Bicentennial Parade Saturday

Feet, Do Your Stuff

If you listen closely, you can almost hear the drums.

Coming down Enfield St. are 5,000 people dressed for a gigantic birthday celebration for America.

If you hurry you can still find a place to watch them so long as you don't mind rubbing elbows with 49,999 of your friends.

The Enfield Bicentennial Parade starts at South Road Saturday at 1 p.m.

Strutting along Enfield Street toward Town Hall will be people from across the state dressed in their finest and doing their best to entertain you for about three hours.

There will be eight divisions of marching units, bands, fife and drum corps, drum and bugle corps, floats and horses. Reviewing stand will be opposite High Street in front of the former Fiore Oldsmobile showroom.

Parade Marshal Robert Watton said the parade will begin promptly at 1; all marchers should assemble with their units by 12:30 p.m.; all floats must be in position in the assembly area for judging at 11 a.m.

Several state and local dignitaries are to appear in the parade; heading the list are Adjutant Gen. John Freund, U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., U.S. Rep. Toby Moffett and State Sen. Charles Alfano.

Local officials to appear are Reps. Richard Cressotti and Cornelius O'Leary, Mayor Armand Roy, Town Manager William McDivitt, Councilmen Gerald Crowley, Fred Gelsi, Harold Cadieux, Ralph Fiore, Joseph O'Connor, Gerald Ouellette, Robert Robbins, Carl Scarfo and James Baum, and Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce President Dexter S. Burnham.

Mayor Roy will officially start the parade by reading a Bicentennial proclamation from the reviewing stand.

Watton has appointed marshals for each of the eight parade divisions.

They are Dante Gallo, World War I Barracks; Joseph Beinnato, American Legion Post 80; Paul Skarzynski, VFW Post 1501; Edward Zukowski, American Legion Post 154; Antonio Barbieri, Italian-American War Veterans Post 17; William Edgar, AmVets Post 18; Dan Clark, Marine Corps League and John Shlatz, VFW Post 10219.

Parade unit assembly areas are on South Road, Enfield Street School grounds and the lawn of Our Lady of the Angels Academy.

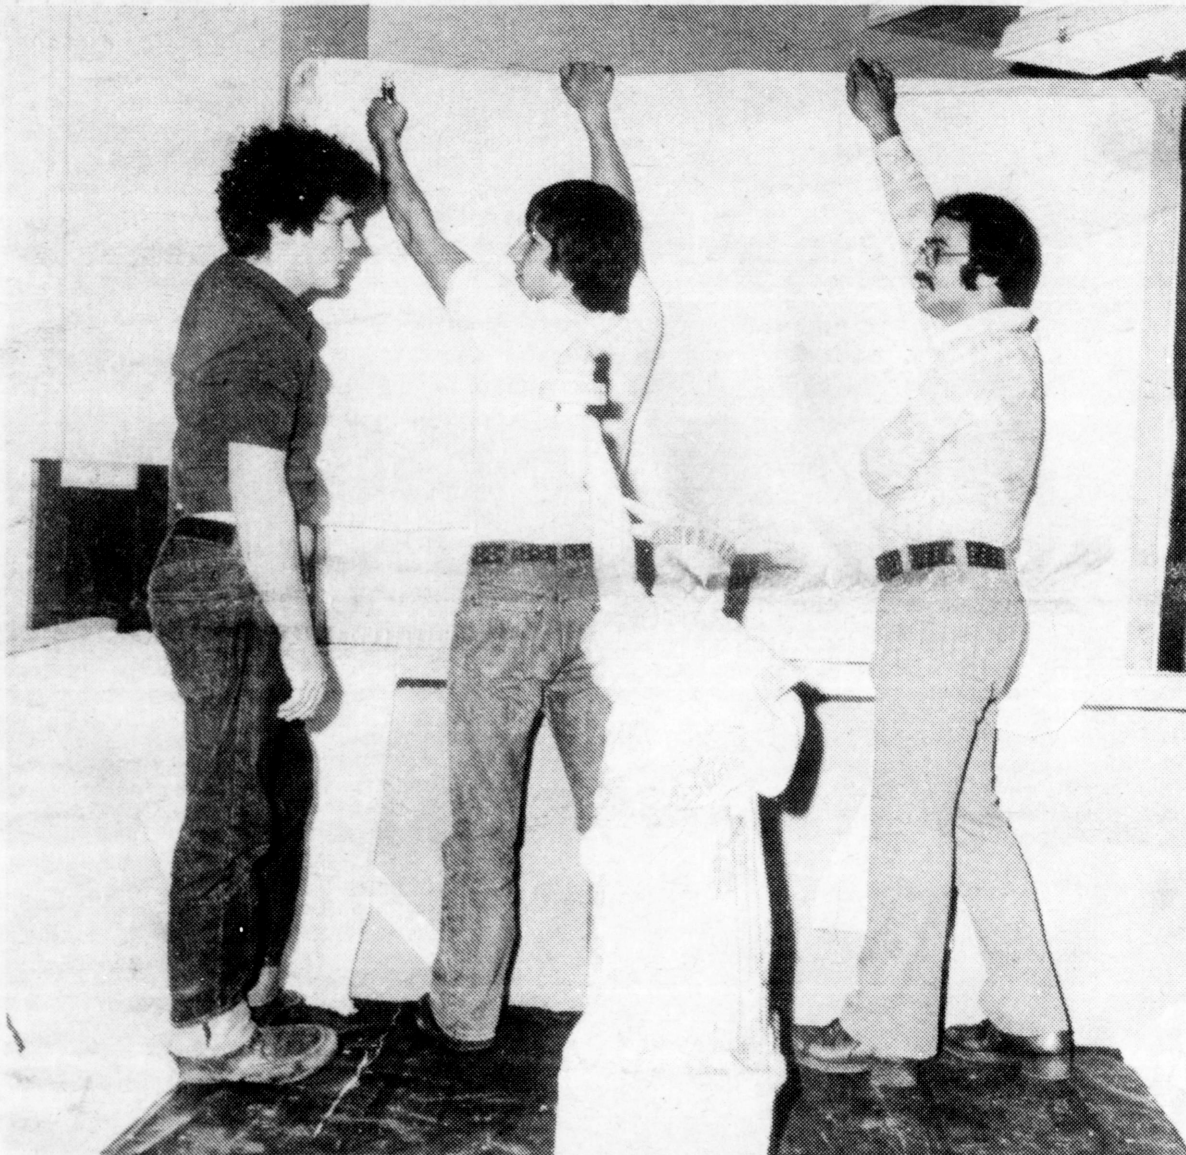

Judges for the float division are: Sister Dulcine, principal of Our Lady of the Angels Academy; Jackie Kahn, promotion director at Enfield Square, and Robert Mitchell, former chairman of the Enfield Development Agency.

