Kitty might have mentioned she was go-Mr. Porter, a little crossly-"I suppose Kitty thought me too old to go." "Oh, dear, no, Mr. Porter!" cried Mrs.

Grondy, who was herself very many years the junior of her prospective son-in-law. "Surely not. But it was very sudden. Her cousin, Mrs. Rush, stopped here with Mr. Rush, of course, and she just put on a lace domino and went. Why don't you go, too? She'd be so charmed. She'll be so lonely with only married said Mrs. Grondy, as she smiled him out of the door. "If he finds Kitty, he'll stop that flirtation between her and young Winkle, and it's high time. Dear me, what trials mothers do have to bear, to be sure! What a match Mr. Porter is! Three streets of houses, a country seat, and a mint of money! I'm sure I would have tried for him myself if I hadn't known that a man of sixty-five looks at anybody past eighteen. Now, young Winkle really quite admires me, and he's only one-and-twenty, but the older they are the younger they want. I couldn't Myriads of beautiful creatures flitted past him. He strained his eyes to see his beloved one, who at that moment was seated in a bower of artificial roses tete a tete with a charming young Andalusian who, however, spoke no Spanish. Gip

"His gold has won your heart," continued the Andalusian. "No, I hate him!" said Kitty. "How can I help it, he's so old and ugly ?" "Confound it, this is pretty!" said the cavalier, grinning with rage under his "It's only because I must that I marry him," proceeded Kitty. "And, Richard, ma says that as I am eighteen and he nearly seventy, I am sure to be a young is the matter with that funny-looking cavalier in the crimson velvet cloak and white hat?" "Too much champagne, I guess," said Mr. Winkle.

It was very late. Mrs. Grondy sat enoving her magazine, when the door-bell The servants were gone to bed. She opened it herself, expecting to see Kitty.

Instead, a small cavalier, in a white hat

"Why, it's dear Mr. Porter!" cried Mrs. Grondy. "Didn't you find Kitty?" "I found your daughter," said the old entleman, "and if you'll tell her that the cavalier in white and scarlet who leaned against the column while she talked to that confounded Spaniard was me-me. ma'am-she'll tell you why I desire never to see her again. THE CONGER EEL.

This fish has of late attracted a good deal of attention, from its having been asserted that it was frequently made into turtle soup. Whether that be so or not, the conger eel is in reality one of our most valuable food-fishes. There is, unfortunately, a prejudice in the public mind against it. In all continental fishmarkets-at least in those situated on seas which contain the fish-a plentiful supply of congers may always be had. The writer has seen hundreds of them in the markets at Dieppe, Boulogne, and Paris, and in the cuisine of France the conger occupies a prominent place. It can be converted into excellent soup, and may be cooked in various other palatable ways; it may be roasted, stewed, or broiled, or made into a succulent pie. In Guernsey and Jersey its flesh is bighly esteemed, as being adaptable to the culinary art in an eminent degree. This fish ought to be much more plentifully exposed for sale than it is; and if our fishermen found a market for it, it would no doubt be so. It is a most prolific animal, yielding its eggs in literal millions. A specimen which weighed twenty-eight pounds possessed a roe of the weight of twenty-three ounces, which was computed to contain the almost incredible number of fifteen millions of eggs. Mr. Buckland, in one of his fishery reports, says "What becomes of this enormous number of eggs is unknown to man; they probably form the food of many small sea-creatures, especially crabs. They are exceedingly minute." How curious it seems that the common herring, which yields on an average about thirty thousand ova, should be so plentiful, and the conger, which contains many millions of eggs, should be comparatively so scarce.

THE BANANA. The banana is an annual, the fruit com ing to maturity about a year after the shoot is planted, the trunk of the tree subsequently attaining a height of from eight to ten feet, and a girth of thirty-six inches. From this trunk, which is of a fibrous nature, are thrown out long palmlike branches, at the junction of which appears the fruit, each group of bunches numbering from four to twelve, being called a "hand," and each hand having eight or ten bananas upon it. A bunch of eight hands is the ordinary size of shipping fruit. From the root of the tree several shoots or suckers sprout, each of which, in turn, becomes a fresh tree. The life of the banana tree, however, is not usually long, for is is felled after the fruit is gathered, and sometimes indeed during the operation. Jamaica contains a good many banana plantations, varying in size from twenty-five thousand to two hundred thousand trees, for the most part cultivated by the small and provided for by those who control settlers in the different parishes. These the loading. The doctor went, was greatly received by the Duchess, and happened to be just in time to stop a mistake in treatment of the patient, which might have proved fatal if continued for a few hours longer. The Duke was suffering from typhoid fever; and when the eminent physician arrived from town he declared that the young doctor's management of the case had been perfect. The result of this was that the latter was requested to remain at the hall to take charge of the patient, and his name figured on the bulletins which were issued during the next fortnight, and were printed in all the daily newspapers of the white one. When a ship is built for a particular

