Senator Weicker Blasts Democrats

Senator Lowell Weicker (R-Conn.) blasted Senate Democrats for debating procedural changes while ignoring "the business of the nation."

Weicker's remarks came during Senate debate over legislation providing $348 million in emergency assistance to the beleaguered Penn Central Railroad. The legislation is being held up by debate over changes in the Senate's Rule 22, which governs filibusters.

"We're doing our annual exercise over Rule 22," Weicker said. "And consequently the business of the nation gets held up while we go off and engage in academic exercises about parliamentary procedure."

In addition to the Penn Central legislation, Weicker also cited the need for immediate congressional attention on housing, mass transit, and energy conservation. "Everyone knows I disagree with the President's energy program," Weicker said. "But at least he has a program. Congress sits here talking about procedure while $100 million a day flow out of America into the Mideast."

Weicker said the Penn

Central assistance was especially urgent because the economy of the entire Northeast depends on it. "We're not bailing out the Penn Central, we're keeping Americans at work," he declared. "I don't care about the Penn Central bond holders, I care about the thousands of Connecticut residents who would be thrown out of work in a massive chain reaction from an imminent Penn Central closing."

Library Association Head Voices Concern

Marie Yanarella, president of the Connecticut Library Association, issued a statement voicing the great concern of the association at Governor Grasso's proposed elimination of the statewide toll-free reference service from the State Library budget for 1975-76. Library Line, as it is popularly known, was initiated in 1973 as a major objective of the Connecticut Library Association Target '76 Program for total library service to the people of Connecticut. It makes it possible for anyone in the State to dial a toll-free number 24 hours per day and ask questions on any subject.

"The decision to cut off support for the program is most disturbing to the Connecticut Library Association", said Miss Yanarella, "since the success of the program more than justifies its continuance. Calls received have increased from an average of 150 per day to 325 per day. This is almost four times the number of calls anticipated at the start. To meet the demand for general information, the original staff of five professional librarians has grown to nine, handling more than 75,000 calls during its first year."

Miss Yanarella stated, "Elimination of an extremely popular program that the public has demonstrated it needs and wants will create a serious gap in the sources of informational and educational needs available to the people of Connecticut."

The General Assembly Appropriations Committee will conduct a public hearing on the State Library budget March 10, at 3:40 p.m. in Room 310 at the State Capitol.

Home Show Display Booths Going Fast

"As of today, three-fourths of our exhibit spaces are filled and the event is still more than a month away," exclaimed Peltier. He attributed the early response from exhibitors to the ever-increasing attractiveness of the event. About 7,000 people visited last year, setting a new attendance record.

The 1975 edition of the home show, sponsored by the Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Enfield High School from April 4 through April 6. O'Leary Seeks Allies Against Food Stamp Price Increase State Representative Cornelius O'Leary has drafted a letter which he sent to the Congressional Delegation and Connecticut's two senators, Ribicoff and Weicker, concerning a proposed food stamp price increase.

Area legislators were made aware of the proposed legislation at a meeting of Senior Citizens at Asnuntuck Community College recently. The Senior Citizens' Think Tank brought out some of the problems connected with the proposed price increase in the cost of food stamps. Representative O'Leary stated that he would draft a letter to be sent to Connecticut's six congressmen and two senators, and which he would ask other area legislators to sign. Other names on the letter included Representative Dick Cressotti, Representative Teresalee Bertinuson, Representative John Julian, Representative John Morrison and Senator Charles Alfano.

O'Leary noted that the response from Connecticut's congressmen and senators has been good with several already responding. O'Leary believes the proposal has been defeated in Congress.

O'Leary commented, "I am delighted to learn of the proposal's defeat in Congress because I felt there should be other ways to trim the Federal budget besides increasing the cost of food stamps."

O'Leary also noted that there is a connection between health and nutrition, and the proposed increase in cost of food stamps might decrease the nutritional intake of certain groups, notably the elderly. "This prospect might in turn lead to additional costs at hospitals and doctors' offices," he concluded.

Trash Bill Is Killed

The state legislature's General Law committee last week raised for public hearing a bill that would require towns to provide some zoning for elderly and low and moderate income housing.

The proposal will be drafted as part of a committee bill on zoning. Public hearing on the measure will be held in the capitol March 10.

The committee also voted to draft a bill to allow voters to petition for a referendum on any zoning change approved by a local zoning board.

Among the bills the committee decided to kill completely were measures requiring the licensing of trash collectors, regulation of fence builders, establishment of a Cigarette Commission and a measure to prohibit the issuance of building permits to contractors with "a poor performance record."

A bill to establish an Office of Surveyor General and a proposal to phase in the termination of non-conforming uses in zoning districts were also voted down last week.

Spaghetti Dinner-Dance

The public is cordially invited to a Spaghetti Dinner Dance presented by the Enrico Fermi High School Band of Enfield Wednesday in the school cafeteria. Tickets are $1.75.

Not In The Dog House

Dogs with housing problems won't be able to look to the General Assembly for help this year.

The legislature's Environment Committee voted last week to kill a bill requiring that every dog have a roof over his head. The measure would have mandated "adequate shelter" for all of man's best friends.

The committee, considering its package of pet-related measures, voted to draft a bill providing for spay clinics in the state. The measure is aimed at cutting down on the unwanted dog and cat population.

A series of proposals to change the fees for licensing and impoundment of dogs will also be drafted. All of these bills will come before a full public hearing sometime next month.

The committee is also

Members had been skeptical about the rabies measures since there have been no reported cases of rabies among dogs and cats in the state for almost two decades.

One of the sponsors of the bill, Rep. Russell Post (R-Canton), however, told the committee that his cat had been bitten by a rabid bat last summer and had to be destroyed.

Federal Bond Application

The Somers Sewer Commission has applied for a $500,000 federal bond at 5 per cent interest to pay for the town's share of building as the Somersville Community septic system.

The cost of paying the 20-year loan will up the tax rate by about 1/2 mill of about 50 cents per thousand on the valuation of one's property. Application for the bond has been submitted to the Farmers' Home Administration but the town does not have to accept the bond if it is granted. However, it would be difficult for the town to get bonds elsewhere.

The $916,000 system is designed to comply with an eight year order from the Department of Environmental Protection

(DEP) to stop polluting the Scantic River.

Somersville is the major trouble spot in the town of Somers but plans to correct other problem areas will have to be submitted before DEP approves the project.

State and federal grants will pay $416,000 with the town paying $500,000 for the system. Resident and business men served by the system are to pay $260,000 with the town's share being $240,000.

Property owners will be charged $700 for each dwelling served by the system plus $100 for each toilet to pay construction. Businessmen will be charged $1,050 plus a fee based on anticipated use of the system.

There will be a public hearing on the system Mar. 12 and a town meeting on Mar. 20.

Funded Jobs Filled

Three new federally funded jobs have been created and funded by Selectman in Somers.

Janice Sefton of Deerfield Rd. will serve as a clerk for the school system. This meant the cutting back on two other federally funded jobs leaving $1,500 left over from the others.