Trophies will be awarded to the best floats in three categories: business, civic and schools. Judging will take place prior to the parade and scoring will be based mainly on craftsmanship, beauty, and originality.

Parade Marshal Robert Watton encourages owners of homes along the parade route to fly the American Flag.

Sponsors of the Bicentennial parade are the Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce, Enfield Bicentennial Commission and the Enfield Veterans' Council.

Rain date for the parade is Sunday at the same time and location.

Enrico Fermi High School students Bob Burke, left, and Ron LaRussa and teacher Jim Reveruzzi work on school float which will appear in Saturday's Bicentennial parade. The four-foot papier mache Statue of Liberty is sketched with various scenes of Americana.

Budget Hearing Monday

The town manager's suggested budget for the coming fiscal year is this week undergoing careful scrutiny by the Town Council, businessmen, Chamber of Commerce officials and private citizens in preparation for Monday's public hearing.

Town Manager William McDivitt last week submitted a budget calling for a nearly $2 million increase in spending and a tax increase of more than eight mills.

Those hikes would bring spending to $21.5 million and the tax rate in Enfield to 56 mills.

Chamber of Commerce officials said Wednesday the 8.2-mill increase is "unrealistic" and suggested a hike of 4-mills would be sufficient to cover the cost of inflation.

A spokesman said school administrators should cut their request — which would add 4 mills to the current rate — by cutting the teaching staff.

With the expected closing of at least one elementary school, Chamber officials feel staff cuts, rather than program cuts, should be made.

Ray Peltier, vice president-elect, will present the Chamber's point of view at Monday's hearing which is scheduled at 8 p.m. at Enfield High School.

Looking through the budget, one department will have less money to spend than it did last year, two remain the same while 14 increased.

The Welfare Department requested and got a $9,850 cut in its budget; the town manager recommended a budget of $60,022 for the coming year.

Remaining the same were the Health Department at $45,000 and Industrial Development at $3,000.

Leading the list of increases is the Board of Education at a figure of $13,355,396 but that was trimmed by the manager from the original request of $13,712,538. Schools got $12,266,613 this year.

Another large increase is recommended for the Planning Department. The manager has recommended an increase of $18,877 bringing the Planning budget to $42,515.

Social Services got a boost of $23,990 to bring its budget to $71,443; the Police Department would get an increase of $85,315 for a total budget of $1,147,879.

Under the manager's plan, General Government would get $232,773, an increase of $11,227, and the Finance Department would get $202,712, an increase of $12,115.

The office of the Town Clerk would get a $2,020 jump to $55,110; Library Department an increase of $3,560 for a total of $166,839; Civil Preparedness would get $4,783, a jump of $2,300.

The Department of Public Works could get an increase of more than $205,000 for a total of $2,385,630; Insurance and Bond Charges are to increase more than $27,000 to a total of $168,700; Personnel Costs are expected to be up $34,000 to $473,000.

McDivitt has asked that the town Contingency Fund be set at $300,000 from the current contingency of $555. Assessment of town-owned property is to increase $3,137 to $10,163.

In all, the town manager cut more than $466,000 from budget requests submitted by the various town departments to reach the final budget recommendation of $21,547,276.

Salary costs are expected to climb by $154,389 and involve the following positions:

Two additional temporary employees, five additional full-time employees, ten employees whose jobs were formerly financed by grant programs, a canine control officer, two positions previously paid partially from other funds, adjustment in the police contract and reinstatement of temporary personnel.

Cressotti Releases Questionnaire Results

State Representative Richard Cressotti (D-59th) has released the results of a questionnaire distributed to residents of his district some four weeks ago. The survey contained sixteen questions and covered several issues currently pending before the General Assembly.

Answers to those questions directly related to the State's fiscal situation revealed that residents of the 59th District in Enfield are overwhelmingly in favor of stringent economies. When given three alternatives to choose from regarding the course the General Assembly should take with regard to next year's budget, respondents favored cuts in State services by an 82 per cent to 18 per cent margin over a State income tax (25 per cent in favor, 75 per cent opposed), and an increase in existing taxes and fees (26 per cent in favor, 74 per cent opposed). Use of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund was opposed by a 71 per cent to 29 per cent margin while the forty hour work week for State employees was favored 81 per cent to 19 per cent.

The survey also indicated concern over the areas of State unemployment compensation and welfare benefits as they presently exist. Seventy percent of those responding believe that unemployment compensation payments should be abolished for those who quit or are fired with just cause, and 89 per cent favored a complete revision and reform of the unemployment compensation laws. A proposal to increase welfare benefits to reflect the cost of living was supported by only 36 per cent of those responding.

The question of gambling in the State was looked on favorably by a majority of those answering the questionnaire. Seventy-two percent favored horse racing in Connecticut, while 53 per cent opposed the abolition of Las Vegas nights.

Under the area of State government in general, only 38 per cent of the survey's respondents felt that they were well-informed on the General Assembly's activities.

Political reform was supported for the most part, with 69 per cent of those answering supporting the abolition of the party lever in voting machines, 86 per cent favoring financial disclosure by all elected and appointed officials, and 88 per cent supporting the concept of legislation submission by state residents to the General Assembly via petition. Respondents were opposed, however, to the creation of the position of a full-time state legislator with the provision of staff and office space by a 70 per cent to 30 per cent margin.

In other issues currently under scrutiny by the General Assembly, survey results indicated that 81 per cent of those responding favored repeal of the Blue Laws, 61 per cent favored an increase in the drinking age from 18 to 21, and 72 per cent indicated that they felt the present Public Utilities Control Authority (PUCA) was not an improvement over the former Public Utilities Commission (PUC).

Representative Cressotti would like to thank all those who took the time to answer his questionnaire, and has indicated that the results will play a major role in his deliberations as a state representative.

Our Parade

One of the more important and entertaining Bicentennial events comes to Enfield Saturday and it's going to be quite a show.

If you miss it, you'll miss more than a parade; you'll miss seeing what can be accomplished when groups and individuals combine talents and efforts to do something good for a community.

The Enfield Bicentennial Commission, Enfield Veterans' Council and Greater Enfield Chamber of Commerce are directors to a cast of thousands who will march in that parade.

It takes many hands (and an equal number of feet) to make a parade. It takes coordination, preparation, planning and persistence.

But most important, it takes cooperation.

Hundreds of local people will take part in the parade; businesses and individuals will enter floats and local groups will form marching and musical units for the three-hour march along Enfield St.

Sponsors say 5,000 will march and 50,000 will watch. That's 75,000 people cooperating in a respectful and colorful birthday party for their country.

That's cooperation.

"America," the slogan goes, "works best when we all work together." That goes for a nation, a parade and a community.

'I DON'T SEE WHAT THE COURT SEES WRONG IN THE RATE HIKE — WE'RE GETTING THE MOST OUT OF THE CONSUMER'

Budget Blues

We have to give the General Assembly credit for one thing — they didn't wait until the last minute to pass the budget.