"Light, Late Heavy Weight," writes the London Standard: After attempttems, Banting, Harvey, &c., I found that the great secret of keeping away fat was to limit the quantity of liquid consumed, and not the quality. To a man of moderate appetite the amount of solid food is of no importance; it is the management of liquids that makes the difference in the amount of weight put on. The following rules, faithfully carried out, will in a month take off a stone weight of fat from anyone who carries it in excess of what is necessary for his system: 1st. Three meals a day only. 2d. No intermediate nips or smacks. 3d. At each meal any reasonable amount of any solid food, and one half pint of any liquid. This regime leaves you healthy and vigorous, and one week is quite enough to make one reconciled to an apparently (not really) limited amount of liquid. On it I have hunted, shot, played racquets, cricket and tennis, and for years have peen as sound as a bell. The rate at which weight is lost is surprising at first. two stone of useless fat, will part with it at the rate of one pound a day, but suffers no inconvenience beyond the looseness of his garments. An occasional unbending of the bow, in the shape of a relaxation of the quantity rule, will very soon work itself off, but those unbend ings must not come oftener than once in five or six weeks. For the corpulent this is a certain cure, but if very large feeders are anxious to try it, it is necessary to lighter for it, if they carry unnecessary fat, almost before they are aware of it, as they will waste so quickly from the exer-

Inquiry showed that he had become a confirmed smoker of cigarettes. When asked why he did not give it up, he shed tears, and said that he had often tried, but could not. The growth of this habit is insidious and its effect ruinous. The eyes, the brain, the nervous system, the memory, the power of application, are all impaired by it. "It's nothing but a cigarette," is really "It's nothing but poison." German and French physicians have recently protested against it; and a convention of Sunday and secular teachers was recently held in England to check it. It was presided over by an eminent surgeon of a Royal eye Infirmary, who stated that many diseases of the eye were directly caused by it. Parents, save your children from this vice if possible. It is now known that old castaway cigar stumps are used in the manufacture of cigarettes. Boys are employed to gather them from hotels, bar-rooms, sidewalks--from whereever they are thrown. Collectors buy them of the boys and send them to the manufactories by the barrel. No matter how disgusting the spot whence they are picked-whether from the spittoon with its dangerous saliva, or the gutter with its filth—the foul refuse finds its way into he mouth and nostrils of the cigarette smoker. Many a smoker throws away the stump of his cigar because he does not like the flavor of it. He does not know why the flavor is unpleasant to him. but it is caused by nicotine-the active principal of tobacco and a violent poison. This accumulates in the base of the cigar

There is no real difference between any one of those pathways and an may be worn a little deeper; yet no one can enter upon them for the first time without being in some measure startled, and conscious that this is a roadway distinct from any he has ever seen before. They cannot have been made by cattle. Cattle paths are generally single, or if more than one, they run independent of each other. These are exactly parallel, and there are perhaps half a dozen of them. They do not look as if they had been made by settlers. A white man's road would have followed a straighter line. These are full of curves, and bend from one side to the other, turning with every minor undulation of the ground, as though when they were laid out the distance travelled was of no importance compared with the regularity of the grade. Their curves are always concentric. They all turn as if by one impulse, and they dip down into a valley together, or disappear behind a hill at the same time, constantly maintaining the same distance from each other. This is the first sight of an Indian trail. But at its sudden revelation one seems to have come into a strange world. It may still be the same valley, but with the obliteration of other signs of civilization, the way has taken on an entirely different character. and noisy struggle, everything seems to grow quiet. All disposition to break the stillness has gone. There is no living thing in sight, but instinctively one heaitates, whether a hunter or not, to raise his voice lest he should frighten the game, of which the woods have now become the home. Silence is the natural condition of existence. A shout would be a sacrilege. The land seems given back to belong to its first inhabitants, who have been content to let it rest in a state of nature. The only marks of men are these pathways, but their easy and unresisting curves are filled with nature's spirits, and they nowhere interrupt her repose. These

Years will often elapse before a doctor gets any return for the money which his riends invested in obtaining his diploma. On the other hand, a single fortunate case may bring patients by the score. About twenty years ago, a young doctor who Kad been established three years in London without making an income, lost heart, and determined to emigrate to Australia. He sold his small house and furniture, paid his passage money, and a week before his ship was to sail, went into the country to say good-bye to his parents. Having to change trains at a junction, he was waiting on the platform, when a groom in a smart livery galloped up to the station, and, calling excitedly to a porter, handed him a telegraphic nessage for transmission. From some emarks exchanged between the two men, the young doctor understood that the Duke of ____, a member of the Cabinet, had fallen dangerously, ill, and that an eminent physician in London was being telegraphed for. The groom added that he had ridden to the houses of three local loctors, who had all been absent, and hat "her Grace was in a terrible way." The young doctor saw his opportunity, and at once seized it. "I am a medical man," he said to the groom, "and I will go to the hall to offer my assistance till mother doctor arrives." The groom was vidently attached to his master, for he aid: "Jump on my horse, sir, and ride straight down the road for about four

