Our Norwalk Schools.

If there is any one thing of which the best people of Norwalk are especially and justly proud, it is the high grade and standing of our public and private schools. In nothing else are our tax-payers so ready and willing to be heavily assessed as in support of the public school system, and the maintenance of its highest and most thorough efficiency and scholarship. The Over River school has but recently introduced the latest and best system of heating and ventilating, and now the enterprising committee of the Union school is arranging for the introduction of the same system into their school edifice. This costs money, and a good deal of it, but the health and comfort of teachers and scholars are involved, and our tax-payers willingly stand the heavy cost. Then as to teachers, every exertion is made to secure the best talent available, until it goes without saying, that in no town in Connecticut do the public schools attain or maintain a higher character for practical education and efficiency.

It is to be hoped that the establishment of one centrally located High School, where the highest branches shall be taught, and where apt and ambitious students may be thoroughly prepared for college or the liberal professions, may not be much longer deferred. What an opportunity this for some one of Norwalk's wealthy citizens to perpetuate a grateful memory, by endowing such an institution, as has the venerable Horace Staples, of Westport.

The same gratifying reputation, even to a higher degree, if possible, has been attained by our select schools. The Selleck and Wilson Collegiate Schools for young men, and the Mrs. Mead's and Miss Baird's boarding and day schools for young ladies, are of the highest standard as educational institutions, and their fame and patronage extend far beyond the boundaries of the United States of America.

These are facts which justly inspire the pride of every citizen, and are of far higher moment than the unrivaled natural beauties of our town, of which we are all so fond of boasting.

In this connection it is appropriate to refer again to the recent graduating exercises at Miss Baird's Institute. In one of the musical numbers then rendered by the young lady students, it was unreservedly stated by competent judges, in the matter of classical execution, the rendition would have been creditable to the highest professional grade of musical attainment; and in the matter of the students' essays, it is the testimony of the Rev. Dr. Seward, who was present and listened to them, that all were worthy of the highest institutions of learning in our land: that in originality, force, rhetorical grace and diction, he had never heard these papers surpassed on any similar occasion.

Here is a school that started under every sort of discouragement, which, by the sheer energy and determination of its thoroughly equipped principal, has grown to be the largest and most successful educational institution in our town. Its students come from our own beautiful and cultured homes, and from afar, and its success, based on merit alone, has indeed been extraordinary, as it has richly deserved to be. The school and its worthy principal, enjoys the highest confidence and esteem of all our own people and of all its many patrons in different parts of the land. No school rates higher for its discipline, scholarship and christian-home atmosphere. May it long continue to be as it now is, an honor and benefaction to Norwalk.

At beautiful "Hillside" to-night, Mrs. Mead gives a preliminary Commencement Musicale, while on Tuesday evening the Class of '93 is to graduate, consisting of the following young ladies: Jean Edgar Burnet, Gertrude France, Grace Irene Haviland, Katie Olive Hutchinson, Eva Elizabeth Vanderalice and Gertrude Willson.

Here, too, in a most romantic and very ideal spot for a young ladies seminary, all the higher courses of education in literature, music and the arts, are pursued. An especial effort is here made to instruct in all the true refinements and elegancies of our modern christian home-life, as well as to thoroughly ground every student in all the fundamental rudiments of a practical education. Mrs. Mead certainly has earned the high sense of appreciation in which she is universally held, and long may her school endure and grow, a boon to herself, the town and the world.

It is in no spirit of exaggerated or boastful enthusiasm that the GAZETTE points with pride to the schools of Norwalk—one and all.

Liquor Application Refused.

The application of Robert Brown, to sell liquor near the Soldiers' Home in Noroton has been refused by the county commissioners on the ground of the unsuitableness of location. The management of the home, as well as many residents of the town, protested against granting the license.

Prompt Action Needed.

The Selectmen should at once see to it that Mrs. Louise Hubbs does not leave town without taking her daughter Lulu with her. Now that Booth and his paramour, Annie Mead, are locked up in Bridgeport jail Lulu is the only one remaining at the notorious resort, and will no doubt soon become a charge on the town unless her mother is required to take her away.

The Last Chapter.

Mrs. P. T. Barnum has just issued a small volume, elegantly bound, in memory of her late husband. It bears the title, "The Last Chapter," and contains a finely engraved portrait of the deceased showman. In the preface Mrs. Barnum explains that it was the custom of her husband to add each year a chapter to his autobiography, bringing it down to date, and that he requested her to write a review of the closing hours.

Battle of Pleasure Beach.

The fun at Pleasure Beach on the occasion of the sham battle at the opening, June 21, will begin soon after noon. Boats will be run all day, extra ones to be pressed into the service. The attacking party will start from down towards the neck and will try to overwhelm the Gatling gun with its defenders. To undertake such a venture, some deed, it will be necessary to make the most skillful use of the "extended order" of the new regulations, and thus we shall have a splendid exhibition of what warfare to-day would be like.

A New Bell Needed.

It has been suggested, and the suggestion is a good one, that a new bell and a quart of lubricating oil be purchased for the belfry on the Over River school house. The old bell is cracked and has no more music in it than a clam shell. The noise made by the clanging of the tongue of the bell is accompanied by a sound between the howl of a dog and the screech of a cat, that must be mighty unpleasant to people living in the neighborhood. This latter noise could be obviated by the proper placing of a few drops of oil, and it should be so placed at once.

Caught in the Shafting.

Joseph Carahan, an employe of the Aluminum Brass and Bronze company, Bridgeport, had a narrow escape from instant death Thursday morning. He was at work in the main department of the factory, when in some manner his clothing became caught in the machinery and he was quickly drawn up to the shafting above. The machinery was working slowly at the time and it is due to this that his life was saved. His fellow workmen raised an alarm and the machinery was quickly stopped. He was released from his perilous position and it was found that he had sustained but a few slight bruises.

At Hartford.

The preliminary skirmish over the act providing for a constitutional convention occurred in the Senate Thursday. The bill had been made the special order for 11 o'clock, but was not called up until 11:30 by Holcomb. He then moved postponement until next Wednesday at 1 o'clock upon the plea that several of his republican associates were absent and should be given an opportunity to pass upon so important a measure, involving as it did a proposed change in the organic law of the commonwealth.

Holden (Dem.) objected to the motion, saying that every Senator understood the bill and its object as did the people of the state. The latter were clamorous for the reform and if it were not granted would exercise their displeasure upon those who are seeking its defeat.

Fox, Crandall and Root also spoke strongly against delay. Pierce, one of their democratic colleagues, took the opposite view. He said Holcomb had treated the democrats courteously in pairing votes and otherwise and that but for his aid they could not have organized the Senate. Fox declared these reasons insufficient as any courtesy extended by the Republican side had been repaid. After about an hour's debate Holcomb amended his motion so as to carry the matter over to next Tuesday at 1 p. m. explaining that he did this in order that it might not conflict with the hearing on the Bridgeport railroad bill. His amended motion was carried by a vote of ten to six. Cleveland and Pierce voting with the Republicans.

These acts on the calendar were passed: Incorporating Paduka Kosciuszki Polish Benevolent society and Bohemian Roman Catholic society, both of Bridgeport; in concurrence act requiring towns of 10,000 population and upwards to maintain free evening schools; amending charter of Danbury and Bethel street railroad company; incorporating Greenwich Tramway company; appropriating $35 to town of Huntington for burial of a war veteran; changing fire limits in Westport; incorporating the city of Stamford.

On motion of Cleveland the act incorporating the Land and Improvement company of Bridgeport was tabled. He thought it conferred corporate powers of too comprehensive a nature, and desired to further inquire into the matter. It was on his motion also that the act appropriating $25,000 for a hospital in Stamford was tabled. The town had proposed to raise $75,000 for the institution if the state would contribute the $25,000, but Mr. Cleveland regarded such deals as doubtful public property.

The special order of the day in the House was the bill making it unlawful to erect any weir, seine or other stationary apparatus for the catching of fish. It looked as if the act would go through, but a strong opposition unexpectedly developed and its fate is now doubtful. Saxe was making a fervent speech in favor of the bill when he was called to order for exceeding the five minutes time limit. A vote on a motion that he be granted an extension showed no quorum, and an adjournment to 2 o'clock was at once taken.

Before this the House reconsidered its action on the naval reserve bill and voted to indefinitely postpone it. This action is regarded as the probable killing of the bill. The act providing for model highways to be constructed by counties and towns under the direction of a state commissioner was indefinitely postponed.

The act making an appropriation for the purchase of additional land for the Soldiers' Home at Noroton and the enlargement of the present buildings was passed.

Before the Senate adjourned it passed the bill providing for the election of County commissioners by the people. Each party is to nominate three candidates and those receiving a majority vote are to be elected. This does away with the minority representation feature in the bill as originally drawn.

A resolution from the committee on Appropriations, accepting the statement of Morgan G. Bulkeley, as to moneys expended by him during the deadlock, brought from Mr. Gunn the question if any of the moneys had been paid to lawyers in the quo warranto cases. The matter was tabled to give an opportunity to investigate.

Senate killed the bill that liquor licenses shall not be granted to aliens.

The bill raising the tax on female dogs and concerning registration of dogs, came from the House with Senate amendments rejected. The Senate concurred.

When the resolution incorporating the Columbian Colonization and Development company came up, Senator Cleveland attacked it savagely, as the scheme of a foreign syndicate. The vote stood 7 to 5, not a quorum.

Another charter of the same kind, the United States Construction and Equipment company, was tabled.

Matters passed: Resolution incorporating the city of Stamford; bill abolishing the Derby turnpike, the last in the State; bill regulating sales of intoxicating liquors so that persons whose applications for licenses have been denied because person or place is unsuitable, shall not apply again during the year.

Resolutions were passed incorporating the Y. M. C. A. of Danbury and the Badolite Bros. of Huntington.

Senator Jones urged an amendment to the Stamford charter, but the matter went to the table.

The Senate took up the bill providing for the election of County commissioners with minority representation, which had been passed by the House.

Senator Milner (Rep.) offered an amendment that women shall be allowed to vote for county commissioners; rejected by a viva voce vote.

FOUND GUILTY.

Annie Mead, the Paramour of George W. Booth, Sent to the County Jail.

Escorted to Jail in an Unassuming Manner.

The case of Annie Mead, charged with fornication, was opened in the Criminal Common Pleas Court at Bridgeport Wednesday, and closed with the conviction of the Mead woman on Thursday.

Constable R. N. Morehouse was the first witness called Wednesday, but owing to the lateness of the hour the case was adjourned until Thursday morning.

When the case opened on Thursday Constable Morehouse described the location and room in the notorious resort near Dorlon Point, kept by George W. Booth and Annie Mead at the time of their arrest. He stated that he arrested them at 6:30 in the morning, and that the Mead woman and Booth came from the same room in the house when notified that they were wanted.