After that, we are hard put to find a pleasing word to say about their financial fantasy, all $1.79 billion of it.

While it had some bitters, we liked Gov. Ella Grasso's package better, the best parts of which her fellow Democrats gave the bums rush.

These were transfers of the $29 million veterans fund and extending the state employes workweek to 40, or even 37.5 hours.

Jerry Stevens of Milford, House minority leader, had several good suggestions.

Since the Democrats would not listen to the wise counsel of their own Governor, they were not about to give any credence to the voice of the loyal opposition.

We thought the longer workweek had a lot of merit because state employes fare better than the people they work for — the taxpayers.

But the Legislators couldn't stand up to the pressure.

If some critics are right that income is over-estimated, the Governor will be faced with some very unpleasant business, while her troop hides in the hills. She will have to layoff more state employes.

She might be forced to resort to the advice Jerry Stevens tried to give the Legislators. He recommended a three percent budget cut and a real tight freeze on personnel.

These two items, Jerry figured, could have saved the taxpayers about $50 million.

He sees a lot of "disturbing parallels" between the state's fiscal practices and these of New York City. After citing a long list, he concluded:

"I hope my fears are ill-founded, but the signs are there."

We like to believe that our system, although clumsy, somehow muddles through, but at times like these it is difficult to keep the faith.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Arrogance Of Power "Doing Us In"

To The Editor:

To the taxpayers of Enfield:

Have you noticed how our town management as early as January forecast a possible 10 mill increase in our tax rate for this year? This early revelation of course is a political maneuver so that after the town Manager and Town Council cut that down to only a five mill increase they want to look like our real saviours. Yet in coming up with their final budget I'm curious as to just how much do they really know about our biggest expenditure, the school system. If they don't have an organization chart for each school, showing all the supervision plus teachers with their class size and subject, I don't see how they can honestly determine if they need more money or less money. I realize, getting no actual return.

Twenty or thirty years ago classes averaged 30 or well over 30 and the teachers handled their own subjects. Now with classes averaging 20 or even less we have department heads in the system and as tests have shown they have been of no help to our children. This could well be called "feather-bedding" or loading the schools with an excess of personnel for which we are paying dearly in tax increases but getting no actual return.

Our Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Mager, in speaking to our local Rotary Club in February, commented how in the last six years the percentage of increase in the school budget has declined. He also stated that 70 teaching positions were eliminated. When six years ago we had approximately 600 and now we have over 600 teachers. Where did those people go to? Could this be another erroneous statement by Mr. Mager like in February of 1974 when he stated that walking papers were issued to 13 teachers on the elementary level only to find increases at the secondary level and no one out of work? Mr. McWha of the Board of Education, recently accused of acting more like a teacher's business agent, likewise has been guilty of some bad judgments in recent years such as being an avid advocate of that school we never needed on Abbe Rd. The hiring of a bus company, which if he checked, could see it was having financial difficulties and could not live up to their contract, which is just what they did and cost us additional money. Again more recently he displayed very poor judgment in accepting a part-time job for a short while from the school bus company his board hired.

What I'm trying to say is that these two men, the principal architects and advocates of the school budget can make so many poor judgments and issue erroneous statements and yet our council majority is naive enough to believe them by giving them enough money to keep an excess of people to cost Enfield taxpayers a minimum of at least $500,000.

The Enfield teacher's union leader recently stated how a family man can't support a family on $11,000 (the average teacher salary in Enfield) and last fall advocated cuts in sports and less busses, by some pupils walking up to two miles to school so teachers can get a raise. Merit raises are for achievements but as stated before there have been none.

How many people in Enfield earn more than $11,000 a year, and working 12 months of the year too? Last October the census showed Enfield's average income as $3,490 and the 154th lowest income of Connecticut's 169 cities. January of this year our town Finance Director said tax collections were worse than previous years and unemployment the biggest reason. Welfare expenses skyrocketed and "running well ahead of budgeted amounts." Yet the school department seeks to squeeze out even more money from these overburdened people.

It was real sad last fall to see the voter apathy in our town election and tragic too as we have some elected councilmen you might say apathetically following the council leadership in just about everything. A leadership which considers itself "progressive" but under close observation "fiscally irresponsible" would be more apropos.

Go to the town budget meeting and let these people know your observations or opinions you might be told. Well, along with a number of others I've tried that and to no avail. Rest assured it's a wasted evening as the council majority hears only what it wants to hear and only looks down on the others.

Thomas Jefferson counseled democracy's leaders to trust in the informed judgment of the people. Sometimes they are wrong, but in the long run common sense and considerable wisdom nearly always prevail. Despite this, our public leaders too often exhibit the attitude that "people are children and we know what is best for them". This is not leadership but the arrogance of power, and the entire nation has suffered its devastating results.

Professionally Speaking

To The Editor:

What can the teaching profession do to make teaching more professional?

Remember this question, from one of your education courses? Which one of you wrote —

We can make teaching more professional by:

- 1) Not facing our superiors with our problems.
- 2) Not debating and discussing our grievances.
- 3) Dressing like a tobacco worker.

4) Growing long straggly hair and beards.

5) Allowing the students to apply the same professional standards of dress.

6) Having tantrums by, airing our grievances publicly, marching and demonstrating, create mob scenes.

7) Depriving our students of an education.

8) Not considering society and social obligations.

Scouts Help Prepare Bicentennial Float

Enfield's approximately 1500 Girl Scouts are constructing a float for the Bicentennial Parade which will be held Saturday. The float will be covered with tissue paper flowers made by the Scouts, Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Scouts.

Newington is supplying 100 flags to Enfield's Bicentennial Commission and the Girl Scouts are carrying 50 of them. Mrs. Gerry Bednarz has represented the Girl Scouts of Enfield on that Commission all year.

This Sunday as their Keep America Beautiful project this year, Enfield Girl Scouts are planning to pick up trash along the parade route. Each of the four service units will be responsible for a section of Enfield St.

The Annual Council Dinner will be held at the Sheraton Tobacco Valley Motor Inn April 28.

Enfield Association of Girl Scouts will have a Pot Luck Supper at St. Mary's Church, 379 Hazard Ave. May 3 at 6:30. All registered adult Girl Scouts and Senior are included in this meeting and dinner. The discussion will be to plan events for the fall and learn something new. Fred Harris, Chairman of the Merritt Site Committee, has met with Ranger Eric Munson and together they have come up with several important projects which need to be done. May 1 is the day set to open Camp Alice Merritt. Not only does the canvas need to be put up and the equipment brought to the units, but there is brush to be cleared, windows to be washed, glass to be replaced and trim to be painted. Needed are girls, leaders, mothers, fathers and anyone who would like to spend the day in camp. Call Fred Harris (749-7323) or Marge Johnson (749-6454) if you can make it.

