This Life is What we Make It. Let's oftener talk of noble deeds, And rarer of the bad ones,

And sing about our happy days, And not about the sad oner We were not made to fret and sigh. And when grief sleeps to wake it Bright happiness is standing by— This life is what we make it.

Let's find the sunny side of men, Or be believers in it;
A light there is in every soul That takes the pains to win it. Oh! there's a slumbering good in all, And we perchance may make it; Our hands contain the magic wand;

The history of the discovery of coke and the development of the traffic has never been written. Authentic informaion of the first use of coke in this counry places it in 1817, when it was emoloyed by Col. Isaac Meason, one of the homes, for I have never left Rome, and earliest founders of Western Pennsylvania, in refining iron at the Plumsock, or Upper Middleton mill, a few miles from the Youghiogheny river. In 1818 the use of coke was attempted by blast fur-naces, but it had to be abandoned because the blast was too light, being only ive pounds to the square inch. Even then the value of coke as a furnace fuel was fully appreciated, the enjoyment of ts advantages was prevented by inabilty to increase the blast. In 1835 Wiliam Frimstone manufactured good grayforge iron at the Mary Ann furnace, Huntington county with coke produced from Broad Top coal. In the same year F. H. Oliphant, Fairchance furnace, near Uniontown, exhibited at the Franklin Institute, Philadelphia, samples of iron nade from blue lump ore smelted with coke. In 1840 the Great Western Iron Works, at Brady's Bend, built four coke furnaces. In 1841-2, coke was made on the banks of the Youghiogheny river and hipped in flat-boards to Cincinnati. A centleman who is well informed in all the details of the coke business says that Dudley, an English iron manufacturer -and the flavor-well, I am afraid the in the sixteenth century, is entitled to the discovery of coke. He used it for the same purpose to which it is applied But then I had to cook now, smelting. The manufacture of coke n Connellsville region did not rise to the dignity of a business until toward the close of the decade of 1858, when it was carried on principally at Dawson's Station, on the Youghiogheny river, six miles below Connellsville, by the Cochrans, who are still in the business, and to most of whom it has brought great

THE CORK OAK. At present we depend for cork upon the countries bordering the Mediterranean. In these countries the actual market value of cork is ten times what it was at the beginning of the century, and it is likely to go still higher. In Sardinia, Sicily and Naples, extensive cork plantations are being destroyed for the purpose of obtaining the tannin of superior qual ity yielded by the bark and carbonate of sods from the ashes of the wood. This destruction has been going on for years, while planting has not even replaced the African dependency. As long ago as 1822 the French Government appropriated forty-five hundred francs, which were to be divided among those who, planting in 1823, should possess at the expiration of ten years plantations of ten thousand vigorous saplings. In 1934 only three persons had been entitled to the reward. But France has now over five hundred thousand scres of cork plantations in Algiers, yielding a considerable ago the Spanish began to encourage the seems extraordinary that a prejudice planting of the cork oak, and the number of trees in that country has increased. This increase would have been greater but for the fact that, while in some proynces cork has become the chief source of wealth, in others, many proprietors destroyed their trees in order to clear their ground for more valuable productions. The cork oak grows to the height of about fifty feet. In Algeria and in the Spanish province of Estremadura the demeat into balls with melted tallow, and er. The tree reaches a great age. No arranged in a circle, afterward in the doubt it did, but then I didn't think three should take a hand in the business; only the husbands received the dainty epistles. But the increased facilities of the new office offer the most extended opportunities for sly work. Boxes are cheap and the latest trick now is for husbands to have their tender epistles sent to these boxes. They have the key and no one else can get into it. If the wife happens to find the key, why, she is easily satisfied by being told it belongs to a door at the store or the safe, or something of that sort. You see, only one clerk or so knows anything of your letters. No one has an idea where you live or anything else. But then, postal clerks and letter carriers becoming heavy patronizers of the boxes since they have become cheap. The excase for these gentry is that they receive etters they do not wish to be sent home.

