NO PAY! NO PAPER!
The State Agricultural Society will hold a four days' fair at Charter Oak Park, September 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th. The Elm street brick has been secured for the display of fruit, flowers and fancy articles. Railroads in the State will make important reductions from regular rates on the transportation of stock to and from the fair.

M. Cerneau was present at a recent ball of the American minister in Paris, and was so delighted with the beauty of our American ladies present that he asked General Noyse for his list, and he has sent invitations to all the names on it for his own ball, given May 13, in his magnificent house in the Park Menesca.

The Chicago Times says that B. B. Ingersoll has not been heard from much lately. He is supposed to be quietly maturing a plan to get out a writ of injunction against the Creator, unseat him, take his place, and create the world over again, in accordance with advanced ideas.

The would-be assassin of the German emperor expected to be made a great sensation. About a week before his attempt, he let it out to a photographer, asking to be photographed. When he received his likeness he said to the artist that the latter should take a number of copies of his portrait as he would do a good business with them, for within a week he would be no more, but his death would run like an electric spark through the universe.

The Democratic members of the Potter committee are getting sick of the proposed investigation, and in private conversation say they did not realize when an elephant they had on their hands. They have been informed as to the nature of the testimony which will be offered, and the weak ones of it disgusts some of the members. It is coming to the attention of the Democrats of the House that the investigation will die a quick death, and that its labors will cease as soon as Congress adjourns.

Mr. Clarkson N. Potter the pseudo-father of the presidential investigation-resolution has written a letter to a blank clergyman, expiring his resolution, and claiming that while there is no legal question as to the title, the committee may "intend" one. He doesn't want resolution, but thinks if eyes can be cussed by some sort of a Democratic invention, that will accomplish it without disturbance. The nicest part he makes is that it is not the duty of Congress to investigate all charges of wrong doing, but only such as the Democratic party feel an interest in.

LAW AND ORDER
A movement to enforce the "No-Licenses" law was inaugurated by the Rev. H. Boole at Music Hall last Wednesday evening. This is what is needed at this time, and we believe will be successful. Since the first effort to enforce this law, and its partial failure, the violators of it have grown bold, and the sale of liquor has increased to such an extent that drunkenness is nearly as common as ever on the streets.

There is a sentiment here that is strong enough to enforce this law, if it be brought into operation, and Mr. Boole, or any other man that will take the lead, will find himself fully sustained by the best elements of our society.

Although the sale of liquor has not been stopped entirely, the profits of the business have to a large extent been destroyed, and those that are now selling whiskey in places disguised as cigar stores and where non-intoxicating beverages are sold, are doing it with the expectation that the opposition to it will "blow over" before the next election, and that then the town will vote license, and they again will be permitted to legally prosecute their business. No one knows the workings of public sentiment in this matter better than the liquor dealers, and they naturally expect that though it may be their naturally expected that they will be able to resist their business that is what is in their view that they will use every effort to make the law prohibiting the sale of liquor unoperative.

Now let public sentiment be aroused, and let its force be felt upon these wretches, it is to execute the law. If officers cannot be forced to perform the duty of their office let them be forced out, and others put in who will. The law provides the means of procuring evidence from every person arrested for drunkenness, but an advertisement is taken of it.

IT DON'T PAY.
The following from the Newark Daily Advertiser has some wholesome truths which it would be well for all classes of citizens to ponder:
It don't pay to have fifty workmen poor and ragged in order to have one saloon-keeper dressed in broadcloth and flush of money.
It don't pay to have the fifty workmen live on bone soup and eat ruffians on roast turkey and champagne.
It don't pay to have the mothers and children of twenty families dressed in rags and started into the semblance of emaciated scarecrows, and living in hovels, in order that the saloon-keeper's wife may dress in satin, and her children grow fat and hearty, and live in a bay-window parlor.

LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING AT MUSIC HALL, REV. W. H. BOOLE'S OPENING HIS BARRIERS, THE NO-LICENSE LAW TO BE ENFORCED.
When it was learned that Rev. W. H. Boole had been sent to this city by the New York East Conference, there was a class of our citizens to whom the announcement was anything but agreeable. He had gained a reputation throughout the State as an earnest, indefatigable temperance worker, and his labors in Meriden had wrought reforms in that city that if performed here would make it decidedly unpleasant for those who are engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors in violation of law. That they were correct in their conclusions was demonstrated on Wednesday evening when the first meeting in the movement was held—a mass meeting that nearly filled the hall, and that gave unmistakable evidence of a sympathy with the movement on the part of our best and most influential citizens—a demonstration on the part of our citizens to be legal as well as sincere means to close the places that are now selling intoxicating liquors behind various screens and in different guises.

The stage was occupied by leading citizens and a choir under the direction of Mr. David E. Dubrow. At about 8 o'clock Mr. Boole came in with Rev. W. C. Stebbins of Brooklyn. The meeting was opened by singing "Hold the Fort," the choir leading and the audience joining heartily in the chorus. Mr. Boole remarked that no more meetings should be held, and that he would meet the approbation of God and join His blessing could not be invoked. Mr. Boole said that he had received letters from the pastors of the churches that they could not be present, but they were in sympathy and would cooperate in the movement. Mr. Taylor might be able to come in later, and though he might not be present, he had his word that he was with the meeting in heart. Mr. Downing was obliged to be absent by a previous engagement.

FAILURE OF THE WOMAN'S HOTEL.
Mrs. Stewart and Mr. Hilton have decided to abandon the idea of running a hotel in the city, and to give up the enterprise. It was the intention of Mr. Hilton to give up the enterprise, and to give up the enterprise. It was the intention of Mr. Hilton to give up the enterprise, and to give up the enterprise.