Hanzalek, O'Leary Tangle Again

Two local state legislators have tangled again in Hartford — this time over a decision of the General Assembly's Ethics Committee.

Rep. Astrid Hanzalek, R-Suffield, and Democrat Cornelius O'Leary who represents Windsor Locks-Enfield, both serve on the committee.

Last week the committee voted not to hold a formal public hearing on charges that Legislative Commissioner Arthur Lewis tampered with bills that would have affected his clients.

The legislative commissioner is charged with drafting all proposed bills into proper legal form. Lewis, who is the Democratic appointee to the part-time job, also is a lawyer who represents several groups that are heavily regulated by state laws.

O'Leary voted with the majority against continuing the committee investigation into a formal public hearing.

Mrs. Hanzalek and one other Republican voted to hold a formal inquiry on the matter.

After the vote Rep. Hanzalek released a statement criticizing the committee decision.

The most widely-quoted part of that statement claimed the vote was "an example of politics of the past and a perversion of justice."

O'Leary then attacked Mrs. Hanzalek, indicating he felt her statement was politically motivated.

"She never spoke out in the meetings in any way," he claimed. "She never offered a shred of evidence to support her statement — a statement she did not see fit to make in committee."

The two lawmakers have been at odds over a number of issues in recent years, most of them involving bills that affect their neighboring districts.

This time, however, Mrs. Hanzalek moved to dampen some of the controversy, noting that her statement had been taken out of context.

"It was a minority report, written with a heavy heart and lots of frustrations," she said. The issue, she said was not a partisan one since two Republican committee members had voted with Democrats to end the inquiry.

From reading only the single sentence of her release quoted in some newspapers, she added, she could understand "how Con might have gotten the impression" she was basing her criticism on party lines.

Mrs. Hanzalek said she was not necessarily convinced Lewis had violated the code of ethics, but felt there was sufficient evidence to warrant a public hearing.

"I believe even the 'appearance of impropriety' is wrong in a situation where an individual, by the very nature of his job, has virtual life and death power over any piece of legislation," she said.

"I don't think there's any doubt Arthur Lewis represented three groups, was paid for it, and handled legislation that affected all three," she added.

"In my opinion the very fact the situation existed was probable cause — not guilt, but probable cause."

In order to determine all the facts, she said, the committee needed a formal hearing in which Lewis and his attorney could confront and cross-examine those accusing him of violating the code of ethics.

O'Leary claimed "the popular thing to do would have been to abuse Arthur Lewis in every way possible, but I think there's a great danger political games might be played here at his expense."

In the closed meetings held on the issue by the Ethics Committee, he claimed "every accusation, every bill he was accused of tampering with, was refuted."

"Five people on the committee felt there was no point in prolonging his agony," O'Leary said. "Even the one Republican who voted with Mrs. Hanzalek stated he didn't think Arthur Lewis was guilty of violating the statutes."

Although O'Leary claimed there was no way under the law to find Lewis guilty, he added that he thought the commissioner should not be retained any longer in his job.

"I think he used bad judgement," he added. "He shouldn't have been representing those firms and serving as legislative commissioner."

Mrs. Hanzalek said she believed it was "quite possible a formal hearing would have proven conclusively there was no way you could find the gentleman in conflict."

"But I don't believe that can be established without a hearing," she added. "In the post-Watergate era, we should bend over backwards not to even give the appearance of conflict."

Lewis resigned from the post Monday.

Tax Bill Killed

A proposal to require a statewide referendum on any income tax law was killed, 7-5 by the General Assembly's Finance Committee last week.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. A.U. Fox, R-Greenwich, claimed the legislature should not have the power to impose an income tax without getting the approval of state voters.

Opponents said the bill would lead to "government by referendum" and argued that the public did not really understand all the complexities of the state's financial situation.

Bear Hats OK

Local police departments won the right to wear "Smoky the Bear" hats in the House of Representatives last week.

The House passed, and sent to the Senate, a bill that would permit municipal policemen to wear "campaign" style hats similar to those worn by state troopers.

The state police have been irritated at the trend toward copying their headgear on the local level, and have been pointing to a state law that prohibits anyone from wearing a "facimile" of any part of a state trooper's uniform.

Homeowner Aid

Changes in the state's program of aid to elderly homeowners will be considered this year in the General Assembly.

The legislature's Finance Committee last week approved a bill its sponsors say will close a major loophole in the law, and save the state millions of dollars.

The bill would still allow elderly homeowners of low and moderate income to qualify for a freeze on the assessed value of their homes. Another program, dubbed "circuit-breaker", which gives rent or tax rebates to low-income senior citizens, would not be changed.

School Bills OKd

Several bills affecting local school districts gained approval in the General Assembly last week.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill limiting state aid to education to school years of 180 days. Presently, towns that hold classes a few days longer than the state requires receive some extra money.

Another Senate-approved bill removes the requirement that the State Board of Education hold a special public hearing in any town where a decision on school transportation is being appealed.

The House okayed a measure calling for more careful scrutiny of private placement of special education students.

Auto Tax Measure

A plan to help towns and cities catch up with car owners who have been evading their property tax on automobiles got approval last week from the General Assembly's Finance Committee.

The committee also gave its blessing to a measure restructuring the state's seven per cent tax on dividends. The motor vehicles bill requires car owners to show proof they have paid their taxes before they can renew their automobile registration.

The measure will save $15 million, conservatively, for local governments, according to Motor Vehicles Commissioner Stanley Pac.

State Changing Support Rules For Local Schools

The rules of the game are changing when it comes to state support for local education.

Towns rely on the state for three major forms of aid when it comes to running their schools. There is the Average Daily Membership (ADM) grant of $250 per pupil; a two-thirds reimbursement for special education costs; and a 50 per cent share in school construction expenses.

All three of those programs are gradually being transformed in Hartford.

Over the last two years, the Education Committee has started a new pattern of per pupil grants based on a town's relative wealth.

This session the legislature is expected to approve a new formula for school construction that will no longer make state aid automatic.

The legislature is also expected to take the first steps in changing special education reimbursement policies.

This year the General Assembly will probably authorize $75 million in bonding to pay half the cost of school building projects in a number of towns.

After that money, which is already committed to projects under construction or well into the planning stages, is spent, the rules of the game will probably change.

A measure approved by the Finance Committee last week ends the state practice of doing half the bonding for school building programs.

Those towns that get aid in the future would have to float the bonds themselves. The state would pay half the cost of the debt service on the bonds over a 20-year period.

There is no guarantee, under the bill, that all the towns that decide to build new schools or expand old ones will get aid.

The state Department of Education would set up a priority list, and the General Assembly would decide each year how many projects it wants to fund.

Since the money would come out of the state's annual budget, the lawmakers are likely to be conservative about the number of towns they aid.

According to the Finance bill, the Department of Education would consider a number of factors when deciding what priority to give a proposed construction project. Among them would be the need for the facility, the amount of money a town received from the state in recent years, and the relative wealth of the town.