"There is not a letter carrier in the ity but who is the custodian of the secrets of some one on his route," said a wellknown postal official recently. "What a sensation they would create if what they knew could be revealed at one time! The livorce courts would be overcrowded, and rivals for maidens' affections would be parading the streets, armed to the eeth, looking for the other fellow. But here is a barrier to these revelations. The Postal laws strictly provide that a carrier must never tell of what he sees, repeat what he hears nor make public in ny manner the address upon a letter. When notified to deliver letters only to the person to whom addressed it is enjoined upon him to remember this rule, especially as regards members of the same family. Well do I remember when I was a carrier a certain maiden on Broad street was receiving letters from a father and son. Whether one knew that the other was writing to the girl or not I do not know, but this I saw several times : When she received a note from the old gentleman she was very deliberate in her movements, but when I handed her one from the son she was out of the house in a jiffy. One of the most annoying things to the carriers is the imprudence of 'mashers.' I have had these fellows intercept me and offer $5 or $10 if I would tell who such a lady was, and whether she were married or not. I remember one lady in particular, who came here from a neighboring city and stopped at the residence of a millionaire. She was a magnificent woman. A man would hardly pass her without turning around to take a second look. The mashers nearly went crazy over her, and one met me at nearly every street corner on my route with some question regarding her. I came near getting into half-a-dozen fights over her, and was glad when she went home. But the devices of married men and women who are holding clandestine correspondence are ingenious. All such people stand upon a volcano, not knowing the minute it will begin to send forth fire and a ruined reputation. One man used to beg me every day 'for God's sake don't let my wife get hold of my letters.' The woman was as smart as her husband. She was also holding a secret correspondence, and I was in that, too. She did not want her husband to know of it. I took good care of both, and they enjoyed cheating each other. At one time I have known on my route half a dozen ladies who were resting under the belief that their husbands were holding a correspondence which should not be carried on. Each one would give me minute directions that if I received a letter from such and such a Remedy," and "Old Well Cologne," "Iron Tonic Bitters," Our

You invest no capital, and the only special training you require is a fair knowledge of the world. "The proper study for mankind is man," you know. How is it done? You must be born with a faculty for it. Now, ordinarily, when a man wants to borrow a dollar from another he watches to catch his victim alone. Then he sneaks up to him, and, if he is an awful fool, he says something intended to flatter him. If he is only a fool of the usual kind, he makes a remark about the weather or the affairs of the day. Then he says, in a kind of half whisper, "I wonder if you could spare me a dollar until to-morrow?" Or, "Oh, have you got a dollar about you that you could let me have until to-morrow?" Or, "Oh, by the way, I am a little hard pushed; would you mind lending me a dollar until in which the simpletons put it, but there 'to-morrow" the date of payment, and rarely make their request exceed a dollar. Now, the first objection to this is that they equalize the advance forces. When you think you have an advantage over a man because he is alone, you forget that you are alone also. You have less hesitancy in refusing. Your reasons are exactly the same, your do not want strangers or friends to hear your request; but lo you think, if you had approached him at first, that he would have wanted either strangers or friends to hear his refusal? At any time a man is likely to speak to you when confidentially conversing, in pretty much the same tone that you speak to him, provided you speak first. If you whisper to a man your secret desire for a dollar, he is very likely to whisper back a refusal. There is a way of avoiding all this. When you want to borrow money from a man, choose a time when his riends are about him. Then walk up to him and say pleasantly, "Oh, I nearly forgot about it—can I depend upon you nustn't wait for him to answer ; add beore he speaks, "Oh, it will do in a few minutes," as though you were interested in something one of his friends was ex-ing. OUR WASHINGTON LETTER. WASHINGTON, June 9th, 1884.