DECORATION DAY. The Republican National Convention met at Chicago this morning to nominate a republican candidate for the presidential chair, and next week the GAZETTE will have the pleasure of announcing to its patrons the name of the next president of the United States. But just at present the important question is "Which shall it be?" While Hawley, Lincoln, Edmunds, and the two Shermans, can by no means be considered out of the race, yet the latest advices seem to narrow the contest down to the two foremost leaders, Blaine and Arthur. The idea of a dark horse seems to be momentarily growing into disfavor and every energy is exerted towards the nomination of one of these two political giants. Of Mr. Blaine's canvass it may be said that he has made decided gains since the assembling of the delegates. The managers of the canvass of the plumed knight now figure his vote in the first ballot as follows: Maine 12, New York 30, Pennsylvania 46, Massachusetts 6, Rhode Island 2, Connecticut 4, Iowa 26, Illinois 2, Indiana 10, Michigan 18, Ohio 30, New Jersey 10, Maryland 14, West Virginia 12, Delaware, 6, Nevada 6, Oregon 6, California 16, Wisconsin 10 men who died for duty. Minnesota 12, Nebraska 12, Kansas 14, MORE PANIC. Missouri 10. Colorado 6-total northern states 320: South Carolina 4, Florida 1, oil broker, noticed in our last, has precipi Texas 23, Georgia 15, Kentucky 6, North tated the disclosure of a most dishearten Carolina 4, Louisiana 14, Tennessee 4,ing defalcation on the part of Colonel total southern states 71; grand total 391. This is probably an over estimate, particularly as regards the Connecticut dele-

ever, that Blaine will largely lead, notwithstanding the fact that an opposition combination may be formed of sufficient strength to ultimately defeat his nomination. If nominated, however, it is certain that the canvass would be more enthusiastic and vigorous than any campaign since war days. Of Mr. Arthur it may be said that he has the universal confidence of the business men of the country. Coming into the presidency at a time when rage and passion was predominant he has guided the old ship of state with a firm and masterly hand. Contrary to the general expectation no startling change has marked his administration and, plunged at a moment into the shipwreek laden sea of the Chief Executiveship, his cool head and dauntless courage have proved his fitness to assume any responsibility in the gift of the people. It is this that has earned him the support of the his books, or attempting to disarm susbusiness men and it is to this he will owe picion by mythical items or persons after grasping the coveted prize. Mr. Arthur's canvass would not partake of that electricity and enthusiasm which would characterize the canvass in behalf of Mr. Blaine, but it would be a business man's canvass and would lead quietly and surely to a substantial victory.

Of Mr. Hawley, little need be said. He is too well known here to be affected by praise of ours. While his has been a pure and manly political life and while, if nominated, he would make an unusually strong run, the general sentiment of the country is that the presidential timber must come from some more potent and important state than Connecticut. Mr. Hawley will undoubtedly receive the complimentary vote of the Connecticut delegation on the first ballot, but for any decided or decisive support he cannot hope save in event of a dead lock and a consequent compromise.

Mr. Edmunds would make an exceptionally wise and sagacious president but as one delegate expressed it, "his convass would be so cold as to freeze all the young and tender vines just rearing their heads in the West and South." The other candidates may be bunched and characterized as "the field" with odds strong against them. In fact, unless through some unexpected accident befalling the leaders, they have no chance in the

But however opinion may be divided as to the desirability of any special candidate the nominee of the convention, whoever he may be, will receive the hearty and unqualified support of all factions. For this feeling our party may well congratulate itself and look forward with confident hope to the Ides of November. Time Table Changes.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, June 2d, 1884. DEAR GAZETEE: -The past week's public nterest has been primarily absorbed in prognosticating the outcome of the Chicago convention, which convenes to-morrow. Fully one-third of the republican senators and probably at least a quarter of the republican members of the House are there. Senator Platt is Connecticut's only congressional representative in attendance upon the convention. He being a member of the national committee was in duty bound to attend and left here Friday General Stewart L. Woodford delivered patriotic and eloquent address, and Will Carlton read an original poem prepared for the occasion, at Arlington, where sleep over twenty thousand Union dead. The day was perfect, but not more so than the decorative services under the charge of the Grand Army boys. At the Soldiers' Home and other soldier sepulchres all the graves were decorated with flags and strewn with flowers. One Post of the Grand Army made an excursion to Fredricksburg in acceptance of an invitation from R. E. Lee Post there, and joined the confederates in thus honoring the graves of the blue and the grey who fell in that most sanguinary and inexcusable battle and slaughter of the fratricidal war. The growing fraternity of feeling between the soldiers of the north and the south is a most gratifying augury of a deeper, grander and more glorious and patriotic love for the Union and the old flag than has ever before been seen or felt throughout the south. With a love of country embracing every section, and with bitterness to none, the day was made more than ever memorable to the self sacrifice of the The failure and absconding of Levis, the

Burnside, the widely popular disbursing officer of the P. O. department. Colonel Burnside was a nephew of the late General and Senator Burnside, of Rhode Island. He was a man everywhere trusted, honored and esteemed. His faith in Levis seemed supreme, and, often investing all his own funds, in an evil hour he was tempted to put in the government's money to the extent of over $40,000, and so his conspic uous and patriotie record of the war, and the unstained record of a whole life were overwhelmed in disgrace and ruin. A pathetic touch is given his erring disaster to himself, his family and friends, in the fact that he had a lovely and accomplished daughter fashionably married only a fortnight since, and the bridal party were to have returned to his home the night he was incarcerated in jail. About a year ago the colonel had a severe "sun stroke" which affected his whole nervous system, and his more intimate friends assert that they have seen abundant cause to believe that his brain was also seriously weakened. The fact that the examining experts have found his "accounts" to be all correct to a farthing, and never any attempt made to cover up the missing money by "cooking" the Grant & Ward style of book-keeping, lends some color of probability to this exculpating view of his mental condition indulged in by his friends. But this particular species of "sunstroke" has of late become quite too general to allow it to have much weight in excusing rascalities such

The Burnside surprise had not abated when the old personal banking house of Middleton & Co. closed its doors. Consternation and distrust seemed to spread the city among those having money or securities, while those who had neither seemed to fully enjoy the sentiment of CONTESTED SEAT.

