

Horse Greeley's estate will prove much more valuable than has been supposed. Instead of being worth but $25,000 or $30,000, as was thought a short time after his death, it probably represents a value of about $150,000, quite enough to render his daughters comfortable.

The Springfield Republican says of the Congressional Council: "But how much better it would have been, how much simpler and more business-like, to insert in the secular and religious papers some such little advertisement as this: 'Whereas the mouth of the board without just cause, this is to give notice that we the Clinton Avenue church and church of the pilgrims, Brooklyn, N. Y., will not be responsible hereafter for any ecclesiastical doctrinal or moral debts of her contracting.' We can't see why this would not have answered every practical purpose."

Minister Jewell has secured a very important treaty with the Russian government for the protection of American trademarks. Russia has long been a rich and easily worked market for imitation goods, and hitherto it has been found impossible to induce her government to interfere. Minister Jewell however, with his practical knowledge of business, has been able to make the case so plain that the czar has consented to protect his subjects from the imposition of cheap goods under false pretences. This success is the more gratifying, for no state in the Union will profit more from this little regulation than the little state of Connecticut.

The annual race between the Oxford and Cambridge crews came off March 28, over the usual course on the Thames, from Putney to Mortlake, distance four miles and two furlongs, and resulted in a victory for the Cambridge boat, which came in two lengths ahead. The weather was beautiful and crowd unprecedented. Cambridge won the choice of position and selected the Middlesex, or northern side. The Oxford crew rowed into the stream at one minute past 11 o'clock. Five minutes later the Cambridge boat appeared and was greeted with cheers. Betting was 5 to 2 in favor of Cambridge. At 14 minutes past 11 the signal to start was given, and the boats got away. After an exciting contest Cambridge reached Mortlake at 37 minutes and 35 seconds past 11, winning the race in 23 minutes and 35 seconds.

A great many hitherto staunch Republicans are now saying, "I don't know whether I am a Republican or not, but if I were not for the Democratic party I would soon know." That is the trouble: a man disgraced or dissatisfied with the party has no place to go. It was thought at one time, that the Liberal movement might make a nucleus, rising as it did, in opposition to the party of corruption and decay. But there is no use in talking about "ifs," the "coalition" did not satisfy the demands of the times. It neither gave victory to the Democrats, nor opened up a way to the reform that was demanded. But the time is ripe for a new party and it will come. The effort to work out reform in the dominant party, judging from the promises of the past, and the actions of the present, has proved a failure, and were it not that it would be accepting a greater evil than that which we already have, it would have been seen from the beginning that the elements of which it is composed, are the best portion of the country, but a majority of the leaders and office holders, instead of carrying out the measures for which they were elected, forget what they owe to their constituency, and use their places and power to gratify personal ambition, believing that the hatred to the Democratic party will prevent those who may not be satisfied with their actions from voting for the reinstatement of that party to power. In this they have been successful, but the time has come when this confidence must be dispelled, and the truth forced upon the people, and a party of a new kind must be made. The party which is fast losing its power, and votes will be cast in State and federal elections as they are in town elections, for the best man irrespective of party,—trusting to that to legislate for the best interests of the State and country. Platforms and Resolutions read well, and promise good things, but they have come to be looked upon as almost meaningless in reality. In our State both parties have platforms that are sound enough for any man to stand on, and if the election of the candidates would insure the fulfillment of these promises, we should have no objection to their being adopted. We want that decided on this earth. We want no scheming politicians for State officers nor legislators but honest, fair-minded men; men that will act out the dictates of their conscience. Elect such men, and we will have good laws, an honest administration and an end to corruption and fraud.

Work on the new depot of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, at New Haven, will commence in a few days. Preparations are being made to resume. It is expected the structure will be completed by October next. It is not yet determined whether the brick work and the joiner work for the superstructure will be let out on contract, or performed by the workmen in the employ of the company.

The Rev. Phoebe A. Hanford, of New Haven, publishes a story that Mrs. Lillian M. Freeman, the woman who recently murdered her sister at Farmington, was found on the bank of the river at New Haven, one day in July, 1870, about to drown herself, where she said she had been at work, but could not earn her living; and she seemed to grow weaker and weaker. Mrs. Hanford had been living in New Haven with a man not her husband, and on being accused of it she fell on her knees before Mrs. Hanford and told a pitiful story, declaring that she was forced to marry Freeman while unconscious. On leaving New Haven, she pretended to be going to New Britain, where a divorce from her husband was pending, but she really went to live with him.