DEAR GAZETTE:-The convention excitement here, last week, was fatal to all attempts at legislation. Friday night there was a wholesale rush of some eighty odd Pension bills through the House without objection, discussion, or even examination of the cases or the committee's

The triumph of the "Plumed Knight" at Chicago was and is the one absorbing topic of discourse. Congratulation heavily outweighs criticism. It seems to be conceded on all sides that General Logan epitomized the exact condition of the situation in this telegram settling the issue :-WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The Republicans of the states that must be reason upon to elect the President having shown a preference for Mr. Blaine, I deem it my duty not to stand in the way of the people's choice, and recom-mend my friends to assist in his nomination. JOHN A. LOGAN. Disappointment deep, of course, there was and is, but the ticket is accepted by all the cooler heads of the party and by each and every opposing candidate as the strongest and best, under all circumstances, that could have been selected. The grand army of the great Republican masses of our voters made their influence felt in this nomination. They fought beyond their halting leaders, and wrested victory in spite of the hesitating and distrusting managers and manipulators of the party. The campaign thus inaugurated will be a fierce and resolute one. But down deep in the hearts of the American People lies the bed-rock love of justice, and a love of fair play. They admire the man of convictions, and the audacity of courage that dares always to avow and maintain sentiments for the right and for the love of country. The people hate the wanton vilification and brutal abuse heaped upon a man because he may chance to be the able and resolute champion of a great party and a grand principle. As the people rebuked the malevolent attacks upon our martyred Garfield by his election to the presidency, so will they set the seal of their condemnation on the unjust assaults made upon his dearest and closest friend. JAMES G. BLAINE, by his triumphant election. And for one thing may the good Lord be praised. In the election of the great statesman from Maine the him. justly our due, will receive fostering recognition and encouragement from the only man who seems to have had the mental grasp and the patriotic ambition to inaugurate the grand enterprise of mutual benefaction to our race, our American nationalities and our time. In this view of Mr. BLAINE's well-known proclivities, and his as thoroughly wellknown adherence to the Henry Clay doctrines of protection to the American laborer and American industries, it is to be expected that he will encounter the fiercest opposition of the English press and all their free-trade allies on this side of the ocean. But for every vote that British gold and British influence can divert, he will receive a thousand from the democratic toilers on land and sea, and in our busy hives of industry. He will be roundly abused by our opponents as is their wont, but not more brutally than was his dead friend and chief, the martyred Garfield, and the people will furnish his well deserved vindication in triumphant election. A brief outline of our brilliant candidate's career cannot fail to interest. Mr. Blaine was born on Indian Hill farm, Washington county, Pennsylvania, January 31, 1830. His great grandfather was a colonel in the continental army and a warm personal friend of Washington. His father is said to have been of the rigid Scotch Presbyterian order of religion, while his mother had been baptised in the Catholic faith. Young Blaine went early to school at Lancaster, Ohio, where he resided with his relative, Hon. Thomas Ewing, whose wife was a daughter of Taylor Sherman of Norwalk, and a sister of General and Senator Sherman. He soon after entered Washington college, and graduated at the head of his class in 1847. In 1850 he went to Kentucky to teach in a military school. While here he married Miss Stanwood of Massachusetts, the present Mrs. Blaine. He returned to Pennsylvania after marriage and studied law, but never practiced because of a natural fondness for newspaper work. In 1853 he moved to Maine to edit the Kennebec Journal. In 1858 he was elected to the Maine legislature, and was five times re-elected. In 1861 and 1862 he was speaker of the Maine House of Representatives, where he won the surprising fame that subsequently made him the most alert and rapid parliamentarian, and by common consent the ablest speaker ever occupying the chair in Congress, to which he was elected in 1862. It was in the 39th Congress that Blaine and Conkling had their verbal battle on the floor of the House. The great "word coiner" from New York held his own pretty well, but could not parry all the thrusts of his more ready and versatile antagonist. This bitterness was left to rankle for many a year, but it is said that the wise, dignified and conciliatory course pursued by Mr. Blaine in his Garfield eulogy obliterated much of Mr. Conkling's asperity. Mr. Blaine had unexpectedly to Mr. Conkling shown himself in that presence and that utterance to be not only master of the occasion, but capable of that supreme greatness which made him master of his own passions and of

