Reflection Of Recession

Not too many years ago, this railroad station in the Thompsonville section of Enfield, was a busy place. However, today it is almost abandoned with only a few passengers picked up or left off each day, a result of the hard times railroads have fallen on in recent years.

Teachers May Strike Unless Council Acts

John Fisher, president of the Enfield Teacher's Association reinforced recently the ETA's position on a proposed teacher contract calling for a 5.9 per cent increase in salary and a 2.9 per cent hike in increments.

Fisher stated, "It is a minimum, fair contract and I don't see moving from it."

He added that the ETA negotiating team had a progress report meeting with Board of Education chairman William McWha recently. Despite this, the contract remains in limbo due to the fact that the town is delaying action until an opinion from Town Attorney John D. Adams on using budgeted funds from other areas to fulfill the contract can be obtained.

If Adams' recommendation is favorable, the board is considering using $177,546 from the allocation for the A.D. Higgins school.

Fisher also noted, "An ETA executive board meeting will be held to re-evaluate our position, assess where we are and where we want to go next."

He also stated that while the ETA is going to seek legal advice from the Connecticut Education Association on whether or not to declare the contract talks at an impasse and how to proceed with steps for a possible strike.

Fisher added that while the teachers do not want to strike, if nothing is settled in September the teachers will "take a stand".

He also said that the nine point plan which the ETA agreed upon in June will be adhered to.

The drastic program includes mass entrances and exits 15 minutes before and after each school day, doing no work at home, refusing to participate in nonpaid extracurricular activities, lining students in rows and teaching them only the three R's, and elimination of all paid nonteaching activities such as coaching sports.

The program contains a stipulation whereby if the contract is not ratified by Oct. 17 the teachers will institute economic moves such as taking private business to other towns, withdrawing money from Enfield's banks, massive informal picketing and possibly a strike.

The Town Council rejected the pact in June and since that time the contract had been unacted upon. If the proposal had been approved by the council they would have been responsible for funding it and the council members have steadily maintained that there are no funds available for the project.

Councilman-at-large D. Carl Scarfo and Michael Ferguson recently called for an audit of the school budget due to the financial snags. Any audit of the budget would have to be approved by the Town Council.

All donors are urged to make an appointment and every effort will be made to process them as fast as possible.

Electricity Cut Off To Twenty Families

By DAVE LYNCH

On July 21, approximately twenty families in the Thompsonville area had their electric power supply cut off by the Connecticut Light & Power Co., allegedly for non-payment of bills.

The families, mostly underprivileged or impoverished, have been without electricity for over a week even though some claim that they have paid some of their bill.

Jerry Gonzales, Neighborhood Center spokesman, said that in almost every case if the customer makes a "reasonable effort" to pay their bill, CL&P usually allows them credit. She added that in all the dealings which she has had with the power company she has found the credit manager, Mr. Wing, very "agreeable" and "co-operative". Gonzales added that in many cases the "people don't do anything until they receive a shut-off notice". She also stated that many people are "living above their standard" and don't "know how to cut corners".

Gonzales noted, however, that if a family had been on welfare during the time period Nov. 1974 to June 10 of this year, then they would be eligible for assistance from state or local welfare officials.

A spokesman for the local welfare department in Enfield said that to her knowledge no one had come to that department seeking economic aid with the utilities. She added that if a person on welfare was in danger of a shut-off they would receive a notice along with their regular check.

John Hayes, local welfare district chief, said when asked to comment on the situation: "I have no comment, I can't give any information out on that." He stated this repeatedly to all questions.

Gonzales also said that when a person on unemployment is in danger of losing electric service they have the choice of staying on that system or switching to the ADC welfare program which includes medical coverage.

When queried about possible special provisions for families with young children, Gonzales said that to her knowledge there were none.

George Russell, official with CL&P, noted that one "shouldn't get the idea that this goes on every day." He noted that CL&P was suffering through a high delinquency rate of non-payment and that the more non-paying accounts carried, the higher the electric rates would go.

Another spokesman for CL&P who wished to remain anonymous, said that if the customer "doesn't follow our policy then we can't carry them." He also noted that a shut-off of electric power is considered a "last resort" by the company after every

Women's Art Show

At ES Aug. 6 to 9

The Second Annual "Women & Their Art" show will be held at Enfield Square Aug. 6 through 9. Over 30 women artists from Connecticut and Massachusetts will have their work on display in the center courtyard. Awards will be given in the categories of professional and amateur.

The purpose of the exhibit, planned in cooperation with Assn. of Community College, is to encourage women interested in the art field, and to give recognition to area talent. The show has become a popular annual event at Enfield Square.

Judges for the show will be Susan Gafis, Director of Education at the Wadsworth Athenaeum; Patricia Conant, Assistant Professor of Art at Westfield State College and S. Barbara Jean Gasparik, CSSF, Art Instructor at Our Lady of the Angels Academy. Robert Foley, Art Instructor at Enrico Fermi High School will also serve as judge.