Augustus Hines testified that he knew Annie Mead, and had attended a sick man who was at their house on the Dorlon Point road. Hines was at the house for thirteen days and during that time the Mead woman was known as Mrs. Booth, and she and Booth were occupying the same sleeping apartment.

Mrs. Matilda Booth, the lawful wife of George W. Booth, testified to her marriage with Booth.

William Gates, of Danbury, was next called and testified to hearing Annie Mead, when under oath in the Court of Common Pleas, state that she was the wife of Booth.

Jeremiah Driscoll knew Annie Mead and Booth and had been to their house four times during the summer of 1892. He was also present at the Gates trial and heard Mrs. Mead testify, but when asked by the State's attorney about her having testified that she was the wife of Booth, the witness was suddenly stricken with loss of memory and could not remember anything about the trial.

John Platt testified to knowing Annie Mead only as Mrs. George W. Booth; had known her for a year and a half; had also heard her call Booth husband. Platt was also present at the Gates trial when she testified that she was the wife of Booth.

Samuel McGowan testified that he knew Booth and the prisoner, Mrs. Mead, and that they had lived as husband and wife while in East Norwalk. They had also on one occasion remained at his house over night and had been allowed to occupy the same room, after Booth had assured him that they were married.

The defense placed the prisoner, Annie Mead, on the stand, but under cross-examination of Judge Glover she told so many conflicting stories that it was impossible to follow her. She testified in substance that she had lived at the house on the Dorlon Point road three months before being arrested; that at the time officer Morehouse called on her she was up in the garret getting some dry clothes, he having been out all night in the rain; that she and Booth had never been criminally intimate, nor had they ever occupied the same room at the house; that she employed Eliza and Booth to open clams and wait on the table in the restaurant attached to the house; that she paid Booth from $8 to $10 a week for his services and Eliza got his board; that she had been a widow for nine years and had known Booth five years, two of which he had been in her employ as a servant, cooking and waiting on the table; that she was called Mrs. Booth by people who were not acquainted with her relations to George, and that she had never testified that she was the wife of Booth.

After cross examination Mrs. Mead repeated the statement that Booth opened oysters and clams and waited on her table; that Eliza waited on the store and restaurant selling cigars, tobacco and all kinds of soft drinks; that only one other female resided in the house; that she had never objected to being called Mrs. Booth because she was afraid that George would leave her if she did, and she would be unable to secure another man like him; that she was a decent, respectable woman and didn't want people to think otherwise; that Booth came to live with her last June, a year ago; that she had lived in Brooklyn, but was not called Mrs. Booth while in that city.

A sensation was created by the states' attorney drawing from the prisoner the fact that she had talked with Matilda Booth on Tuesday last and offered her $100 to withdraw the charge. Mrs. Mead then testified under cross examination that she was sworn under the name of Booth last January, but made no objection and could give no reason why she had failed to call the courts attention to the matter.

Charles Eliza followed Mrs. Mead and testified that he and Booth roomed together in the same room and described the several sleeping rooms in the house; that he never knew of Booth and the Mead woman occupying the same room. On cross examination he testified to the sizes of the beds, and flatly contradicted the testimony of Mrs. Mead in regard to the beds and the situation of the room occupied by Booth.

Mrs. Louisa Hubbs, of Brooklyn, was the last witness for the defense. She testified that she lived on Himrod street, Brooklyn, but when asked if her husband lived at that number she told Judge Glover that was her business. This testimony closed the case and arguments were made by Attorneys Gray for the state and Judge Lockwood and J. J. Walsh for the defense. Judge Glover closing for the state. Judge R. J. Walsh then instructed the jury, who retired and returned in a very few minutes with a verdict of guilty.

Judge Walsh thereupon sentenced Annie Mead to pay a fine of $7 and be confined in the county jail for twenty-five days.

Her request that she might be escorted to jail in an unassuming manner was granted. Deputy Sheriff Curtis acted as body guard and escort, but walked far enough ahead of Mrs. Mead so that no one not in the secret suspected them of being officer and prisoner.

Over River School Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Over River School district which was held last evening, was a very harmonious one. The number of voters and tax-payers present was over fifty and represented the best element of the district.

The meeting was called to order by Clerk Alfred E. Austin, after which Mr. John H. Wade was gracefully seated in the Moderator's chair, by acclamation.

The report of the committee was then read. It was a well written document and gave a detailed report of what the committee had done in the interest of the district since the last meeting. It contained a digest of the committee work in securing heat, ventilation, etc. It was shown that the present indebtedness of the district, was about $7,000, and the expenses for last year were $11,135. It suggested that the school be repainted. The report also showed that the committee had expended about $900 in excess of the appropriation for the system of ventilation, etc.

Clerk Austin asked why the committee had expended nearly $4,000 for the system when only $3,000 had been voted. Committeeman Wheeler in reply said that at the time the appropriation was voted, the district had only in contemplation the heating and ventilation of the school, but that when the committee were getting estimates for the same and examining as to which system would be best and most economical for the district, they came across what is known as the Schmiede system which included dry closets. As it would be cheaper to put in the closets at the same time as the heating apparatus, and as it was only a question of a short time when the old closets would have to be removed, it was decided by the committee that the best interests of the district would be secured by the extra expenditure.

The report of the committee was then unanimously adopted.

The report of Treasurer Price was read and accepted.

The matter of electing a member of the committee to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of service of James W. Storey, was then brought before the meeting.

William A. Ambler presented the name of James W. Storey, to fill the vacancy for three years, and proposed that a vote be taken instructing the clerk to deposit one ballot for Mr. Storey, as the choice of the meeting.

Joseph P. Crossman objected on the ground that it was too much like a gag game.

The meeting then proceeded to ballot for committeeman, with the result that James W. Storey received 47 votes and was declared elected.

Henry P. Price was elected treasurer. L. L. Sherwood was continued in office as collector as was also A. E. Austin as clerk.

Messrs. F. I. Jones and Samuel Lynes were reelected auditors.

Principal Wigham gave the meeting a general idea of the working of the new system of ventilation and heating, and did it in a very interesting manner.

Committeeman Wheeler tried to draw a little speech out of Committeeman Mead by calling him father of the committee, etc., but did not succeed. The meeting then adjourned.

Knights of Columbus.

The Knights of Columbus of the Sixth district, which includes Fairfield and Litchfield counties, held their annual field day and parade in Bridgeport Thursday. Councils were present from Stamford, Danbury, Newtown, New Milford and Norwalk. There were about 800 in line and they made an excellent showing. The city took on a holiday air early in the morning and crowds thronged the streets. Many residences were elaborately decorated and the visiting knights were given a royal welcome. The procession was reviewed as it passed City Hall, by the mayor, members of the common council and other city officials. The field day exercises were held at Pleasure Beach where the visitors were entertained by the local councils. Officers of the state and supreme councils and invited guests from Brooklyn, N. Y., rode in carriages.

Another Sudden Death.

Mrs. Flora A. Hale, wife of William J. Carver, died very suddenly at the home of her son-in-law, John D. Nash, in Cranberry Plains, last night, aged 53 years. Mrs. Carver was about the house as usual during the day. Shortly before eleven o'clock she went up stairs to retire but feeling dizzy went into her daughter's room and sat down. She complained of a headache and her daughter was engaged in bathing her head when she said "I'm dying, I'm sure of it," and slid out of the chair to the floor a corpse.

The deceased was the second wife of Mr. Carver and was the mother of two children by him and twenty-four by a previous husband. She was very fleshy weighing about 250 pounds.

Both Mrs. Carver's and Mrs. Nash's husbands were away at the time of the death of the former.

Medical examiner Burke was summoned and gave a verdict of death from apoplexy.

Foul Play Suspected.

John Oakley died in the hospital at Hartford Thursday night. Oakley was found under a freight car in an intoxicated condition in the morning. His face was scratched. His skull was found to be fractured and he was removed to the hospital. Foul play is suspected.

Receiver Wanted.

Insurance Commissioner Mansfield has applied for a receiver for the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company of Hartford and Judge Simeon E. Baldwin will give a hearing on the question June 16.

Escaped His Creditors.

The New York Sun says that Colonel Roberts, who has been running a school in New Rochelle, left that place early on Wednesday morning last to escape his creditors, and that when they heard that he was gone they went to his school to attach the furniture, but found that a deputy sheriff from Norwalk had got there before them and carried it away in the night.

Tried to Burn Herself.

At East Windsor Monday, Miss Annie Clapp made a sensational attempt at suicide by burning herself. She has been suffering from mental aberration, believing herself dead. She escaped from her room during the night and after a long search was found by Congressman Lewis Sperry's son nearly buried in a grave near the river she had dug with a spade. Only one hand and her nose and mouth were uncovered.

Killed in a Quarry.

Daniel Hickey, aged fifty years, was instantly killed in the Middlesex quarry at Portland, Monday. He was at work in the bottom of the quarry when a stone weighing 1,500 pounds fell from the jag above and struck Hickey crushing him frightfully. His head and face was smashed into a jelly. His neck, ankles, legs and back were broken. He leaves a family. The stone was seen to move by some of the workmen and they shouted a warning to Hickey. He tried to escape but was not in time.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Center School district was held last Monday night. Charles L. Glover acted as Moderator. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. Belton Hurlbutt, George B. St. John and Benjamin L. Fillow, committee; Chas. L. Glover, Treasurer; Charles A. Burr, Collector. The matter of the sanitary condition of the school was discussed, and referred to a committee to report at a meeting to be held in two weeks.

Didn't Like It.

Selectman Daskam went to Bridgeport on Monday and secured the release of Benjamin Timpon from the Bridgeport jail. Timpon was sent to jail some weeks since for failing to provide for his family. He has given his solemn promise that he will do his best in the future to provide for their wants. He was sent there at the instigation of the Selectmen. There are others living on the bounty of the town who are liable to receive like treatment unless they mend their ways.

Internal Revenue Taxes.

Deputy internal revenue collectors have received instructions from commissioners of internal revenue, to make collection of special taxes in June for the year beginning July 1, 1893. Government taxpayers should note this, as every person selling liquors or oleomargarine a day, without a proper tax stamp, is liable to prosecution, and if the tax is not paid before or during the month of commencing business, is also liable to a penalty of 50 per cent. of amount of tax, besides prosecution.

Drives Nails With His Head.

In the Police Court, at Hartford, Tuesday, William Graham, colored, a dancer, and musician, who entertains saloon crowds by driving a nail in an inch-and-a-half pine plank with his head, was a prisoner. He was charged with drunkenness, assault, and resisting an officer. He was arrested by Officers Pinney and Shultz, and both had to fight for dear life to effect his arrest. Graham was chased several times around several blocks and was finally captured at the foot of State street. Graham was sent to jail for thirty days for assault and thirty days for resisting the officers.