Mr. Blaine's Religion. Concerning the religious faith of family and his own attitude in religious natters, Mr. Blaine wrote in March 1876, My ancestors on my father's side were always identified with the Presbyterian church, and they were prominent and honored in the old colony of Pennsylvania. But I will never consent to make any public declaration upon the subject, and for two reasons: First, because I abhor the introduction of anything that looks like a religious test or qualification for office in a republic where perfect freedom that looks like a religious test or qualification for office in a republic where perfect freedom of conscience is the birthright of every citizen; and, second, because my mother was a devoted Catholic. I would not for a thousand presidencies speak a disrespectful word of my mother's religion, and no pressure will draw me into any avowal of hostility or unfriendliness to Catholics, though I have never received and do not expect, any political support from them.

The Kennebec Journal, (Augusta Ma.,) twenty years a consistent member of the Orthodox Congregational church in this. the city of his home. Orthodox Congregationalism in Maine is precisely the same creed as Presbyterianism in Pennsylvania."

There Must Be No Breach. Though their numbers be but few, in the interests of harmony we earnestly appeal to those individuals who thrust personal preferences to the front and throw their country's weal to the rear, to stand by the Chicago nomination, and support the choice of the 541 representatative men of the country. To desert and fight against the Republican party because

The Buckingham Parade. If June 18th is a pleasant day it will probably see in Hartford a parade of the veteran soldiers and sailors of the state, hardly second to that wonderful gathering of Battle Flag Day. Every man who paraded on that occasion will want to be present again to see if that day can be equalled, and those unfortunate ones who were not present then, but who have been listening ever since to the account of that remarkable occasion will take care that they do not miss another such reunion. Moreover the veterans are growing old and they realize that there will be a very few occasions hereafter to call out a state parade. This is the reason that all the old regiments have called their reunions at Hartford to do honor to the memory of the beloved war governor, for whom s bronze statue is to be placed in the "Battle Flag" corridor of the capitol.

The arrangements are now complete The parade will start at 11:30 a. m., or as soon thereafter as possible. It will be a short one, through streets crowded with appropriate decorations, and escorted by the famous Seventh Regiment of New York and the First Regiment, C. N. G. The generous citizens of Hartford are preparing to entertain their veteran visitors with a substantial lunch both before and after the parade. The veterans will assemble at their respective headquarters on the Park near the depot, and will be furnished a lunch on their arrival. The veterans will be massed at the capitol at the close of the parade, and after the unveiling of the statue will march through the capitol building, after which dinner will be served, and the formal exercises of the day will

After dinner the New York Seventh Regiment will be reviewed and will give dress parade on the park. The returning trains will leave in time reach every part of the state before late night. It is believed that such arrangenents are made as will prevent the delay of trains, and other inconveniences of Battle Flag Day. Among those whose presence is expected, aside from the prominent soldiers and public men of Connecticut are General Sheriden and possibly President Arthur.

The Position of the Times The New York Times will not suppor Blaine and Logan. Nobody has supposed it would. But to show that in opposing this ticket it opposes the Republican party and not these individuals, the following extract from its own columns conslusively