The public is invited to view the artwork presented by the area's women artists.

These two buildings at 74 and 84 Main St., in the Thompsonville section of Enfield have reverted back to the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co. through foreclosure proceedings.

Faber Carpet Company Buildings Foreclosed

The Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., of New York, formerly one of Enfield's major industries, has taken over a half interest in the former Faber's World of Carpets, Inc. The property, which was acquired through foreclosure proceedings is located at 74 and 84 Main St.

On March 16 Faber's emptied its stores here and in Western Massachusetts. As of that date it owed the Bigelow firm in excess of $500,000 in overdue bills, according to a lawyer for the New York enterprise.

The attorney stated that while Bigelow has no immediate plans for the building his client would be receptive to an agreement with Wallace S. Faber, owner of the other half of the parcel.

The complex located at 84 Main St. is worth $3,310 and contains a 2,555 square foot building on a 3,194 square foot lot.

The area of 74 Main St. is listed at $13,920 with a 5,460 square foot building located on a parcel of land of 6,825 square feet.

Faber's had been located in Enfield for about 50 years, however a cutback in operations was necessitated soon after the Bigelow-

Sanford firm moved to other states in search of cheaper labor.

GI Home Loan Program Is Now Permanent Law

The GI home loan program has been made permanent for veterans of World War II, Korea and the Vietnam War, reported Theodore Plamondon, Jr., local VFW service officer.

Under recent legislation, it is much easier for veterans of those wars to obtain a second GI home loan.

Information reaching the V.F.W. indicates, however, said Plamondon, that one of the biggest sore spots with a large number of Vietnam veterans is their inability to find a home within the price range of the modest incomes of younger Vietnam veterans. Going through the Congress is the Emergency Housing Act of 1975, generally aimed at providing greater home ownership opportunities and to stimulate housing production and employment during this economic slump. Veterans have noted that this Emergency Housing Act of 1975 (H.R. 4485) would authorize a subsidy for a limited period and reduce the effective interest rate on mortgages to 6 per cent. Another provision would authorize a flat cash subsidy of $1,000 toward the down payment for the settlement costs on the purchase of a new residence.

The V.F.W. has held for many years that high interest rates prevent large numbers of veterans from buying a home under the GI Home Loan program. Presently, the VA interest rate is exactly the same as the FHA interest rate. At the end of World War II, veterans of WWII did receive a subsidy for a year on the interest rate on home loans. There has never been any subsidy for GI home loans regarding settlement costs, which, in some cases, are excessive.

The V.F.W. holds that veterans of the Vietnam War

Vandals At It Again

Last weekend vandals caused over $1,400 worth of damage to Enfield High School.

Twenty-five windows including some valued at $400 each were smashed and strewn across the lawn of the school. Also, the vandals had removed several drain covers from the roof of the building.

Police estimated that the destruction took place between midnight and 3 a.m. Sunday. They also said that there were indications that the windows had been broken by a hammer or like object.

The D wing of the edifice, which is hidden from view by a hill, has been scarred by similar incidents in recent months. On May 25 vandals caused a reported $5,000 to $10,000 worth of damage. In that instance windows, machine shop tools, files, records, and classrooms all were victimized.

In-Town Transit System On Rocks

Fresh on the heels of a dramatic failure in mass transit the Town of Enfield is preparing to start anew.

The Enfield Transportation Committee recently began exploring new options for mass transit in the wake of the failure of the intratown bus system.

Committee chairman Robert Robbins said that the "Dial-A-Ride" could be the best alternative transit system.

On July 7 the Town Council decided not to continue its subsidy of the bus system and subsequently the buses will stop Aug. 2.

While Robbins does not expect "Dial-A-Ride" to be a financial success his committee will investigate it thoroughly. The system would include vehicles which would be dispatched to people's homes when they call for the service.

There had been speculation that the committee would disband after the demise of the bus service and Robbins did nothing to stem that feeling.

Besides Robbins, other committee members include Carl Becker, Albert McIntosh and Barbara Brososky.

Electricity

other measure is tried. He added that CL&P is "sympathetic to people with problems". However, to "keep rates in the proper order" non-payment cases have to be watched closely.

One case in particular seems to point up the possible misinterpretations and mix-ups which seem to be a natural hazard of welfare related cases.

One woman, who wished her identity to be kept secret, said that the state welfare department made her last payment on June 20 in the amount of $88. She also said that on July 14 when she received a shut-off notice she telephoned CL&P and talked to a woman there who assured her that her power would not be shut-off. The woman informed the power company that she was unable to work due to a fractured wrist, however, she notified them that on August 1 when she received her next welfare check she would send a payment. The woman whom she spoke with "okayed" the situation and the woman was confident that she would have her electric service continued.