Relative wealth would be determined through the same formula the state is starting to use in doling out additional aid to education.

Enfield ranks among the needier towns in the state under the formula.

The bill also reduces aid for "frills" such as swimming pools, tennis courts, and large gymnasiums and auditoriums to 25 per cent.

Every town in the state is required to provide special education programs needed by public school students who are mentally or physically handicapped, have learning disabilities or are emotionally disturbed or culturally deprived.

The state, in turn, picks up two-thirds of the cost of special education. In the 1976-77 budget, the General Assembly set aside $43.5 million for those reimbursements.

During the past two years the state has toyed with, then dropped, the idea of reducing the funding because of the ballooning special education costs.

In an effort to put an end to such discussion, the Education Committee has proposed legislation to close what it claims are loopholes in the present laws.

So far there has been a limited amount of funding put into that new program. Under this year's legislation, $10 million in lottery funds will be doled out according to the formula, called a Guaranteed Tax Base

How They Voted

The General Assembly recessed early last week to give legislators a chance to take time off for Easter vacation.

But before leaving lawmakers acted on a number of issues, including the state's rape laws and bills affecting municipal labor relations.

Enfield's state representatives are Democrats John Morrison, Richard Cressotti and Cornelius O'Leary. Republican Astrid Hanzalek represents Suffield.

Sen. Charles Alfano, D-Suffield, represents both towns in the Senate.

Here's how they voted on some of the major issues before the General Assembly last week:

On a bill extending from three months to five years the time when a person could report alleged sexual assaults. (Passed by the Senate, 24-10):

Alfano — no.

On an act banning the sale and use of studded tires. (Passed by the Senate, 29-6):

Alfano — yes.

On an act allowing the sale of liquor on election day. (Passed by the Senate, 29-6):

Alfano — yes.

On a bill permitting municipal employees who work less than 20 hours a week to join unions. (Killed in the House, 58-80):

Morrison — no; Cressotti — no; O'Leary — no; Hanzalek — no.

On a measure permitting snowmobilers to use state trails after dark. (Passed by the House, 77-63):

Morrison — yes; Cressotti — absent; O'Leary — yes; Hanzalek — no.

On a bill permitting municipal employees to take part in most political activities. Passed by the House, 98-41):

Morrison — yes; Cressotti — absent; O'Leary — yes; Hanzalek — no.

On a bill permitting local police departments to wear "campaign" style hats similar to those worn by state troopers. (Passed the House, 94-44):

Morrison — yes; Cressotti — absent; O'Leary — yes; Hanzalek — yes.

On a bill raising tuition at state institutions of higher learning. (Passed in the House, 118-18):

Morrison — yes; Cressotti — yes; O'Leary — yes; Hanzalek — yes.

Helping Out Our Schools

Answer Is Volunteers, Not Money

"We have a good town and good schools," says Francis Burke Jr., "but we have some problems to solve and it's going to take community involvement to solve them."

Burke, a first-term member of Enfield's Board of Education, thinks he has a way of getting citizens involved in the schools — a volunteer program.

"I know it will work," Burke said in an exclusive interview with The Enfield Press. His plan evolved since a recent rash of vandalism at Kosciuszko Junior High School forced teachers to become hallway and lavatory monitors.

Burke believes teachers should be in classrooms and the monitors could be adults who could volunteer for the tasks a few hours a week.

Further, the Enfield native feels Enfield should take advantage of some of its local talent to supplement local education programs.

There are trained professionals in Enfield, he adds, who could contribute much to the local school system if they knew where to channel their efforts.

"I'm convinced people want to help but don't know how to help," says Burke.

Retired businessmen, factory workers, housewives, and other members of the community could become an important part of the school system if given the chance, says Burke, an executive at Hallmark Cards.

A physical fitness enthusiast, for example, might be able to help a gym teacher, an auto mechanic might be able to assist an industrial arts teacher or an office worker might be able to help teachers or administrators with clerical classes or duties, Burke explains.

... Community Involvement

"When the town had the money to pay teacher aides, we had more than we could hire," Burke recalls, "and I think those jobs could be done now by volunteers."

The presence of more adults in schools might help alleviate discipline and vandalism problems, Burke adds.

"Money," he believes, "is not the only answer to our problems. We can do a lot with money but we can do a lot with what we have, too."

Benefit Or Burden?

A volunteer program at Enfield's high schools could be as much a burden as it would be a benefit if it isn't properly planned and administered.

That's the opinion of Enfield High School Principal Leo Yaconiello.

"Don't get me wrong; I'm not against a volunteer program, but I'm not going to jump into the water without checking the depth," says the principal.

Yaconiello recalls volunteers at his school who greatly enhanced the operation, but he has some reservations about how to handle several volunteers at a time.

"And I want people to know what they're getting into before they face a situation they can't handle," he adds.

"Some people just don't know how to relate to today's young people. This is no Cinderella palace and we need people who are aware of the problems of adolescence," the educator says.

As principal at Enfield High, Yaconiello is responsible for the conduct and safety of students and teachers — and perhaps volunteers.

Through college, certification and experience, teachers are "screened" for their abilities to communicate and cooperate with students.

"But even then there are some personality clashes," the principal says.

Volunteers could not be screened and the wrong person in the wrong situation could lead to a difficult situation for the volunteer, student, school and community.

In 23 years as an educator, Yaconiello says he has seen student attitudes change in ways most citizens don't understand.

"Confrontation is a part of a student's lifestyle," he says, and doubts most volunteers could effectively cope with some of the problems teachers face everyday.

"We need community involvement —

LEO YACONIELLO
... Some Reservations

the schools can only be as good as the town lets us be — but it must be the right kind of involvement.

There isn't a teacher at Enfield High who couldn't use help doing some of the clerical things teachers are saddled with, but the principal feels volunteer efforts should be kept within that realm.

Putting a volunteer into the role of policeman — to control student actions in lavatories, lunchrooms, parking lots and corridors — could be damaging to both student and volunteer.

Presidential Caucuses Tuesday

Registered Democrats of Enfield will caucus at Town Hall Tuesday to choose delegates to represent Presidential candidates in the May 11 primary.

Caucuses will begin at 8 p.m. Democratic moderators arranging slates for Presidential candidates are:

Angela Sevarina for former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Alice Tarrant for Sen. Frank Church, Cynthia Keys for Sen. Fred Harris, Fred Gelsi for Sen. Henry Jackson, Robert Boozang for Ellen McCormick, Iris Creem for U.S. Rep. Morris Udall and Richard LeBorious for an uncommitted slate.

Town Hall Report

According to Democratic Registrar of Voters Frederick Gendron, confusion surrounds this first series of state caucuses and primary. Organizers are now "trying to put it all together and make it work," he said.

Gendron hopes Democrats will crowd Town Hall Tuesday so the system can be fully explained to those who don't understand.