If Mr. Blaine is not a fair representative republican principles and purposes, of republican honor and conscience, as they now are, then the republicans of Maine, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa. and Kansas were will-fully betrayed in their primaries, in their dis-trict and state conventions, and at Chicago; and we have nowhere read nor heard that and we have nowhere read nor heard that republican sentiment in these states, or in any state, was stifled or perverted in order to so cure Blaine delegates. Nor was Mr. Blaine nominated in ignorance of who and what he was. The party had its eyes open. It has taken this step not in the dark but in broad dearlight republiban party, speaking through their fairly elected representatives, have nominated James G. Blaine because they wanted him above all other men as their leader and the exponent of their principles. In antagonizing him, therefore, the Times, and all journals which take a like position, antagonize the party and are no longer of it. Mr. Blaine was not the first choice of many republicans who will acknowledge the right of the majority to rule and yield to the unmistakable expression of that majority in the support of Mr. Blaine. This all republicans who believe in the party or who hope to effect anything through it, will do, and the exceptions will not, we believe, be numerous .-

England's Opinion. LONDON, June 7.—The Daily News says 'The most conservative observers believe the nomination of Blaine marks the dissolution of the Republican party, which will have the most critical battle to fight this

Under the heading "A Beaconsfield Beyond the Sea" the Pall Mall Gazette says: "Mr. Blaine's nomination is the nost notable event for England since President Lincoln was assassinated. Wherever Mr. Blaine can outset the British from the position they hold on the American continent he will endeavor to replace English influence and trade by American, His menacing intimation that ne would disregard the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is an evil augury for the future relations of England and America. His intervention in Peru was most ominous when he declared that he disliked England to win commercial triumphs in fields which legitimately belong to America. England will watch with extreme solicitude the progress of the electoral campaign."

Mrs. Garfield's Wish Among the thousands of congratulatory elegrams received by Mr. Blaine, probably not one was more tenderly touching and earnest than the following, sent by the widow of the murdered President CLEVELAND, O., June 7. To Hon. James G. Blaine. Our household joins in one great thanks-our household joins in one great thanks-giving. From the quiet of our home we send our most earnest wish that through the turb-ulent mouths to follow, and in the day of vic-tory you may be guarded and kept.

The application of Edward K. Lockwood of Norwalk.

The application of Edward K. Lockwood of Norwalk in said District respectfully showeth;

That he is Guardian of George C. Lockwood, a Minor belonging to said District, and that said Minor is the owner of the following Real Estate, viz:—All that certain tract or percel of land, situated in said Norwalk, in quantity two and a half acres more or less, with the buildings thereon standing, and bounded northerly and easterly by highway, southerly by 4and of Edward K. Lockwood, and westerly by the Danbury & Norwalk railroad; also all that certain tract or parcel of land situated in said Norwalk in quantity one and a half acres more or less, and bounded northerly by highway, easterly by the Danbury & Norwalk railroad, southerly by St. Mary's Cemetery so called; subject to a right of way over the same to and from said land of Edward K. Lockwood, adjoining the same on the south.

to a right of way over the same to and from said and of Edward K. Lockwood, adjoining the same on the south.

And he further says, That said estate is at present unproductive; that the avails thereof are wanted for the support, maintenance and education of said Minor, and that it will be to the advantage of said Minor, and that it will be to the advantage of said Minor to sell the same, and invest the avails thereof according to law; wherefore, he says, there is just and reasonable cause for selling the same. He therefore prays said Court to order said Real Estate to be sold, and to empower him or some other meet person to sell the same pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided.

Dated Norwalk, June 6th, A. D. 1884,

EDWARD K. LOCKWOOD, Guardian.

Car Seat Ticket Holder

Mr. P. H. Murphy, station agent at Westport station, has invented a ticket holder to be applied to car seats in passenger cars that promises to do away with much of the annoyance by the misplacing by passengers of their train tickets and checks, and which will enable the collector of tickets to make the collection and exchange in much less time than is now required. The difficulty passengers often have in finding their tickets when the conductors call for them is often great, more patience. This holder, invented by Mr. Murphy, is about two inches square, nickel plated, with flat face and curved

ed. It is applied to the back of each car seat at the top, and one is thus directly in front of each passenger. Into it the passenger places his ticket upon taking his seat, and the collector, when going through the train, takes up the ticket and inserts a check if one is required without disturbing the passenger. These holders are to be attached to the Pullman sleepers, and anyone that has been awakened many times during the night by conductors,

THE MORAVIAN DEAD.