The democrats of the House having seated young Mr. English by the brute power of their majority, had no hesitation n unseating Mr. King on the same principle and seating Wallace with something less than full party majority. Those who know assert that this action makes the re-election of the two unseated republicans to the next House doubly sure, as the people of their districts, who have warmly espoused their cause, are indignant at what they deem the flagrant injustice of CONGRESS THIS WEEK. Little can be expected of Congress this week, as all interest will drift away from the nation's capital to that marvelous city beside the lake. All fair and intelligent politicians concede that the man there ominated will be the next president, and hus the week and the event must ever be memorable. Some are ardent enough to see Blaine nominated on the second or third ballot, others easily see Arthur thus selected. Wiser heads seem to look at these two leading candidates as only strong enough to destroy each other. In such an event, who the "dark horse" is to be requires only the patient watching of a few

Mrs. General Hawley is reported quite seriously, though not as yet deemed dangerously ill with quinsey sore throat. Mrs. Representative Mitchell returned from her two week's visit north to her family here Saturday evening. Rev. N. Mead, Miss L. J. Mead, Mrs. M. F. Wait, and Miss E. M. Hoyt, of Stamford; Postmaster John Tweedy, of Danbury, and Hon. Joseph Selden, of Norwich, were prominent among the many Connecticut visitors to the capital last week.

"Do you know that Mrs. Joseph R. Hawley is one of the most remarkable women of the day?" asked a friend. I said I did not know more than that American women as a rule were more remarkable than other women, whereupon he related the following :- "When Joe Hawley went to the front in the late unpleasant ness his wife went to the hospital to nurse soldiers. She come here to Washington and served as a volunteer nurse in Armory Square Hospital, of which Dr. Bliss was surgeon-in-charge. The nurses were all service at this hospital and that in hospitals controlled by Miss DR was that at Armory Square the pay of the nurses went into fund to provide special diet for patients. Members of the Fourteenth Regiment ssociation, which will unveil a monument two days later, will probably leave by the same special train. An agent of the Pennsylvania road was in New Haven Thursday making arrangements with Colonel Henry Allen for transportation. The Sevententh was a fighting regiment and, with re-enlistments, carried to the front 1,400 men. 'The memorial stone, which is of Niantic granite, is seven and a half feet high, with a base eight by five feet. A member of the committee volunteered to make up the difference-$300-and procure Quincy granite. The offer was refused, as the committee decided that the memorial should be fashioned from Connecticut stone. The exercises will open with prayer. The memorial will be presented to the association by Colonel Allen, chairman of the committee. General Noble of Bridgeport, who commanded the regiment, will respond. The oration will be delivered by Phineas C Lounsbury of Ridgefield, who was a private in the regiment. Music will be furnished by the Gettysburg band, the services of which have been tendered by the citizens of Gettysburg. Elias Howe of sewing machine fame served as a private in the Seventeenth. When the regiment was mustered out at Grapevine point in August, 1865, Mr. Howe received three years' pay, which he donated to the Ladies' Soldier's Aid society of Bridgeport. G. M. Bailey, of the Danbury News, and Anthony Com stock served as privates in the regiment. On the morning of August 1, 1865, 420 men, composing the remnant of the regiment, marched up Chapel street from Belle dock. The veterans partook of a collation prepared by the citizens, in the basemen of the State house. Governor Buckingham welcomed the regiment. Colonel Henry Allen was in command. The regiment lost three lieutenant-colonels. Company C had forty-three men at Gettysburg and of these, twenty-nine were killed and wounded, including the captain and three sergeants. from wounds. Names cut on the tablet Are:—

He was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel, after the battle of Chancellors ville, and fell while leading his command, July 1, 1863. His brother. Richard Fowler, who was formerly orderly sergeant of the New Haven Grays, was killed at Fredericksburg. A third brother, lieutenant-colonel of a New York regiment, was also killed in the war. Their parents are still living in Guilford. The 17th was recruited as follows: Comnanies A. and F in Norwalk : Company Stamford; Company C, Danbury; Companies D. G. and K, Bridgeport, Ridgefield, Fairfield, Weston, Redding and Newtown; Company E, Westport; Company H, New Canaan; Company I, Greenwich. John M. Krouch, secretary of the Gettysburg monument association, writes to Colonel Allen; under date of May 26, that he has purchased the plot of ground selected by the committee on their recent visit for the erection of the monument. It is in the centre of a large field, and the right of way to it has also been secured and purchased. The board of directors of the Battlefield Association and the citizens of Gettysburg generally will attend the ceremonies, July 1. The tablet has this inscription. Erected by the survivors of the

Seventeenth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, Second Brigade, First Division,
Eleventh Corps,
In memory of their comrades who fell here on the first day and on the battle field on the second and third days of July, 1863. Colonel Allen has received the following communication from a Pennsylvania regimental association :-

Colonel Henry Allen, Seventeenth Connection Volunteers, Chairman.