Want Damages.

Papers have been served in a suit brought against the Consolidated Railroad Co., to recover damages for the death of James Sheahan, the track walker who was killed several weeks ago in Stratford by being hit with the cap from an exploding cylinder head on a passing locomotive.

The suit is instituted by Patrick Sheahan, the dead man's brother, and the administrator of his estate, through attorneys, Casfield & Judson, of Bridgeport. The amount asked for is the statutory limit, $5,000. Sheahan met his death in a peculiar way. He was a section hand, and stepped aside to allow a train to pass. When the engine was exactly opposite him, the cylinder head blew out, and the heavy metal cap struck him on the head, killing him almost instantly.

Matched.

Danny Russell and Jack Meehan have been matched to fight 10 rounds for a purse of $500 and $500 on a wager.

Unknown Man Killed at Woodmont.

An unknown man was struck by the cars at Woodmont Tuesday afternoon. His body was held for identification.

Walsh Dead.

Robert Walsh, who made an attempt to end his life at Compo a week ago Sunday, died at the hospital Monday as a result of his act. Death was produced by cerebro-spinal meningitis. The case of Walsh is a most peculiar one, and if possible the Bridgeport hospital staff will hold an autopsy to learn the nature of the cause of death. Walsh had been drinking heavily of late, and became despondent and discouraged. On Sunday, June 4, he determined to end his life, and securing a revolver he placed the barrel at his lips and shot up through the roof of his mouth. He was removed to the Bridgeport hospital and an unsuccessful attempt was made to locate the ball. A day after his arrival a piece of the flattened bullet was discharged from his nostrils and the physicians in charge were unable to determine whether or not the remainder of the bullet was in his head. During the first two days at the hospital Walsh showed no serious effects from the bullet but on Wednesday last a change was noticed. His brain seemed to be disturbed and at night he would attempt to leave his bed at frequent intervals. He talked rationally but it was easily learned that his brain was affected. On Friday, his illness assumed a critical nature and he steadily grew worse until death ended his sufferings. He was 48 years old and leaves a family.

Discovered Another Husband.

Sometime in 1890 Mrs. Emily P. Govan of Hartford stepped out the second-story window of her grocery store on the corner of Sheldon and South Prospects streets and received injuries from which she died a year later. Mrs. Govan was a woman of some property and owned a grocery business, amounting to about $9,000. Mr. Govan continued the business for about a year and then he died. The couple left one son, 14 years old, and it was supposed that of course he would inherit the property, Mrs. Govan leaving no will. When the estate came to be probated, however, an unexpected claim was put in on behalf of a daughter by a former husband, the existence of whom was unknown before. It now appears that Mrs. Govan had been married before in England when she was only 15 years old, to a man named William Halmorth, although her second husband, Mr. Govan, never knew of this early episode. The question is, can this daughter by a former husband, being an alien, inherit a share of her mother's estate? Her attorney believes that under the Connecticut statutes she can get one half of the estate. The attorney for the boy will endeavor to have his client get the whole estate. Steps are now being taken to have the affair cleared up.

Obituary.

MISS MARY E. CHURCH.

There died last Monday in the house on the Westport road, in which she was born, one of Norwalk's oldest residents, and a member of one of its ancient families. Since 1811, Miss Mary Church has known but one home. This home was planted by her grandfather, who built the house first occupied by himself, then by his son, and in later years by his grand-daughter, now deceased. The house is a Norwalk landmark, and, considering its age, is a well-preserved structure. In the early morning hours of July 11, 1873, some of King George's men entered its kitchen, and began to light and to scatter their faggots loosely around. "Stay," said the womanly wife of the owner, the first Ebenezer Church, and took her broom and swept the faggots into one pile. Just at this moment, Tryon's officers, who were a short distance in the rear of the incendiaries, hove in sight at the top of the hill to the west of the house, and at the instigation of Mrs. Church, to whom they were under obligations, called the men off. The building was saved, and it to-day stands with slight alteration, just as it stood on that memorable morning. The deceased has taken great comfort in her home. The family history and traditions have been well preserved by her, and she has lived to tell the same outside her own blood.

Some Foolish Mothers.

Let their babies cry with Colic, giving mothers no rest night or day. How foolish, when Dr. Hand's Colic Cure gives immediate relief to baby. It removes wind from the stomach, quiets the nerves and gives restful sleep. Mother, send to-day to your drug store for a 25c. bottle. Think of the weary hours it saves you. If baby's gums are sore, teething, use Dr. Hand's teething Lotion. At H. R. Hale's 25 cts.

The Human Electrical Forces!
How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and nerve food, is the means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land. Restorative Nerve cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. It is sold on a positive guarantee by all druggists, or sent directly by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid.

Sold by H. B. Hale, Norwalk, and Geo. H. Billson, So. Norwalk.

POINTS AGAINST LIZZIE

The Most Damaging Evidence Thus Far Produced.

TESTIMONY OF MATRON REAGAN

She Relates a Suspicious Conversation Between the Sisters and an Effort to Make Her Recant—Lizzie's Attempt to Purchase Poison Admissible as Evidence.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 15.—The first witness in the Borden trial yesterday was City Marshal Hilliard, of Fall River, who described his visits to the house on the day of the murder and subsequently. Then he told of his visit to the house with Mayor Coughlin, when Lizzie was informed of the suspicion against her. In the course of conversation Lizzie asked, "What is there anybody in this house suspected?" But the mayor said, "Perhaps Mr. Morse could answer that from what occurred last night." Lizzie then said, "I want to know the truth," and the mayor (Coughlin) said he was sorry to say it, but that she was suspected. Then Emma spoke up and said, "We have tried to keep it from you as long as we could." Then the mayor asked Lizzie where she was when the affair happened and she said in the barn for twenty minutes looking for lead sinkers. Lizzie said, after Emma spoke, "Well, I am ready to go at any time."

In cross examination the witness said the search of the house was thorough; that the prisoner gave him all the articles he asked for, and spoke earnestly and frankly about suspicion of her.

Mayor Coughlin gave corroborative evidence, and then Mrs. Gilford, a dressmaker, testified against defendant's objection. The prisoner told her that Mrs. Borden was a mean, hateful old thing, that she hated her and never ate with her when she could help it. The prisoner's color arose as this testimony was given.

The testimony of Lucy Collet, Thomas Bolles, Patrick McGowan, Mrs. Kirby, John Denny and Joseph Des Rosier tended to show that a man might have gone out of the Borden yard without being seen.

Hannah Reagan, matron at the police station, Fall River, was the next witness. Witness said the prisoner was in her charge at one time. "On Aug. 24 Emma came to see her in the morning. She spoke with her sister and I went in a toilet room, and hearing loud talk looked out and saw Lizzie lying on her side and Emma bending over her. Lizzie said, 'You have given me away, Emma, but I don't care; I won't give in one inch.' Emma said, 'Oh, Lizzie, I did not,' at the same time sitting down. They sat there until nearly 11 o'clock, when Mr. Jennings came back. Lizzie made no talk at all with her sister after; never opened her mouth to her. When I first knew of the loud talking I was about four feet away in a closet. When Emma left that morning there was nothing said by either and no 'good-by' was exchanged."

Cross examined by Mr. Jennings: "Emma remained there in that room until you came, and when you came you said to Emma 'Have you told her all?' and Emma said she had told her all she had to tell. Emma came again in the afternoon, but I can't tell just when. Mr. Buck was there, I am quite sure; he came every day. I know that Miss Borden looked more excited when you left the room than she did before. When I spoke of the affair between the two sisters, I spoke of it as a quarrel. I don't know what day of the week the quarrel was on. I don't know whether the story of the quarrel was published in the morning papers; I was asked about it by reporters; it was that very afternoon, and also in the morning. I never told any reporter it was all a lie. Mr. Buck spoke to me about it in my room, but I never told him it was not true. There was a paper drawn up subsequently in relation to this story. It was brought to me by Mr. Buck."

(Statement read, in which it was set forth that there had not been a quarrel between the sisters, and she had never said so.)

Ell Bence, a Fall River drug clerk, was introduced to show that the prisoner had endeavored to purchase prussic acid the day before the murder. The defense objected, and the jury was sent out while the matter was argued.

Mr. Moody said it was proposed to show that prussic acid was an article of commerce; that the witness never had a call for it until the 3d of August, 1892, that it is not used for cleaning sealink saques; they offered to show that the prisoner went to witness' place and asked for some to clean a sealink saque.

Ex-Governor Robinson, for the defense, said he understood there was no evidence to show a sale. "It appears," he said, "that an examination of the stomachs of the deceased showed no symptoms of prussic acid, and there was no connection with this case. She is charged with killing or slaying those people with some sharp instrument; now here is an attempt to charge her with causing death by wholly different means. There is no weight in this evidence to connect with the crime charged."

Mr. Moody argued at length upon the ground that any act committed or attempted at or near the time of an act committed, for which a person was held should have some weight and bearing as upon the other case.

The court remained in consultation nearly half an hour, and then came in and announced that the evidence was competent and would be admitted.

WASHINGTON WOMEN.

TWO WIDOWS WHO LEFT AN IMPRESSION ON SOCIAL LIFE.

At the Capital Mrs. Madison Was Always Treated as the "Lady of the White House"—Mrs. Hamilton's Influence Was in the Direction of Charity.

Mrs. Madison was in high fashion during her later years. Society has its attacks of this kind and takes up with as little reason as it puts down a favorite. But there came with this late burst of social warmth some good results into her rather chilled and necessitous life. For in that day it was positive loss of fortune to have held any public position. Mrs. Madison had in vain tried for years to effect a sale of Mr. Madison's papers to the government, and for want of this her means were very strained. How it came about I do not know, but it grew to be the correct and indispensable thing to call on Mrs. Madison immediately on leaving the president's levees.

Her house was that diagonally opposite from Mr. Sumner's. There the best people met regularly, and yet no one could have said why. Mrs. Madison was once the "Lady of the White House." She had had the quick thought to cut Washington's portrait by Stuart from its frame and roll it carefully and carry it off in safety from the invading British troops already burning Bladensburg. She was always gracious and sweet-mannered, and to her great credit, as much so in her days of changed fortunes as when she was surrounded by every aid to a placid state of mind. And yet this was about all that was said. And yet this was such an unwritten law that Mrs. Madison must have what she wished that—just because of this mysterious decree of fashion—she actually got from congress what she had vainly petitioned for years.