However, on July 21 her's was one of almost 20 homes which were shut off.

The CL&P spokesman said that all employees of the company are instructed to write down all phone calls dealing with such cases. He said that there "was no record of this call". He also said that except for the payment made by the state on June 29 there had been no money receive din this account since last April. He noted that in a welfare case such as this the person is required to fill out a special form and bring it to the company. A process, which according to the spokesman was never carried out.

When her story was challenged the woman replied simply, "I'm telling the truth."

Another CL&P customer who is without power said that the week before the shut-off she paid half her bill. It should be noted however, that this reporter has seen no evidence of this claim.

Yet another family without power claims that they pay almost $100 a month for the service. This, also, is undocumented.

According to informed sources families on Chapel, Whitworth and Pleasant Streets are the families which were recently cut off.

The two families on Chapel St. whose electricity was cut off are on the second floor at 8 Chapel St. There are two children in the family, ages 1 and 4. Another family on the first floor at 3 Chapel St. has children ages from three to twelve years of age.

Skylark Airport Crash Of Unusual Occurrence

According to a State Bureau of Aeronautics official the type of crash which recently claimed the life of a South Windsor man is one of the rarest in aviation.

John A. Zagorski, Jr. was killed when his plane crashed on his second attempt at a solo landing.

H. D. Williams, Zagorski's instructor, said that Zagorski had made a similar flight immediately before the fatal crash. He added that the model Zagorski was flying usually lands at about 60.65 miles per hour.

SBA Commissioner, Phillip Stock stated recently that although novices are tense on their initial solos they tend to "perform very well".

He added that an investigator from the bureau had spent all day at the Skylark Air Park where the crash occurred and that he would forward a preliminary report shortly.

Bureau records disclose that while there were only eight light-engined deaths last year, so far in 1975 there have been seven.

Stock also said that the investigator interviewed witnesses to the crash and subsequently ordered an examination of the plane and an autopsy on Zagorski.

He also stated that the minimum time required for a solo is eight hours of flight time. Zagorski had flown approximately eleven hours before the ill-fated solo.

Stock stated that all prospective pilots must apply for a learner's license and take a Federal Aviation Administration physical before instructions start. Zagorski had fulfilled these requirements.

According to police information the victim had been flying for about three months.

Instant Lottery To Aid Schools

Beginning in September a new instant lottery will go into effect with the express purpose of raising revenue for local schools.

The program which should raise $10 million annually statewide, is called an instant lottery because players will know immediately whether or not they have won. The new game will be in addition to the present lottery which is expected to gross $15 million during the upcoming year.

Paul Silvergleid, chairman of the Special Revenue Commission, stated recently that four players each year will win $50,000 and 20 will win $1,000.

The new game is expected to have an immediate effect on lottery sales which could only be termed negligible. However, in the next several years the instant lottery is expected to cut regular sales by up to twenty per cent.

The General Assembly authorized the lottery this year to provide more state aid for 145 school districts with the least amount of taxable property per capita. The program should close the gap in state funding between public schools in affluent communities and the schools in towns with small tax bases.

Last year Superior Court Judge Ray Rubinow handed down a decision which labeled the state's management of educational aid "unconstitutional". Rubinow based his decision on the fact that all towns were treated equally without added compensation going to the poorer communities.

The state has appealed the ruling to the Connecticut Supreme Court.

Each six months the lottery will be held. By rubbing spots on the ticket the player will be able to determine whether or not he has won. The prizes will be $2, $5, $100, $1,000 and $10,000.

The $2 and $5 prizes can be redeemed by the ticket seller, however the larger prizes can be cashed only at savings and loan associations, state motor vehicle offices and the Special Revenue Commission office in Wethersfield.

Also, each ticket will come with a stub bearing a concealed letter by rubbing the spot the letter will appear. If a player collects stubs which spell education he wins $1,000. By spelling support he can collect $50.

Friendship House Seeking Director

A local home for troubled youths is seeking a new program director. Friendship House, Inc. is seeking a part time program director to fill the position vacated in January by Robert Spencer.

Since that time Enfield school teacher William Kiner has run the project. He undertook the job as an interim post and plans to leave the position after school begins.

William Ballard, chairman of the board for the House, said recently that the board was aware that Kiner would be leaving and that they had several possibilities for the post. Ballard added that a decision would be postponed until all leads had been examined.

Moreover, he noted that the board was seeking part time help at the present with pay relative to experience.

Ballard also stated that the board was in the process of budgeting and were seeking funds from various sources. Among which, he said are the Welfare Department and private enterprises. However, the department has stated that the home can expect the same allotment which it received in the past.

Hurt In Accident

A truck driven by Gilles Calvet of Meriden blew a tire last week and subsequently rammmed a car and another truck, injuring two.