DEAR SIB:—I am in receipt of your kind letter of the fourteenth. Colonel Bachelder, having given me already some hints about the intention of your association, I must reply that we intended to dedicate our monument on July 2, but the idea of having it together with you on the first, has been favorably entertained by on the first, has been tavorably entertained by the comrades of our regiment, and as no stated meeting of our association will be held for three weeks, we intend to have a special meeting as soon as we shall receive any further news from you. I therefore propose to ask you a few questions: First—Will your association pass through Philadelphia June 30, and could we then start together? Second—Wouldn't it he well to energie a band of music Wouldn't it be well to engage a band of music together, and invite the G. A. R. Post of Gettysburg to assist us? We would then escort you first to your dedication, and then you would escort us. Third—Have you any other suggestions to make? Please answer as soon as convenient.

Yours truly.
FRED. BRUTINGER,
'Assistant Secretary. The Fourteenth regiment will dedicat monument on the same battle field July 3. As Company I was composed of New Haven men, interest in the forthcoming event will be increased. Company I was commanded by Captain Isaac R. Bronson who fell at Chancellorsville. Colonel Allen says the Fourteenth was the best fighting regiment which Connecticut sent out Sixty-five men died of wounds and 132 men were killed. The regiment was in Hancock's Second corps, and that general says the Fourteenth was one of the best regiments in his command. The Fourteenth was one of the regiments which received Pickett's terrible charge at

Uniformed Odd Fellows. The annual field day at Bridgeport Tuesday, of the Uniformed Odd Fellows of the state was largely attended. The visiting encampments were Capitol City No. 1 of Hartford, Captain Stephen Terry, with 12 men; Isis No. 2 of Meriden Captain Southworth, with 15 men; Ridgeley No. 3 New Haven, comprising three companies, Aurora, Sassacus and Golden Rule, under Captain C. Elzea, Hodshon, McGonegal, Partrick and Ambler.

After the services at the Opera House the Post attended by the drum corps and accompanied by a wagon well laden with flowers visited St. Paul's and Union cemeteries, and decorated the soldiers' graves which were designated by a flag. A wreath to which was attached a card marked "To our unknown dead" was also deposited. The Grand Army Memorial Day service was impressively read at Union cemetery by Officer of the Day Perry and Chaplain Partrick. We earnestly hope that the beginning thus made looking towards a soldiers' monument and memorial hall for our town will result in something that shall be to all generations a reminder of the bravery shown, and sacrifices made by those who went out from our midst to assist in quelling rebellion and saving our nation.

EDITOR GAZETTE .- I wish to set a little natter right, if possible, and take this method through your widely circulated paper. I consider it a matter that interests the citizens of Norwalk.

A few days ago, a gentleman in one of our leading stores, said in the presence of everal other gentlemen. "All the help of Fancher, Ruscoe & Co., get drunk, and I think it more of a disgrace than a benefit their moving to Norwalk." Now, what are the facts. Only four or five of the help ever touch liquor of any kind. Most of these are first-class workman, and because they were, the firm had porne with them, but told them they must do differently, or loose their places. One with whom I talked plainly, said with tears, "Mr. Ruscoe, I know I ought to do better. I have tried. I will try again. My family needs my help, I can't be discharged. I once belonged to the Good Templars, I will join them again. Won't you help me? It is so hard for me to psas these places, and when I get a taste I must have more." The poor fellow was in earnest, and he intended to do better. I said, "I will do any thing in my power to help you," but in less than a week, drunk and discharged. And now, that same gentleman who denounced drinking-men, and the firm that brought them here, voted to give men icense in Norwalk to sell this cursed stuff to these men who are trying to reform, trying to break away from old habits and old associates, but whose appetite is so strong in them that it is almost impossible to pass these places in going to and from their work without yielding to the tempta-

a disgrace to the town that it gives this icense, as it is that these men are here

The Sparring Match. About one hundred gentlemen assemled in Lockwood's Hall last evening to O'Donnell of this place, the champion light-weight of Connecticut, and James T. Gettersloh, of New Britain. The contest was for the championship of the state. About half past eight Mr. Harkheimer of New Britain, champion club swinger of the state, was introduced and gave a wonderful exhibition of club swinging which earned him much deserved applause. A three-round sparring match between Ike Williams of this place and Ned Crossley of New Jersey, followed in which the men were very evenly matched. Mr. Crossley showed the most training and experience but William's cat-like agility was too much for him and crossley received the most punishment. The event of the evening followed, being the contest between O'Donnell and Gettersloh. Mr. James Record of Bridgeport, was shosen referee. Phil Hines acted as second for O'Donnell and Mr. Harkheimer performed the same offices for Gettersloh. Time was called and the men advancing to the centre of the ring, sparring, O'Donnell forcing the fight. Gettersloh showed the better form being some twenty pounds heavier than O'Donnell and of stout and compact build. O'Donnell, however, displayed the most grace and science and proved himself nore than a match for his antagonist. In the first round O'Donnell delivered a stinging blow full on the forehead of lettersloh which, aided by an unlucky slip, brought him to the floor. The second round opened lively, O'Donnell naking a terrific hit which resounded all through the hall. Quick work then followed, till O'Donnell forced his opponent to the edge of the ring and throwing him fell heavily on him. The third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth ounds were rather tame, neither men gaining any apparent advantage. The ninth round was the flercest of the fight and the contestants went round and round the ring pummelling each other with rapid vigor. Towards the close of the ound the men clinched and O'Donnell was thrown. As he was rising and while upon one hand and one knee, Gettersloh dealt him a cowardly blow full in the face. A cry of "foul" was raised and the referee sustained it, thus giving the fight to O'Donnell, who was heartily cheered.