The registrar explained changes in local polling places for the May 11 primary. Some locations have been eliminated and voters in those districts will vote at the following locations.

Voters who formerly voted at Intermediate School will now vote at Town Hall, those who voted at Corey Volkswagen will vote at Enfield Street School, voters who went to Shaker Pines Firehouse or Nathan Hale School will join voters at Hazardville Memorial School and those who voted at Brainard School will vote with those at Prudence Crandall School.

Voters who formerly voted at Town Hall, Enfield Street School, Hazardville School, Prudence Crandall School, Parkman School or JFK will again vote at those locations.

Voting hours are from noon to 8 p.m.

Elementary Volunteer Plan Works

"We're helping hands to a teacher," explains Joan Alaimo, one of 50 volunteers who spends between a few hours and a few days a week at Enfield Intermediate School.

The volunteer program there is talked about by school board members and school administrators as a program that works. Other elementary schools here have similar programs while others have almost no program at all.

Mrs. Alaimo, who has three children at Intermediate School, says she became involved there as a room mother in the kindergarten.

"And the more time you're around here, the more they get you to do," she laughs.

Volunteers run the school library, make copies of work sheets and tests for students, read to kindergarten youngsters, help with filing and other clerical systems, go with classes on field trips and, in general, perform some of the more administrative duties so teachers will be free to teach.

Eleanor Salamone, chairman of the library committee, explains that much of the activity of volunteers emanates from the library project.

"We have personal contact with all volunteers and try to involve as many as possible. We also have a good working relationship with the principal — we don't do anything without his approval."

Principal Ronald Orlandi gets credit from volunteers who say he gives them a great deal of support and encouragement in their efforts.

VOLUNTEER JOAN ALAIMO
... Making Things Work

Orlandi's assistant principal, teacher Joel Sisitsky, explains that volunteers are more than clerks or teacher aides, "they take over jobs that teachers would get as an additional duty — like the library."

Mrs. Alaimo believes the program is successful because mothers who take part feel no pressure.

"You don't have to watch a clock, you don't have to be here at a particular time, if you can't get here it doesn't create a problem for anyone else. You just do what you can and you know you're helping."

Board Of Ed Action

At a recent meeting of the Suffield Board of Education the board welcomed Richard Stevens, after being sworn in by Board member Edward Szewczyk, as a new member, replacing Mrs. Margaret Siver; decided to invite Leonard Borsari to a future Board meeting to discuss the Guidance Evaluation Project which will be completed this year; appointed Mrs. Catherine Hays as a half-time speech clinician for the remainder of this fiscal year; set Tuesday, June 22, as the date of graduation; accepted, with regret, the resignations of Mrs. Marion Leary, Dental Hygienist, and Mrs. Mary V. Hayes, Latin teacher at Suffield High School; granted approval of the Outing Club's request for a week-end trip to Lake Waramaug in Kent; and decided that the Finance Sub-committee should draft a News Release explaining in detail the reasons for the budget increase for the 1976-77 year.

Also they, accepted Dr. Evans' proposed statement on staffing during the spring of 1976 which puts a freeze on all hiring until the Board authorized filling positions in which vacancies occur or new positions are authorized; requested that Dr. Evans develop a proposed 1976-77 school calendar beginning with the Wednesday after Labor Day; gave conditional approval for the Suffield Senior Baseball League to develop a baseball diamond on the Spaulding School property contingent upon a formal proposal and assumption by them of liability during the development period. Expressed a desire to drain tile the baseball diamond at Sullivan Field providing the survey by the U.S. Soil Conservation Service indicates it is feasible; and decided to meet with the School Bus Contractors Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the McAlister Cafeteria.

Antique Flea Market Coming

Mrs. Henry Kolnsberg, president of the Suffield Woman's Club has announced June 12 is the date of the fifth annual antique flea market, sponsored by the club, to be held at the Hatheway Barn and grounds 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mrs. Charles Spear, chairman of the event for the third year, says all space has been booked.

The Woman's Club will also have a food booth on the grounds, selling refreshments and home baked goods. All profit made is given to several worthwhile causes; including CARE, public television, Girl Scouts' Greenwoods Campership, Laurel Music Camp, memorial funds, high school year book, Suffield Recreation, Bandstand '76, with the largest amount going for scholarships sponsored by the club.

Friends Helping Library

According to the Library Log published by Friends of the Library, the Suffield Friends of the Library are playing a major job in helping Kent Memorial to branch out into new areas. Six hundred ($600) dollars has been given to the library to be used for (1) an expansion of the Young Adult paperback collection (for ages 11 to 16); (2) foreign language records, and (3) a realia collection.

"Realia" is the library term given to toys and other three-dimensional educational materials. The library staff has visited area libraries with existing realia collections, and in consultation with local nursery schools and kindergartens, will begin the purchase this Spring. The aim of this program is to reach the very youngest child and his parents and include them as part of the library community.

The Friends chief money making project to support its services to library is its book sale. They now need "books and more books" because their supply of books was really depleted during the sale at the last Octoberfest. They need all the good books townspeople can give them and will pick them up. Call John and Helen Densem (668-2377) or Irving Friedman (668-7023) in the evenings.

Again this summer, the Friends plan to sponsor the highly successful Bookmobile which brings books to areas in the town which are at quite some distance from the library.

The Friends is a group of interested people in the community who care about Kent Memorial Library, what it does in the way of programs, the quality of book selection offered, and the plant facilities. It costs as little as one dollar per year to join. Membership cards are available at the library.

Sewer Rate Change?

A Sewer Department rate change proposal will be presented to voters at a special town meeting April 29 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The sewer proposal would raise the yearly user charges from $34 to $40, representing a monthly hike of $3.33.

According to a Sewer Commission spokesman, increased cost, especially the skyrocketing utility bills, have forced the commission to seek the rate increase.

At the meeting, residents will have the opportunity to approve or reject the requested hike. However, the Commission spokesman added, if the proposal is rejected the Commission will have no other recourse but to seek additional funds from the Board of Finance.

On the call for the same meeting will be a proposal to form a community education study committee, First Selectman Chester A. Kuras said.

Such a committee would be charged with investigation of means where by local school facilities could be put to greater leisure-time educational and recreational activities for all age groups. Kuras said there might be one or two other possible items on the call when it is released.

Bridge St.

Traffic Light

Police Commission Chairman Gordon Hartley told the meeting of boards and commission heads March 31 that officials have agreed to a traffic light on Bridge St. However, the light will not be placed opposite Maple Court or Bridge St. School, where it would help both the elderly and children in crossing the heavily trafficked street. The light approved is one at the east entrance to Suffield Village, closer to Main St. where there are already traffic lights at the corner of Main and Bridge St. This light site will require a sidewalk on the south side of Bridge St. (not in existence) down from Maple St. to the traffic light and crossing point, Hartley said.