Mrs. Ruth Kuzmech and her 18 month old son Kent, of 19 Vernon Rd., Enfield, were treated and released at Wesson Memorial Hospital in Springfield.

The child was treated for facial injuries sustained when his head struck the dashboard. Mrs. Kuzmech suffered a broken elbow, knee lacerations and a possible concussion.

Alfred J. Durant, of Hartford, the driver of the second truck; Calvet, and two other passengers in the Kuzmech car escaped uninjured.

DeMaria To File Suit Against Town

Attorney Seymour Rothenberg said recently that in behalf of developer Joseph DeMaria he will file a suit against the town of Enfield and others "shortly".

Rothenberg declined, however, to name the individuals to be sued or what court the suit might be filed in. He said that comment at this time would be inappropriate.

In June the PZC denied DeMaria's request for permission to build more than 100 apartments. There seems to be confusion — depending on who you listen to — whether the application was a new one or an attempt to straighten out a long-standing problem.

In 1966 the PZC turned the application down for the first time. They based their judgment on the sub-standard appearance of the apartments. Eventually DeMaria took his case to the Supreme Court and won a decision.

However, Town Attorney John Adams misplaced plans entered in the court proceedings after receiving them from a court messenger and signing for them.

Because plans were not on file DeMaria was unable to obtain a building permit for the apartments.

According to the town a three year building limit had run out in 1974. Their version has it that the time began to expire in 1971 with the amending of PZC regulations.

Due to this the town maintains that in 1974 the court approval ran out and the subsequent application was an "original".

However, attorneys for DeMaria contend that the appearance was an attempt to straighten out a running dispute.

Rothenberg has stated that the time limit did not begin until 1973 when a housecleaning operation at the Town Hall unearthed the missing plans. Since DeMaria couldn't get a building permit until then the lawyer thinks that the 1971 date is unfounded.

The town claims that the appeal period for last month's PZC decision ran out on June 29, however Rothenberg maintains that since the appearance was not formal application there was no appeal period.

Section of Highland Track to be Scrapped

Five and one-half miles of the Highland-Armory branch of the Penn Central will be scrapped in a nationwide reorganization of rail service. However, 23.1 miles of track on the same line will be maintained.

Area leaders expressed disappointment that the entire line was not saved, yet several said that they were not surprised by the decision.

President of the Highland-Armory Rail Retention Committee, Thomas DePersia, said, "I'm disappointed, but not surprised by the decision; I anticipated that would be their last word."

Most local businessmen voiced concern that subsequently all shipments from Northern Connecticut will have to be moved north to Springfield initially.

The line which is to be disposed of runs parallel to the main Penn Central line from Springfield to Hartford. The line bisects East Longmeadow, Enfield, East Windsor, South Windsor, and ends in East Hartford.

The Highland spur, which is designated a light density line by the U. S. Railway Association, is one of several in the state to be dropped with the formation of the Consolidated Rail Corp. (ConRail).

ConRail is to be operated similarly to AmTrak, the national passenger service rail system. Although the USRA is establishing ConRail, it will be owned by private sources.

Over a year ago the U. S. Department of Transportation recommended abandoning the entire Highland line. At that time HARRC was formed to represent the needs of area businessmen and others who wished to see the line saved.

One source which the HARRC went to for help was 6th District Congressman Toby Moffett. Moffett presented their case at hearings on the proposal.

Harold Cadieux, deputy mayor of Enfield, sees the cutback of rail service as "counterproductive" and noted that he would like to have seen "the whole damned track maintained".

East Windsor Economic Development Commission member Bruno Golaski stated that he too, was discouraged at the loss of the line and he added that "eventually lines like this will have to be opened up."

The rail line which is suffering the cutback was a major factor in Lego Systems Inc. decision to site a $200 million complex in Enfield.

Youth Camp Opens At Camp Grasso

It's time once again for about 250 Connecticut youths, aged nine to 14, to attend the annual Connecticut National Guard Youth Camp, held at Camp Grasso, near Niantic. Aside from T-shirts, the boys, all from underprivileged families throughout the state, receive sneakers, baseball caps and a kit of toiletry articles. This is the third year for the camp, which is sponsored jointly by the state Department of Children and Youth Services and the Connecticut National Guard. It is completely staffed and planned by volunteer Guardsmen and privately funded through donations which pay for the food, supplies and admission fees to area attractions. The camp lasts two weeks, beginning this past Sunday, and two groups of around 125 boys are expected for each week's session, according to Assistant Camp Director Chief Master Sergeant Paul Trinks. For the third straight year the Camp Director will be COL John L. Hoar, Air Liaison Officer for the Connecticut Air National Guard, of Portland.