It don't pay to have ten smart, active and intelligent boys transformed into hoodlums and thieves to enable one man to lead an easy life by selling the liquor, and for $100 a year, a license to sell liquor, and then spend $20,000 on the trial of a man for buying that liquor and then committing murder under its influence.
It don't pay to have one thousand homes blasted, ruined, defiled and turned into holes of disorder and misery in order that one wholesale liquor dealer may amass a large fortune.
It don't pay to keep six thousand men in the penitentiaries and hospitals, and one thousand of the best, industrious taxpayers, in order that a few rich capitalists may grow richer by the manufacture of whiskey.

It is the rich who want most things.
Courtesy is the smoke of friendship.
Attention to small things is the economy of virtue.
Great souls have will; others only feeble wishes.
One may do without mankind, but one has need of a friend.
Receive your thoughts as guests, and treat desires like children.
For him who does everything in its proper time one day is worth three.
One never needs one's wits so much as when one has to do with a fool.
He who wishes to secure the good of others has already secured his own.
The less indulgence one has for one's self the more one may have for others.
Eyes raised toward heaven are always beautiful, whatever they may be.
The truths that we least wish to hear are those which it is most to our advantage to know.
He that is respectful in his courses often sells his reputation at cheap market.
It takes one less time to get over one's own misfortune than to be reconciled to a neighbor's good fortune.
Sudden resolutions, like the sudden rise of the mercury in the barometer, indicate little else than the changeableness of the weather.
There are people with whom penitence stands for repentance—people with whom wearing mourning dispenses with feeling sorrow.
A beautiful smile is to the female countenance what the sunbeams is to the landscape; it embellishes an inferior face and redeems an ugly one.
In the cities of the dead the houses are small and close together, and a thistle is as liable to grow from a rich man's grave as a daisy from the mound that covers the dust of a beggar.
The noblest spirits are those which turn to heaven, not in the hour of sorrow, but in that of joy, like the lark that waits for the clouds to disperse, that they may soar up into their native elements.
The condition and characteristics of a vulgar person is that he never looks for either help or harm from himself, but only from externals. The condition and characteristic of a philosopher is that he looks to himself for all help or harm.
The greatest loss of time is delay and expectation which depends upon the future.
We let go the present which we have in our power, and look forward to that which depends upon chance—and so relinquish a certainty for an uncertainty.
We say love is blind, and the figure of Cupid is drawn with a bandage round his eyes. Blind, yes, because he does not see what he does not like; but the sharpest sighted hunter in the universe is love, for finding what he seeks and only that.

Won't Keep the Pledge.

A friend wrote to me the other day, "I want to see the cause of temperance go forward, but I disapprove of your movement among the children."
For what reason do you think, children? "Because," he says, "you ask them to sign the pledge, which is wrong, as they won't keep it."
Our friend is a good man, but we think he is mistaken here. Children won't keep the pledge; I wish that all adults kept the pledge as well as the boys and girls; the world would exhibit much less backsliding and much less misery. Children know and feel what they do when they sign the pledge, better than most people give them credit for.
Some years ago a gentleman in Virginia had a boy six years of age, who wanted to sign the pledge. The father, feeling that his son did not understand the obligation he was about to take upon himself, refused to grant him permission. But the boy was so importunate, and begged so hard, that he at last consented, though he felt sure, almost, that his son would break it. His father was a temperance man, and so were the rest of the family; and when his little boy had signed the pledge they were all festal. Not long after this the father was traveling. The stage stopped at a tavern and he called for some water. He waited some time, and no answer. At last the servant came, bringing a glass of cider, instead. He was very thirsty, and being afraid he should get nothing else, drank it in violation of his pledge. When he returned home he related the circumstance, and the little boy was with him. After he had finished, the little boy went up to him, his lip quivering and his eyes full of tears. "Father, how far were you from James River when you drank the cider?"
"I was fifteen miles from James River, my son."
"Well, father, I'd have walked to James River and back again before I would have broken my pledge."
Commend me to the little ones for fidelity to the pledge.
"Children won't keep the pledge!"
"Won't keep the pledge!" As far as our experience goes, which has been considerable among adults and youth, we have known but few instances of youth breaking the pledge. Habit becomes strong—They would not willingly have the pleasure, may of life that saves them from headache, heartache, sickness and heaviness, for the sake of tasting the drunkard's drink, and in the end, despair, filling a drunkard's grave—Let every friend of temperance, labor to call the youth in this great work. Everywhere you will find the children and young people most earnest and anxious to sign the pledge.

Tearless Madness.

The British Medical Journal remarks: One of the most curious facts connected with madness in the utter absence of tears among the insane. Whatever the form of mania, tears are conspicuous by their absence, as much in the depression of melancholia or the excitement of mania as in the utter apathy of dementia. If a patient in a lunatic asylum be discovered in tears, it will be found that it is either a patient commencing recovery, an emotional outbreak in an epileptic case, or a scene of truly insane, while actually insane patients appear to have lost the power of weeping. It is only returning reason which can once more unclose the fountains of their tears. Even when a lunatic is telling one in fervid language how she has been deprived of her children, or the outrages that have been perpetrated on herself, her eye is never even moist. The ready gush of tears which accompanies the display of the same woman contrasts with the dried appeal of the lunatic. It would, indeed, seem that tears give relief to feelings which, when pent up, lead to madness. It is one of the privileges of reason to be able to weep. Amidst all the misery of the insane they can find no relief in tears.
