Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT JAMES G. BLAINE, of Maine. FOR VICE-PRESIDENT JOHN A. LOGAN, of Illinois.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The republican electors of the several towns of this state are hereby notified to assemble at the annual meeting of the republican state convention to be held in the Grand Opera House in New Haven, on Wednesday, August 20th, 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state officers and presidential electors, and appointing a state central committee.

1. All caucuses in the several towns for the appointment of delegates to the state convention shall be held at least five days before the meeting of the state convention. The chairman of each town committee shall send a copy of the credentials of the delegates from his town to the chairman of the state committee at least four days before the convention.

2. A caucus of the delegates to the state convention will be held in Loomis Hall, New Haven, on Tuesday, August 19th, 1884, at 8 o'clock.

Each town is entitled to two delegates for each representative in the general assembly. By order of the Republican Caucus.

The Republicans of Norwalk are requested to meet at the Republican Club Room, on Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of appointing Delegates to the Republican State Convention, to be held at New Haven, Aug. 20th, also to elect Town Committee for year ensuing.

J. B. Ellis, Chairman Town Com. Norwalk, July 29th, 1884.

The Private Character of Public Men.

The Congressionalist, the leading paper of its denomination in New England, in an editorial column of its issue July 31st, under the above caption, has been questioning it proposes in favor of forest investigation.

The Rev. H. M. Dexter, D. D., the editor of the Congressionalist is an Independent, and was opposed to the nomination of Mr. Blaine.

The material part of the article is as follows:

It seems to be true that when the recent Democratic National Convention at Chicago nominated Governor Cleveland of New York for the presidency, most of its members believed him to be a man of private purity as well as official integrity. Cleveland has been made the Evening Telegraph, a paper published in Buffalo, Governor Cleveland's home, against his moral character. He is accused of drunkenness and licentiousness, not only in past years but up to the present time. These charges are made in temperate language, and with evident reluctance, and it is claimed that every one can be substantiated by sufficient sworn testimony, if necessary. We may add that the same statements, and others to the same general effect, have been made to us by gentlemen who claim to have investigated the matter personally and thoroughly, and are entitled to our confidence.

We shall rejoice most heartily to see these charges triumphantly disproved, if possible. But, if they are true, the nation ought to know it. Painful as it is to allude to such things, it would be cowardly and wicked not to insist that the truth be made known at all hazards.

Common decency, the morals of the young, regard for the sacredness of home life, and the very maintenance of our national existence require that the President of these United States—our foremost representative official before the world—should be a man of private morals as well as of public integrity. If these charges are true, it ought to be so. If they are not true, they are definite and personally indorsed. If they are not disproved, then the indignant public sentiment of the nation should be given voice, and the party which nominated Governor Cleveland should demand that he withdraw from the ticket which his name leads.

The present campaign to the two great parties differ in respect to principles much less than formerly. More than that, therefore, the issue is to be determined by the characters of the candidates—not their political characters merely, as we are told by some, but also their private characters, as is just and right.

Common decency, the morals of the young, regard for the sacredness of home life, and the very maintenance of our national existence require that the President of these United States—our foremost representative official before the world—should be a man of private morals as well as of public integrity.

FOR GOVERNOR—C. LOUNSBURY.

The Tribune of yesterday in the course of a column article relative to Connecticut politics says: "There has been much talk about candidates for governor, and it is already apparent where the chief center of the convention will be. Not since 1837 has Fairfield county, in the southwestern part of the state, had a candidate for governor. Two years ago she served on the party that she would bring one forward in 1884. And she will. He is Phineas C. Lounsbury of Ridgefield, of whom the NORWALK GAZETTE speaks in terms of hearty commendation. He is a man of hearty character, an active Methodist, a liberal giver by his ample means, and was on the Garfield electoral ticket. He appears to be backed by nearly the whole of the western end of the county. The locality argument will be strongly urged by his friends; and in case the rivalry between the other two leading candidates runs high, there may be a disposition on one side or the other to go over in a body to Lounsbury."

The Seventeenth Session.

Extensive preparations are being made by the citizens of Ridgefield for the re-union of the Seventeenth Regiment, C. I., which will be held at that place on Thursday, 28th inst. The veterans will be met at the railway station by members of Post 64, G. A. R., of that place, who will act as an escort. The meeting for regimental business will be held in Ridgefield Hall; also the address of the day will be delivered in the same place. The col- lateral will be served in the beautiful grove on the grounds of Hon. P. C. Lounsbury.

A meeting of the citizens of Ridgefield will be held on Saturday evening to perfect plans to insure a hearty co-operation in this grand work of recalling the acts of those who risked their lives in perpetuating this glorious union and brotherhood of states.—Yan.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

From and after today changes in advertisements now running in the GAZETTE must be handed in at the office by Saturday morning of each week. Unless this is done advertisements cannot be changed till the following week. New advertisements will be received up to 11 a. m., on Tuesday of each week.

Political Pickings.

A dispatch from Dakota to the Chicago Tribune says that State Treasurer Maxwell of New York is visiting that country and is stating that all the presidents of national banks in New York city will vote for Cleveland and contribute money to secure his election. He also reports that reports of workmen refusing to support Cleveland amount to nothing, as most of the laboring men can be bought for $2.50.

The New York Sun justly remarks that "if Mr. Hendricks led the democratic ticket, instead of figuring in the second place, there would be glory in the campaign." Which apparently means that under the present conditions there is no glory in it.—Concord.

General Rosecrans, excellent democratic authority, finds that the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks has "chilled two classes of workers, the industrial classes and the soldiers." Taking these two classes away the democratic party will have to rely entirely upon the solid south and the independent party.