The youths will enjoy such camp activities as swimming, fishing, softball, basketball and arts and crafts, and field trips to the seaquarium at Mystic, the U. S. Navy Submarine base at Groton, the U. S. Coast Guard Academy and the New London zoo. In addition, they will visit nearby Stone's Ranch, the training area for the Connecticut Army National Guard, to ride in jeeps and armored personnel carriers.

The majority of the counselors serve in their civilian lives in education, recreation and social work fields. At camp, they will be recreation directors, swimming supervisors, craft teachers, medics, cooks, drivers and security personnel. All of the food will be prepared by professionally trained cooks.

The boys are recruited for the camp by the regional offices of the State Department of Children and Youth Services in Hartford, Manchester, New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and Norwich.

In the Enfield area, the Neighborhood Youth Center also aids in the selection of boys for the camp.

The Somers Zoning Commission has instructed Mrs. Timothy Lavelle to stable her horses further away from the property line to conform to zoning regulations, which require stables to be a minimum of 60 feet from the line.

Complaining neighbors brought the violations to the commission's attention according to Chairman Horace Pease but the neighbors were not identified.

Coachlight Delights And Entertains You . . .

Looking for a good value in entertainment and delightful dining during the "dog days" of summer in the inflationary 70's — or anytime? The Coachlight Dinner Theatre is the place to relax, to romanticize and enjoy an evening of superb entertainment and a varied and delicious menu skillfully prepared and served to please any gourmet's appetite.

The atmosphere is unique. Decorated in subtle hues of blues and purples, the interior of the Coachlight is intriguing and captivating from the moment you enter.

Cocktails are made especially to your taste followed by a "grand buffet" unequalled in the area.

Between the dinner hour and the start of any current hit production (and, to date, all the Coachlight's productions have been overwhelming successes) students from the Hartt School of Music entertain with nostalgic themes from the past and current theatrical hits on Broadway and around the world.

At 8:30 p.m. nightly (except on Mondays and an hour earlier on Sundays) the stage "comes down" to present and delight the audience with a truly well balanced, dramatically staged and superbly directed production that will make you laugh, learn, relax and enjoy your evening on the town in East Windsor.

The productions at the Coachlight are ever-varied and yet equally well costumed and colored to animate the script to its fullest during the opening, development and the climax of the story. The sequences that occur during the course of a production and the differing moods of each unique "story line" are carefully designed and literally "colored" to further elevate or depress the action of play. For example, when the mood is gay bright colors, reds, yellows and oranges predominate; when the mood is more somber, more subtle color relationships as reflected in the costumes and the staging of the production are emphasized.

Always the acting and the casting at the Coachlight is a delight to see. Under the able direction of Cash Baxter, the entire company works together to enhance the production and their enthusiasm for their respective roles is radiated to the audience.

Need more be said . . . ? The next time you're celebrating a special occasion or want to "get away from it all" go to the Coachlight. Their entire staff is waiting to serve you and see that you enjoy "your evening on the town."

Dr. Ahrens Permitted To Subdivide House

Dr. John Ahrens has been granted permission by the Suffield Zoning and Planning Board permission to subdivide his 14-room house at 52 South Main St. to a main area with four bedrooms and also to convert another area into a one-bedroom apartment with a kitchen.

Stipulations by the town sanitarian, building inspector and Historic District Commission must be followed by Dr. Ahrens however.

East St. Repairs Begin

East St. in Suffield (Rt. 159) south of Rt. 190 to the Windsor Locks line is being resurfaced by the state Highway Department, because it is a state road.

The lowering of shoulders on both sides of the road, the peeling of large bumps in the road and drainage work are being done now, Everett Morrill, Highway Department foreman said.

East St. will then be resurfaced with bituminous concrete, a blacktop, Morrill said. He added that the work should be completed on the road by the middle or end of August.

Because the house is located in the Historic District, Dr. and Mrs. Ahrens have applied to the Historic District Commission for a certificate of appropriateness to install a door on the south side of the rear section of the house, replacing a small window. All such changes in the outward appearance of buildings in the Historic District, must be approved by the Historic District Commission. The house was built by Dr. Asaph Bissell in 1823 and had been used as a residence and home office by the late Doctors William Caldwell and William Upson, as well as Dr. Bissell.

Scholarship Winner

200 Years Ago . . .

Suffield House Robbed

Two hundred years ago on July 24, 1775, a twenty dollar award was announced in the Hartfaord Courant concerning a robbery in the house of Joseph Pease of Suffield.

The notice stated "— Sometime in the night after the fifteenth of July, the house of Joseph Pease of Suffield was broken open by some person unknown, and robbed of some 90 Dollars in dolalrs and small silver. The villain that perpetrated the crime wore a small shoe and step'd short. It is hoped that all tavern-keepers, traders and all others will take particular notice of any transient person that appears to have much money."

