No Universal Remedy

has yet been discovered; but, as at least four-fifths of human diseases have their source in Impure Blood, a medicine which restores that fluid from a depraved to a healthy condition comes as near being a universal cure as any that can be produced. Ayer's Sarsaparilla affects the blood in each stage of its formation, and is, therefore, adapted to a greater variety of complaints than any other known medicine.

Boils and Carbuncles, which defy ordinary treatment, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla after a comparatively brief trial

Mr. C. K. Murray, of Charlottesville, Va., writes that for years he was afflicted with boils which caused him much suffering. These were succeeded by carbuncles, of which he had several at one time. He then began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after taking three bottles, the carbuncles disappeared, and for six years he has not had even a pimple.

That insidious disease, Scrofula, is the fruitful cause of innumerable complaints, Consumption being only one of many equally fatal. Eruptions, ulcers, sore eyes, glandular swellings, weak and wasted muscles, a capricious appetite, and the like, are pretty sure indications of a scrofulous taint in the system. Many otherwise beautiful faces are disfigured by pimples, eruptions, and unsightly blotches, which arise from impure blood, showing the need of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to remedy the evil.

All sufferers from blood disorders should give Ayer's Sarsaparilla a fair trial,—avoiding all powders, cintments, and washes, and especially cheap and worthless compounds, which not only fail to effect a cure, but nowe frequently aggravate and continuite inscases they are fraudulently advertised to remedy.

The business of the New York, New ber shows a considerable advance over September, 1886, both as to passenger and both departments. Auditor S. C. Fleetwood said: "Although our passenger rates have been reduced from 2½ to 2 cents per mile, a reduction of one fifth or 20 per cent., the result has been an increase, and a decided, one in receives."

I de following from F. E. Local sales especially have improved and show a gratifying gain. Freight also, as indicated by receipts, shows a large increase over last year. Septem-ber's increase over August and over Sep-tember of last year is large. An improvement we re making is the abolishment of grade crossings, to accomplish which our civil engineers are driven day and night, as are also our road master's When the work in hand is com pleted we will have but two grade crossings in the state of New York; they will be in the town of Mount Vernon. We be in the town of Mount Vernon. We are also pushing the work of building four tracks as rapidly as possible. They are now down and in use between Ma-maroneck and New Rochelle. They will soon be extended to Portchester and will be laid as far as Stamford. Of course this work requires great expenditure, but the business of the road warrants it ',

The recent articles on Chili and Costa Rica in Harper's Magazine will be followed in the November Number by an illustrated article by the same writer, on "The Other End of the Hemisphere," describing the Argentine Republic and Uruguay. He demonstrates the surprising enterprise of these new competitors in the world's commerce, and warns us that in the market for bread-stuffs and provisions the United States is in danger that in the market for bread-stulls and provisions the United States is in danger of being outstripped by these South Americans. Buenos Ayres, he claims, is increasing in population faster than Minneapolis, and the whole country at nearly twice the speed of the United States. He corrects the common ignorate impression here. States. He corrects the common ignorant impression here concerning that section, which holds to the old ideas of a drear and uninhabitable waste named Patagonia, where there is really no Patagonia, but a fertile province of Argentine Republic. The new regime, which is obliterating the romance of wild Bedouin Gauchos dressed in costly ostrich robes and riding the heavy silver atirrups worth a thousand dollars, is also introducing with startling rapidity railroads, banks, theatres, newspapers, and all the other elements of a growing civilization. The history of this speedy transformation and its present condition is a very entertaining subject. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Orgin of the Society and Something about its Work.

Since the recent notice that the Connecticut Christian Endeavor union will hold its third annual conference in this city November 2, 1887, a general desire has been awakened to know more of the origin of the movement and its work.

The following from F. E. Clark's letter and many, especially among the young people, gave their hearts to God. The pastor and older church-members were naturally anxious concerning these young deciples, and felt that great wis-dom and care were necessary to keep them true to the Saviour during the first few years of their decipleship. The problem weighed heavily upon their minds, for they felt that neither the Sunday school, nor the church prayermeeting, though all well-sustained, and admirable in their way, were sufficient to hold and mould the christian character of these young converts. There was a gap between conversion and church membership to be filled, and all these young souls were to be trained and set at work. How should these things he done? These were the pressing prob-lems. After much prayer and thought, the pastor of the church invited the recent converts, as well as the young church members, to his house, on the evening of Feb. 2, 1881, and after an hour of social intercourse, presented a constitution, which he had previously drawn up, of the "Williston Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor." This constitution is essentially the same as that adopted by the great majority of societies of Christian Endeavor at the

Some three years latter, at the request of one of the national coventions, with the aid of Rev. S. W. Adriance, the Shurz on Newspaper Men.