Gerald Geraci of Maple Ridge Rd. will serve as library clerk and Corleen Dauphin of Bailey La. another school clerk. To create the additional position Geraci and Dauphin's terms were cut from 48 to 44 weeks.

Linda Gamble of Somersville has begun work as a selectman's clerk.

These positions were created in order to fight unemployment which reached 8.2 per cent in Somers last month.

Preschool Registration

The Somers Cooperative Preschool fall registration and open house will be held next Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 2 p.m. in the parish house of the Somers Congregational Church. The school holds two classes for four year old children which meet three times a week and one class for three year olds which meets twice a week.

The objectives of the school are to provide an environment in which the child will develop educationally, physically and socially and to promote a better understanding of the child through active parent participation in the various phases of the operation of the school.

It is not necessary for your child to be present at registration and applicants do not have to be residents of Somers. A $5 association fee is due upon registration. For more information please call Dee Jones, 749-9220.

Park Approval Near

The Somers Zoning and Planning Commission and the Selectmen have given preliminary approval to a park proposed by the Recreation Commission on land off Rte. 83. The approval is necessary before the Recreation Commission can apply for federal funds.

To date the Board of Finance and the Conservation and Planning Commission already have granted preliminary approval of the park.

The Selectmen's action will have to be followed by an environmental impact study and a title search.

If the federal government approves the project, appraisers will set a price to be offered to the owners of the land, Fred Worthington.

If Worthington accepts the price offered, further approval from the Board of Finance and a town meeting is necessary before the 46 acres of land north of the town's center can be acquired.

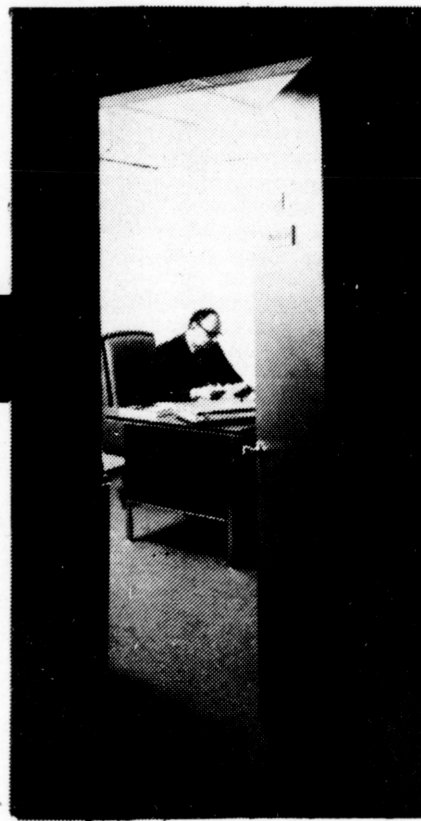

According to Recreation Commission chairman, Michael Riley, the land will cost about $1,500 with federal grants about 50 per cent, state grants about 25 per cent and the town's share about $37,000.

Commission Appointees

William Andersen of Hampden Rd., Somers, was recently appointed to the Sewer Commission to replace the unexpired term of Leonard Frescoln who resigned for business reasons. The term is due to run out in 1978.

Everitt Merrill of Mountain View Rd., Somers, was appointed to complete the term of Lloyd Hunt which expires next year.

The Board of Selectmen recently accepted the resignation of David Cohen as an alternate to the Conservation Commission.

The Bank For Business

AUTOMATIC DEPOSIT AND PAYMENT SERVICE

NCN has become a certified member of the New England Automated Clearing House Association which has developed a new electronic system and procedure to provide an automatic deposit and payment service for our checking account depositors.

During the next few months, we will be taking the first step in this process to have payroll checks deposited directly into an employees bank account.

In addition, to requiring individual authorization by the employee, this will obviously require the cooperation of the employer, who also stands to benefit by a reduction in paper work and other advantages.

If you are not taking advantage of NCN's automated payroll service at the present time, where we prepare your payroll checks for you and do your payroll accounting, we would be delighted to explain the details.

The long-promised day of electronic transfer is already here. Let's talk about it.

The Benevolent Broker

The Connecticut General Assembly, now in session, is the same but different in many ways.

One big difference is that John M. Bailey, because of illness, is not as visible as he has been in the past 30 years.

Nonetheless, we are told, his advice is sought, as it should be, because his talents are needed now, as they always will be.

John is unique among political leaders, present and past. He has no peer, no equal.

His career is unmatched in tenure and texture. For nearly 30 years he has been state chairman of the Democratic Party. The quality of his conduct as a gentleman and politician is above reproach. His accomplishments — legion.

He was, in no small degree, responsible for the election of some of our greatest — President John F. Kennedy, Senator Abe Ribicoff, former Governor Jack Dempsey, and now Governor Ella Grasso, to mention a few of the notables.

John has none of their prominent characteristics. He doesn't have the charisma of the two Jacks, nor the suave polish of Abe, nor the strong personal appeal of Ella.

But he is distinctive in his own way. He is not a charmer but he is warm, cordial, even with opponents.

He is enormously energetic and his knowledge of his game — politics and legislation is unsurpassed.

John leads the political process that selected and then elected presidents, governors, senators, yet he never acted like they were his pawns.

Once in office, particularly in the case of the Governors — Bowles, Dempsey, Ribicoff — he did his best to lead the Legislature in the ways of their wishes. He will, no doubt, do the same for Ella.

For example, in the 1959 session he worked his special brand of wizardry to get the legislature to modernize archaic procedures in the courts, county and state government. These functions had not been materially changed since their origin in mid-17th Century.

How has John managed, all these years, to be out front in the game of politics that is so risky, so fickle, so effervescent?

The answers are that, once he decided politics was his cup of tea, he worked at it relentlessly. He constantly courted the consensus of others, especially the big city bosses.

John dealt with them, and others, not as their master, although he held the title, but as first among equals in selecting the best possible candidates and the best issues.

In persuading his fellow Democrats and legislators he pleaded, argued, coaxed, but he never demanded. His knowledge of the pros and cons of the issues and their impact upon the state — and the voters — is monumental. He makes it his business to know the score.

He — just look at the record — is especially astute and keenly analytical in candidate diagnosis.

His attitude is "go with the bird that can fly — not the pigeon who can't get off the ground."

He spares no time, no energy, no effort, to gauge the pulling power of candidates.

To him, victory at the polls is the payoff.

John made one attempt to be elected to public office. Defeated, he thereafter felt that he could not be elected, and never again tried.

He was keenly disappointed when he was not appointed U.S. Senator to fill a vacancy. That he never allowed this deep hurt to color his judgment or his relationship with others illustrates his self discipline.

For the good of the party, he often says, "you gotta do what you gotta do."

He is not a political boss in the image of Tweed or Hague. Rather he is a benevolent broker of men and ideas that has consistently won elections.

Equally important, he has lived in a clean house. He has been above even a rumor that he had his hand in the public till in more than 30 years of being a practitioner of the art of politics.

That alone is a singular accomplishment.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Outmoded Ideas

To The Editor:

The Women's Liberation movement has made us more conscious of outmoded ideas men have had about women's roles and even ideas that women have held about women.