Obituary—Ransom Lyon. Died in Easton, Ct., March 24, Ransom Lyon, Esq., after a lingering sickness of over a year. Mr. Lyon was the father of our citizen F. S. Lyon, and also Wesley Lyon, Esq., of Westport. He was a gentleman of no inconsiderable attainments, and an influential citizen. Although repeatedly offered positions of honor and trust he steadily refused, preferring to do good at home and among his neighbors, rather than seek personal distinction. For over half a century his help was received and counsel obtained in the plans for the advancement of the public welfare of his town, and although a man of seventy-one years of age, his activity was unabated until his death. His death, sincerely mourned by a large circle, has truly left a vacant place in the hearts and councils of his friends.

The annual meeting of the 2d M. E. Church Society is to be held on Monday, the 8th of April. The object of the meeting is to elect officers for the ensuing year, and to hear and act upon the report of the committee, and to transact any other business deemed desirable by the society. A full attendance is desired. The meeting will be held at the residence of Frank Mend. A large concourse of friends were present.

Fred St. John Lockwood contemplates erecting a fine residence near the boarding school of C. E. Beldock, on East A. Street. Opinions were expressed by his relatives here already being in a holiday.

One of the largest and most respectable audiences ever assembled in Military Hall, greeted Rev. James Powell, on Wednesday evening last, and listened attentively for an hour and a half to that gentleman's description of places and men in and of the city of London. The lecture was given under the auspices of the South Norwalk District Club, of which Rev. Powell is a member; and was most fitting and triumphant closing of his winter's exercises. John Hill, M. D., President of the club, occupied the chair, and Rev. H. N. Dunning, R. H. Rowan, Esq., and Gen. Thomas Guyer, acted as Vice Presidents. Dr. Hill introduced the speaker in a neat little speech, complimenting the club upon its success the past winter, and predicting for it a wider field and greater usefulness in the future, and assured the audience he felt that they would be well repaid for their attendance in the pleasure and information they would derive from the lecture.

Mr. Powell prefaced his remarks with an explanation that he did not expect, when he was asked, and consented to speak to the public, to confront a large audience in a public hall, but that he had no apologies to offer, for if he did he would occupy about the same position as the housewife who apologized for the biscuit and pudding, when they were probably as good as she could make. He would try and talk to them in a conversational manner, and act as their guide in a visit to London and some of its most interesting and historic places and men. He first alluded to the beautiful appearance of its inhabitants, its good features and its bad ones, its advantages and disadvantages, its virtues and its vices, and then carried his audience to St. Paul's Cathedral, and for the first time many, no doubt, were impressed with its magnitude. Five hundred feet in length, two hundred and eighty six feet in width, and four hundred feet in height, from the floor to the top of the cross surmounting it, were dimensions that were brought out in all their grandeur by his vivid descriptions. The Tower of London, with its massive walls, gloomy dungeons, its numerous beheading blocks, barbaric relics, and extravagant appendages to royalty were truthfully portrayed. Next Westminster Abbey and the House of Parliament were minutely described. The imitation of the manner of speech of the members of Parliament was mirth provoking. He gave an outline of the British Museum, sufficient to convey a good idea of its importance, and passed to Dr. Cummings Church and Spurgeon's Tabernacle, describing these places of worship, and gave his impressions of these celebrated divines, the first of whom disappointed him. Of Mr. Spurgeon he spoke at length, giving a list of his great power over his audiences; his personal appearance and tastes, and wound up with Gladstone, whom he considered England's greatest and noblest man. We can but thus give a brief outline of the discourse, which was delivered in an easy and pleasant manner, and which held the audience as if spell bound, for an hour and a half.

The young ladies of Cheshire have organized a secret society. A fine side-aidle has been provided for the traditional initiating coat.

Dr. P. A. Jewett performed the delicate operation of removing nearly the entire lower jaw of a patient named Matthews, at the New Haven hospital, Wednesday.

A new freight line, consisting of barges towed by steamers, will run every other day between New Haven and New York, the coming season, beginning April 1.

It is reported that five lady teachers are to be led to the altar hymenially immediately after the spring vacation.

The Congregational church and society at Stafford had noted to give to Rev. C. C. Painter, who has supplied their pulpit since last November, a call, with salary of $1,200 and the use of parsonage, with three Sabbaths' vacation. The call was fully unanimous on the part of church and society, and there is an earnest desire felt that it may be accepted.

A Thompsonville young man recently had a narrow escape from matrimony. Applying to the town clerk for the necessary credentials, that officer ascertained that the candidate lacked just two days of being 21 years of age, and accordingly advised him to wait. He waited, but when he called again to the town clerk was in New York. Fatal delay! For on the clerk's return the young man and his intended had both decided that they would not marry.

