from the Ford Foundation in order to produce better local maps showing soil types and data.

Lands included under the state Inland-Wetlands and Water Courses Act are defined by soil types — such as "poorly drained" or "flood plain" by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, and watercourses include everything from rivers and streams to marshes and bogs.

Youth And Today's Laws

last year, in other parts of the state, met with such success, that it was suggested that Somers, too, might benefit from such a program. A local attorney will be selected to act as commentator, lecturer, teacher and thus familiarize our youth of today with the laws of today.

This program, sponsored by the Women's Club of Somers is headed by Mrs. John R. Adler in cooperation with Merlyn Bishop, chairman of the Somers Social Studies Department.

HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP

Flavia Brakewynde, famed English novelist, is writing the script for the new super epic, "Tinkerbell Climbs The Wall." . . . Contrary to all that has been written about them, Johnny Cash and Mama Cass Elliot will not co-star in a remake of, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." . . . The Keester Brothers, famed European highwire performers, have split. Sigmund, the older of the two, says that his brother Wolfgang, is getting too big for his britches . . . The new cinerama block buster, "The Son of The Last Tango In Paris Comes Home," is getting rave reviews! . . . Songwriter Montmorency Klutz has got another smash rock hit in "My True Love Took A Bath Last Month."

Thelma Thunderbottom, who made a mint in porno flops, says that she is quitting the films and plans a future on Broadway. She is presently studying Shakespeare and would give her eyeteeth for the role of Ophelia! . . . Famed Irish tenor and yodeler, O. Leo Lahey, and Reno show gal Pristine Titbingle, plan a June honeymoon . . . Noted English essayist Lord Cecil Peck-Snyff III, desperately wants American actress Prudence Hooker to star in his new film, "Gomer Pyle, Remittance Man Extraordinaire." But Prudence is far more interested in making country and western recordings. She says she'd give anything to make an LP with the great Conway Twitty . . . And super star Buck Owens may yet record the hauntingly beautiful, "Lovely Old Lake Titicaca Moon."

The world of show biz is all agog over the torrid romance between 91 year old producer Jaques Buggee-Clout and starlet Fondella Konk, who has just turned 18. The question everyone seems to be asking is — can love find a way? Hollywood says "Yes!" . . . It's only a rumor, but it's growing by leaps and bounds that one of the big studios is planning to make Jim Nabors into another Clark Gable.

Our bet is that the best family movie of 1974 will be, "Lassie Bites The Hand That Feeds Her." Mountgrief Whattles, who is going to direct the movie wants none other than that tempestuous star O. Dora Gamey as the co-star . . . Another rumor quite prevalent along Vine St., is that producer Harliss Q. Zilch wants to make, "The Blood of Dracula," into a musical comedy, starring Daphne Buttwhanger, and wants the high priced team of song-writers, Gideon Prinkwhistle and Eurasmus Yuckey to write the score . . . And my last scoop! Did you know that Hollywood wants to do the life of Lawrence Welk with Soupy Sales playing the lead?

From the New York (N.Y.) Herald-Tribune: — Madalynne has a natural taste for classic city clothes. She's on the tail side — a well-filled 16. — (Sort of figures, doesn't it.)

An hour or so from long ago: It all came about on a dreary, rainy Thursday afternoon when a pink aardvark, two bright red kangaroos, a polka-dot python and a black and white checkered elephant strolled into a corner saloon and grouped together at the far end of the bar.

The barkeep eyed them for a moment, smiled wistfully, then said, "Sorry fellers, but you're a bit early. Harrington hasn't showed up as yet."

I happened onto a little story one day last week that I think is worth passing on. It's all about a judge who listened with much grave concern to a case of a man charged with beating his wife, drunkenness and non-support.

When all of the facts were in the judge looked down on the accused and with a voice filled with utter contempt said, "You should be thoroughly ashamed of yourself for treating this poor woman in such a miserable manner. I am going to make an example of you and award her three hundred dollars a month.

The defendant shuffled about for a bit, then smiling, looked up at the judge and said, "That's most generous of you, your honor. I'm sure she can use the money. And whenever I can afford it, I'll give her a dollar or two myself."