The Joseph Pease house, built in 1760 by Joseph Pease, stood on land now occupied by Brewster Hall of Suffield Academy. It was one of the notable houses of the town and apparently the first one to be built with a chimney in each end and a hall through the middle, rather than a central chimney. The beautiful broken-arch front doorway was the pride of the town for many years. The front hall was paneled and its stair rail of rare architectural grace. From this hall, entrance was gained into a small and dark room where the family were wont to retire in case of thunderstorms.

When Joseph Pease died in 1794, the house passed to his son, Dr. Oliver, who lived and practiced his profession till he was past eighty, and found time to be town clerk for twenty years and judge of probate. On his death the property passed to his daughter, Emily, wife of Rev. Elam Clarke and from them to their daughter, Miss Emily Clarke, last of the line, who died in 1885. The house was then bought by Martin J. Sheldon and given to the Connecticut Literary Institution (now Suffield Academy). Unfortunately it was allowed to fall into neglect and was demolished in 1902.

The amount of the award offered by Joseph Pease and the amount of money stolen in the robbery, as well as his fine house all indicate that Joseph Pease was a man of means in 1775, as he was.

His business interests were diversified. At the end of the lane back of his house he ran a distillery for many years producing cider for market. He ran a sawmill also and rode his horse into Vermont and New Hampshire in search of timber. The logs were then floated down the Connecticut River to his mill. On his fields he raised grains for market and at one time was shipping quotas of wheat and rye to Holland in his own schooner.

Born in Enfield, Conn. in 1728, Pease left there at the age of 18. He went first to Springfield where he learned the trade of shoemaking and followed this trade when he first came to Suffield at the age of twenty-two. In 1753 Pease was living in the household of General Phinehas Lyman, doing odd jobs. He built a sloop for Lyman on the Connecticut River near the mouth of Stony Brook and worked at a sawmill.

He married Mindwell King, daughter of Josiah King of Suffield in 1756. Although he established the Pease family in Suffield, his children became more famous than he. His daughter, Mindwell, married Gideon Granger, Jr., a U. S. Postmaster General. One son, Seth, was first Surveyor General of the United States, as well as Assistant Postmaster General. His son, Royal, was one of the owners of land in the Connecticut Western Reserve, which became Suffield, Ohio, but was known first as Peasetown. Another son Calvin went to Ohio where he became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

Faced With A Problem

"We bought this product in good faith and now it won't operate as the advertisement claims."

"I never ordered these books, but now a finance company claims that if I don't pay, they will take me to court."

Have you ever been faced with a similar problem and didn't know where to turn? The Department of Consumer Protection handles problems such as these and many others.

When faced with a problem, where should you first turn? We suggest you start at the source — call or talk to the merchant, the store manager or the company from which the product was purchased. Many times the problem will be solved on a person-to-person level, but if it hasn't been resolved, don't just complain to your friends, communicate with the proper division of the DCP.

The DCP is divided into divisions each handling specific areas of law enforcement activities. They are: Food, Meat and Poultry, Drugs, Weights and Measures, Fraud, Pharmacy, Athletic and Education. Send a letter stating your complaint or question directly to the appropriate division. In case of an emergency concerning food or drugs, please use the telephone. The numbers are listed below for information calls.

Are you interested in a bakery or coin-operated food vendor's license? Write to the Food Division. If you feel an article of advertising is deceptive or misleading, write to hold a legitimate "going-out-of-business sale, or have problems with a manufacturer's warranty — write to the attention of our Frauds Division.

Asnuntuck's Enrollment Nears "Close-Out" Point

With at least six weeks remaining, Asnuntuck has registered a high number of students for the next school year and leaves only 300 full-time equivalent student positions remaining open.

What this means is that after the 300 full-time equivalent students have registered between now and the beginning of the college year, other students wishing to register will need to pay the higher extension fee if they wish to attend college.

President McLaughlin noted that registration is currently under way and being used by more people each day. However, the cut-off line draws closer each day and as a result, some students will be forced to pay the higher fee if they are to attend college courses this year. He further urges those people interested in attending classes at Asnuntuck Community College to contact the college immediately for registration information. Please call 745-1603.

Eight trophies were awarded to participating companies in the Suffield Firemen's Parade. There were 59 companies in the parade.

Winners were: Windsor Locks department as best appearing, best all-around department; Hazardville section of Enfield's department, best appearing in jacket; Granby's Lost Acres Fire Department as best appearing in Shirts;

Judges for the parade were Suffield First Selectman Chester Kuras, Joseph Romano, local fire commissioner; Newington Fire Chief William Dush; John Flanagan, Hazardville fire chief, and Albert Frost, retired Suffield fire lieutenant who was in charge of the Congamond Lake fire station.

Ten persons received prizes in the annual raffle held at the close of the three day carnival. First prize, 180 pounds of prime beef went to Raulukaitis of Suffield, second prize, a portable dishwasher to Richard Botgotti of Feeding Hills, Mass.; and third prize, a portable lawnmower to Benedict Winiarski of Suffield.