The two men, Charles O'Brien and Thomas Clark, who were arrested in Ansonia, on Friday, on suspicion of being the masked robbers who made a murderous assault upon Charles H. Pickett, of Seymour, one day last week, had an examination on Monday and Tuesday, at Seymour, and sufficient evidence was found against them to bind them over for trial before the superior court in the sum of $1,500 each.

An officer of the New York and Easton railroad company, says that matters are progressing quietly but effectually for the success of the enterprise, and that it is expected the work of actual construction will be commenced next summer. Arrangements have been perfected with the Derby road whereby the privilege of running into New Haven on their line from the Arlington cut is secured.

Our enterprising fellow townsman, A. Knapp, Esq., may justly feel a pride in his immensely stocked and well arranged grocery store. We feel confident that his pride in the results of his industry in the city, knowing full well that no establishment of the kind, either in city or town, is better or more fully stocked with goods in the grocery line. In addition to his large stock of groceries, Mr. Knapp keeps on hand in great variety, crockery, glassware, and a fine assortment of children's carriages; one room on the second floor being specially devoted to this branch of trade. Another room on the same floor is filled with goods of various kinds, held in reserve that the busy season below may be able to meet the wants of customers. The cellar is also filled with provisions, groceries, and farmers' produce. In fact, from the enormous quantity of goods on hand in these "lower regions," you would be led to suppose that the proprietor was engaged in the wholesale trade. Mr. Knapp pays particular attention to the selection of teas, none but the best being kept in his store, and buying in large quantities, he is enabled to sell at moderate prices. One of the principal attractions of this concern are the show windows, which, by the good taste of the head assistant, Mr. Morehouse, present a really beautiful appearance. The windows are really filled with the various kinds of canned fruits, jellies, spices, fancy goods, crockery, glass ware and many elegant patterns of lamps and shades. Washington street pedestrians involuntarily stop and admire this fine exhibition. We do but simple justice to Mr. Knapp in thus briefly alluding to his store, feeling that such endeavors on his part to please the public should be duly appreciated.

Good old Mr. Smithson of this place, recently suspected one of his hens of stealing her nest away from him. He had tried to watch her, but she managed to elude him every time. The other day he took it into his head to find that hen's nest, or bust, by gravity. After pulling down three rods of stone wall, tipping over several hay stacks, wading through briars and brambles, cutting down old hollow trees, and traversing every spot of ground within a mile of his house, he was rewarded by finding the nest; but alas! its only contents was a "bad egg." Mad and disgusted he returned home, and with lacinated hands, torn clothing, the preparation running from every pore, he told his wife of what had transpired, and then went up stairs and talked in an incoherent strain about that hen's head and a cooking pot.

The annual meeting of the Bible Society of Norwalk and vicinity, was held in the Second M. E. Church on Sunday evening last. A large concourse of those who felt an interest in the society were present. The singing of the choir was of a fine order, consisting, as it did, of choice and appropriate selections for the occasion. The annual report of the Secretary of the society which was read, was unusually interesting, and was followed by the report of M. N. Olmstead, Missionary, who gave a full and complete account of his labors in that field, connected with the travels of Mr. Olmstead. Appropriate and edifying addresses were delivered by Messrs. Hamilton, Bentley and Hill. The Bible Society has been organized fourteen years and during that period has accumulated a large number of members, who have the welfare of religion at heart, and a growing interest is manifested in the society. Coupled with the laudatory and zealous interest Mr. M. N. Olmstead has shown in his missionary work, there cannot help but be a bright reward somewhere on the celestial shores of the hereafter.

Remember, one and all, that the election of State officers, senators, etc., takes place on Monday next. Be prepared to do your duty and act on the square, and let there be no more of those "whispering politicians" who do not allow themselves to be influenced by irresponsible and sordid politicians, but follow the dictates of their own ideas. Vote for men who will not stop to do that which will in a measure benefit themselves and no one else. We've dealt in this stock long enough. Such candidates are in fact unfit to hold offices of trust, and ought to be stuffed into a cannon's mouth and discharged at those who worked to get them elected to such offices. We have had enough of this dishonesty. What we now want is men who know and who appreciate the worth of honesty, and who have the real interest of State, town and people at stake, and will work to attain that end. Do not be persuaded into voting for unft candidates, by promises or drinks, cigars, etc. We don't advise you what particular candidates to vote for, but ask that you will endeavor to elect those who will work for the interest of the people,—you know who such men are, at least we do. Let the voting men of Norwalk put their shoulders to the great political wheel, so that every revolve will crush to atoms unft candidates who have been nominated to fill responsible offices merely for the sake of money. Finally, let's lounge around the polls all day, and wrangle, and indulge in petty arguments relative to the respective merits of the various candidates, it won't elect them, and you may have to go home to your family with an improved carbuncle planted somewhere about your eyes.