A few quickies one more time —

The bum asked, "Would you give me a quarter for a sandwich?" And the feller said, "I don't know — let me see the sandwich first?" . . . Barber, "Have I shaved you before sir?" Man in the chair, "Nope, I got these scars in Viet Nam." . . . Heard about a girl with the gold-digger's rash. She's got an itch for a guy with scratch . . . She's a girl you have to look at twice — the first time you don't believe it . . . Husband, "What's the big idea of telling my doctor that I'm stupid?" Wife, "It's a secret?" . . . Wife, "I'm homesick." Husband, "But dear, you are home." Wife, "Yeah, I know, and I'm sick of it."

There's a nice old dude who comes on with a TV commercial, dude by the name of Euell Gibbons, and he asks, "Have you ever eaten a pine tree?" Well, I talk back to the TV, as you must well know, and I said, "Of course I have — dozens of them. Why do you suppose they chased me out of Vermont?"

Let Chauncey Lovelight set you right —

Dear Mr. Lovelight:

After my mother divorced Queasley Twitshaw, my stepfather, I fell madly in love with him, even though he is 41 years older than I am. At our wedding my mother embarrassed us something terribly by whistling chorus after chorus of, "Ol' Man Mose Is Dead," all through the ceremony. And as we were leaving the church my mother threw 25 pounds of rice at us — cooked rice.

Later, when I asked Queasley if we should take my mother with us on our honeymoon he said that it would be hunky dory with him. Now, my problem is my second husband (I'd been married twice before) also wants to go with us. What shall I do?

Tondelayo Twitshaw.

Dear Mrs. Twitshaw:

Remember the old adage: the more the merrier. And if he's still around, why not ask your first husband to go too, even if it's only for the ride.

Balch Motors

The folks at Balch Motors, 428 South Main St., East Windsor, are happy to show off their 1974 Electra Limited, which they describe as "one of the world's finest luxury cars if not the finest". Larry Shine, left, Buick Motor Division's district manager, and Jim Balch list the Electra's fine features — air-conditioning, power steering and windows — and suggest you come out and see for yourself. Larry Shine suggests also seeing the new Electra Landau, "the prettiest car on the road", which he describes as the "big car with small car characteristics as far as economy is concerned."

"Tot Finder" Rescue

With the financial aid of the Enfield Jaycee Wives, the Public Affairs Committee of the Enfield Junior Woman's Club will be distributing 1,000 "Tot Finder" fire rescue decals throughout Enfield during February. These decals are to be placed on the outside of children's bedroom windows so that firemen will be alerted to these areas first, in case of fire.

The "Tot Finder" decal program is the CIP (Community Improvement Program) project of the Enfield Junior Woman's Club this year. Although 14 civic organizations in Enfield were asked to contribute so that this program would benefit every child in Enfield, only the Enfield Jaycee Wives donated funds. Therefore, with its own financial support, the Enfield Juniors were able to purchase only 1,000 decals instead of the projected 8,000.

In order to cover as wide a range as possible of Enfield children, the Public Affairs Committee will be distributing the "Tot Finder" decals as follows: Each elementary school PTA will make the decals available to interested parents at their February meeting. The Enfield Day Care Center and the Neighborhood Center will be supplying them to their children. Six nursery schools in Enfield will be distributing them to their pupils: Country Day School, Enfield Congregational Church Nursery School, Happytime Nursery School, Playland Nursery School, Enfield Junior Woman's Club, Stepping Stones Nursery School, and the Montessori School.

"Odd Couple" Coming

Milt Kamen stars as Oscar in the Neil Simon comedy, "The Odd Couple," which will play through Mar. 10 at the Chateau de Ville Dinner Theatre, East Windsor. Oscar's other half, Felix, is played by Arnold Stang.

Milt Kamen is a familiar television personality. As well as dramatic and comedy roles in such shows as "The Streets of San Francisco," "The F.B.I.," "Love American Style," "The Dean Martin Show and many others, Mr. Kamen's non-stop schedule includes frequent appearances on The Tonight Show, with Johnny Carson, The Dick Cavett Show, The David Frost Show, The Mike Douglas Show, The Merv Griffin Show and To Tell The Truth.

Kamen made his Broadway debut in Paddy Chayefsky's "Passion of Joseph D." He received raves for his starring roles in "Two by Saroyan" and broke all records in Kansas City, starring in "I Can't Hear You When The Water's Running." As a well known comedian, above all, Milt Kamen has received enormous critical acclaim.