Gettersloh is undoubtedly the finest trained and heaviest man of the two but n a prolonged contest would hardly be a match for our Norwalk boy. O'Donnell s quick and cat-like and delivers his blows with stunning force. The latter is by far the prettiest boxer of the two and demonstrated his ability to take care of himself at all odds. During the contest he received hardly a mark while Gettersloh's head showed plainly the effects of hard and oft-repeated punishment. In all

GARDENS IN THE SEA.

PREFER IT. - Saturday's Hour.

Among the many curious analogies born of modern investigation none are more interesting than those showing striking cases of parallelism in the habits and customs of animals whose environments are totally dissimilar. The ocean bed seems peopled with forms so resembling those of land that a modification of structure to conform with their surroundings alone appear to be the point of difference. In drifting over the reefs of our southern border this resemblance between the creatures of land and sea is extremely striking. The gardens of the ower world abound in lavish growth; rees, shrubs, waving vines, are all reproduced in the wondrous form of the sea. Here a forest of coral branches (Madrepora) raise their myriads of bristling points, each flowered by a delicate polyp and presenting a rich olive-green tint in contrast to the deep blue of the channel upon whose banks they grow. tensify the beauty of the objects, even in the greater depths; gayly bedecked fishes move lazily about, rising and falling among the living branches, poising, perhaps, to pluck some morsel from a limb, in all their motions reminding us of the birds of the shore. These gorgeous parrot fishes are the sunbirds of the sea; wondrous tints-azure, golden vellow and red-mark them. Some aptints as if encased in burnished armor, while many more in modest garb, found in our colder northern waters, call to mind the robin and thrush, those welcome harbingers of spring. But it is not in their color alone that the fishes resemble the birds; it is in the home life those of the birds and equalling them in design and finish.

and love of offspring that we find a close resemblance. Many are nest-builders,

"JOHN GILPIN'S RIDE." "John Gilpin's Ride" was composed by Cowper somewhere about the year 1780 or 1782 and under the following circumstances, as he told them himself Vhile on a visit to his friend and admirer, Lady Austen, he was suffering one evening from excessive melancholy, which her ladyship thought to relieve by relating to him a funny story. It was a story she remembered from childhood and which she had often related to the little ones gathered at her house. "John Gilpin's Ride" she denominated her tale. and she went on and told it in bright, sparkling, narrative style. Its effect on the fancy of Cowper was enchanting. On the following morning he appeared all smiles, and he told Lady Austen that he had been kept awake half the night by thoughts of her story and his involuntary bursts of laughter at the comical scenes flashed back upon him. And he furthermore told her that he had resolved to put it into a ballad, the general construction of which he had already in his mind. The ballad was written and given to Lady Austen, and she insisted on giving it to the publisher of her favorite newspaper. So it found its way to the public; and afterwards Henderson, the actor, recited it in his public reading. There have been various surmises as to where Lady Austen obtained her hero. Some have thought he was a real personage and have collated proof to sustain the position, while others have believed him to have been entirely fictitious- a creature of Lady Austen's brain, or, mayhap, of the poet's own fancy.

RYE-STRAW CAR WHEELS. The paper wheel may be larger than he ordinary iron wheel or it may be the same size. Its perpendicular surface is never corrugated nor irregular like that of the iron wheel. The paper of a paper ar wheel is nothing more nor less than ordinary brown straw board. That made wholly of rye straw is preferable. The boards are cut into discs, and holes in the centre are punched large enough to fit the iron axle shoulder that constitutes the hub of the wheel. Thus shaped, the straw boards are placed one upon another with ordinary flour paste, till a pile of them about five inches in height is attained. They are then put under an hydraulic press and squeezed together as tightly as it is practicable to compress matter of the consistency of straw-board. The pressure is so great as to generate many degrees of heat in the compr board. After being thoroughly dried, likelihood another contest between the same parties will grow out of this one, and if so Norwalk will not fail to back its the heavy steel tire and shell into which it is inserted to form the core of the wheel. It is held firmly in its position by an iron plate the size of the inner surface of the wheel, and likewise by bolts. And in short, the paper of a paper car wheel is simply a core or filling in a shell of steel, the outer rim or tire that runs on the track being nearly two inches thick. The virtue of the paper consists in the fact that it gives elasticity to the wheel. The durability of the paper wheel, on account of this elasticity, is computed to be many thousands of miles greater than that of the ordinary iron wheel.

A friend of a merchant, whose son has recently returned from his studies at a New York business college, was asking the old man if the boy had improved his opportunities. "I should say that he had. Rev. Dr. Newman had just concluded a long discourse, the benediction had been pronounced and the congregation were dispersing. Said a great admirer of the preacher: "A fine sermon, and well timed, too." "Yes," replied the clergyman; "it was certainly well timed. About half the congregation had their watches out most of the time I was talking."