Mr. Buchanan stated one morning to the senate that on such a day Mrs. Madison would be such an age, and that the $20,000 asked for Mr. Madison's papers would come well to her as a birthday present, and it was immediately voted to her. To be sure it was for the writings of a good patriot and statesman, and the woman to receive it was of great age, and it was in that far better than the vote for nearly the same amount for the cruel damb of a good man and soldier which was an evidence that emotional legislation is not yet extinct.

But this made the occasion of a grand levee for congratulating Mrs. Madison and was among the last occasions on which she was seen in public. Her fine figure had outlasted the threescore and ten years, and when well prepared for company, in her worn, old fashioned empire gown, her turban and clusters of artificial curls—just as we see them in the portraits of Mme. de Stael—the neck and outlines of the face well shrouded in folds of tulle, she was still the handsome Mrs. Madison. I am quite sure I never heard her called "the widow of Madison."

But that was the prefix always made to the historical name of another woman of the same age, who also asked of congress the same favor shown to Mrs. Madison.

This lady was small and always wore the widow's dress she had to assume in her early life. For over 60 years she did not vary this outward emblem of the solitude of her heart.

She, too, like Mrs. Madison, was amiable and of charming manners, but she turned from the world forever when her great husband fell in the duel with Burr, and from that time, her own children first, and close to them in her interest the orphans of the poor, received all her attention. Mrs. Hamilton was the chief founder of the Orphan Asylum of New York. She saw its fiftieth anniversary; she saw the other charities that grew out of it—the Children's Aid society is one—and though her quiet life is ended her good works go on, and her family as well as her memory are living parts of them.

Mrs. Hamilton was very small and light of figure. Her dark, bright eyes and white hair gave her a marquis effect, and her widow's dress gave the framing which suited her years and name. She was very fond of young people and would tell us things—incidentally—which made the early hardships and penalties of the war for independence very real.

In speaking of traveling on horseback, she told us once how her mother and herself had to give that up for a time and only go from Saratoga to Albany when a strong escort could guard them. "It was after poor Jane McCrea had been killed by the Indians," and she made us such a picture of the condition of the Indians after the English enlisted them against us, that we "realized" how far back lay the time when such a thing was possible, and "poor Jane McCrea" became a real girl in place of the bad little wood cut, with one Indian holding her long hair, and the other flourishing his tomahawk as he kept his foot on the keg of whisky.

They have passed completely away—the handsome, gracious, society loving Mrs. Madison and the gentle "widow of Alexander Hamilton." But Washington is the wrecking ground of great names. There are to be seen now, thankfully working for slender pay and tremblingly anxious to keep it safe amid the changes in the departments, descendants of presidents, chief justices, of secretaries of the treasury, of Jefferson, Franklin, and of others of later names—men who gave literally their all to their country, and who deserved the praise Talleyrand gave of Hamilton, of whom he said: "I have seen true public virtue. I have seen the minister of finance, who gave wealth to his country, tolling through the late hours of the night to gain a support for his young family."—Mrs. Jessie B. Fremont in New York Ledger.

It causes a terrible falling off in the receipts of the village postmaster when an engaged couple gets married. Were it not for love the post office department would soon go into bankruptcy.

The Borough Tax.

To say that the last Borough tax is felt to be exceedingly onerous and oppressive to our tax-paying citizens is but stating it mildly. It is idle now to discuss the question as to whether it would not have been wiser to have divided the cost of the Main street improvements, and to have paid one-half this year and the remainder next year. That is all past, and the tax is legally laid and must be legally collected despite the extreme hardship to many. There has been this plan suggested, however, which, if it be possible to inaugurate, would in a degree lessen the severity of the immediate payment of the tax in full. The plan suggested is to let the Court of Burgesses authorize its Collector to accept one-half the tax now, and the other half next January, when the business conditions of the Borough may reasonably be expected to be improved. It is believed that such a grace could be legally authorized, and tax-payers permitted to make partial payments on account, when so desired, by their waiving any and all claims on the Collector for the indulgence.

True as Preaching.

The Boston Advertiser, noting the suspension of a newspaper in New Hampshire, which was devoted chiefly to politics, and which had sunk $30,000 in less than a year, says in conclusion:

"Newspapers are a good deal like any other business. They cannot be made to succeed unless there is a field for them, and they cannot be made to flourish simply on political grounds. This has been demonstrated so many times that it hardly needs repetition, and the sooner men stop starting papers in order to help on a campaign, the better it will be for them."

This is as true as preaching, remarks the esteemed Ansonia Sentinel. The newspaper business requires more care, a better understanding of the needs of the community, and genuine business methods than any other business. Moreover, the newspaper that becomes a party organ restricts its field to a limit where it does not pay. The chief end of a newspaper is to give the news; the news first and foremost, and the hardest part of the independent editor's labor is to discriminate between legitimate news and mere local, idle gossip and personal impertinence. The public chronicling in a newspaper of the fact that Mrs. Jones has stepped out into her back yard, or that Mrs. Smith has hung out five pairs of stockings on the clothes-line when there are but four in her family, with dark surmises as to whom the extra pair belongs, is, to say the least, very low and degraded journalism. To give all worthy and important local and general news, and to omit all trifling and unworthy gossip, has been the special aim and effort of the GAZETTE, and it has met with the approval of our best people.

Electricity as a Motor.

That electricity is the motor of the future cannot now be doubted, and it is developing with a degree of rapidity that is startling. It is now not only the accepted motor for street cars in cities and inland towns, but it is swiftly advancing in rural sections by connecting important points in the country by the rapid transit trolley now furnishes.

It is evident from the progress of the Tramway company that we will soon have a complete network of electric railway for local accommodation, and that they will eventually make continuous lines connecting all the great centres of population and business in the State. They need restrictions as to the use of public roads, but they are to become the popular method of transit, and they should be generously aided rather than hindered by the laws.

It may now be accepted as assured that the electric railways will soon parallel the steam lines from every city to suburban communities, but they will not be a serious encroachment upon the patronage of the steam lines. They will very largely multiply travel, and the electric lines will have an immense patronage chiefly created by the increased facilities for rapid and convenient transit.

The electric railway is now the method of transit that is in the closest touch with the people. It is the cheapest of all motors; it can climb the highest hills with ease and descend them with complete control of speed, and it goes into the by-ways where the steam line can never penetrate. It is, in fact, the railway of the people, and as such it should be liberally encouraged. It will soon bring every rural community into close relations with the city, and thus open the most heartsome of rural lands into use for suburban homes.

A Mistaken Individual.

The member of a legislative body who seeks to perpetuate his term of official life by building up a reputation for economy is a dangerous quantity, not only to his constituents, but to the country at large. To begin with, the legislator who assumes this role can have no confidence in the intelligence or integrity of his colleagues, and must logically regard them as a set of banded men together to rob the Government and waste its money. Having convinced himself on this particular point, the professional economist at once proceeds to take charge of the affairs of the legislative body to which he happens to be attached, and those of his colleagues who don't agree with him are charged with being false to their official oaths.

It is unfortunate, but true, that every legislative body that exists has suffered from the operations of the professional economist. He is a standing candidate for a prominent position on the committees having in charge the appropriations, and generally manages to bring such pressure to bear upon the appointing power as to compass the fulfillment of his desire. Once on the committee he takes charge, and those who make so bold as to venture to oppose his plans are branded as enemies of the Government, and it is too frequently the case that the partisan press misleads the public on this point, and thus helps to build up and perpetuate the humbug who makes a specialty of economy.

The professional economist never allows his thoughts to stray beyond the borders of his Congressional or assembly district. He utterly neglects to recognize the growth and requirements of the state or country. His sole object is to build up a reputation that will enable him to impose upon his constituents. In the past this mode of statesmanship has been too successfully practiced. In other affairs the American people are too sensible and too practical to be thoroughly deceived. It is not too much to hope that very soon in the future the voters will fathom the thin disguise of the demagogic professional economist. He is not wanted in our legislative bodies.

The First Dispatch.

The appalling disaster at Ford's theatre last Friday recalls the interesting fact that the editor of the GAZETTE sent the first and only telegraphic dispatch out of the city on that fateful night that Wilkes Booth assassinated President Lincoln. He was enabled to do this by the prompt thought and action of a brother of Rev. Mr. D'Osey, who at that time was the local M. E. minister at Silver Mine. Young D'Osey was present at Ford's theatre on that dire Good Friday night of 1865, and sitting diagonally opposite Mr. Lincoln, was looking at his box, and saw Booth creep up behind the President and fire his revolver close behind his ear, and then leap to the stage below, shouting "sic semper tyrannis" in most dramatic tones, as he fled to the rear of the flies to mount his horse, awaiting him in the alley. While the whole audience was paralyzed by the assassin's murderous work, D'Osey, without a moment's delay, ran around to the 14th Street office of the New York Tribune and gave the facts. A private dispatch was at once hurried off to the night editor of the Tribune in New York. This was about 10 o'clock, and it was the first and only message announcing the tragic crime that got over the telegraph lines until after midnight of the following morning, as at "ten-ten" every wire out of Washington was cut, and no telegraphic communication could be had with the outside world for several hours. The incident of all the wires being cut in every direction at precisely ten minutes past ten o'clock that night was freely commented upon as showing the wide and perfect organization of the conspirators.

The feeling soon became general that the theatre should become the property of the Government, and be razed to the ground. Through the exertions of Secretary Stanton, it was purchased for $100,000, a price at that time considered twice its real value, but the structure was finally converted into a receptacle for pension clerks, but it has always been deemed unfitting and unsafe, and its terrible and fatal collapse last week gives every Washingtonian the eager chance to exclaim, "Well, didn't I always tell you so?"

HOW MANY PEOPLE

Dread the hot weather, because of the annoyance of flies and mosquitoes? They get into your house before you know it, make themselves at home in every room, take a bath in your milk, help themselves to your sugar, commit suicide in your tea, spoil your picture frames and ceilings, and when at last you retire worried with their annoying, they follow you up stairs and try to amuse you with their singing while they give you a friendly bite or sting to keep you awake. You can throw a shoe at a cat, or muzzle a dog, but the slipper has not been made big enough to strike a mosquito in the right place. You may catch some of them with poisonous and sticky paper, but their relations get revenge on you, and the papers are not usually very ornamental, but if you sit on them, they are more friendly than a brother. Now take our advice; keep them out at the start, by supplying yourself with patent screen windows and doors while we are selling them so low. When the demand increases, the prices usually go up.

As long as this ad runs, you can get, in our basement, Screen Doors, any size, at 95c, and adjustable Window Screens at 32c.

To-morrow prices may be higher. The more windows and doors we sell, the more flies and mosquitoes there will be for somebody else. But that's your fault, not ours. If we had our way we would sell to every home in Norwalk, and send all the flies with the tramps to the County jail.