Also appearing in "The Odd Couple" are Rik Colitti, Don Simms, Bernie Passeltiner, Herman Arbeit, Lucy Lee Flippin and Kayla Harris. The comedy is produced by Gerald Roberts and directed by James Burrows. The play is scheduled to run through March 10. Reservations are now being accepted.

The Valley Singers, a popular local choral group, entertained at the Enfield K of C Annual Ladies' Night Tuesday. The group consists of about fifteen male and female members who love to sing. They have given many concerts and have performed on TV and at many benefits. Included in the program Tuesday were such songs as "Black and White",

"I Don't Know How to Love Him", "Morning Has Broken," and "We've Only Just Begun".

The Valley Singers is directed by Les Childs, chairman of Music at South Catholic High, Hartford. Carol Powell, an elementary music teacher in Enfield, is the accompanist. Newly elected officers include Fran Malloy, Chairman; Ruby

Troubled Times Explained

"Our Troubled Times, What Do They Mean?" is the title of a public talk that will be delivered by A. Block, circuit overseer for Jehovah's Witnesses in this area, who is visiting the Enfield congregation this week. The talk will be given at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 322 North Maple St., at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Frank Desormier, presiding overseer of the Enfield congregation, said the discourse will give the Bible's explanation of the momentous events we see happening today. "Many persons," he said, "wonder where it's all going to end, never realizing the answers are in the family Bible, which may be gathering dust on the shelf."

St. Bernard's Hosts Lawn Party

St. Bernard's Church of Enfield is reviving an old tradition with a new spirit. Reminiscent of similar affairs which were a yearly attraction before World War II, the parish will host an old-fashioned Lawn Party over the three-day period May 30, 31, and June 1. From 7 to 11 p.m. on Thursday, 4 to 11 p.m. on Friday, and noon to 11 p.m. on Saturday, games and refreshments will abound. Live music and rides for the younger set will also be featured among the activities taking place on the church grounds.

The Parish Council conceived the idea of having a bazaar as a means of reducing the parish debt. Initial plans for St. Bernard's Lawn Party were formulated with the pastor, the Rev. Patrick Fitz-maurice. Then, assisted by representatives from the parish organizations, General Chairman Edward Volungis arranged a November meeting with all parishioners interested in combining their efforts toward success of the venture.

William Hunt of the First National Bank of Enfield, is treasurer, and Mrs. Evelyn Sheridan will be secretary.

Since then, through efforts of committee chairmen Bob McLoughlin, Frank Scanlon, Alice Wysocki, James Convertito, and Paul Sevigny, plans have gone ahead for a parade, game booths, varied refreshments, band music, and a raffle.

Highlighting money-making efforts will be the raffle, which offers many prizes. Early in March, ticket sales will begin in earnest. At that time, parishioners of St. Bernard's will receive chance books, and tickets will be available for $1 each.

Ticket-holders will be vying for a 1974 Plymouth Valiant, the grand prize. A portable color T.V., and 'his and hers' ten-speed bikes will go to second and third prize winners, respectively. Drawing for the prizes on Saturday evening will bring to a close the three days' festivities.

Asher Motors, 525 Enfield St., Enfield, has introduced in town for 1974 the brand new Matador Coupe. George Asher, left, quotes the experts as saying that the Matador is "America's sportiest new car". It's exciting and all-new, Asher boasts, backed by the exclusive AMC Buyer Protection Plan. "The interior dimensions are so large and comfortable, you wouldn't expect it in a mid-size car." The standard engine is six cylinder. Ready for a test-drive is Bonnie Griffin, secretary.

St. Adalbert's Group Meets

The St. Adalbert's Home and School Association will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria. A representative from the Enfield Fire Dept. will lecture and show slides on fire prevention. Refreshments will be served; all parents are invited.

ENFIELD SPLITS
WEEK'S GAMES

By LARRY AVERY

The Enfield High basketball team played two home games last week, losing to New Britain 74-60 and edging past East Hartford in a 53-51 thriller.

The New Britain Hurricanes came to town Tuesday and won going away 74-60. In the first quarter The Hurricanes, using a lightning fast break, outscored Enfield 30-12. Bill Crowley led New Britain with 12 points, Paul DaSilva and Rich Morris led Enfield with 4 points each. In the second quarter Enfield managed to outscore the Hurricanes 16-14 and to cut the lead to 44-28 at halftime. Paul DaSilva led Enfield with 8 points, Norm Dorsey led New Britain with 5 points.