MANIA FOR TITLES

Whatever distinction comes from title the American of to-day eagerly craves. Rich American girls are laughed at for going to Europe and giving up home, old associations, their freedom their fortunes and themselves for the sake of marrying a title borne by some man who has absolutely nothing else to distinguish him from other uninteresting beings; but only a minority of our title: hunters are of the gentler sex. Our men, even those of them whose reputation for common sense is enviable, seem willing to lose time, money and peace of mind to any extent, if, by so doing they can be called by any civil or military title. Law yers whose practice is very remunerative, frequently become judges, at low salaries, so as to be occasionally addressed as "Your Honor." Clubs are organized, apparently that some particular man may have his name appear in print as president; and as for societies, "councils and "lodges," their names and the titles of their officers are innumerable; even the very secret and exclusive order of Free Masons number more members in the United States than in any other country, and it is impossible not to believe that many men are attached to it by the possibility of attaining official position, or, at least, of wearing the signs of their order.

REPUBLIC OF ANDORRA. The French and Spanish Governments have been engaged for some time past in a rather acrimonious dispute about the Republic of Andorra. This diminutive State, so little known to travelers, and yet so interesting from its great age as an independent Commonwealth, is situated on the southern declivity of the Pyrenees, between the Department of the Ariege in France and the District of Urgel in Catalonia. Stretching from north to south about thirty-six miles, and from east to west thirty miles, it comprises three mountain valleys and the basin formed by these valleys, which are among the wildest and most picturesque in the Pyrences. The population of Andorra has never been reckoned by an official census, but it was computed at 6,000 souls during the first quarter of this century, and is now said to exceed 14,000.

A RESTLESS CITY. The most restless of towns in the enchanting land have their hours of stillness and repose. 'The "Movimento" of Naples never ceases. The city seems not to rest either by day or by night. You are in your room, reading, very late. Your watch warns you that it is time to throw the last cigar-end behind the last flickering of flame from the crimson embers on the hearth—to close the book, turn off the lamp and go to bed. Confound it! Just beneath your window somebody is twanging a guitar and bawling a canzonetta with the usual rhyming of "cuore" and "amore." "forte" and "morte," the usual exordium about "Bella Napoli," and the usual peroration about "Santa Lucia." Does the minstrel outside think that you will open the window and fling him soldi at two in the morning? But you retire to your couch and are up again, say at seven—it is mid-winter—to see the sunrise. What is that shrill ululation floating over the Bay of Naples-a sound more discordant than melodious, but yet not altogether unpleasing? Is it the cry of a peacock? But peacocks don't fly about the Mediterranean Sea at seven A. M. It would be safer to surmise that the shrill note may be that of the fabled haleyon. However, you lend your ear more attentively to the note. Upon my word it is the squeak of Punch! Two tattered losels in red nightcaps and the usual imperfect pantaloons, have rigged up in a boat Punch's show of the most primitive kind-a bit of ragged blanketing, a stick or two and a couple of red ochre-smeared puppets—and they are rowing about the bays performing. Maybe some liberal Jack Tar from a foreign merchantman in the port will fling the floating Pulcinello a copper or two. The entertainment given by these abnormally matutinal histrionics is, I apprehend, intimately associated with the allabsorbing question of quattrini. Behind "Il Movimento" is "La Misera." Both are equally dependent and consequent on the other. Idleness, profligacy, thriftlessness and crime bring about the movement, and the end of the movement is misery.

ILLEGIBLE PRESCRIPTIONS.

According to a Philadelphia paper, a well-known pharmacist of that city, recently studied for a week a prescription that had been handed to him, and finally had to "give it up." The same paper says there are several well-known physicians in that city whose handwriting is so miserably bad that druggists hate to have their prescriptions handed over the counter, and only from experience and by careful study are the formulas of many others deciphered. So important is this matter of handwriting in prescriptions, and so numerous were the sins of this kind, that the County Medical Society was obliged to publish the following hint for the purpose of preventing the occurence of mistakes: "Physicians should write their prescriptions carefully and legibly, making use of good paper, and, whenever possible, of pen and ink. When obliged to write with a pencil, they should take the precaution to fold the prescription twice, so as to prevent its

TAPE WORM. Our readers should notice advertisement of Heywood & Co., who claim an infallible remedy for Tape Worm. 1y20 COME THOU WITH US AND WE WILL DO THEE GOOD."

Can be appropriately quoted by the manufacturers of the Wilsonia Magnetic Appliances. Thousands of men and women are to-day living that were given up by the physicians to die, but who are now able, thanks to Wilsonia, to endorse the above quotation. The potency of these appliances in grappling with and overcoming all forms of diseases, is becoming one of the best established facts of the day. In all diseases where the nervous system, the digestive organs, the liver or kidneys are concerned the effect of Wilsonia is simply marvellous. No medicine required. No shock given. The gentle action of constant, vitalizing, magnetic currents is sufficient to relieve the most obstinate cases. Pamphlet and full information given, and appliances for sale by G. B. Pratt's Astral Oil.

In a circular issued June 30th, 1882, by the New York State Board of Health, there appears the astounding statement, "It is estimated that upwards of thirty thousand lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum." The introduction, of PRATT'S ASTRAL OIL was the first practieal check given to this wholesale destruction of life.

It was the first safe and reliable illuminating oil ever made: and, although many millions of gallons have been annually sold since its introduction, no person has ever suffered by an accident from its use, nor has any Insurance Company paid a dollar for loss occasioned by it.

Why, then, should any risk be taken in the choice of a burning oil when PRATT'S ASTRAL can be obtained at the present low price?

Be sure to insist that dealers furnish you with the genuine article, as immense quantities of inferior oils are sold annually as PRATT'S ASTRAL.