FIXING RESPONSIBILITY

Experts at the Ford's Theater Disaster Inquest.

INCOMPETENT WORK THE CAUSE

Architect Clark and Inspector Entwistle Agree with Practical Builders That Proper Precautions Were Omitted—Colonel Ainsworth's Appeal Denied.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—In the inquest on the Ford's theater disaster before Coroner Patterson yesterday, Colonel Ainsworth sent a long letter in which he related that the hue and cry raised against him in a few newspapers and by some of the clerks threatened to affect his standing as an army officer, and asking that he be permitted to be represented by counsel and to cross examine witnesses. He asserted, further, that the original jury was prejudiced against him, and urged that a new jury be empaneled. The coroner declined to accede to Colonel Ainsworth's request.

James L. Parsons, a contractor and builder, was the first witness. He asserted that the work of excavating could have been done with absolute safety with proper precautions.

Mr. Edward Clark, the architect of the capital, told of the alterations to the theater building which he made in 1885. The building was then perfectly safe. In 1888 he made an examination of the structure and thought it safe. The east wall bulged a little and caused some apprehension among the clerks, but he did not consider that there was danger from this cause. He would not have undertaken to do the work without shoring.

At the suggestion of Juror Hanover Mr. Clark promised to inspect the theater building before continuing his testimony. Thomas B. Entwistle, inspector of buildings of the district, said he was called upon about five years ago to go over to the building and give an opinion as to its safety. At that time it was occupied by the Medical Museum. The result of that examination was that he found the floors and walls perfectly safe. Since that time he had made no examination of it.

"Would you have undertaken the work without shoring?" asked the district attorney. "No sir, and in my opinion that was the cause of the disaster." In his opinion as an expert, the witness said the accident was caused by interference with the base of one of the piers without shoring.

Francis Sasse, the engineer of the old theater building, said he had held that office since March 24, 1889. He made the specification for the electric light plant. He was not an architect, but had graduated from a technical school where architecture was in the course of studies. The theater building was not lighted well, and it was decided by Colonel Ainsworth to put in an electric light plant, so he drew up the plans and specifications last fall and gave them to Colonel Ainsworth. He had drawn them up in order to save time in explaining the character of the work to the contractor who might bid. Some of the bids submitted were as low as $600, but after careful inquiry it was decided that Mr. Dant, who was awarded the contract, was the lowest responsible bidder. His bid was something more than $600. The witness looked at the excavation every day, but saw no signs of shoring.

Witness said he told a clerk after the accident that if the work had progressed another hour the danger would have passed. This did not mean, however, that he foresaw any danger; he merely believed that the work would be completed in that time. James H. Dony, the compositor who set up the original text of the specifications for the electric lighting plant, was called to identify the handwriting in which the specifications were written. He said he thought half of them were type written and the rest in Colonel Ainsworth's handwriting. He could not find the original copy. It had probably been thrown into the waste basket. It was not customary, he said, to destroy copy in the war department printing office.

C. W. Perkins, a builder, said he had been in the theater building several times since the accident, and it was his opinion that the brick work, so nearly as he could judge, was good, but he would have shored the piers. He was unable to explain how any of the piers were undermined without being shored.

A bricklayer of forty years experience, David P. Cissel, who has erected many large buildings in Washington, testified that he had gone into the old theatre building two days previous to the accident with a view to make an estimate on doing the brick work. The excavation was going on at the time. He noticed a man underpinning a wall, but saw no evidence of shoring, although he did not look for it. Since the collapse he made an examination of the building and concluded that the unskillful manner in which the work was done caused the accident. The work, he said, was "about the worst he ever saw." Mr. Cissel considered that there would have been no danger to the clerks if the work had been done properly.

Another builder who testified was Columbus Thomas, with thirty years experience. He had been a bidder for the work of putting in the electric light plant, his bid being about $1,500, of which $600 was for shoring. The work he thought could not have been safely done without shoring. Captain Martin K. Thorpe, chief of the supply division, was called next. He brought with him official papers relating to the work in the old theater building. He had nothing to do with the preparation of the specifications, which he understood were supervised by Colonel Ainsworth alone. The list of bids read by Captain Thorpe showed that the lowest bidder was George W. Dent, who was awarded the contract at $650. The highest bid was $2,200. Four of the bids, including Mr. Dent's, were between $950 and $1,000.

PANAMA CROOKS FREE.

Effel and Fontane Leave the Prison and De Lesseps Will Soon Follow.

PARIS, June 16.—Considerable excitement has been caused by the decision of the court of cassation on the appeal of Charles de Lesseps and the other defendants, convicted of fraud in connection with the Panama Canal company. The court handed down its decision yesterday, setting aside the sentences on the ground that the statute of limitations covered the offenses charged, and that the indictments on which the prisoners were tried were irregular. In consequence of this decision M. Effel and M. Fontane were at once liberated from prison.

In addition to the sentence of five years' imprisonment imposed upon M. Charles de Lesseps, he was sentenced at a later trial to serve a year for bribing certain members of the chambers to vote for the Panama lottery bond bill. The sentence of one year's imprisonment ran concurrently with the heavier sentence. M. De Lesseps chose to serve the one year's sentence in a cell, and by this means, according to the prison regulations, the time was reduced one-half. It is probable that the unserved portion of this sentence will be immediately remitted and that M. De Lesseps will be free to leave the hospital as soon as he is able to leave. He is now suffering with acute dyspepsia.

KILLED ON HIS SCHOONER.

The Body of Captain Cooper Found Floating in the Water.

BALTIMORE, June 16.—News has reached here of a murder committed at Deals Island on Sunday night. Captain Frank Cooper, of Carter's creek, Lancaster county, Va., came to Deals Island on Saturday with a load of grain. The schooner was leaking and he had come to try and charter another vessel, so the grain would not be damaged, but this he failed to do. He was at church on Sunday night, and this was the last time he was seen alive. On Wednesday Jacob P. Webster found his body in the water a half a mile from shore. He had probably been murdered in the cabin of the Daigher on Sunday night, and his body thrown overboard.

The top of Captain Cooper's head was split open and there were a half dozen other wounds upon the head, any one of which would have been fatal. The Daigher was boarded and blood was found in the cabin and on the deck. A mattress had been thrown overboard, and was found a short distance away with blood stains on it. Captain Cooper's crew were two colored men from Carter's creek, Va. These men, whose names could not be ascertained, walked to St. Peter's, where lay anchored the Annie R. Todd, commanded by John Gannon, from Virginia, on which they took passage. The Virginia authorities have been telegraphed to arrest the two men.

A Young Priest Drowned.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Rev. Father Charles B. McKenna, 26 years old, a young priest attached to St. Ann's church, was drowned in the North river while trying to make a landing with a rowboat. His cousin, Mrs. Margaret Burchall, formerly Miss Margaret Curley, of Homestead, Pa., who accompanied him, also was drowned.

To Succeed Minister Blount.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The names of Thomas T. Crittenden, consul general at the city of Mexico, and Judge Sneed, both of Kentucky, are said to be under consideration in connection with the appointment of a successor to Hon. J. H. Blount, of Georgia, as United States minister to the Hawaiian islands. Gossip has it that one of them has been chosen, but there is no agreement as to the one.

Another Record Breaker.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 16.—In the presence of 200 people James B. Geen yesterday drove his pacing stallion, Saladin, one mile in 2:03 1/2 over the half mile track at Wawaset park here, beating the world's pacing or trotting record over a half mile track.

MISS BORDEN'S DEFENSE

The Mysterious Stranger Seen by Dr. Hardy.

ARGUMENT OF LAWYER JENNINGS.

He Warns the Jury Against the Dangers of Circumstantial Evidence—A Fall River Reporter Who Combats the Evidence of Officer Medley.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 16.—Miss Borden was overwhelmed with floral offerings on the tenth day of her trial for murder, and appeared in excellent spirits, despite the seeming disheartening significance of Wednesday's proceedings.

The government introduced experts to testify as to the use of prussic acid to cleanse sealskin, but before they had an opportunity to fasten the alleged attempted purchase of the poison on Miss Borden the court decided that the evidence was incompetent. This ends the prussic acid incident.

Then the defense began its case, with Mr. Jennings as spokesman. He said in part:

"We shall show you that this young woman had led a spotless life; interested in religious and charitable work, and yet for some reason the government seemed to have fastened the crime upon her. There is always an outcry for somebody to be punished for such a crime, but we want the guilty punished, not the innocent. Our law, and it is the one which you have sworn to apply in this case, presumes every man to be innocent until he is proved guilty. The law is for the protection of the living. The law of Massachusetts today draws about the person of every body the circle of innocence until the contrary is proven.

"I say this is a mysterious case, and every thinking man must say the same, but you are not here to say how it was committed. You are simply to answer as to the evidence, to say you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that she is guilty or innocent, and a reasonable doubt is a doubt for which you can furnish a good reason.

"There are two kinds of evidence, direct and circumstantial; the first is the testimony of persons who have seen and heard and felt; circumstantial evidence is entirely different. I want to say that there is not one particle of direct evidence against Lizzie Borden to connect her with this crime; it is wholly and absolutely circumstantial, and there is no class of evidence known that, under certain circumstances, is as dangerous as evidence of this nature.

"You will find that a motive as one of the links of circumstantial evidence becomes of tremendous importance. The government's chain is that whoever killed one killed the other, and where they have assumed to show a motive for the killing of her stepmother, there is none for the killing of her own father. In measuring the motive you have got to apply it in this case as between this girl and her own father.

"There has not been a living soul in all these witnesses to testify that he saw Andrew J. Borden go down to the bank from this house; he was actually invisible. We shall show you there were others about that house. We shall show you that Lizzie was in the barn, just as she said she was. We shall show you that this dress was soiled with paint, gotten on early in May; that it was burned there in broad daylight with windows and doors open, officers and other witnesses about. We shall show you that she had on the very dress she says she had on, the one I gave to the officer myself. We shall ask you to see in view of the presumption of innocence which the law says you shall consider, that no blood was found upon her, and to consider the relations between father and daughter."

Then the taking of testimony for the defense began, the first witness being Dr. Benjamin H. Hardy, of Fall River. Dr. Hardy testified:

"I know where the Borden house is. I went there on the morning of the murder between 10 and 10:30. I saw a medium sized young man, very pale in complexion, with his eyes fixed on the sidewalk, passing slowly toward the south. He was acting strangely, and in consequence of his appearance I turned in my carriage to watch him as he went by. I have a faint idea that I had seen him before. This man was well dressed in a light suit of clothes. I have tried to find him since, but have been unable to do so. The man was acting different from any person I ever saw on the street in my life. He was agitated and seemed to be weak.