This is the Han. Carl Shurz's opinion of newspaper men, as ventilated in Pittsburg a few days ago:

The and of Rev. S. W. Addinge, the witter revised the constitution and framed by-laws, adding various committees as they now appear in the "Model Constitution." But the essential features of the work were in the first constitution: the defination of the object, the two of the country to the other, growling at the newspaper reporters, and I want you the newspaper reporters, and I want you the constitution, the consecration or exto publish what I tell you now. The news perience meeting, the roll call, the propaper reporters of the country should be respected. The New Haven papers and other state journals have lately taken pains to pub-lish the denial of Consolidated railroad place in the hands os their pupils. A cyclone which whizzed by Laramie, Wyoming Territory, recently, avoiding the town but causing a good deal of destruction on the plains, was seen to touch the earth and throw up an immense cloud of dust. A ranchman who passed the spot soon afterwards, found that it had scooped out a big basin-shaped hole as large as an ordinary celiar.

The White Mountains are proved to be "the best investment in the Granite State." A statistician employed by the State in 1869, learned from the books of all the hotel and livery men that in 1844 the entire business within a radius of thirty miles around the Crawford House, footed up to $15,000. Twenty-five years later it amounted to $1,200,000. It is estimated that the tourists will leave behind them this year, chiefly among the inhabitants of New Hampshire, over $2,-000,000. The gains of the railways are not included in this estimate.

It may happen that in our purchase of Alaska from Russia we may have bought an interest in an international question that will give our Government a great deal of trouble. It is claimed by the United States that Behring Sea is an inland water enclosed within our purchased territory and that our Government has exclusive jurisdiction over its fisheries. This position is stoutly combatted by Great Britain, and as several British vessels have been seized under this Government's interpretation of its rights, there is likely to ensue a spirited diplomatic controversy.

The progress of Western Union Telegraph capital is graphically told in this paragraph from the New York World: "In 1856 the share capital of the present 1869, it had swelled to more than $41,-000,000. In January, 1881, on its amalfourths of a full crop by the Agricultural Department report, or at 1,500,000,000 feared earlier or than recent private estimates. The crop as it stands, however, is the smallest in ten years but one, in 1881, when it was only 1, 100, 000, 000, and the present yield is larger chiefly because of the large crop at the South, which is and often forty or fifty were in sight at one time, writes W. T. Hornaday in the years ago. The South will produce nearly a third of the present crop, or nearly enough for its own consumption, while in past years of large yield the Southern States have supplied a bare sixth of the total. The great corn States, Indiana. Illinois, Iowa and Kansas, have scarcely half a crop, and in Missouri the yield is not large. This will reduce the pork in these States and make farming but losing work, for there is no money in wheat in these older States at present prices. The spring wheat States, on the other hand, have one of the best crops on record, which brings the total yield up to 450,000,000, a fair but not a profitable average for the country.

The largest stone every quarried, according to the Rockland (Me.) Opinion, has been taken out at the Bodwell Company's quarries, in Vinal Haven. That journal adds that, if erected, the gigantic shaft would be the highest, largest and heaviest single piece of stone now standing, or ever stood, so far as there is any record. It considerably exceeds in length any of the Egyptian obelisks. The tallest of these, which was brought from Heliopolis to Alexandria by Emperor Constantine, and subsequently taken to Rome, where it now stands, is 105 feet seven inches high. The Vinal Haven shaft is 115 feet long, ten feet square at the base, and weighs 850 tons. The company quarried this immense monolith on its own account, having no order for anything of the kind.

An amusing stratagem is reported from Paris. A young American lady was annoyed by the attentions of a strange Frenchman. She consulted her aunt, and a plan was laid. The next day the young woman encountered her admirer, who invited her to breakfast. She returned the invitation and he accepted. On reaching her apartment the young man was startled by the appearance of her aunt: "My aunt," explained the young woman, "this poor fellow is hungry, and I told him I thought we could find him something to "Oh, certainly," answered the kind-hearted aunt. "Marie," she called out to the trim maid, "take this man to the kitchen and give him some bread and meat." Among the recent railway inventions which have attracted special attention is what is termed the anchor brake, to be used in cases of emergency. The plan involved in this case is that of having an anchor to drop from the rear end of a train and engage with the ties. Provision for preventing the bending of the ties, under the strain brought upon them, might, it is suggested, be devised as couple of thieves were stealing that simply as the axles; and, by having a gentleman's corn the other night he good, long spring to ease the shock when the anchor came to a bearing, in June bug. It consists of a tank of water above the stove, with a large pipe extending from it to the inside of the stove, just above the fire; a trap in the bottom of the tank is connected by levers with a series of arms at the bottom of the car, one of these arms extending under each corner of each platform, while another extends down toward the track; in case, therefore, of collision, one of the arms under the platform must be struck first, thus moving the lever, opening the trap, and instantly deluging the fire with wateror, in case of derailment, one of the arms hanging down toward the track is struck and operates the lever.