Mrs. Kenneth J. Parsley

Miss Jane Avery

Blier - Parsley

Miss Evelyn Frances Blier married FTB3 Kenneth James Parsley of Virginia Beach, Va. during a ceremony April 10 at St. Bernard's Church in Enfield. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Normand P. Blier of 84 Willard Dr., Enfield; the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Parsley of Arlington, Texas.

Father Fitzmaurice officiated at the Nuptial Mass and double ring ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Fawn Benoit. Thomas Laws was best man, Douglas Watson and Steven Lesser ushered.

Following a reception at the Somers Inn, the couple left on a wedding trip south where they will make their home in Moyock, N.C.

The bride graduated from Enrico Fermi High School and from the Connecticut Institute of Hairdressing. Her husband is presently attending the Naval Guided Missile School while serving with the Navy stationed at Damneck, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Avery of 30 North St., Enfield, announce the engagement of their daughter Jane to Ronald J. Uricchio.

The bride-elect graduated from Enrico Fermi High School in 1972, and Springfield Technical Community College School of Nursing in 1975 where she received an Associate of Science Degree in Nursing.

She is employed by Baystate Medical Center, Wesson Unit in Springfield.

Uricchio is a son of Mrs. Julia Uricchio of 30 Southwood Rd., Enfield.

He graduated from Enfield High School in 1969 and is presently attending The University of Connecticut. He will graduate from the School of Fine Arts in May 1976.

A fall wedding is planned.

A town-wide drive for used books, the sixth annual Book Boxx Drive conducted by the YWCA Suburban Women's Club in Enfield, is now in progress, and will continue through May 3. The effort will climax with a Book Boxx Sale on Saturday, May 8, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Enfield Central Library. The town libraries will be the recipient of proceeds from the sale.

The club members request donations of hardcovers, paperbacks (both adults' and childrens'), old textbooks or manuals, reference books or magazines, and even comics.

Books may be deposited in marked boxes at any of ten locations in town — Enfield Central Library, Pearl St. Library, Asnuntuck Community College library, YWCA building on South St., Scitico Market, Food Mart, Shop Rite, Trade and Save, Stop 'n Shop, and the Neighborhood Activity Center.

Questions about the drive, or requests for pick-up of large quantities of books may be directed to Mrs. Sue Turi, 749-2053.

Spring Sizzler Set For Sunday

There is never a winner when rain postpones a stock car race, but in the case of the postponement of the 5th

Annual Spring Sizzler NASCAR Modified competitors have come out on the winning end due to the efforts of the New Egypt Speedway and promoter Jimmie Garbac.

Garbac has announced that his first annual Tom Garbac Memorial National Championship race has been switched to May 2, so as not to conflict with the April 25 date for the fifth annual Spring Sizzler at the Stafford Springs Motor Speedway. According to Garbac, "A lot of the same cars that have already signed for the Sizzler were planning to compete with us and we didn't want to put them in a position of choosing which track they would run on."

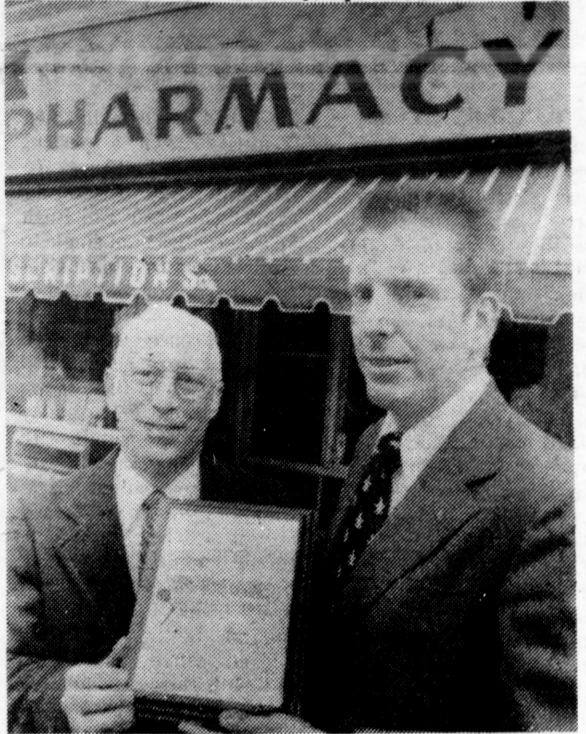

Prior to the rain at Stafford, a bumper crop of almost 100 modified machines had signed into the pits including 21 Winston Racing and track champions from 7 different states.

The April 25 running of the Sizzler at Stafford will complete the Connecticut track's $50,000 modified weekend which saw Maynard Troyer snare the Saturday small block event. Troyer's win puts him one leg up in the attempt to score back to back wins in the double header. Winning the Sizzler could be worth as much as $4,500 with contingencies and lap money with the winner guaranteed at least $3,000.

Joining Troyer in the Sizzler chase are the top names in modified competition including Charlie Jarzombek, Billy Osmun, Gary Winters, Geoff Bodine, Jerry Cook, Satch Worley, Fred Harbach, Billy Greco, Johnny Bryant, and Merv Triechler.

The three former winners of the Spring Sizzler are also netered in the 80 lap chase. Each will be looking to become the first to score repeat wins in the NASCAR Invitational event. Fred DeSarro ('72), Ed Flemke ('73), Bugs Stevens ('74), and defending Sizzler Champ, Richie Evans have already signed in for the April 25 Sizzler.

Enfield pharmacist Richard Houghton, left, accepts plaque from James O'Neill of Vernon, a representative of the Burroughs Wellcome Pharmacy Education Program. Houghton was among 104 winners of scholarships worth $500; he gave the money to help establish a revolving loan fund at The Massachusetts College of Pharmacy. Houghton is a pharmacist at Nowaks Pharmacy on Church St.

Artist's Exhibit At Central

An art collection by Sue Betko of Enfield is on display during the month of April at the Enfield Central Library's main reading room. In addition to framed recipes, the display also includes a pen and ink sketch of the Old Town Hall of Enfield 1775; copies may be obtained by leaving your name and telephone number at the front desk for Ms. Betko to contact you.

Mrs. Betko attended the University of Hartford's Art School and has been working at her art both formally and informally all her life. Recently she participated in the Bicentennial Art Show at the Enfield Square and has an active interest in creating "illustrations made to order" for the public's enjoyment. This exhibit may be viewed during library hours Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"Sharing"

To Commemorate Bicentennial

The Enfield Home Show commemorated the Bicentennial with a spectacular towering cake made by Enfield's "Cake Lady", Arlene Smith, noted throughout the area for her hand-decorated cakes for all occasions. This cake, which took over 100 hours to make, featured over two hundred red roses, 200 hundred candles, 50 stars, and if that were not enough, the Seal of the President, the Declaration of Independence and the Bible. To give a feeling of the immense size of the cake, Gene Smith, Mrs. Smith's son, stands beside the many layered tower.