It is in that context that I raise this question with you: Why a Women's World page in the Press? I am looking at the February 6 edition and note that the articles relate to churches (3), girl scouts (1), P.T.O. (1), hair care (1), and "Le Circle Des Dames Francaises" (1). This is followed by an attractively laid out page of weddings and engagements.

I suppose that the "Dames

Francaises" are legitimately "Women's World" but the assumption that churches, PTO, hair care and weddings are exclusively the forte of females is rather silly.

Church Women Elect

The next meeting of Enfield Church Women will be Monday morning, Mar. 10, at 9:30 at Calvary Presbyterian Church.

Sharing the executive responsibilities for the next few months are Mrs. James Smith, president; Mrs. Walter Rawson, secretary, and Mrs. Louis Schadlich, treasurer. Enfield Church Women invite all women interested in helping plan future projects to attend.

Enfield Church Women is one of the biggest sources of man power for volunteer needs in our community. The meetings are a time to share needs and concerns in Enfield, to exchange ideas and to plan the five big events sponsored each year. The churches work together sharing the work load.

Three times a year a special program is planned, each at a different time, so that perhaps even if you work you can make it to one of the events. A daytime program is planned for World Day of Prayer which is always the first Friday in March. This usually includes a morning discussion group, a luncheon, and an afternoon traditional service. Babysitting is always provided for small children so that mothers may also attend. In May the Church Women celebrate May Fellowship Day with a breakfast and speaker on the first Saturday in May. In late October they have a big potluck supper called the Annual Ecumenical Smorgasbord.

Enfield Church Women's biggest volunteer effort is the Christmas activities for low-income families. Collecting toys is an on going twelve month project that climaxes in late November and early December. The "Christmas Store" has been run two years now and what makes it unique is that the parents select their children's presents, no money is needed as they are gifts from the Enfield community for low income families. A gala Christmas party tops off the year's activities.

In between time Enfield Church Women are involved in a dozen other community needs and projects, all because we want Enfield to be a better place to live. Each church is asked to send two representatives and all other interested women are encouraged to come.

Membership Discussions

The first of three evening discussions for persons interested in joining the Enfield Congregational Church will be held from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Mar. 6. Other sessions will be held the two following Wednesdays. All three sessions will be at the church parsonage, 1395 Enfield St.

The discussions will include the faith and work of the local church and the United Church of Christ of which it is a part. All persons interested in the church are welcome to the discussions. They may call Rev. Lane for further information or to make arrangements for joining the church.

No Charge For Returns

The Enfield Central Library and all branch libraries, will accept overdue library books from Mar. 1 - Mar. 15 without charge.

All library patrons are urged to take advantage of this time period to return overdue books during this "free week."

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR
LOWELL WEICKER
FUEL CONSERVATION:
A WHOLE NEW BALL GAME

The world is no longer going to tolerate a United States with 6 per cent of the population using 35 per cent of the energy. Or if it does tolerate such an inequity, it will be at prices that will economically wipe America out.

In blunt terms I am saying that the United States is the world's biggest oil junkie and withdrawal is going to be painful. But withdrawal rather than symptomatic treatment will make sacrifice worthwhile. Worthwhile economically — worthwhile as to energy and jobs. In other words, if we're going to have our oil drums rattled, at least let's have something to show for it. And let's make sure that whatever difficult solution we devise it will have the participation of all Americans not just those with the least clout.

Though a Connecticut Senator, I plead not for special accommodations for New England, but for a plan designed to meet a national challenge in a national way.

Price has failed to achieve the type of reduction in the consumption of oil that is urgently needed. In the case of gasoline, since late 1973 we have experienced an increase in the base price of gasoline of over 50 per cent with corresponding decrease in consumption of less than 4 per cent. The question now is whether an additional price increase at the gas pump, whether from import tariff, taxes or Arab blackmail, will do the trick. From past experience, the answer seems to be no. And if the answer is "no", one more year, billions of dollars gone overseas and yet tougher solutions eventually are the result.

Fear talk relative to rationing whether by President Ford or the Congress is predicated on a World War II need and a World War II system. The need at that time was to cut gasoline consumption by 65 per cent and the system was a bureaucratic nightmare.

Our need, if we don't wait too long, is in the area of a 15-20 per cent cut in gasoline usage. So rather than rationing by price which, in varying forms, is all I hear these days, why not conservation by a mandatory system? And that system need not and should not be a World War II type coupon system. It could be for example:

1. a state-by-state allocation system enabling each state to institute the type of conservation measures most suited to its transportation problems;

2. an odd-even sales system like the one which reduced gasoline consumption by 20 per cent in Los Angeles during the embargo;

3. gasoline station closing on certain days; or

4. a sticker system under which each car owner would choose a day of the week on which to keep his vehicle off the road.

We've already gone from WIN buttons to tariffs. What next? I think America would prefer the hard truth, all of it, now.

The truth is rationing for five years. The truth is sacrifice in this country according to one's capability, not according to one's helplessness. The truth is less consumption, less inflation. The truth is taxes, not rebates for mass transit. Such truths are solutions. Anything less, problems for our children.

Connecticut Legislature

By Gail Collins

Oil Refinery Bill Passes First Test

A bill requiring a regional referendum on establishment of an oil refinery in Connecticut made it through its first committee test last week by a 15-8 vote.

The bill would permit all towns within 25 miles of a proposed refinery site to take part in a vote on whether the refinery should be built.

The Environment Committee voted to draft the measure for a public hearing despite arguments by some members that the bill infringed on local autonomy.

"If you're going to have a regional vote, maybe we should spread the tax revenue from a refinery out on a regional basis, too," claimed Rep. Rufus Allyn (D-Stonington).

"If you take away the right of a municipality to decide about this you're also depriving them of possible tax revenue."

Some legislators claimed that towns near the community in which the refinery would be located would vote against the refinery because they would not receive revenue benefits from the project.

Others said they feared the neighboring towns would vote for the refinery because they would not be greatly affected by the project.

"I represent two towns on the shore," said Rep. Patricia Hendel (D-Groton). "This bill is very important to us. The town most likely to get a refinery is up the river from us."

"If they choose to have a refinery, they'll have to go over our waterfront, over our roads, and pollute our water and air."

"I'm not in favor of an oil refinery either," responded Allyn. "But today we'll stop a refinery, then we'll stop a subdivision. Where's the cutoff point?"

The committee finally decided not to make a decision on the matter until after a public hearing.

"It seems important to the people down there," noted Senate chairman Harold Hansen (D-Sherman).

"It's a bad bill, but let's bring it out for a hearing," agreed House chairman Francis Ciampi (D-Waterbury).

The committee also voted to draft a bill to require that each terminal licensed for loading and discharge of oil have suitable equipment ready to control any spills as soon as they occur.

Another oil spill measure was killed by a unanimous vote. It would have required all vessels carrying fossil fuel in the inland waters of Connecticut to be surrounded by sea booms.

Ed. Committee Kills Vo-Tech School Bill In Meriden Area

The General Assembly's Education committee has voted to "box and hold" a bill calling for construction of a vocational education school in south central Connecticut.

