> The din and shout, are past. No war's wild notes, nor glory's peal, Shall thrill with fierce delight Those breasts that never more may feel The rapture of the fight.

Like the fierce Northern hurricane That sweeps his great plateau, Flushed with the triumph yet to gain, Come down the serried foe. Who heard the thunder of the fray Break o'er the field beneath, Knew well the watchword of that day Was "victory or death.

Full many a norther's breath has swept O'er Angostura's plain. And long the pitying sky has wept Above its molder'd slain. The raven's scream, or eagle's flight, Or shepherd's pensive lay, Alone now wake each solemn hight That frowned o'er that dread fray.

Sons of the Dark and Bloody Ground, Ye must not slymber there, Where stranger steps and tongues pe Along the heedless air. Your own proud land's heroic soil Shall be your fitter grave; She claims from war its richest spoil— The ashes of her brave.

Thus 'neath their parent surf they rest, Far from the gory field, Borne to a Spartan mother's breast On many a bloody shield. The sunshine of their native sky Smiles sadly on them here, And kindred eyes and hearts watch by The hero's sepulchre.

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead! Dear is the blood you gave;
No impious footsteps here shall tread
The herbage of your grave; Nor shall her glory be forgot

You marble minstrel's voiceless stone In deathless song shall tell, When many a vanished year hath flown,
The story how you fell.
Nor week, nor change, nor winter's blight Nor Time's remorseless doom, Can dim one ray of holy light That gilds your glorious tomb.