New Britain used a balanced attack to outscore Enfield 18-16 in the third quarter. Paul DaSilva led Enfield with 8 points. New Britain led 62-44 after three quarters. In the fourth and final quarter Enfield managed to cut the lead to 68-58 with three minutes left to go, but New Britain's defense stiffened and the Hurricanes coasted to victory.

In the final quarter Enfield outscored the Hurricanes 16-12. Paul DaSilva led Enfield with 7 points. New Britain out rebounded Enfield 39-30. Norm Dorsey led with 17 rebounds. Paul DaSilva had 13 to lead Enfield. Paul DaSilva led all scorers with 27 points. Rich Morris added 13 for Enfield.

Bill Crowley led New Britain with 16 points followed by Mike Mobley with 15 points. Reg Alston and Norm Dorsey added 14 points each. New Britain shot 54 percent from the floor while Enfield shot 36 percent.

EAST HARTFORD

On Friday night the East Hartford Hornets came to Enfield and lost in a thriller 53-51.

East Hartford outscored Enfield 12-11 in the first period. Mark Plefka led East Hartford with 8 points and Paul DaSilva led Enfield with 6. The second quarter found East Hartford, led by Dave Malick with 8 points, outscoring Enfield 18-12 to lead 30-23 at halftime. Mike Shirley led Enfield with 5 points. In the third quarter Enfield outscored the Hornets 19-11 to take a 42-41 lead after three quarters. Paul DaSilva led Enfield with 11 points. Tom Coppinger led East Hartford with 4 points.

East Hartford took a 49-48 lead with 2 minutes left in the game and tried to freeze the game away, but Mike Shirley stole the ball. Tim Murphy, who was limited to one point so far in the game, hit a 12 foot shot from the corner to give the Raiders a 50-49 lead. East Hartford then tried for a shot to regain the lead but the Enfield defense forced a jump ball. Enfield controlled the tap and Murphy again hit the corner to give Enfield a 52-49 lead.

Mike Shirley then rebounded a missed Hornet shot and was fouled. Shirley made one of the two foul shots to give Enfield a 53-49 lead. Enfield allowed East Hartford to score the final basket at the buzzer. Enfield and East Hartford each placed two men in double figures. For Enfield they were Paul DaSilva with 19 and Mike Shirley with 18. For East Hartford it was Mark Plefka with 19 and Dave Malick with 14.

Enfield is now 11 to 5 on the year.

Changing Appointments To Elections

Rep. Astrid Hanzalek, Assistant Majority Leader, has done considerable research on the possible legal means of changing Suffield's present appointment of members of the Zoning and Planning Commission to election, as favored in answers to her questionnaire.

The Suffield legislator has consulted with both the state's legislative Commissioner's office and the office of Suffield Town Counsel Meade Alcorn on the legal steps to be taken to make such a change.

The accompanying statement is the result of her study on the matter.

"Zoning can preserve a town's identity — or it can stifle its growth. A change in zoning regulations can change the character of a town — for better or worse.

"It's not surprising, therefore, that people are sensitive about who serves on a planning and zoning commission and how commission members are chosen.

"The questionnaire I sent to every household in the district had a number of questions on zoning. Those who answered the questionnaire were in favor, by a 4 to 1 margin, of electing members of planning and zoning commissions. Commissioners are now appointed.

"There have been some differing legal opinions on whether a change in the manner of selecting a planning and zoning commission could be done by local ordinance, statutory change or both. We now have substantial concurrence of legal opinion to proceed with assurance.

"In order to change the method of selection, the Special Act passed by the 1949 Session of the General Assembly, (1949-528) which established Suffield's Planning and Zoning Commission would have to be amended. This would have to be done by another Special Act.

"Because of the Constitutional restrictions, only a limited number of matters can be taken up by this short 90-day even year session. Any change of this kind must wait until the 1975 Session of the General Assembly.

"In early December of 1974, therefore, a town meeting will be called to give townspeople the opportunity of deciding whether or not they still want to make this change. If they don't, the matter will end then and there. If they do, the Selectmen will then certify (in writing) to the Secretary of the State's office that the town wishes to amend the Special Act which set up the Planning and Zoning Commission (1949-528). This must be filed with the Secretary of State's office no later than December 27th — 10 days before the first day of the 1975 Session of the General Assembly (which will convene January 8, 1975).