Mrs. Delia S. Manley, who lives on Second street, in Fall River, said she was passing the Borden house with Mrs. Hart, when she saw a young man attired in a suit of white standing by the Borden gate. That was about 9:45. She had not noticed the young man when she first came along. Walter P. Stevens, who at the time of the tragedy was a reporter for one of the Fall River dailies, was called to the stand. His testimony was the most important for the defense that had come up to this time. He went to the Borden house on the morning of the tragedy, in the regular course of business. He went through the house and out to the barn. "While I was there," he said, "I heard three persons walking about in the upper part of the barn."

Policeman Medley, it will be remembered, had sworn that there were no traces of footsteps in the dust on the floor of the barn loft.

The witness said that he did not see Medley about, and remained in the barn only a moment or so. Hyman Robinson, an ice cream peddler, testified that shortly after 11 o'clock on the day of the tragedy he passed the Borden house, and saw a lady go from the barn to the house. It was not a servant. He knew Bridget Sullivan.

Everett Brown and Thomas C. Barlow testified that they visited the Borden premises on the day of the murder, but were not allowed in the house. Though they spent all the afternoon about there, they saw nothing of Officer Medley.

Joseph LeMay was then put on the stand, and the court dismissed the jury while counsel wrangled. District Attorney Kuowilton said that the matter upon which his evidence would touch had no relation to the case and had nothing to do with it, so far as the time was concerned. The testimony sought to be introduced was that witness had seen a man passing along the road near his farm, his clothes covered with blood and presenting a decidedly repulsive appearance.

Mr. Jennings said this was not a case of conversation, and that neither was aware of the presence of the other; the man seen by witness had a hatchet in his hand which might have been the one used in doing the murders. He claimed that the evidence should be submitted.

Decision was reserved and the court adjourned.

Suggestions For Churchgoers.

The next time your journey leaves you stranded in the great and delightful city of New Chicokadelphla on the Sabbath day, if you should go to the Church of St. Indolence—I can recommend it as having the slowest singing and the softest pew cushions with a preacher to match, in the city—you will see the following "Suggestions to Worshipers."

"Fall or slide in the pew nearest the aisle. Stay there. Do not sit erect, but lop. Rest one elbow on the arm of the pew and support the side of the face with the outspread palm.

"Do not rise during the singing of the hymns. The fact that you played tennis or baseball on Saturday afternoon or walked four or five miles around a billiard table Saturday night entitles you to a little rest on Sabbath morning.

"Extend your legs as far under the pew as you can without sliding off the seat. Gracefully and politely cover your mouth with your hand while yawning during the sermon. If the minister is looking at you, cover the mouth with both hands, and at the close of the yawn bring your jaws together with a cheerful snap.

"After looking at your watch always turn your head and gaze longingly and earnestly toward the door.

"Do not move if a stranger, accompanied by his wife and daughter, attempts to enter your pew. Permit them to climb over your legs, no matter how much it may annoy you.

"Do not annoy strangers who may enter the church by looking at them or even glancing in their direction. If they really want a seat, they will find one without the intrusive interference of other people.

"At the close of service remark aloud, but to yourself, that you are hungry as a shark and set off for home at a brisk trot."—Robert J. Burdette in Sunday School Times.

Goes to School Monday.

A very sensible lady out on Ninth street delayed sending her small son to the public schools until he should be old enough to look after himself and has been teaching him herself in order that he might not fall too far behind other boys of his age. Yesterday morning Master Freddy came gravely up to his mother for his lesson. After the regular routine was ended his mother put a few leading questions:

"Freddy, what is a year?"

"Three hundred and sixty-five days."

"What is a day?"

"Twenty-four hours—and an hour is 60 minutes, and a minute is 60 seconds."

"What is an instant?"

"An instant" and Master Freddy knitted his downy brow a brief space while he thought. "Oh, yes, I know, I know, mamma. An instant is a hole in the ground."

"A hole in the ground!" exclaimed his mother, totally taken aback. "Why, how in the world do you make that out?" "Why," declared Master Fred with decision, as he hurriedly opened his reader, "this book says, 'John's dog fell down in an instant!'"

Freddy will start to school Monday.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The Elephant's Sense.

Why an elephant should be afraid of a mouse is a mystery. Some have doubted the generosity of the elephant because of his aversion to small animals, but none can doubt his intelligence. Buffon, notwithstanding his idea of the mere mechanism of animals, spoke of the elephant as at the same time a "miracle of intelligence and a monster of matter." Ernest Menault happily referred to him as the animal that carried his nose in his hand. Hence the marvelous intelligence of his trunk. The senses of touch and smell co-operate.

The nerves which extend through his trunk are so numerous that they equal in number all those distributed over the rest of the body. The elephant can keep perfect time to music. He has the ear perfectly organized, and the hearing is extremely fine. The eye of the elephant is distinguished from that of other animals by the pathetic expression of sentiment. Take him all in all, naturalists agree that he is the most intelligent of animals. And why should he be afraid of a mouse?—New York Tribune.

Improved Boats and Muscle.

The boat with which the Oxford crew won the great varsity race must have had a pneumatic tire. With better methods of training and improved systems of rowing the men of today have unquestionably the advantage of those of past years, but too much credit must not be given where it is not due. The vast improvement in boats must not be overlooked in considering the time of the race.

Neither Harvard nor Yale has anything to fear from Oxford or Cambridge provided a better boat can be made here than that in which the victorious Oxford crew rowed. It was the pneumatic tire, not Nancy Hanks that played havoc with Maud S's record. Good horses make good jockeys, good sulkies make good horses, and good boats make good crews.—New York Tribune.

GERMANY'S GREAT DAY

The Largest Attendance of Any Day at the Fair.

"PRINCESS IDAY" IN THE SHADE.

German-Americans Turn Out to Do Honor to the Fatherland Until They Swell the Number to a Hundred and Ninety-Three Thousand.

CHICAGO, June 16.—"German Day" at the exposition needed but the august presence of his majesty, Emperor William, to make the success of the Teutonic season of festivity complete in every detail. The weather was glorious, the crowds immense and the enthusiasm most marked. From noon until late into the evening the German bands and drum corps at the head of bands of shouting Teutons marched through all parts of the park, and the colors of the United States, intermingled with the tricolor and eagle of Germany, floated from every building.

The masses were everywhere, all the buildings were crowded, the different streets about the grounds were thronged all day, and electric launches and gondolas did a thriving business. All the balconies and promenades on the tops of buildings held crowds constantly during the day and evening, and when the crowds went home last night after witnessing the fireworks the gates closed on the largest crowd that has as yet visited the fair in one day. The celebration of German Day, judged by the attendance, was the most successful which has been held in connection with the fair. Princess Eulalia's day must now take second place.

At 10 o'clock the societies and bands of music which participated in the city parade began to rendezvous in sections in front of the building erected by the German empire, which stands between Spain and Ceylon. At one time there were probably 50,000 men, women and children, with their faces toward the imperial building of Germany.

On the top tier of the singers' stand glistened the eagle capped banners, and flags of the societies who marched in the parade. The whole united picture was as pretty as has ever been seen in the White City. One thousand voices blended in the singing of "Germania Over All," by Joseph Hayden. While the singing and speech making were in progress bands of musicians, followed by sections of the procession from the city, arrived on the square reserved for them between the stands, and took up their position with the assembled army in German uniforms.

The imperial German commander, Privy Councillor Wermuth, in court dress, bubbled over with American and German patriotism. The address of Harry Rubens, conveying a greeting to the representative of the German empire from their fellow countrymen in Chicago, was patriotic, but broken in two by the arrival of marching men. "Wacht am Rhine" was sung with fervor by the thousand voices and orchestral accompaniment. The response came from Baron von Hollenben, ambassador to the United States. The baron concluded his speech by calling for three cheers for the president of the United States, and they were given with a will.

The speakers nearly all the time faced the audience on the guests' platform, and only some few outside of the charmed circle could hear. More than 20,000 people left before the exercises were over because they could hear nothing and see little. Even the scholarly oration by Carl Schurz was interrupted, but those who heard him cheered and applauded every few minutes.

One of the unique features of the Midway Plaisance is the drummer in the street of Camel, who goes about on the back of a camel, pounding two peculiar looking kettle drums.

The manufacture of guns in the Government building is a process which is of special interest to those of a mechanical turn of mind.

The total attendance yesterday was 193,473. This includes free admission, the officials having decided that hereafter the total number passing through the turnstile shall be reported daily.

THE HEARING ILLEGAL.

Another Inquest Ordered in the Washington Disaster.

DR. SCHAEFFER HAD NO AUTHORITY

Only the Coroner Himself, Dr. Patterson, May Conduct an Inquest, and the Work Must be Done Again—The Old Jury Again Selected.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Under the ruling made by Chief Justice Bingham, of the district supreme court, yesterday, there is no such officer as a deputy coroner clothed with judicial power, and the application for a writ of mandamus against him, asked for by Colonel Ainsworth, chief of the record and pension bureau of the war department, was dismissed on that ground.

Justice Bingham in his decision said an examination of the law only established what he had never doubted—that the coroner in holding an inquest sat as a court, and was vested with the power and authority of a judicial officer. It was well proven that in the absence of express statutory provision such an official could not delegate his authority to another. Congress alone could authorize the transfer of such power.

The justice then addressed himself to the audience, among whom were a number of the clerks. He said it was important that they should understand that a coroner's court was not like a town meeting. However deplorable the circumstance might be, it was the duty of all to sit as good citizens and to pay respect to the law. Justice Bingham admonished the people to let the inquest be conducted in a quiet, orderly way by the coroner himself.

After the accident on Friday last Dr. Patterson asked Dr. Schaeffer to act for him at the inquest. Dr. Patterson said he was physically unable to conduct the inquest. His health was poor, he said, and his hearing imperfect. Dr. Patterson is very deaf and has reached old age, and for some time past Dr. Schaeffer has acted for him in important cases. In at least seven cases persons have been committed for manslaughter or murder on the warrant of Dr. Schaeffer, assuming to act as deputy coroner. All these commitments are now, of course, pronounced illegal. According to the decision of Chief Justice Bingham the coroner alone can act at inquests.

The commissioners of the district decided yesterday afternoon to order a new inquest over the victims of the disaster, and directed Mr. Thomas, the attorney for the district, to assist Coroner Patterson in conducting it. In view of Dr. Patterson's ill health the commissioners thought seriously of appointing a new coroner, but on Dr. Patterson's statement that he could conduct the inquest if Mr. Thomas were allowed to assist him the inquest was ordered. It was ascertained that the bodies of Messrs. Loftus and Fagan, two of the victims, were still in the vault at Glenwood cemetery, and the officers of the cemetery were directed not to inter them without permission of the coroner.