Other winners were: Mrs. Russell Graves of Suffield, Leon Greski of Palmer, Mass., James Buczkowski of Enfield, Joseph Osowiecki of Suffield, Lucy Prucnal of Warehouse Point, and Stanley Zaczynski of Suffield.

The Suffield firemen were blessed with three rainless evenings for their annual event, July 17, 18 and 19.

Town Roads Oiled

Second Selectman Howard Orr, who is responsible for work done on town roads, has reported that about half of the town roads that need oiling have been oiled.

The stone bridge over Stony Brook near Boston Neck dam has been repaired, Orr said, with a whole new wall on the south side of the bridge. He added that the historic effect of the old bridge was kept by the town crew in making the repair. Funds for the repairs will come from the contingency fund in the selectmen's budget, Orr said.

Work will begin soon on Thrall Ave., long considered the bumpiest road in town, Orr said.

Recreational Trips

The Suffield Recreational Department is sponsoring a trip August 9 to see the USSR national gymnastics team of 1975 perform in the Hartford Civic Center at 8 p.m.

The Hartford performance will be the Russian team's only performance in the eastern United States on their 1975 tour.

The USSR national men's and women's gymnastics team will perform six times in the United States after competing in the pre-Olympics in Canada. Although it is not known yet which Soviet stars will be performing, it is certain they will include their world rhythmic gymnastics in the show.

Price of tickets is $5.50. They are available at the McAlister Middle School or at the Recreation Department. The bus will leave at 7 p.m. from the high school.

Other August trips sponsored by the Recreation Department are an adult trip to Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass. to see Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Aug. 5 and a trip to Storowtown Playhouse, Aug. 9 to see Liberate perform. Both are evening performances.

For children there will be a trip to Sturbridge Village August 1 and a trip to Storowtown Playhouse to see a performance of "Rumpelstiltskin," August 7. These are day trips — the Sturbridge Village at 8 a.m. and Storowtown at 10 a.m.

All trips leave from the high school parking lot, and tickets are available at the Recreation Department office in the Town Hall annex on Mountain Rd. For further information call the office 668-0755.

Bike Routes Mapped

As part of its Bicycle Safety Community Project, the Suffield H.O.E. 4-H Club has compiled and printed maps of the best routes in town for bicyclists and plans to label these roads soon with signs they have made.

The bicycle safety community project was funded by a $200 grant which the club received from Reader's Digest. Part of the grant was used by the club to purchase a "talking bike" used in their presentations in the schools on bicycle safety.

One thousand of the town bicycle route maps have been printed at a cost to the club of about $60.

The maps include the major roads throughout Suffield and the roads marked in red are those chosen as most suitable for riding a bicycle. Safety tips and maintenance ideas for bicyclists are included on the map.

Residents may obtain the maps from the library or in the town stores.

Charles Rogalla, leader of the 4-H club, said the club has purchased 20 luminous green signs which will be indicate which roads are considered part of the bike route.

The signs will be attached to street signs around the town as soon as holes are drilled into the signs. First Selectman Chester Kuras has given the group permission for this part of the project.

When the project is completed the local 4-H club has to report back to the Reader's Digest on how they used the grant, Rogalla said.

Clinic Crowded

More than 50 persons attended the free blood pressure clinic sponsored by the Emergency Aid Association, held July 22 at the clinic building. This was a better response than expected, so there were only two nurses on duty. A third one would have been provided if the EA had known how many were coming.

The Suffield mini-bus furnished transportation for some, and had so many that the driver had to make two trips, but most of those attending provided their own transportation.

Another blood pressure clinic will be held at the EA building in August. These two summer clinics are the only ones this year at the EA building. All winter and spring they were held once a month in West Suffield Congregational School.

Game Farm Will Seek "Educational" Label

The owners of the Grand Game Farm on Mountain Rd. asked the Zoning and Planning Commission July 21 to continue operating the farm under a zoning regulation permitting an educational institution in a residential zone.

The ZPC was asked by Earl Waterman, Jr., one of the owners, to reconsider its negative vote three years ago and allow the animal farm to continue operation.

Waterman's original request had been to receive a zone change on the property from residential to commercial. After this was turned down by the ZPC the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) gave permission for the facility to operate. That decision was overturned recently by the Common Pleas Court 13 in a case instigated by the Sheridan sisters, Jeanette and Anastacia, who live across Mountain Road from the game farm.

Waterman and co-owner Arnold Gould now would like the ZPC to recognize the animal farm as an educational institution.

"Approximately 20,000 school children have visited the game farm since it was opened six years ago, Waterman said. Such animals as black deer, primates, including monkeys and chimpanzees and exotic birds are housed there."

"For many children, this is their only chance to see forms of wildlife in their natural settings," Waterman said.