The Moravians bury all their dead in rows, rich and poor side by side, each in the order of his or her death. The only division made is in one way; the babies, male and female, are given a row to themselves, then the children follow: first a row of boys, then a row of girls. Next comes a row of single men, then a row of single women, after which are those who were married at the time of their death, the women in one row and the men in another. The Moravian idea that all people are on a common level is illustrated most peculiarly in the manner of erecting their gravestones. All these are of uniform size and form, and lay flat on the carriese of the grave, the only thing to distinguish the millionaire from the laborer; being whatever inscription the relatives may choose to inscribe upon the face of the slab. However slight the terrestrial intercourse between Dante and Beatrice or Petrarch and Laurs, time changes the proportion of things, and in later days it is preferable to have fewer sonnets and

Can be appropriately quoted by the manufacturers of the Wilsonia Magnetic Appliances. Thousands of men and women are to-day living that were given up by the physicians to die, but who are now able, thanks to Wilsonia, to endorse the above quotation. The potency of these appliances in grappling with and overcoming all forms of discases, is becoming one of the best established facts of the day. In all diseases where the nervous system, the digestive organs, the liver or kidneys are concerned the effect of Wilsonia is simply marvellous. No medicine required. No shock given. HOW TO CURE SKIN DISEASES

Disfiguring Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching and Burning Tortures.

SALT RHEUM or Eczema, Psoriasis, Scald Head, Infantile or Birth Humors, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulos, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper-Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, are positively cured by the Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the great Skin Cures and Beautifiers, externally, when all known remedies and the best physicians fall.

Createst Earth. Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicine on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally.

Cincinnati is superstitiously interested in the case of a woman who falling asleep in a railroad train, dreamed vividly that her child at home had been seriously hurt. Pratt's Astral Oil.

In a circular issued June 30th, 1882, by the New York State Board of Health, there appears the astounding statement, "It is estimated that upwards of thirty thousand lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum." The introduction of PRATT'S ASTRAL OIL was the first practical check given to this wholesale destruction of life.

It was the first safe and reliable illuminating ofl ever made; and, although many millions of gallons have been annually sold since its introduction, no person has ever suffered by an accident from its use, nor has any Insurance Company paid a dollar for loss occasioned by it.

Why, then, should any risk be taken in the choice of a burning oil when PRATT'S ASTRAL can be obtained at the present low price?

Be sure to insist that dealers furnish you with the genuine article, as immense quantities of inferior oils are sold annually as PRATT'S ASTRAL.

"Thiophen" is the name given by Prof. V. Meyer to a new substance which he recently succeeded in separating from benzine oils. This compound, which is still subjected to laboratory experiment and study in the hope that important results will be obtained, presents the closest analogy in general reactions with benzine, yielding sulphuric acid, a methyl derivative, etc. It reacts with deketones to form a highly colored sub-

Prof. St. G. Mivart, in a paper on the relations between instinct and other vital processes, contends that instinct cannot be divided by a very hard and fast line from such vital processes as reflex action, processes of repair after injuries, and the process of development of the individual; and that these latter were more readily explained as activities especially instinctive than that instinct could be explained by reflex action or by lapsed intelligence. Japan has at present 155 miles of rail-road—from Yokohama to Tokio, 18 miles;

Kobe to Otsu, 58 miles ; Tsongara, in the Province of Oomi, to Sekigahara, in the Province of Mino, 41 miles, and Tokio to Koumagai, 38 miles. There is besides in course of construction a road to unite Maye-bashi to Tokio, a distance of 81 miles. The first three of the lines named belong to the Japanese Government; the others to the Nippon Tetsudo Kwaisha or Japan Railway Company List of Patents