Dr. Patterson decided to resume the old jury, Messrs. Warner, Halvey, Ayre, Kellogg, Schneider and Sibley. One of the bodies at Glenwood was viewed by the jury this forenoon and the inquest begun anew.

Just how far the acts of Deputy Coroner Schaeffer prior to this decision will be invalidated, is rather a curious question. It is, however, believed, that nothing serious will result. This is due to a fortunate combination of circumstances, under which few, if any persons, have been committed to jail by him as deputy coroner, who escaped subsequent indictment by the grand jury. Nowhere can there be found any authority for appointment for a deputy coroner.

Pennsylvania Forestry Board.

BETHLEHEM, June 15.—The feature of yesterday afternoon's meeting of the state agricultural board was an essay entitled "A Plea for Forest Culture," by Hon. J. H. Hess, of Hellertown, and the discussion thereon participated in by nearly all the members. Professor Thomas Meehan, botanist of the board, of Germantown, delivered a talk about seeds. Last night Professor J. T. Rothrock, secretary of the Pennsylvania Forestry association, delivered an illustrated stereopticon lecture on "Relation of Forest Cover to the Surface of the Country."

Kalmoky's Peace Predictions.

VIENNA, June 15.—Count Kalmoky, the Austro-Hungarian prime minister, delivered another speech yesterday on the subject of peace. He declared that if the triple alliance had not brought about an ideal peace it was not the fault of the alliance, which was disposed to peace, though often menaced by war. In regard to Russia, no change of policy was necessary. Good relations with Russia could always be maintained. He could affirm that the czar and the Russian government were well disposed toward Austria.

Appointments and Dismissals.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—It is understood that the president will today appoint a large number of Indian agents and registers and receivers of local land offices. It is also expected that Secretary Hoke Smith will sign the dismissals of about sixty-eight clerks in the general land office. These dismissals are made obligatory upon the secretary by the act passed at the last session of congress, making appropriations for the general land office.

Race Track Arguments Finished.

THENTON, June 15.—The arguments before the supreme court in the race track cases were finished yesterday. The only incident of interest was the assertion of Senator Adrian, who is of counsel for the tracks, that betting was not immoral. Making this assertion a central premise he argued around it for an hour. John R. Emery made the last address to the court. Decision was reserved.

A Defaulting Postmaster Decapitated.

LONG BRANCH, June 15.—Postmaster Charles B. Woolley, who was appointed three years ago to the postmastership of Long Branch City, has suddenly disappeared. Assistant Inspector Parham, of New York, has been examining Woolley's accounts, and has discovered a shortage of $2,080. Woolley's habits were regular and his deficiency cannot be accounted for.

Pugilist Fatally Shot.

VISALIA, Cal., June 15.—William Matthews, night clerk of the Visalia hotel, was shot five times and fatally wounded by William Ammus, who escaped. Matthews some time ago was arrested charged with assaulting a little sister of Ammus, but was dismissed. Matthews was a native of Australia, 26 years old, and a professional pugilist.

THE DANGER OF TO-DAY.

Scores of Eminent Men the Victims

Spontaneous Praise for the Best of All Treatment.

Frequently we read of some splendid professional or business man or woman dropping out of life through nervous prostration and Bright's disease, and indeed the number that succumb to these growing maladies has increased alarmingly of late. Eminent medical men agree that this is chiefly owing to overworking the brain and neglect. If some preventive measures were taken instead of letting everything go, the evil would at once be corrected. When indigestion makes itself known then is the time to act, not wait until the blood is poisoned by excess of uric acid which leads to prostration and disease. "It would have been a great deal easier," remarked one of our well-known physicians the other day, as he dismissed a number of patients, "if they had taken Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy when they first discovered that their food did not digest well. A spoonful after each meal for a few days would have corrected their trouble."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, is the only medicine that dissolves the excess of uric acid in the blood; so many troubles are brought about from this one cause, rheumatism, dyspepsia, diabetes, kidney and liver complaint, urinary trouble and the sicknesses that women suffer from, all come from one source.

A notable instance comes to our mind of a gentleman well known in Washington, Mr. F. J. Kimbark, manager of the Century Press Company of No. 208 Seventh street Southwest, and for years deputy grace master I. O. O. F. for the district of Ulster and Delaware, N. Y. In conversation about Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy he said "He suffered for years with the most agonizing indigestion and cramps. Favorite Remedy was suggested to him and that he used it but a short while when the old trouble entirely disappeared and that he had never had a return of the old trouble since."

Commander James S. Dean, of General Grant Post, G. A. R., Rondout, N. Y., says: "It's the best medicine I ever used. While in the army I contracted an aggravated stomach trouble which hung on me for years. Physicians without number prescribed but to no purpose. After using Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy a week I felt better and a few bottles cured me."

Mr. C. L. Seaver, of Birmingham, Conn., suffered from Bright's disease and rheumatism near the heart. "My attending physician," said Mr. Seaver, "said I could not live. I then asked him if he thought Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy would help me? He said he had heard it well spoken of and I had better try it. The result was I am sound and well to-day, and what's more, I have since then recommended it to upward of 300 people and have yet to find a person it has not helped."

It is a remedy that appeals to the common sense of people by striking at the root of the disease; life and health will not permit of trifling. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy cures where a cure is possible. Physicians prescribe it and all medicine dealers sell it.

Mrs. Bertha Guigue, mother of Peter Guigue, the florist, was taken with a fit on Sunday, and fell, dislocating her hip. She is under the care of Dr. W. F. Tracey. She is quite aged, and her condition is considered very dangerous.

At Hartford.

Only the lower branch of the General Assembly held a session Tuesday, the senators being at Narragansett Bay on invitation of Senator Milner as the guests of the Popham club. There was favorably reported a bill creating county health officers, one for each county in the state. They are to be appointed by the Governor on the recommendation of the state health board.

The county health officer is empowered to appoint deputies for each town not having a city or borough form of government. For each day's actual service the county officer is to receive $10 and the deputies $3. The act took the usual course, being tabled for calendar and printing. Its immediate inspiration is said to be the fear of an invasion of cholera this summer.

A bill incorporating the New Haven Street Railway company was passed. This corporation absorbs most of the old lines. There were also passed acts incorporating the Milford Land and Cottage company and the Jewett City and Western Steam Railroad company.

Elliot B. Sumner was appointed judge and Andrew J. Boyden clerk of the Willimantic City court. Favorable action was taken on the bill establishing the fire limits of Westport.

The most important bill acted upon was the authorizing cities and municipalities to establish plants for the manufacture of gas or electricity. It went through without opposition, rather to the surprise of a number of the members. If it becomes a law it will enable cities to erect works for supplying illumination to their residents in competition with the private corporations now controlling the business. That the corporations should not have fought the measure or that it should not have provoked the same degree of controversy as would have most likely confronted a proposition to place water works and street railway lines under municipal control is regarded as singular.

The health officers provided for in the bill favorably reported are to have the power of the grand jurors in prosecuting cases.

The bill providing that the Railroad commissioners be appointed a special commission to act upon railroad improvements in Bridgeport was on the Senate calendar for action Wednesday. In the absence of Chairman Houlihan it was on motion of Pierce laid over until to-day. Mr. Pierce said that it appeared to him proper to go slow on a matter which had seemingly evoked the opposition of 4,000 of Bridgeport's residents. Houlihan subsequently arrived and said he had no objection to delay.

At his suggestion the bill was made the special order for next Wednesday at 11 o'clock.

The bill providing for the election of County Commissioners by the people was called from the table where it had been for the past two months, on the favorable minority report of the Judiciary committee. After considerable discussion it went over until to-day on motion of Root.

The following matters on the calendar were passed: Incorporating Shelton Savings bank; act against fishing nets, seines and weirs for unlawful fishing purposes; incorporating Connecticut Land and Improvement company of Bridgeport; incorporating Shelton Street Railroad Co.; the D. C. and M. M. R. club of Fairfield.

In the House the two reports on the Corrupt practices act were taken up. Stoddard, of Milford, vigorously attacked the bill contained in the majority report, saying it was impossible for the ordinary citizen to comprehend it after a careful perusal. He had read it himself and was puzzled as to its import in certain respects. One clause he objected to was that limiting a candidate for Governor to the expenditure of $600 for election expenses.

Mr. Stoddard argued that there were instances in which he might legitimately expend a great deal more in the dissemination of literature and other means for the enlightenment of voters. Both bills were ordered printed in the session laws and continued to the next session of the General Assembly.

Favorable action was taken on the bill creating a naval reserve force, one company to be located in Bridgeport, although Lounsbury of Darien made a strong speech in opposition. His motion to indefinitely postpone was lost by a vote of 86 to 72. The Military committee reported a bill providing for a representative of the state government on Connecticut day at the World's Fair in October. They recommended that the party consist of the Governor and staff, Lieut. Governor, the U. S. Senators and representatives in Congress, one state senator and two representatives from each county, the speaker of the House and clerks of both Houses, one regiment of the Conn. National guard and one company of the Governor's guards. The state is to pay the expenses—eight days for the military and 12 days for the civic officials.

The bills pertaining to horse railroad matters in Bridgeport were tabled until to-day.

Don't Waste the Water.

The Water Commissioners of the Borough elsewhere give notice to the water consumers on the line of the Borough water works, of the necessity of an economical use of the Borough water during these summer months. The limited pipe capacity in conveying the water from the storage reservoirs render a careful use, during the heated term, of the utmost importance. While our reservoirs at the present time are full, the main pipe is inadequate for supplying the daily consumption. Water should be carefully used and not wasted. Leaky faucets should be made tight and closets not allowed to run only while in use, and all outside sprinkling restricted to the hours laid down in the rules and regulations. The Commissioners hope, with proper carefulness on the part of consumers, to keep all legitimate wants for water supplied throughout the summer. The demand and use of water is now greatly more than expected when our works were constructed, and until they are enlarged we shall be compelled to exercise a careful use of the Borough water.

My Wife Said

to me last night: How much do you suppose we have paid out for doctors and medicine in the last year? I told her I did not know. To doctors I have paid nothing, and five dollars' worth of Sulphur Bitters has kept health in our family.—L. Andrews, 12 Bowdoin street, Boston.

A Brutal Husband.

Anthony Hatchford, a big strapping fellow, living in Danbury, ordered his wife to cut some wood, and as she didn't go quickly enough to suit him, he struck her in the face, knocking her down and causing her to become unconscious. He then ordered her to get up and cut the wood or he would knock her brains out with a club. Hatchford was arrested, and escaped with the light sentence of sixty days in jail. The whipping-post ought to be revived for such brutes.

Found Dead.