Committees traditionally decide either to "box" a bill, effectively killing it for the year, or to draft a measure for public hearing. After the hearing the bill is given further committee consideration.

Education, however, chose to take neither route with the vocational school bill. Instead, it sent the matter to a subcommittee for further study.

If the subcommittee decides to recommend the project, a bill calling for the school will be proposed as a committee-sponsored measure. If the subcommittee does not endorse further action, the bill will not even get as far as a public hearing.

The vocational school project received a major blow recently when Governor Grasso asked the General Assembly not to approve any major new bonding proposals this session.

Assistant Majority Leader Cornelius O'Leary (D-Windsor Locks) said last week he was "pessimistic" about the bill's chances.

"It wasn't in the Governor's budget," he noted. "It depends on whether the General Assembly wants to spend more than the governor. My reading is that they're certainly not willing to spend much more."

In a recent interview, Education Committee chairman Howard Klebanoff (D-Hartford) said "the way things are going now, people would be very foolish to plan on much in the way of new programs. I find that very frustrating myself."

As far as new school construction goes this year, Klebanoff said "I'm not optimistic at all."

The state Department of Education is presently conducting a study of the vocational school needs of the state. "The need for a master plan is long overdue," said Klebanoff. "Maybe from there we can get a good inventory of what's available."

"Right now I don't know what the facts are," Klebanoff added. "I am not sure we need additional facilities. Why can't we pick Area park proposals were batting 500 last week in the General Assembly.

The legislature's Environment committee voted to draft for public hearing a measure appropriating $200,000 for the purchase of the east bank of the Connecticut River, across from King's (Terry's) Island.

But the committee rejected, 19-1, a $500,000 bill for purchase of land in the Scantic River Valley for a recreational park.

up schools that are already closing and set up satellite school programs in them?"

Klebanoff added that the committee had a number of proposals for new vocational education schools and community colleges before it this session.

"Legislators want to bring home schools like they used to want to bring home highways," he said. "We have to be careful."

One of the most active supporters of the construction of a vocational school in the area is Rep. John Morrison (D-Enfield). Morrison told the education committee earlier this year that every year since the bill for the school was first submitted in 1969 "I have been told that this is a year of austerity."

"I cannot really remember a year that was not 'a year of austerity,'" he continued.

"I ask that the committee members look at this bill as a 'year of necessity' for the north central region."

While all the committee members acknowledged that there was not much state money for any land purchases, there was some criticism about the way the committee made its decisions last week.

While some acquisitions were rejected because of the sums of money involved, others were sent to public hearing out of deference to the legislator proposing the bill.

"They're not being consistent," said committee member Senator George Gunther (R-Stratford). "These kinds of bills should all get public hearings, and then we should set up a list of priorities. Although practically speaking, none of them are going to go anywhere."

The committee at one point voted to draft a bill authorizing $1 million to purchase a pond in Torrington after committee chairman Representative Francis Ciampi (D-Waterbury) argued that the bills' sponsor "wants it so much."

"Representative (Addo) Bonnetti wants this — let him have his day in court," urged Ciampi.

"We turned down so many others, why pass this one?"

Assembly Denies More Power To School Boards On Budgets

Proposals to give towns more control over school board budgets have been killed at least temporarily in the General Assembly.

The legislature's Education Committee voted last week not to draft proposals to give town legislative bodies or finance boards line item veto power over school budgets.

Under normal circumstances, a decision not to draft a bill into legal form means the end of a measure for a legislative session. However some members of the Education subcommittee on governance said that the subcommittee intends to re-introduce the measure next month.

Education Committee chairman Howard Klebanoff (D-Hartford) said in an interview Friday that the committee tried to eliminate bills "which are introduced each year, which result in long public hearings but don't go anywhere."

However Klebanoff acknowledged that many of the bills killed last week could be revived, either by subcommittees or through petition.

Legislators can force a committee to hold a public hearing on a bill by collecting signatures of 40 house or 10 senate members on a petition for hearing.

The committee voted last week to kill all bills requiring towns to institute new programs in their schools. "We've already mandated too much to local districts," Klebanoff told the committee.

"We feel it's wrong to mandate any more without financial backup. And right now, if money is available we want to put it in other areas of need rather than the teaching of new courses."

With that in mind, the committee voted down bills requiring public school systems to teach consumer education, the metric system, foreign languages in junior high school, environmental studies, the contribution of labor and nutrition.

A series of bills to provide financial help to parochial schools were defeated by the committee. But Senator Joseph Lieberman (D-New Haven) the sponsor of a bill requiring the loan of textbooks to parochial schools, said last week that he had been assured a subcommittee would try to revive the measure.

The committee killed a bill to prohibit the teaching of sex education, and another measure that would have permitted silent prayer in public schools.

Measures to require school administrators to spend some time each year in classroom duties, and to require schools with seven or more teachers to have full-time principals were also voted down.

The committee did agree to bring to public hearing bills to require full-time registered nurses for elementary schools and the testing of pupils' eyesight by qualified medical personnel.

Although the committee approved measures in areas like teacher negotiation, financing of education and certification, the chances are that whatever legislation it finally sends to the house will be drawn up by the committee itself after public hearings have ended.

For instance, there were bills approved last week to raise flat per pupil grants to the towns, to redistribute the existing grants according to need, and to develop a whole new spending program for state aid to education.

But after the public has had a chance to express its opinion on all the measures, the committee itself will decide what approach to education funding it will recommend to the General Assembly.

Among the other actions on education bills last week:

— A bill requiring election of all members of a board of education every two years (killed).

— Granting to boards of education the right to receive and disburse funds directly from the state and federal government (killed).

— Allowing towns the option of not providing driver education (approved for public hearing).

— To allow towns to take the responsibility for maintaining schools away from their boards of education (killed).

— Eliminate textbooks containing "discriminatory statements about the ethnic contributions of the country's minorities" (approved).

— Allow teachers and students to observe religious holidays without loss of vacation time, sick leave, or being charged with a "cut." (approved).

asked freshman legislator Rufus Allyn (D-Stonington). "It depends on who's offering it," suggested Gunther.

Senate chairman Harold Hansen (D-Sherman), himself a freshman, said after the meeting that he had gotten complaints from other first-term lawmakers about the lack of standards by which the committee decided which bills would get public hearings.

"The inconsistency did upset some," he said. "I said I'm learning it's just the reality of the thing."

The King's Island bill appeared to get past the first committee consideration because it was sponsored by Representative Cornelius O'Leary (D-Windsor Locks), now an assistant majority leader.

The short debate over the bill, however, centered less on O'Leary's leadership status than on his persistence in pursuing the King's Island project.

"This is the bill that made Con O'Leary," remarked Ciampi as he picked up the measure.

"It certainly deserves a hearing, and good luck" said Representative Harold Harlow (R-Litchfield), the 1973-4 Environment Committee chairman.

Harlow called the project "a two-edged sword."

"We had this last year," he said. "Con O'Leary had a feasibility study done on it. The feasibility study was favorable, but there is considerable opposition on the other side as to the advisability of doing this."

O'Leary noted later that he had been working on the King's Island project for three years. "I've done a lot of work with the committee," he said. "That probably helped a great deal."