Notes from the South.

East of the Rocky Mountains there are probably no falls—always excepting Niagara—equal in beauty to the Falls of Tallulah, Georgia, and yet Niagara may be surpassed by grandeur, even Niagara may not be an exception. The falls are five in number, varying in height from twenty to eighty-seven feet, and are preceded and followed by wild and charming rapids. It was nearly four years since I had visited them. It was then the spring of the year and the water was in full flood, and the rapids, rhododendrons, etc., were simply wonderful to a northern eye. At that time the only way of access to the falls was to go on foot or by private conveyance. Now a railroad runs to the falls from Baytown Junction on the Air Line between Charlotte and Atlanta. This route connects with Athens, Ga., and can thus be reached also by the way of Augusta. The falls, therefore, are accessible to tourists and from Florida, and will be found a desirable resort to those wishing to escape the early heat of Florida, while the weather is still too cold at the north. Good hotel accommodations can be found at a dollar and a half a day. The falls are not so much impaired by the beauty of the scenery. The rapids and falls plunge their way through their solid rocky walls from 150 to 900 feet in their height as of old. An almost unbroken country stretches around from which the game has not yet disappeared. Within a mile of our hotel our host, Mr. Johnson, has recently shot seven deer. John has been hunting without leaving his tracks. The Adirondacks can hardly do better than that. Fish, too, are caught at the foot of the falls.

Not far from here, in the Nacoochee Valley, gold mines are opening which promise to be of great value. They are worked at some depth in machine-worked shafts of labor. English capitalists are turning their attention to this region. This suggests a word as to the LABOR QUESTION.

It was a surprise and gratification to see how far this settled itself. For some time after the war it was a very serious problem, both to the old and new South. But the problem seems substantially solved. The freedmen have settled down to work either on lands or on their own, and with results more favorable far than was feared. There is more satisfaction on both sides than between labor and capital at the North. Of course there is much yet to be done. But with the immense resources of the South, the development of which has hardly begun; with the ease of living for the laborer; with any kind of fair dealing on the part of the employer, it will be long before the South can be exposed to one of the gravest perils of the North. Even unemployment labor is less dangerous here, because it is less. It is more generally reached to. I think by moral and religious influences of some kind.

It is probably a general impression that temperance prevails more at the South than at the North. This may have been so before the war, but it is certainly not so now as it appears to be. With some of the two or three blacks, who have overdone their Christmas enjoyments, I have not seen, as far as I remember, a single person intoxicated in the country or in the cities as Charlotte, Athens, Augusta, Savannah, Charleston and Richmond. In more than half the States of Georgia the sale of intoxicating liquors is forbidden by law. In the great moral questions of the future, for it is sure to come, it may be hoped that the best elements of the North and South will stand together.

The great work politically and morally immediately before the South is the education of the freedmen. With their arms and their ballots they cannot safely be left in stolid ignorance the tools of men without principle, political or moral. This is to some extent understood. Most of the states have taken up the matter in some way. Georgia gives as much to the support of the colored institution as do the northern teachers, as the Atlanta under northern State University at Athens—$8,000 a year. But the work is beyond all present agencies. If the plan that will be used in congress of granting money to the states for education according to literacy shall be carried out free from partisan management and political place-seeking, something may come of it. But the scheme will need very careful guarding.

Change of Step.

Changes in the tactics of the United States army, which will be adopted by the Connecticut National Guards, provide for greater rapidity in marching and change in the movements for loading. The changes in loading movements result from the addition of the safety net to the locks of the Springfield gun. Marching has been heretofore twenty-eight inches to the step and 110 steps to the minute without swinging of arms. The change calls for a step of thirty inches and 130 steps to the minute.

It is of the opinion that the new step will be awkward at first for those who have become accustomed to the twenty-eight inch step, although the arm swinging will somewhat relieve the extra effort. The length of the short step and back step is common and quick time will be found in the length of the double step will be thirty-five inches and the cadence will be at the rate of 180 steps per minute. When the manual of arms is executed while marching, each motion of the manual will correspond with the cadence of the step.

A Good Test.

The recent electrical appliances placed upon the drawbridge at Cos Cob received a good test on Friday evening, and proved their efficiency. The drawbridge had just been opened to allow a boat to pass through and before it could be thoroughly closed the South Norwalk special, due here at 8:30 p. m., dashed up. The track on the bridge had not quite joined the main track, where the train appeared in sight, and a net return after paying expense of cultivation and picking of $436, or a net profit of $300 per acre.

The Neptune.

A large number of the friends and relatives of the members of the departing club gathered at the propeller dock on Wednesday afternoon to witness the departure and bid a final adieu to this popular organization. Early in the day the bustle of preparation was commenced on the vessel which was in comparative order. The vessel had received a new coat of paint and with flag bedecked rigging was ready for her gallant crew. A new "Duchess" range had been placed in the galley by Jaqui to aid the ship's stove in providing food for the hungry hordes. At three minutes past three the Neptune left the propeller dock. The Neptune was given a rousing cheer by those who were in favor of Burr Smith for courtesies extended and left behind the voyage was commenced. The sail down the harbor was a repetition of past years, the salutes from shore and boat being frequent. At Dorlon's Boarding Bally of St. Louis, came aboard the Neptune set sail and the tug coming alongside took one load of friends who had accompanied the club down the harbor, to Wilson's. The Neptune then beat out the western passage. Just before Tavern Island the Neptune again alongside and took off the balance of the guests. Then with a hearty three times three the Neptune was on its way. The trip was a glorious one as a telegram received from Secretary Olmstead at Cottage City states the run was made in 104 hours. This, we believe, quicker than any previous trip ever made.