"Your representative will then file a bill making the necessary change. A public hearing will be held at which townspeople as well as town officials would be invited to testify. I would hope that such a hearing could be held in Suffield — rather than in Hartford.

"Assuming the town wishes such a change made, that bill should have no trouble passing in both houses of the legislature and being signed into law by the Governor. After the amendment becomes law, a town meeting in Suffield would then adopt the provisions of the Special Act.

"The procedure seems cumbersome but is designed to protect the town's interest. Legal problems, apparently, were created by the enactment of Article X, Section 1 of the State Constitution of 1965. These have troubled a number of communities. Some of the potential difficulties have not yet been tested in court. Since, I believe, Suffield would prefer to avoid unnecessary legal problems, this somewhat lengthy procedure seems necessary."

Troop 160 Eagle Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 160, Suffield's oldest scout troupe, has two more Eagle Scouts. Brian Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Harvey of Long View Dr., and Robert Zaczynski, son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Zaczynski of Hill St., received their Eagle Scout awards at an Eagle Court of Honor ceremony held at the annual Troop 160 Charter Night banquet February 8 in Second Baptist Church. Scoutmaster Roger C. Loomis presented the awards at the event which was attended by 125 scouts and families and friends.

Both boys have an older brother who is also an Eagle Scout of Troop 160: Alan Harvey and William Zaczynski.

Brian, a high honors student at Suffield High School, was a staff member at troop leader development at Lake of Isles, last summer. He is a Senior Scout Patrol Leader, a student member of the American Bicentennial Commission of Suffield, a member of the high school band, as well as the stage band for the musical "Pajama Game," scheduled for March. He has earned 24 scout badges, more than enough to qualify for scouting's highest award.

Robert is a student at Suffield Academy where he is active in wrestling, football and baseball. He is serving his community as a Fire Cadet in the program sponsored by the Suffield Fire Department under the guidance of Fire Chief Raymond Potter.

Both Eagles have completed special service projects for their community. Brian planned, produced and performed in a musical program for senior citizens of Maple and Laurel Courts. He played the piano, accompanied by fellow scout Glenn Waterman on the guitar.

Robert's project was a movie entitled "Suffield 1973", which he describes as "a picture of the town: how we are right now". The 40-minute sound and color film took over a year to make. It includes canoeing on the Connecticut River, the old canal, the Spencer Oak, Metacomet Trail, town activities, familiar and less familiar scenes in the town in the changing seasons. In making the film, Robert said one goal was preservation of things he did not want to see changed in his home town.

Bank Takes Over Landing

The Society for Savings is now the official owner of Suffield Landing having taken title to the property Feb. 1, after foreclosure of the mortgage of former owner Gerald E. Spear of Springfield, Mass. Spear had owed the bank $2,070,000.

The bank is looking for a developer who will buy and complete the unfinished condominium complex located off East Street, near the Suffield-Enfield Bridge.

Although Spear had financial difficulties with the development since it opened in 1969, bank officials feel it can be made into a profitable enterprise.

Only one of the complex's three major sections had been completed and 77 of the 250 units are still unfinished. The bank hopes these units will be completed, but a decision on any further expansion will be left to the developer.

George Steiner, the bank's attorney said he has contacted residents in the complex and assured them that their mortgages and leases will be respected. "They own what they did before", he said, "and we own whatever Spear owned."

Suffield was named as an involved party in the foreclosure suit because it holds sewer lines on the property which were not paid for by Spear.

However, Steiner said the suit has been completed and no party is liable for further damages. The bank has incurred all the debts related to the property, he said, and will eventually pay the town what is owed to it.

YMCA Elects Officers

Machado Mead has been elected Chairman of the Suffield Branch YMCA Board of Managers. He succeeds Tom Landers. The new vice-chairman is Warren Packard. Pat Stewart has been re-elected financial secretary; and Norma Cobb, secretary. The election was held at the January board meeting.

Chairman Mead welcomed three new board members. They are Sarah Zak, a sophomore and Mark Stevens, a junior at the Suffield High School as youth delegates to the board; and Ed Chase.