At the Republican caucus, meeting held at Lockwood's Hall on Wednesday evening last week, Moses Hill was nominated for Representative.

We have noticed that when our shop girls get paid off they start for the nearest dry goods establishment, while the men invariably fetch up in a saloon.

We are pleased to state that the Horse Railway Company are now running an early horse car, to connect with the first morning train to New York.

The names of ninety-six electors have been entered upon the Registry books of the town, this spring, of which the greater number are supposed to be Democrats.

Concord Division are busily engaged in making arrangements for their appreciative ball entertainments, which are advertised to take place next week.

Several houses in various parts of the town are replete with an exquisite dab of paint, and are smiling, so to speak, like a coy maid from under her "sun down."

The good old days of base ball playing begin to creep on apace, and to see a fellow with a bugged eye, swollen head, sprain ankle, and a dislocated thumb, will soon be no common thing.

Mr. Langdon, of New York, is erecting a very fine summer residence on what is known as Half-Hill-Island. Extensive improvements in the way of grading, etc., are also going on.

L. I. Allen, owner of fast horses, and big better on their respective "git up and git," has not gone to Florida for recreation, but has sought fresh fields and pastures, new somewhere in the backwoods of Huckleberry Hill.

Messrs. Tullis & Dako have made a general overhauling and much improved the coal yard purchased of Meeker Brothers. The new firm seem to be endowed with spunk and enterprise, and we wish them success.

The superb new monument to the memory of the late Le Grand Lockwood has been finished and placed in order. Its glittering brilliancy is enough to make the dead rise and stand aghast with speechless admiration.

A Merwintz tooth says the most uncomfortable thing he knows of, is to sit at property a pretty girl on a hot day, with a plate of hot soup, a large moustache and no handkerchief.

The steam fire engine, Phoenix, which was sent to Pawtucket, R. I., a few weeks since, to undergo several needed repairs, arrived home last week Friday, much improved by the operations performed upon her.

It is said that Joseph F. Foote respectfully declined to be nominated Justice of the Peace, at a Republican meeting held last week. This is passing strange, and we shall pass it by as one of the inscrutable mysteries which are constantly appearing never to be solved by human wisdom.

The painting and decorating in the St. Paul's Church is completed and seems to give universal satisfaction, and much praise is attributed to our townsman, Mr. Schnell, under whose supervision the work has been so greatly successful.

Lambert & Brink, Raymond & Pardee and Rockwell Bros. are doing a rushing business in the dry goods line this spring, and judging from the inducements they hold out, it will pay the Norwalk people to drive up and give them a call.

The "elite" assembled at the residence of Mrs. Fannie T. Husted, on Monday evening, and enjoyed themselves to their hearts content, after a tripping the light fantastic's soot, until tired limbs could respond no longer, they pronounced it the party of the season.

The donation for the benefit of Rev. E. S. Raymond, pastor of the Baptist Church, of this place, which was held at the residence of Mr. James T. Husted, on the evening of Wednesday, 28th, was a very enjoyable affair, and judging from the amount of greenbacks and other commodities distributed, it is presumed that the worthy pastor was pleased with the result.

The Norwalk correspondent of the South Norwalk Sentinel, says:—"The tour for the first time since its advent here, has been completed to make a retraction. The statement is not correct. The correction made was not compulsory, neither was it a retraction.—Tour Just so; and it is only when you come to extremities that there is necessity of making "both ends meet." It's too thin, sonny. What is meant by saying—"We are perfectly satisfied with the explanation, and gladly make a correction?"

We take it for granted that most of the people of Norwalk know Stephen Mills, and at the risk of getting ourselves into a bit of unpleasantness, we propose to relate a little incident in the career of Stephen. In his youthful days, Steve conceived the idea that a sprinkling of religion would be beneficial to him, and he consequently began to seek for it in an earnest manner. On one particular occasion, Stephen was called upon to invoke divine mercy, but felt some embarrassment, and was loth to get down on all fours, but finally the good spirit mastered, and Steve with trembling voice commenced—"There is my poor old father going down to hell—God snatch him. And there is my mother going to hell—God snatch her. And there are my relatives (calling their names) going down to hell—God snake 'em out of it." And this completed the prayer.