The Grand Game Farm also sponsors tours for children and adults, explaining animals' habitats to the visitors, and this qualifies it as an educational venture, Waterman said. Apparently the Sheridan sisters, both retired elementary teachers in the town, do not view the game farm thus. They objected originally to possible noise from the animals and increased traffic, when they opposed the game farm being established.

Commission members suggested that Waterman first try to have his farm accepted as an educational institution by the state, and then the ZBC would take the request "under advisement", Chairman Amiel Zak said.

Meanwhile the Grand Game Farm may continue its business for a while — but soon it may have to operate free. If the ZPC learns admission is still being charged, the board will order the owners to desist.

Officials Meet On Underground Lines

In a meeting held last week, representatives of the Enfield Redevelopment Agency, Connecticut Light and Power and Southern New England Telephone Co. met to discuss financial variances in the cost of establishing underground or aerial utility lines in the Freshwater Pond Urban Renewal Area.

Robert Mitchell, chairman of the ERA stated recently that if the cost was not considered prohibitive the agency would prefer underground lines.

A spokesman for CL&P said that the cost for removing existing facilities would be $16,000, reconstruction of equivalent overhead facilities would include a tab of $26,000 and underground wiring would be $266,000.

Because the renewal project calls for widening and relocation of the streets in the Freshwater Pond area, the existing utility lines must be removed. Also present foliage would interfere with the transfer of current above ground facilities.

The town of Enfield and CL&P would split the cost of the project evenly.

The spokesman estimated the cost for the town at $255,000. He also noted that there is "no real advantage to putting wires underground" and he stated that any difference could only be called "aesthetic".

SNETCO officials also said that they would prefer underground facilities with an estimated cost of $26,000, half of which SNETCO would absorb. The officials noted that the underground cables are easier to maintain and for that reason alone they would prefer the subterranean lines.

Direct Deposit — A New Era in Banking

EFT (Electronic Funds Transfer) is now underway. The first step is the Direct Deposit of payroll checks into employees' bank accounts.

We are now asking our depositors to request their employers to deposit their earnings directly into their NCN checking (or savings) accounts. Social Security recipients will also have the benefits of this service in this area on or about October 1.

If you have an automated payroll system, this procedure is easily accomplished. As an employer, you can reduce your own paperwork and provide a safe, modern and useful deposit service by encouraging your employees to adopt it.

If you do not have an automated payroll service at the present time, why not let us give you all the details and the figures? It's a big time saver whether you have 15 employees or 500.

Many Participate In Canoe Race

Contestants are shown registering at the starting point, the Enfield Boat Launch on lower Parsons Road for the recently-held 10-mile canoe race. The race was organized by the Tri-State Canoeists.

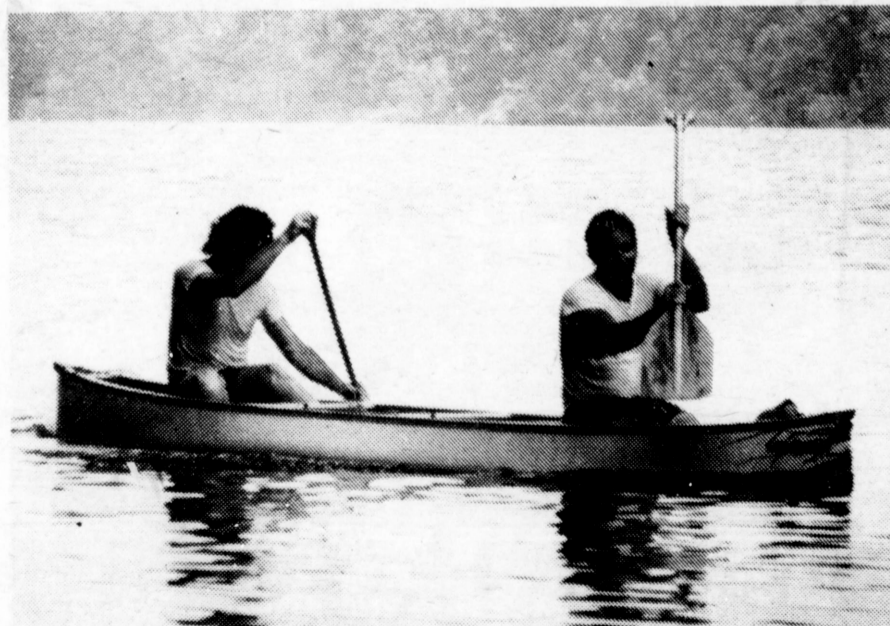

Off they go down the Connecticut River, all hoping to be first to the finish point, the Windsor Boat Launch.

Herb Sanders and Bill Ladue pass under the Windsor Locks bridge.

The race was supervised by two men and a dog in a motor boat.

Sanders and Ladue cross the finish line under the Bissel Bridge in taking first prize of $100.