EFHS Sports Action

Wethersfield defeated Fermi's Falcons on the baseball diamond 6-5 despite a late rally by Fermi which ended one hit too soon. Dick Madsen had two hits in four trips to the plate, had one R.B.I. and scored twice. Joe Spence had two triples in three times up and knocked in two runs. Jim Chevalier also garnered two hits in four trips, had one R.B.I. and scored once. Mayo and Patenaude each had a hit with Patenaude collecting the other run-batted-in.

John Palazzo was the hitting star for Wethersfield with four hits in as many times at bat, three R.B.I. and a run scored. Mike O'Keefe collected three hits in five trips and knocked in a run.

Ann Whalen led the Falconettes softball team to a 7-6 win over East Hartford with three hits in four times at bat. Debbie Teske recorded four strikeouts as she pitched for the win. Debbie Nelson, Naomi Whynot and Janice Davis each had two hits for Fermi.

The Fermi tennis team was outgunned by South Windsor 5-2. Frank Gawle won his match against Steve Eisenberg 7-6 and 6-4. John Larocque and George Lombardo defeated Andy Schubert and Greg Jankowski 6-0 and 6-4 in their doubles match.

Jim Chevalier pitched his way to a three hitter over East Hartford as he struck out 18 batters. The Fermi baseballers won the game 11-1 with East Hartford getting one unearned run in the ninth inning. Chavalier also had three hits in five at bats, knocked in two runs and scored twice himself. John Mayo had two hits in four at bats, garnered three R.B.I. and scored a run. Also getting hits for Fermi were Sibley, Madsen, Patenaude, Giguere, Burgin and Mason. Riccio, Richards and Walz were the only East Hartford players to get hits off Chavalier.

Fermi's track and Field team split a tri-meet by defeating E.O. Smith and losing to Windham. Charlie Pilkington won three events for Fermi. St. Martin won the 120 high hurdles. Pilkington, D'Aleo, Fusco and Lombardo teamed to win the 440 yard relay.

Sweetman won the long jump at 20' 2 1/2". Ledux won the high jump at 5' 10 3/4". Durfee won the pole vault at nine feet even. Breslin took the javelin throw.

The Fermettes softball team was defeated by Enfield High by the score of 21-12 at Enfield High. Fermi got off to a fast start with 6 runs off Enfield starter Sue Herter. Elaine Lavigne relieved and Fermi was pretty well handcuffed from there on out.

Killian Speaker At Banquet

James Alaimo, chairman of the 153rd Annual Banquet and Reunion of the Enfield Society for the Detection of Thieves and Robbers announced that Lt. Governor Robert K. Killian will be the main speaker on Monday, April 26. The dinner meeting will be held at the Connecticut Correctional Institution in Enfield. Members and their guests are invited.

Killian, who served as the state's Attorney General before his election as Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket headed by Connecticut's first woman Governor, Ella T. Grasso, is among the better known political personalities in the state.

He is a native of Hartford, attending the Hartford schools; is a 1942 graduate of Union College with a B.A. degree, and obtained his law degree in 1948 at University of Connecticut Law School. He was admitted to the Connecticut Bar in July of that year.

During World War II, Killian served as a first lieutenant, U.S. Army infantry, from 1942-46, in the Pacific theater of operations. He was awarded four battle stars, and received the Purple Heart for wounds received at Okinawa. He is married to the former Evelyn Farnan, and they have a son, Robert K. Killian, Jr., and a daughter, Cynthia Elaine.

Killian holds membership in numerous fraternal, social, athletic and humanitarian organizations. He received the Frog Hollow Man of the Year award in 1970; and in 1971 was the recipient of the Hartford Gaelic Football Club's Irishman-of-the-Year award, and also the Knights of Pythias Humanitarian award. He has served as chairman, Gasoline Anti-trust Investigative Subcommittee of the National Association of Attorneys General; as a trustee of the National Jewish Hospital and Research Center of Denver, Colo., which presented him with an honor award in 1973; as a trustee of the Connecticut Cancer Society; and was proclaimed Father of the Year, Prince Hall Acres, Inc., Order of Eastern Star three years ago. He also has been honorary chairman of the multiple sclerosis and the cerebral palsy fund campaigns.

Do What's Right

To The Editor:

This is a notice to the person or persons who removed a tapestry bag from a black car parked on the corner of Church St. and College Sts. on the afternoon of Easter Monday.

If there is anything in the bag (or even the bag itself) that they can make use of, they are welcome to keep it, but as for the items they can't use — particularly the Baptismal certificate on which someone's First Communion depends, and the set of keys which are useless except to the owner maybe they could leave them in the doorway of the As-Is tag sale shop on Church St.

There were also several books: a Latin textbook, a New Testament, and the Imitation of Christ, in case anyone happens to find these around. I'm not interested in knowing who took the things, I just pray they'll do what's right.

IF YOU WANT TO PUMP GAS, WASH DISHES OR BAG GROCERIES, DON'T READ THIS!

A lot of young people who have had some sort of a job for the past year or so have come to realize that it's really a "dead-end" job. Because pumping gas, washing dishes or waiting on tables aren't anything you can build a future on.

Today's Army is looking for smart, motivated young men and women who want to make something of themselves in life.

We're looking for high school graduates who want to learn an interesting trade, who want to travel, who want personal challenge and adventure, who expect decent starting pay and a chance for advancement, who would like to have some fun (how about 30 days paid vacation?), and who might even like to take college courses for credit along the way, with the Army picking up most of the cost.

If you're getting tired of wasting your time in a dead-end job, or no job at all, isn't it time you at least looked into what we've got to offer?

See if you qualify. The testing and counseling are free. There's absolutely no obligation. So you owe it to yourself to find out what it's all about. Why not call or come in today.

ARMY SGTS. SUE BLAIR and STEVE NOLAN

Fermi Band Parents Planning Activities

A wide variety of spring band activities was outlined at the April meeting of the Fermi High Band Parents' Association. John Mariano, band director, described various fund-raising activities to be held in the next few weeks to raise money to support the band's Bicentennial trip to Williamsburg, Va. May 9 through 12. Four thousand dollars will be needed for the trip. He indicated that band members have recently held a successful car wash, canvass, spaghetti dinner-dance, concert, and are currently selling candy to raise the needed money.

The band will also sponsor the movie "Abbott and Costello Meet the Mummy" April 28 at 7 p.m. in the Fermi auditorium. A second canvass by band members is scheduled for April 25 in the areas of town not previously covered.

Donald Whiteway, president, said that proceeds from the association's recent dinner-dance will be used to help defray expenses for the Williamsburg trip.

Also at the meeting, parents voted to pay for bus transportation for the Jazz Ensemble's upcoming competition at the Berklee School of Music in Boston on May 1.

Anyone interested in helping the band meet expenses for the Williamsburg trip is asked to send contributions to John Mariano.