Irene Gunshanan was reelected as the Suffield Y representative to the Metropolitan Hartford Y Board and as the Suffield Y World Service representative. Present also at the meeting was Bob Strine, Associate Executive of the Metropolitan Hartford Y, who will serve as consultant for the Suffield Y.

Nancy Coates reported the Adult Education classes are almost all filled. The Spring classes include Typing, Quilt Making, Women's Physical Fitness, Tennis and Golf.

Ted Goodman, Youth Programs chairman, reported the Saturday Fun Program is running well.

The program consists of recreational gym and swim at the Suffield Academy.

Mrs. Mildred McQuillan reported the next travelogue sponsored by the Suffield Y will be held on March 15 and will feature the British Isles. She added there will be a travelogue on Africa on April 19. The public is invited to the travelogue series.

Any Suffield YMCA member who would like to play chess on a regular basis and would like to help in the development of the club is asked to call the Y office, by Peter Nemeth, Suffield Y Executive Director.

Wetlands Requests Approved

Suffield Conservation Commission, acting for the first time as a town implementation agency for the state Inland-Wetlands Act, has approved six land-use applications and asked for more detail from a seventh applicant.

George Hinckley, Jr., 560 East St., south, was the first to receive a declaratory ruling, which grants approval with no conditions, for a house on an East St. lot.

Three applications presented by John Miskel, all received "declaratory" rulings. These included a house on South Grand Street lot applied for by Theophilus and Jennie Kita, 21 Westerly Drive, Enfield; five lots on the Raymond Deedy property, Mapleton Ave., for which Miskel was representing David N. Collins, realtor and appraiser; and land at the northern end of Wendover cul-de-sac, applied for by John Rodzen and Charles Pysz.

Timothy J. Mahoney, 18 Pioneer Dr., West Hartford, won approval for six lots on Newgate Road, West Suffield.

Robert Kamm, 870 Copper Hill Rd., West Suffield, received approval for a lot on Copper Hill Rd.

Antonio Rosato, 202 Mountain Rd., asked to build a house on a lot on Mountain Road near Turner's Garage, but the commission requested further data before making a ruling.

The Connecticut Inland-Wetlands and Water Courses Act of 1972 was intended to provide for the preservation, protection, maintenance and use of the natural resources in the state.

While it sets up some basic standards for regulations, the law provides that cities and towns should formally appoint a special agency, preferably a Conservation Commission, which will then write its own regulations and enforce them. If a town has not appointed an agency and has not adopted regulations by June 30, the state Commissioner of Environmental Protection is required to take over the regulations of the wetlands in that town. Suffield is one of the 16 out of the 169 Conn. municipalities which have adopted wetlands regulations to date, and only 102 have appointed local agencies.

Energy Workshops

Citizens Workshops on Energy and Environment will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday in Suffield. They are presented by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and sponsored by the Suffield Jaycees.

The Workshops consist of short lectures on the nature of the energy problem and on the amount of energy resources of all kinds available to the U.S. The lectures are followed by use of an Energy Environment simulator by all participants to try their own hand at a meeting the ever-growing energy demand.

Coordinator of the Workshops Joseph Kearney said that individual sessions during the two days are scheduled for Suffield High School students, various local women's clubs and in the evenings for the entire town and its leaders.

Times for these sessions will be announced later or will be available through Kearney, tel. 688-0774.

LWV Studies Transportation

The Suffield League of Women Voters will discuss the work of its local committee on the state league study on transportation at a meeting Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the Kent Memorial Library conference room. The public is invited.

Marion Fuller is chairman of the local league's study committee on present facilities and needs, possible alternative forms of mass transportation and methods of financing them.

As a means of determining the need for public transportation, the Suffield LWV study committee has conducted a survey by circulating a questionnaire on possible service. The questionnaires were given elementary school children forms to take home and other forms were made available at local markets and the town library to be returned to the schools by the children, or deposited in specially marked boxes placed in the pick-up sites.

Kosakowski, Varsity Scholar

Steven Kosakowski of Enfield has been selected one of Suffield Academy's four Varsity Scholars as announced by Ken Lindfors, Director of Studies. William O'Brien, also of Enfield, has been named an alternate to the team which will compete against students from 36 other high schools and academies on the television quiz series. "As Schools Match Wits" on WWLP — Channel 22.