He pointed out that the Department of Environmental Protection had recommended purchase of the land as the first priority in protecting the King's Island area.

Booze Bills To Be Aired

The General Assembly's Liquor Committee voted last week to draft a bill removing the state minimum prices on liquor.

Connecticut presently requires set minimum wholesale prices for whiskey, and minimum retail markups. Critics of the present law claim that it drives consumers across state lines to purchase liquor, depriving the state of tax revenue.

Those supporting the present law say it protects small corner package stores.

The committee also voted to draft and hold public hearings on bills to allow the sale of liquor on election day, permit the sale of package liquor over the bar of a restaurant or hotel, and to allow restaurant patrons to take home unfinished bottles of wine.

The committee will also hold a public hearing on bills changing the mandatory 8 p.m. closing for package stores to an earlier hour.

Hearings Planned On Consumer Bills

Area residents interested in proposed consumer protection legislation can make their views heard in Hartford next month.

The General Assembly's General Law committee has announced a series of public hearings on pending legislation throughout March in the state capitol. General Law handles consumer bills as well as measures involving building codes, zoning, and the Sunday blue laws.

All morning hearings will begin at 10 a.m. and afternoon hearings at 2 p.m. Legislators will be invited to testify during the half hour preceding the opening of public testimony.

The committee announced the following schedule this week:

March 3 & 4 (A.M. and P.M.) Bills dealing with licensing and certification.

March 5 (A.M.) Repeal of the Fair Trade laws and bills dealing with prescription drugs.

(P.M.) Fund-raising bills.

March 6 (A.M. and P.M.) Bills dealing with Commission on Special Revenue, games of chance, including bingo, and athletic events.

March 10 (A.M.) Planning, zoning and validating bills.

March 11 (A.M.) Consumer credit bills.

(P.M.) Bills providing for regionalization of consumer Protection Department operations and for consumer-education and information programs.

March 12 (A.M.) Bills dealing with schools and courses.

(P.M.) Proposals for regulatory reform.

March 13 (A.M.) Miscellaneous bills.

March 18 (A.M.) Bills dealing with facilities and other provisions for handicapped persons. Continues in P.M. if necessary.

March 19 (A.M.) Bills dealing with sale of gasoline and oil.

March 20 (A.M.) Condominium bills.

March 24 (A.M.) Holidays.

March 26 (A.M.) Miscellaneous consumer bills.

(P.M.) Bills proposing changes in the blue laws.

All members of the public are invited to testify on any of the issues up for consideration. Those planning to travel to Hartford for a hearing should check with the League of Women Voter's desk in the capitol (566-3662) to verify the time and date of the hearing.

The committee is also planning to take their public hearings "on the road" in March. The committee will listen to testimony from the public in evening meetings around the state.

A General Law spokesman said that the schedule for public hearings outside of Hartford will be announced sometime this month.

Sunday Hunting May Be Legal

Hunters and hunting opponents will all be able to air their views in the state capitol next month.

The General Assembly's Environment Committee voted last week to draft for public hearing measures to both restrict and expand hunting in the state.

While the committee killed a bill that would allow individual towns to prohibit hunting within their boundaries, the committee did agree to consider a bill to prohibit deer hunting on state land.

The bill would also return the state to the old system of allowing landowners a number of permits to take deer on their property.

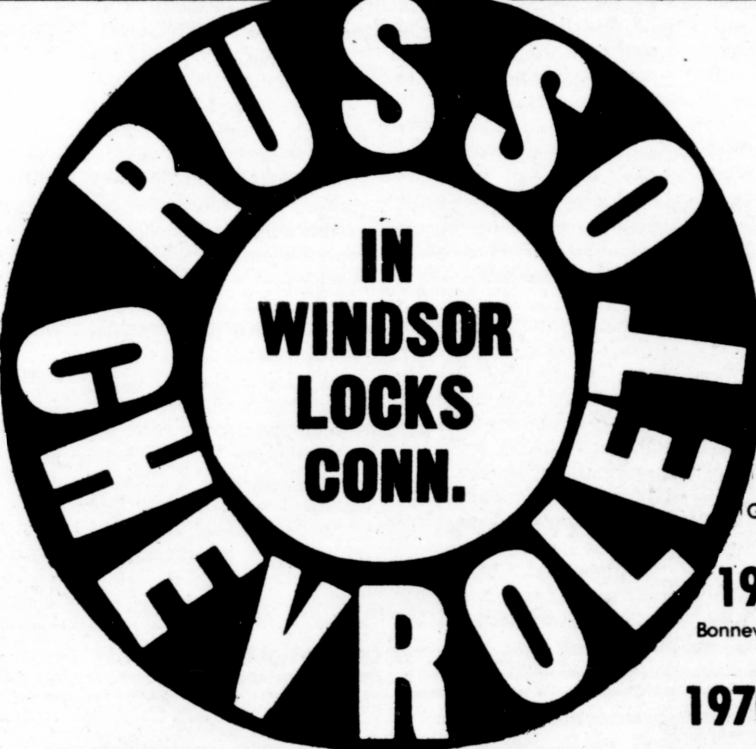

The sponsor of the bill, Rep. John Julian (D-Stafford Springs) argued that the present hunting laws cause hardship both for homeowners living near state lands and for towns in which there are state forests.

The committee also agreed to draft and hold hearings on bills to permit hunting on Sunday, legalizing hunting of mourning doves and falconry.

The group moved to kill a bill barring the use of steel jaw or leg hood traps in the state. It also killed a measure appropriating $300,000 for pet control and health problems.

Farms Subdivision "Conditional"

Suffield Zoning and Planning Commission has given approval to Tobacco Farms Co. proposed 12-lot subdivision on Warnertown Road in West Suffield, near the Massachusetts border. Approval was granted, however, with a denial of the firm's request for a drainage variance. Relying on surface drainage would lead to flooding of yards along the road, Selectman Zavisza said.

Tobacco Farms consultant James Lash had said the company believed curbs and catch basins would be unnecessary along the access road to the 12 lots in the so-called agri-village. This would be contrary to zoning and planning regulations. The road must be built to town specifications so the road might be accepted by the town at a later date, the ZPC said.

Roy Conyers, company president, called the new agri-village the first of several such settlements on the firm's holdings in West Suffield, with individual lots ranging from more than one acre to three acres and "hopefully as large as 10 acres on later tracts." "We are picturing country estates bordering on agricultural operations", he said.

Building Permit Held On Arson Suspect

Suffield Building Inspector Bertram King has placed a hold order on a building permit he granted George Vasilocosta following a Zoning Board of Appeals grant Nov. 26 of a variance to rebuild a garage destroyed in a July 13, 1974 fire and explosion. The hold order will be in effect pending outcome of a case involving Vasilocosta and George Brenza, Jr. of 764 Thrall Ave. Vasilocosta of 1449 River Blvd. Extension, owner of the garage on Thompsonville Rd. and Brenza were arrested Feb.

13 on arson and conspiracy charges. Detectives from the Cooperative Investigation of Regional Criminal Activities (CIRCA) crime squad and detectives from the state fire marshal's office arrested both men on bench warrants issued by the Superior Court in Hartford charging both with third-degree arson and third-degree conspiracy.