An establishment in Bavaria for the nanufacture and preserving of railroad sleepers is able to turn out 500,000 sleepers a year, which is about one-tenth of the number required annually for the maintenance of the German railroads.

It has been officially ascertained by the French Government that every suggestion proposed for the cure of the vines infested by phyiloxera has proved to be abortive. A special commission to investigate the several processes has lately been established.

When the lantern of the Peterborough Cathedral, Northampton, England, was finished dangerous defects made their appearance in both transepts. These have since grown worse, and the tearing away of the transepts from the nave are clearly visible from the triforium to the base.

What effect intense cold might have upon microbes has been tried by M. M. R. Pictet and E. Yung. Many of the lower varieties of organisms withstood temperatures as low as 70° to 130° C. for several hours, while other organisms were either killed or lost their germinating There has lately been constructed by

MM. Challiot and Gratiot, of Paris, a new tool to which they have given the name of the bi-radial drilling machine. The arm is jointed or hinged in the middle so that the drill can be brought to any point on the table without shifting the latter. Bevel gear transmits the power. sist cutting by an ordinary file by the following method: When the iron is brought to a cherry-red heat, sprinkle some cyanature then little above read heat, and, ide of potassium may be used for casehardening iron also with decided effect. With an old frictional electrical machine, which was no longer able to be charged in the usual way, Dr. Azam has performed an interesting practical experiment. He applied cacao butter as grease for the amalgam, and elicited sparks from the machine which were fully four inches in length. He recommends this fat for trial, particularly when old frictional machines are to be used.

For the first time in the history of the Academy of Sciences, Paris, places have been offered by the Government to selected members to take part on a diplomatic commission. That learned body has recently received a requisition from M. Ferry to appoint three delegates to the international commission which is to meet in Washington on the first of October next to determine the choice of a first

When transplanting the strawberry, an expert forbids the removal of the runners, and recommends leaving six inches of them attached to each side of the plant. The down and buried with the roots. Plants thus treated are provided with means for drawing nourishment at once, and will thrive in adverse conditions which prove fatal to plants stripped of their runners.

In making the fluid extract and tinctares of cinchona, arnica flowers, etc., Mr. Alfred B. Taylor has found it especially serviceable to use a portion of the finished preparation from a previous operation to macerate and partially exhaust the drug before applying the new portion of the menstrum; and as there is no limit to the quantity of finished preparation that can be used when necessary, it is possible to exhaust completely the drug operated

Prof. Thomson, in a recent lecture, informed his audience that the magnetic pole is now near Boothia Felix, or more than 1,000 miles west of the geographical pole. In 1657 the magnetic pole was due north, it having been eastward before that year. Then it began to move westward until 1816, when the maximum was reached. This is now being steadily diminished, and in 1976 it will again point due north. Prof. Thomson, say that the changes which will have been observed not only in the direction, but in the strength of the earth's magnetism, will show that the same causes which originally magnetized the earth are still at

A writer in the Comptus Rendus gives the following means of separating the solar heat rays from the light and chemical rays: Fuse a drop of distilled selenium, place it upon a plate of glass, and cover it immediately with another thin plate of glass. Compress the drop by means of a small rod so that it spreads evenly into a very thin film between the two plates. This operation is performed upon a metal plate kept at a temperature of 25.5 C., and when it is finished the gifts plates are allowed to cool slowly under pressure. If the operation is succonful the chemical rays will be reflected while the visible rays will be absorbed and converted into electrical energy, the heat rays only passing through the glasses inclosing the selenium film, and undergoing thereby a peculiar refraction of which the exact nature is not yet known. CONSIDERED AS COLLATERAL.

A petition of the women of Siam has been laid at the feet of the king praying his royal serenity that he take from their husbands the right to pledge them in the payment of gambling debts. It is said that the king finds many difficulties in the way of granting this presumptuous prayer. In a country where husbands have enjoyed the privilege of utilizing their wives as collateral in financing troublesome liquidations, it is said that they are strongly prepossessed in favor of its continuance. Sometimes an embarrassed husband may place a wife in escrow, and escape incarceration. Then, again, he might deposit her as a margin on a deal in pork or wheat, thus retaining a chance in the lottery of speculation, though not possessed of a shilling in other classes of property. It is insinuated that most husbands sustain the forfeiture of their uxorial pledges or margins with greater equanimity than that of other property so employed, but by many this is denounced as a slander. On the contrary, it is reported that, through the opportunity to increase their credit and commercial resources offered by marriage, the youth of Siam usually rush into wedlock with a recklessness not known in other nations, where this custom has not All Crades. yet obtained a footing. The hesitancy of the king in acting upon the prayer of his fair petitioners doubtless proves that the opposition of his male subjects is general and profound.

COULDN'T DO IT.

In one of the traveling opera companies is a clever singer who reads his music from the page as it is photographed on the tablet of his memory. One night he was thrown entirely out by a person near the stage turning the pages of a score.

He was obliged to send out and request a discontinuance of the operation before he could proceed with his part. The fact is that he could only sing by seeing the mental image of the pages of the score from which he had learned before his eyes, and to his surprise and discomfit-ure he found that the turning of the real leaves by the auditor carried over the imaginary leaves from which he was read ing, and often in the wrong place, inas much as his score was differently printed