The Scholars' first televised match will be against last year's champion, Greenfield High School of Massachusetts, at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday. This year's Suffield Academy Scholars are attempting to be the fifth team representing the school in ten years to become finalists or champions in the competition.

Drakely Awarded

George M. Drakeley, a Suffield High School senior, has won the annual Bausch and Lomb Award which honors the senior with the highest scholastic standing in science subjects.

The award entitles Drakeley to compete for a four-year Bausch and Lomb science scholarship at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N.Y., according to Principal Eric Berger. He will also receive a bronze medal. Presently George is a member of the National Honor Society, Class Treasurer, and serves on the Yearbook staff, as well as a wide range of school committees.

Begins Duty

Coast Guard Fireman Apprentice Gary R. Turner, son of Raymond R. Turner of 197 Griffin Rd., West Suffield, has reported for duty at the Coast Guard station here.

A former student of Chicopee High School, Chicopee, Mass., he entered the Coast Guard in February 1970.

Historical Society Meeting

Enfield Chrysler

In 1974, Enfield Chrysler, 907 Enfield St., introduces the Satellite Sebring, an intermediate size car with the smallest V-8 engine Chrysler makes. Ed Henning, sales representative, describes some of the car's features — electronic ignition, Wimbledon interior with vinyl and cloth. Henning says it's the "best intermediate size car for gas mileage and performance."

Alarm Systems May Be Put In Schools

The Enfield school system is studying the offers of two companies to supply better ways and means of security at town schools, to reduce the high vandalism rate and maintain building safety.

Fred Stroiney, director of school building maintenance, said the two companies, Dynamic Security Systems and Tel-Rad, are being considered to install a burglar and fire alarm system.

Stroiney said following an estimate by Dynamic of the cost for the system, he will work up a proposal for review by the Board of Education. Tel-Rad is also being considered because that firm has already serviced the school system, having installed all the school bells and communication equipment in the town's public schools.

The Dynamic firm will give an estimate of the cost for a security alarm system in Fermi High School and the Henry Barnard School. The proposal of putting in an alarm system came as a result of much vandalism and damage to school property. The Enfield Police Dept. may be asked to monitor the system when it is installed, said Stroiney.

A report on vandalism in the school system since last July, shows there were 87 acts of vandalism to schools for a total cost of $16,025.63. Stroiney estimated the cost of a security alarm system would be about $40,000.

Olde Towne Lincoln-Mercury

Olde Towne Lincoln-Mercury — formerly located in Windsor Center, now at 645 Poquonock Ave., Windsor — is celebrating its first anniversary in its new location. The big items at Old Town this year are the gas savers — Montego, Capri and Comet. The Comet is described by owner E.W. "Bill"

Cahill as "one tough little car". Old Town has a complete body shop and service and parts department, plus daily rentals and long term leases. A special feature of Old Town hospitality is a car to drive when the customer's car is serviced under the one year, 12,000 mile warranty.

What's New At J.F.K.

The J. F. Kennedy Jr. High School varsity wrestling team continued its undefeated season by beating its cross-town rivals, Kosciuszko, 25-20.

Both teams were exceptionally strong, though the Patriots out-classed the Chargers in the next to the last match to become victorious.

The Patriots presently have a 7-0-0 record and are seeking their final win against Hall this week.

TEAM vs FACULTY

At the Bolton Arena in January, the J. F. Kennedy varsity ice hockey team played the combined faculty team to a 5-5 tie.

Victory was grasped from the faculty with only eight seconds remaining, as a relentless student effort paid off. The game was tied many times, a battle of close checking and fast skating.

Scoring for the faculty were varsity coach, Mr. Clarkin, who had the "hat trick", ageless Mr. Milroy and rookie Mr. Ferguson.

For the students, the final goal tending efforts of Jim Chevalier, Frank Neves and Gary Catner were backed up by the goal scoring of Ed Mercier with two and Scot Leonard, Al Rotatori and Mark Perrault with one each.

A rematch is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday at the Hartford Arena.

SKI CLUB

Kennedy has again this year formed a ski club under the direction of teachers Nancy Chaloux, Ray LaFlamme and Fred Colosimo.

Eighty-six students are members of the club and have signed up to participate in a five-week lesson program at Mt. Tom.

Several Saturday trips "North" are planned for late this year.