Following the July 31 fire Vasilocosta appeared twice before the ZBA to seek a variance to rebuild his garage. Regulations said if more than 50 per cent of the building is destroyed it may not be rebuilt.

Demo Vacancies

There are two vacancies on the Democratic Town Committee to be filled. William Galvin, Jr., who has served more than 15 years, has resigned, as has Edward Markowski.

Nutrition Week Here

National Nutrition Week will be observed beginning Mar. 3 in Suffield by local schools with a contest, film and other events.

Cafeteria Director Alice Welch said there will be a nutrition poster contest for students. Judging is expected to be completed and the winners announced by the middle of the week. Winners' entries will be submitted to the state contest. On Mar. 5, Barbara Tanguay, school vocal music director, will be in Spaulding School from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. working with Grade 3 students on a song entitled "Hi, I'm a Carrot."

Also on Mar. 5 at 2:15 p.m. a film for the public, "Recipe for People" will be shown at 2:15 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

"Picture" Contest

Girl Scout Cadette Troop 573 is sponsoring a "Dirty Picture" contest for anyone interested in photographing "environmental messes" around Suffield, from private dumps in open fields to polluted streams. The Town Dump is off limits.

Purpose of the contest is to draw attention to polluted areas and inspire people to clean them up, according to Joan Dobson, leader of the environmental patrol of the troop.

Blanks for the contest are available in the Kent Memorial Library. The contest will end March 1.

Veteran Custodian Retires

Alfred Blakesley, who joined the Suffield school department as a custodian in September 1947, has announced his retirement to the Board of Education.

Blakesley has been known to several generations of town school children whom he has befriended as school janitor and loyal supporter of the Little Leaguers, according to School Supt. Malcolm Evans. The teachers have also appreciated his extra services performed during the years.

In accepting Blakesley's retirement, the school board voted unanimously to present him with an illuminated scroll as testimonial to his service and in recognition of his many thoughtful deeds over the years. Suffield artist Gertrude Toomey will illuminate the scroll.

Blakesley was honored by the Suffield Jaycees two years ago when he received their Distinguished Service Award for Outstanding Citizen of the Year.

A life-long resident of Suffield, Blakesley and his wife recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Hindsight

With Art Landry

GASSED OUT?

Sometimes I am convinced that politicians don't think things through before they act on various bills. It seems that every time they make a move lately they convince me of this.

Now they are talking about raising the price of gasoline another fifteen cents per gallon. This will get it up to between 65 cents and 70 cents per gallon. They want to do this to save on gasoline. It doesn't seem to me that it will help inflation any.

The average man will have all he can do to buy enough gasoline to get to work on. The elderly who still drive will feel the pinch even more. The auto industry will probably have to lay off more workers and create still further problems.

Surely people will cut down on attending sporting events. Those who pass the laws are in the higher income brackets and don't worry about a few cents here and there. Sports, however, depends upon the average income man to purchase the ticket and fill the seats at indoor and outdoor stadiums all over the country.

The ski resorts would also be hurting. After people figured out what it would cost them to get to ski resorts and back they will also be able to figure that they can't afford to stay overnight or pay lift fees or rent equipment.

It is the little man who must get to work and the little man who needs a little relaxation who will be hardest hit as well as those who provide the entertainment.

Those who will profit by it are those who already have it. Namely the oil companies. If John Q. Public doesn't care then no one will.

TO LOSE IS TO WIN

I don't know whether any other writer has noticed it. I certainly haven't read anything about. I am referring to the fact that every team in the World Hockey Association's East Division has had more goals scored against them than they have scored themselves.

As of Tuesday morning the Whalers had 187 goals for and 195 goals against. Cleveland had 166 for and 193 against. Chicago had 200 for and 233 against. Indianapolis had 141 for and 232 against.

On top of this the Whalers are the only team in the division with a winning record in the division. In the West Division four out of five clubs have winning records and in the Canadian Division four out of five clubs have winning records.

The Whalers rank fifth in total points in the W.H.A. and yet have an eleven point advantage over Cleveland. What does all this prove? If you look at some recent scores you will see that the Whalers tend to win the close, one point, games while they tend to lose big when they do lose.

It should point up the need for a back-up goaltender and a somewhat stronger defense. I believe the schedule calls for four games this week for the Whalers and this is the time they most likely will get tired. In fact they actually have five games scheduled in six nights. That is some scheduling. Their goals against average will have to improve if they want to stand a real chance in the playoffs.

BOXING COMING

Angelo Lamagna is sure to start showing signs of wear pretty soon as he grooms his charges for the Annual Youth Center Boxing Tournament coming up next month at the Enfield High School gym.

Every year he teaches the kids everything he can about boxing in the short time he has. The kids seem to pick it up pretty fast though and start to catch Angelo towards the end of the training period. He will start showing up around town with a mouse under one eye, or a bruise here and there. One year I remember he really had a shiner.

When I asked him how he got it he just laughed about how one of the kids happened to get in a lucky punch. Not slowing down are you Angelo?

KEEP OFF THE GRASS KIDS.

Cook To Race In Spring Sizzler

1974 U.S. NASCAR National Champion, Jerry Cook, doesn't believe in hedges in his quest for an unprecedented 4th National Title, but he'll change his strategy in the 4th Annual Spring Sizzler, April 12 and 13 at Stafford Springs Motor Speedway.

Last year, the Rome, New York modified pilot competed under an open competition permit in the 80-lap affair forsaking points for fuel injection and a supposed edge in the quest for 1st place prize money.

"We were wrong in our strategy, not only did a NASCAR legal car win the race, but we failed to even be competitive with our 'outlaw'."

Carl Bugs Stevens, went on to capture last year's 80-lap affair while Cook battled Richie Evans down to the wire for the National Championship.

"If we had run for the NASCAR points at the Sizzler, the pressure might not have been so great at the end of the season."

Cook's comments are well founded. On July 3, the New Yorker returned to Stafford with a NASCAR legal car and captured the track's Permatex 150.

That victory made Cook the 3rd outsider in seven years to bask in Victory Lane at the Connecticut half-miler. This year's Sizzler Car will conform to NASCAR specifications.

The 1975 Spring Sizzler will find several new twists, one in the schedule, and the other in purse.

A Saturday practice session on April 12 has been added, to accommodate the 100 plus entries expected for the event.

The base purse has also been increased to over $18,000, paying a whopping $3,000 to the winner and $1,000 for 5th place. Last place in the 33 car field will pay $100.

A series of qualification and consolation races will be the procedure for starting positions in the main event, insuring the patron a weekend of flat out racing.

Cook will join fellow New Yorker's Mike Loescher, Dick Fowler, and Ron Martin in an effort to carry the laurels back to Northern New York.

Martin made his inaugural appearance at Stafford last year in spectacular fashion by winning one of the qualification heats.

Tickets remain on sale at the Speedway.

EAC Loses Finale

The Enfield Athletic Club basketballers couldn't get things together during the first three periods last Saturday night at the Enfield High School gym and didn't really gel until the final period but it was too late by then.