Last evening a person giving the name of G. R. Thompson registered at Hunt's hotel, and desired to be called in season to take the 12 p. m. train for Chicago. Being unable to awake him, the room was entered by means of the ventilator over the door, when the gentleman was found to be dead. He was advertising agent for Sulphur Bitters, which has an extensive sale. The coroner returned a verdict of death from heart disease. His body will be sent east immediately.—Cin. Commercial.

Chosen Imperial Captain.

Thad. B. Beecher, the genial potentate of Pyramid temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Bridgeport, had another honor thrust upon him yesterday afternoon. At a meeting of the Imperial council of the Shrine held in Cincinnati he was elected imperial captain of the guard.

Mr. Beecher is one of the best known Shriners in the United States. His many friends will be glad to learn of his elevation. He has made Pyramid temple one of the foremost of the order. Thomas J. Hudson, Pittsburg, was elected imperial potentate; Chas. L. Field, San Francisco, deputy imperial potentate and Frank Locke, Boston, chief Habbani.

Danbury Policeman Fined.

In the court of Common Pleas at Bridgeport Wednesday, the case against officer John H. Freeland, of the Danbury police force was heard. Freeland was charged with assaulting John Hines, a driver for the Danbury Horse Railroad. Several months ago the officer boarded a car with a prisoner. Hines was driving and demanded that the officer pay a fare for the prisoner. A dispute followed and Freeland struck the driver over the head with a club and then placed him under arrest. Freeland was arrested on complaint of Hines and fined $25 in the lower court.

The jury found Freeland guilty and Judge Walsh fined him $50 and one day's cost of witnesses.

Freeland testified on the stand that when Hines was down on the ground crying out in pain he, Freeland, clubbed him to make him shut up.

A Puzzler.

"Kip" Benedict returned to Norwalk a few weeks ago after a siege of sickness in the hospital. He is a painter and a war veteran. During Mr. Benedict's absence a Painters' Union had been formed in town. On his arrival here he was requested to join the Union and signified his willingness to do so by placing the amount of the initiation fee in the hands of one of the members. In the meantime he had gone to work for the J. T. Frowitt Co., and later for George H. Osterbanks pending action on his admission to the Union which he and his friends confidently believed would be favorably decided upon. He was greatly surprised on Tuesday morning to learn that he had been refused admission, and his money was returned. He was not told even for what reason such action had been taken. Possibly the Union has just cause for their action, but why they should discriminate in Mr. Benedict's case, and he acknowledge to be a skilled workman and take in those of far less ability, is a puzzler, and should at least be explained to the victim of their disapprobation.

Connecticut Episcopalians.

At the Episcopal convention, treasurer F. J. Kingsbury read his report, which shows receipts of $1,587.50 and expenses of $2,105.99, leaving a balance on hand of $2,276.81. The balance at the beginning of the year was $2,795.20. The bishop's fund shows receipts of $12,306 and disbursements, including loans and the bishop's salary of $5000, were about $11,800, leaving a balance on hand of $459.10. The fund amounts to $100,000. The report of the trustees of the fund for aged and infirm clergy showed receipts from parishes of $3,475.98, and total of $15,421.83. The amount paid to beneficiaries was $5,100. The fund now amounts to about $40,000.

In his address Bishop Williams said in reference to the Book of Common Prayer: "To the use of every clergyman of either of the orders of the ministry is bound by the declaration which he makes at the time of his ordination, as well as by his additional promises. The options that are given in it are, of course, left to his own discretion. But beyond this the book is of no binding authority. No individual preferences of bishops, presbyters, deacons, parishes, or even of candidates for holy orders and lay readers, can discharge this obligation."

The members of the standing committee of the diocese elected were: The Rev. William Tatlock, Samuel Hart, Storrs O. Seymour, E. S. Lines and Henry W. Sherman.

The committee on constitution and canons reported adversely on the memorial from the Fairfield County Clerical association in regard to the relief of the aged and infirm clergy, and a vote was then passed raising a special committee to take into consideration the establishment of a permanent fund for the aged and infirm clergy of the diocese. The committee appointed was: The Rev. Edwin Harwood, the Rev. Beverley E. Warner, the Rev. John Binney, the Hon. D. W. Pardee and W. W. Skidd.

The motion for the appointment of a committee having for its object the distribution of the Book of Common Prayer and to consider the bishop's address upon the subject was passed. The committee appointed was the Rev. E. S. Lines, the Rev. M. K. Bailey and Robert H. Curtis.

The following were elected to fill vacancies: Jacob L. Greene, member of the board of trustees of the Berkeley divinity school; Lester Bradley, trustee of the bishop's fund; Wildbur F. Day, auditor; the Rev. J. E. Wilbur and George M. Curtis, trustees of the Episcopal academy, and the Rev. Dr. W. G. Andrews, trustee of the fund for the aged and infirm clergy.

James Allen, of Bridgeport, was found dead in bed Saturday morning.

Rev. George I. Wood, of Washington, is visiting his niece, Mrs. James T. Hubble.

Mrs. Bertha Guigue, who fell the other day and dislocated her hip, is getting along as well as could be expected, when the fact that she is 88 years of age is taken into consideration.

John Foley is wearing a gold watch that he claims belonged to his grandfather and has been laid away in a trunk for over twenty years. Those who claim to know say that the watch is of recent manufacture.

Charles J. Ferriss, the expressman, is out to-day with a handsome new express wagon. The best part of it all is that he built it himself, after getting through his regular duties. It is a creditable piece of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hobbs of Colorado arrived in town last evening, and are visiting Mr. Hobbs' mother. Before they return to Colorado they will make an extended visit in Chicago. This is Mr. Hobbs' first trip to Norwalk in five years.

It now transpires that the tramp who was taken to the Alms House under the supposition that he had the chills and fever, was in reality sick with typhoid fever. He is now convalescent and it is believed will pull through all right.

A horse belonging to Mrs. Peter W. Mead of New Canaan was taken sick with the colic while being driven from South Norwalk to Norwalk Wednesday afternoon. The animal was unhitched and taken into a yard on Belden avenue where after a short time he recovered.

The County Commissioners have appointed Theodore Leeds, of Stamford, county treasurer, vice Walter C. Quintard of South Norwalk, who it is understood retires voluntarily on account of old age. Mr. Quintard has been county treasurer for thirty-two consecutive years.

A hearing in the matter of amending the charter of the Norwalk Horse Railway company was had before the legislative committee in Hartford Wednesday. The amendment would permit of the double tracking of the road its entire length. This was objected to so far as the laying of an extra track through Wall street was a part of the amendment. The amendment also asks for permission to use electricity as a motive power. It is believed that permission only for double tracking the road south from Belden avenue will be entertained.

The Gold Cure.

A New Haven dispatch says that the management of the Keeley institute in West Haven is negotiating for property in South Norwalk and Norwich and expect to establish institutes in those two places.

Sudden Death.

A young man named James Gaffney, was found dead in bed, Wednesday afternoon, at the home of his uncle Charles McQuillan, on the Step Rock road, by his aunt Mrs. Patrick Hyland. He was about 30 years of age. Gaffney was a hatter, but for the past two years had not worked at his trade. Of late he had complained of being in poor health, but was about the streets every day. He ate his dinner as usual on Wednesday, after which he remarked that he was not feeling very well, and would take a nap. About an hour after he was found dead on the bed as above stated.

Medical examiner Burke who was summoned, and made an examination, found that Gaffney had died of heart failure caused by alcoholism.

Discontented Railroaders.

EASTON, June 15.—It is said that the employees of the Central Railroad of New Jersey are dissatisfied with the treatment their representative received from President Maxwell when grievances were presented to him two weeks ago. It is learned that he asked for time to consider the request, and then after a week asked for further postponement. The men have been getting ready for the presentation of grievances for months. They are thoroughly organized and say they mean to push their claims.

Dr. McGlynn and the Pope.

LONDON, June 15.—A correspondent in Rome telegraphs that his holiness has given a long audience to Dr. McGlynn. It was very cordial. Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, and Cardinal Sechiowski, the prefect of the propaganda, were extremely courteous to the doctor. Dr. McGlynn was enchanted with his reception and his complete reconciliation with the pope, and left last night after a five days' sojourn at Rome.

The gates were not in working order and Mr. Clark's horse stood on the East bound track, while the train was waiting for the switch engine to pass, not noticing the "Ghost" train, which was almost on top of him. The engineer blew his whistle just as the wagon left the track the train passing within a foot of the end of the vehicle.

A MONASTERY CLOSED

And Monks Arrested for Robbing a Church of Ornaments in Moscow.

MOSCOW, June 18.—The recent robbery of valuable church ornaments, gold vessels, etc., from the famous Tichodova monastery on the anniversary of the czar's coronation, when the articles were used at the anniversary ceremonial, has led to the discovery of a disgraceful case of affairs at the monastery.

The police, suspecting that the monks were implicated in the robbery, searched the monastery, and found nearly all the stolen property hidden in the monks' cells. The chief articles were gorgeous vestments, only worn on rare occasions, which were richly incrustured with diamonds and pearls, but when the vestments were recovered all the jewels had been torn out. A fact still more deplorable was the discovery that a number of women were living secretly with the monks.

The police arrested all the monks and closed up the monastery, and the culprits are expected to be condemned to the Siberian mines.

DREADFUL POORIASIS

Covering Entire Body with White Scales. Suffering Fearful.

Cured by CUTICURA.

My disease (pooriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely baldheaded. It then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body; my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scale fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I cannot tell you a pen can ever express how I feel before using the REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight.

idates for the secretaryship, to succeed Mr. Humphrey, of New York, who resigns to look after his business enterprises: James G. Burke, of Pennsylvania; ex-Congressman Allen, of Michigan; W. R. Riley, of Kentucky and Henry Teipke, of Rhode Island. The western men favor the selection of Chicago as the headquarters of the league, and they are confident of a majority as against the supporters of Washington.

Domestic Trouble and Suicide.

MASON, Mich., June 16.—This city is greatly excited over the suicide of Mrs. Ed Curry and the subsequent attempt of her husband to follow suit. Mrs. Curry, who has been taking morphine for the past two or three weeks to quiet her nerves, took a dose with suicidal intent and died soon afterwards. Shortly afterward Ed Curry, the woman's husband, was found in an unconscious condition from the same cause, but may recover. Mrs. Curry's suicide is attributed to domestic troubles, and it is supposed remorse led to Curry's attempt on his own life.

Court Not to be Used to Extort Money.
NEW YORK, June 16.—Thomas C. Gross, treasurer of the Long Island Land company, who some time ago was arrested on a charge that he had embezzled $6,000 of the company's money, was discharged by Justice Ingraham of the supreme court. It was asserted that the arrest was for the purpose of making Gross pay $500 on promissory notes. Justice Ingraham in emphatic language said he could not countenance an order of arrest issued for the purpose of extorting money.