The Bristol Cassins took a 38-14 lead in the first period as they dominated the boards and carried the play. The teams played about even in the second period but it wasn't enough as the Cassins had their first quarter 24 point lead as a cushion.

The third period also belonged to Bristol as it began to look hopeless for the locals. Bristol built their lead to 34 points in the third stanza. Enfield's Athletic Club finally started hitting in the final period and in fact outscored Bristol 42 to 18 in the last period to cut the deficit to 10 points as they finally lost it only 113-103.

Dwight Tolliver, who won the league honor as the league's leading scorer, totaled 32 points for Enfield on 14 baskets and 4 foul shots. Tolliver averaged 38.1 points per game over the season. B. Fogel netted 25 points on 10 and 5 for Enfield.

S. Thompson had 16 points, Kennedy and Richardson 11 each, Benson 4 and B. Breman and Vincent 2 each for Enfield.

Whitehead was tops for Bistol with 22 points on 11 baskets. Jones and Hines each netted 20. Thornton had 16, R. Wells 10, Monroe and Morehead 8 points each, Konnechski 5 and P. Wells 4 points for Bristol.

Al Davis, Head Coach of the E.A.C., said "Injuries to key players really hurt us this year but we expect to be back stronger than ever next season." Local fans are starting to back the team and look forward to next season.

The Stoneage All-Stars defeated the Riley C.Y.O. All Stars in a preliminary by the score of 69-64. Mike Angelica led the Stoneage win with 24 points on 11 baskets and 2 fouls. Greg Kuhn added 14 for the winners. Bernie Curry netted 14 points and Tom Langan and Pat Riley had 11 each for the losers.

The Enfield Park & Recreation All-Stars defeated the St. Joseph Grammar School 47-32 in the second game of the three game jamboree.

The game was at its closest in the third period when the P & R led by just 6 points at the end of the period.

Bob Loiselle scored 14 points for the winners on seven baskets. Maier netted 11 on 4 and 3 and Steve Cotnoir had 6 points on three baskets for the P & R All-Stars.

O'Brien netted 16 points on 7 from the floor and 2 from the line for St. Joseph's. Gilhooley added 9 points on 3 and 3 for St. Joe's.

The Enfield Athletic Club thanks all those who supported the team this year and will be looking forward to seeing you in the Fall.

World Day of Prayer Features Unique Program

More Than Two To Tango

Director-choreographer, David Potter, instructs chorus members, Claire O'Donnell, Jim Sheppard, Liz Dawson and Rene Riopel, how to tango for the St. Martha Players spring production of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" to be presented on the stage of Enfield's Enrico Fermi High School, Mar. 14, 15, 21 and 22 at 8 p.m. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Anchorman Systems of Enfield.

A day of fellowship, worship, prayer, and concern has been planned for the women in the Enfield area for Friday, Mar. 7. Sponsored by Enfield Church Women, World Day of Prayer is planned as a three-part program to enable mothers with small pre-schoolers or elementary school children with lunch recesses to tend to their families needs or to be able to come in late and not miss the whole day's fellowship. Babysitting is also provided during the whole day for the mothers' convenience.

This year the programs will be held at the Hazardville United Methodist Church on Hazard Ave., Enfield. Starting at 9:45 there will be registration and coffee fellowship; at 10 the Rape Crisis program "You are not alone" will be presented by professionals, including Enfield Policewoman Janette Young. Kindergarten mothers dash off about 11:25 to meet the morning gang. Luncheon at noon will be prepared and served by the women of the two Methodist Churches. The menu will include: glazed ham, jello salad, green beans, rolls, beverage and tortes for dessert. Reservations are needed and should be made with your church representative or with Mrs. Louis Schadlich, $1.50.

The afternoon worship program begins about 1 p.m. This year's World Day of Prayer Service has been written by the women of Egypt. During this service we are a small part of the millions of people in the world who are also praying. Rev. Didelia Lane will be the guest speaker. She is well known to Enfielders, but perhaps you have not heard her deliver a sermon since she was ordained. The Joy Singers will also sing. The day's program will end by 2:15. Enfield's World Day of Prayer is for everyone who can attend any or all of the day's activities. Men are also invited. Bring a neighbor.

World Day of Prayer is one of five things planned by Enfield Church Women. They are made possible by the cooperation of the women from all the churches. The other events are the May Fellowship Breakfast May 3, The Ecumenical Smorgasborg in October and the Christmas "Store" and Christmas Party held in December for the low-income families of Enfield. You are invited to be a part of it all.

"Let's Keep Her Rolling..."

Mrs. Florence Johnson announces that there are a few tickets left for the Senior Citizen's Bus Bingo, "Let's Keep Her Rolling", Tuesday evening, at 8 p.m. at St. Joseph's School, Pearl St. Extension.

The refreshment committee, under the direction of Mrs. Beatrice Blake, is seeking donations of cakes, cookies, brownies. Assisting Mrs. Blake are Mrs. Helene Ruegger, Mrs. Catherine Peters, Mrs. Nellie Bernier, Mrs. Theresa Bartley, Mrs. Edwina Summer, Mrs. Dina Radosti.

The door prize committeemen are Edward LaJoie, Ben Mankus, Herbert Edes, Louis Scavotto, and Arthur George. Donations may be given to any of the above mentioned.

Bus Program
The Enfield Senior

Citizens finance their own busing program through the efforts of community fund raisers, like the bingo. The busing program is run by volunteers under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Allen, Director of Social Services for the town of Enfield. Membership in the busing program is open to all Enfield Senior citizens age 60 and over. Membership Identification is $3 a year and may be obtained from the bus committee members or the Social Services Office at the Town Hall. Membership entitles the person to ride the Senior Citizen's bus weekdays around town, to evening social events and on the out of town Wednesday excursions. Membership monies are an important part of the budget to run the bus.

The Seniors have recently presented to the Town Council a proposal for a new 12 passenger van. The second bus would enable the busing program to expand to the less populated areas of town and to reach persons living on narrow streets. It is the goal of the bus committee to be able to provide service for every Enfield Senior.

Ergin, an active staff member of Hartford Hospital and an Associate Surgeon, Dept. of Surgery at Hartford Hospital, and Mrs. Estelle Korsonsky, an active volunteer in the "Reach To Recovery Program." ECC Club Gathers

The E.C.C. Club of the Enfield Congregational Church will meet for its monthly dinner meeting Saturday, March 8, at 7 p.m. The program for the evening will be a talk by the Rev. Joseph Ampia, Associate Minister of the Hazardville United Methodist Church. Mr. Ampia is from Ghana, West Africa. He has been studying in this country for 6 years, three at Yale Divinity School where he received his M Div. and STM degrees, and three at the University of Connecticut. He is presently working toward the completion of his doctorate in education there. He came to Hazardville this fall. The Ampias have three children and are making their home in Hazardville. Reservations for the dinner may be made with the N. Stanley Halls or the Robert Goulds who are in charge of the dinner. It will be served at 7 p.m. and Rev. Ampia will speak about 8 p.m.

Mid-Lent Communion

There will be a Mid-Lenten Communion Service on Wednesday at 7:45 p.m. at the Enfield Congregational Church. This service of Communion and Meditation was originally scheduled for Ash Wednesday, but was snowed out that day. By request it was rescheduled for later in Lent. All persons in the community are welcome.

"America for Christ"

"America for Christ" will be the theme of the worship service on Sunday at the Enfield American Baptist Church. A special offering will be received for home mission projects in Central and North America. The fourth in a series of mini dramas presented by the youth of the church will be featured, with the service climaxing in the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

On Sunday evening at 7 p.m., the congregation will gather for a vesper service and the showing of an international award winning film, "Solo", recently featured on the National Educational Television Network. The film begins as a climber sets off through the dawn on his way to a mountain peak. The lower level of the mountain unfolds beautiful scenic experiences for the viewer. The climb gets harder, as the climber pounds in his pitons. Continually upward he climbs swinging over a seemingly bottomless abyss, grasping, struggling, clawing higher, until the top is reached. Viewers emotionally experience the suspense, the excitement of the climb and the joy of success. The victorious climber descends, leaping, dashing, tumbling on his way. At last he sits quietly by a mountain stream where the strong hardened climber releases to freedom, a small frog he has rescued from the face of the sheer rock cliff.

Produced as a kind of parable, the film, which has no dialogue, creates a climate for discussion of Christian faith and life. The public is welcome to the showing, for which there is no charge. The church meeting house is located at 129 Post Office Road, in Enfield, near the Harriet Beecher Stowe School. Rev. Richard T. Purchase is Pastor.

"Backstage Ball" Set

The Stage-West Theatre Guild presents its second annual "Backstage Ball," Saturday, Mar. 15. This promises to be a very special evening as Guild members and their families work together to stage what they hope will be their biggest fund raising event of the year.

The very stage on which Tennessee Williams himself stood last season on the opening night of "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" will be open to the public for dancing to The Landerman Orchestra from 8:30 until 1. The Pub in the Theatre Lobby will feature banjo and guitar music for those who prefer "spectating". After 11 rest your weary bones and enjoy an omelet and some champagne. There are sure to be some actors from the current productions partaking of the festivities too.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. William Monks or Mrs. Gerald Asselin in Longmeadow. Tickets are $15 per couple and can be purchased through Mar. 10.

Enfield Craftsmen Join Suffield Craft Fair

Five Enfield craftsmen will be among the 42 craftsmen from throughout New England who will be exhibiting at the fifth annual Suffield Craft Fair sponsored by the Second Baptist Church on Main St., Suffield to be held March 8 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the church buildings. Erwin F. Grimmeisen is chairman of the Fair.

The Enfield exhibitors are: Vilma Parenteau, 307 Brainard Rd., plaques, enamels and cold glaze; Dorothy Ostrander, 12 Webster Rd., pressed flowers; Miss Tad Young, 75 Cornell Dr., polydomes and butterflies; E. Jessica Vossen, 3 Fernwood Ave., polished stone jewelry; and Linda Clark, 30 Sedor Dr., children's stuffed toys.

There are ten new exhibitors at the fair this year and fifteen of the total 42 will demonstrate their crafts, Mrs. William Butler, co-chairman of the fair who is in charge of obtaining the craftsmen, said.

Proceeds from the Craft Fair will help the "Pantry Shelf" program in Suffield. This project initiated by Mary Thurston, town social worker, is an attempt to develop a supply of canned goods and staples to be available to unemployed families who need assistance before their State or Federal benefits are received. Recreational needs of both youth and Senior Citizens will also benefit from the proceeds.

In addition to the exhibits, there will be a bake sale, snack bar, door prizes, free baby sitting service, and a corner where children may work creatively.

Admission is 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Donna Reed

Graduate

Ms. Donna Reed, who graduated from Stone School of Business Dec. 20, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shaw, has accepted a position in the Marshall & Marshall firm of Springfield.

Ms. Reed was graduated from Enrico Fermi High School with the class of 1974. She was in FBLA, 3rd place State Convention Junior Stenographer Competition, and on the honor roll.

During her tenure at Stone she has been on the Social Committee.

FBLA's Fund Raisers

During February, the Enrico Fermi High School Chapter of (FBLA) Future Business Leaders of America has held and is planning to hold many social, fund-raising and business events.

The most important project on the agenda was FBLA week, which occurred February 9-15. Mary Arcouette was voted chairperson and she and her committee were busy planning activities designed to promote FBLA.

Youth and Business Days, which preceded FBLA week were held Feb. 5 and 6. Club members wishing to explore the field of their chosen careers were situated in an area businessman's office for two full workdays. In this way the students had a chance to find out more about their future occupations.

The chapter enjoyed themselves Feb. 9 at Enfield

Twin Rinks for an ice skating party. Marci Secondo and her committee were in charge of making final arrangements for this gathering.

The last week in February will bring out the talent in all club members when they will perform in a talent show staged for the benefit of an orphanage. Mike Bruno, chairman of this activity, along with his talented committee have come up with many enjoyable acts.

Fermi's FBLA has a busy February planned; however, it doesn't end there. In the months to come, they will be busy preparing for their annual State Leadership Conference. A highlight of the conference is the skills tests where members from all Connecticut FBLA chapters compete in various subject area pertaining to business. Fermi's FBLA'ers can handle this and much more!

This night was made for vintage wine, sweet whisperings and a phone call ahead to be sure.

A phone call ahead can save you a lot. Time for one thing. And not a little embarrassment. But most important — money. Because that call costs so little.

You might want to wait for evenings, nights or weekends. They cost even less then.

So phone ahead. Phone south to see when the zoo opens. Phone north for the weather. Phone east to say "hi" to a friend. Phone west to reserve that table.

You save whenever you dial yourself without operator assistance. And these days, couldn't you use a little extra money?

It's lower than you think within Connecticut.

Learning To Know You

Members of Suffield Academy's student body are learning to know more about the international students attending the academy and their countries through a new extra-curricular activity instituted here in January.

The international students are meeting formally with other members of the student body to discuss and exchange ideas about each representative's country in a series of eight consecutive sessions extending through the month of February. Faculty members are assisting.

Mr. and Mrs. Powell are sponsoring the new program in their home. Mr. and Mrs.

Samii and Mr. Ibarra are assisting when the countries of Iran and South America are involved. The "foreign" students from each country lead the discussions.

There are 18 foreign students at the academy this year — five returned from last year, and the others joined them this academic year (1974-75.) The latest is Michael Dawson, a senior from Edinburgh, Scotland, who came in January through the English Speaking Union, an exchange students program for private schools in Great Britain and United States. Suffield has participated in the ESU for several years. There are 11 countries represented this year: Iran, Germany, Japan, Gambia, Nigeria, Thailand, Venezuela, Columbia, Guatemala, Sweden and Mexico. The group includes the first girl foreign student: Pia Bungarton, West Germany, who is here through the ASSIST program initiated here several years ago by Paul Sanderson before he became headmaster.

Aside from their school activities here, the foreign students also speak to classes and groups from other schools about their native lands and cultural backgrounds. They also participate in A.F.S. clubs in the vicinity.