KNIGHTS IN REVOLT.

Delegates From Thirteen States Declare War Upon Powderly.

Taking Steps to Leave the Order and Form a New Organization.

The dissenters from the action taken at the recent Minneapolis Convention have declared open war with the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor and have issued their declaration of independence. On returning from the convention about thirty-five delegates, representing thirteen States, stopped in Chicago and determined to bring about a reorganization of the order. They elected a Provisional Committee of five members, of which Charles F. Seib was made Secretary. A long communication was drafted at Secretary Seib's office, and was forwarded in circular form to the Knights of Labor all over the country. The owing is the communication:

following is the communication:

To the Rank and File of the Order of the Knights of Labor:
Indignant at the usurpation of power, the gross violation of the laws of our order, by those high in authority, disgusted with those whose loyalty to the present ring has been gained by the pickings they receive as a reward for their services; incensed at the fawning sycophants who crawl on their knees in slavish submission to the most corrupt, the most hypocritical, the most autocratic and tyrannical clique that has ever controlled any labor organization, we therefore affirm the motto of our order, that "when had men combine the good must associate, else they will fall, one by one, an unpitted sacrifice in a contemptible struggle." We assert that the hour has come when, as honest men and women, we declare ourselves independent of these who have abused the confidence reposed in them by our order.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Their Cause at Stake Before the Highest Court of the Land.

It is stated that there is a great deal of excitement among temperance people through out the country owing to an apprehension that the Supreme Court of the United States will declare the prohibitory liquor laws unconstitutional. Seven cases are pending before the court. Two of them come from Kansas, four from Iowa, and one from Atlanta, Ga. The Kansas cases have already been argued in behalf of the brewers by Senator Vest, of Missouri, and Joseph H. Choate, of New York. No one appeared for the Prohibitionists, to their great astonishment, and the blame is charged against Attorney General Bedford, of Kansas, who had charge of the case, but failed for some reason to appear.

As is well known, says a Washington special, hundreds of millions of dollars are invested in the manufacture and sale of liquor in States where prohibitory laws have been enacted and enforced, and if such a decision as is expected is given, the States will be compelled to pay immense sums in the shape of damages to those whose investments have been idle. The cases are regarded as of as great national importance as the famous Dred Scott case and the that the Supreme Court of the United States

NEWS SUMMARY VIGILANTES AND OUTLAWS.

A Fierce Fight with Desperadoes in the Indian Territory.

The Vigilantes Have Eight Men Killed and Eight Wounded.

A special dispatch from Wawolla, Indian Perritory, says: "Qn Thursday a desperate fight took place on the north fork of the Ar. kansas River between Budd Trainer's gang of outlaws and a vigilance committee under the leadership of Robert Henderson, a Scotch half-breed, which followed them from Duckworth's store, in the Creek Nation, on the oceasion of a raid there on Wednesday. The out-law, finding out the size of the force which was law, inding out the size of the force which was following them, decided to risk an encounter, and made haste to reach the river banks, where they could find shelter behind trees and in ravines which line the banks on either side. In this they succeeded so well that when the vigilantes came up they were entirely, for the time, at the mercy of two score of outlaws.

of outlaws. Henderson then took his men a short distance up the river where a fording place could be found, crossed and took up positions on the other side of the stream from the outlaws, and where his men were as well protected as those of Trainer. The river at this point is only about one hundred yards wide, and across this distance, from Thursday morning until Thursday night, bullets were singing on their mission of death.

When the vigilantes had succeeded in obtaining this position they found they had lost three men and two more were seriously wounded. As Trainer found the enemy in his rear on the opposite of the river, he sent half of his men down the stream to cross and come up on the other side, fighting under Henderson then took his men a short dis-half of his men down the stream to cross and come up on the other side, fighting under cover of the trees. In this they were surprised by the avengers, who met them half way and opened fire upon them, checking their course and driving them punic stricken and precipitately back. In endeavoring to rally his men, Bill Chuet was killed, and before the river could be reached and forded John Leech, one of the robber gang, was shot off his horse, but not killed.

The fight from this on was continued across the stream, the banks of which were lined at distances of about five rods apart with sharp-therein.

As Thursday night was coming on, Henderson called his men in for consultation, when it was found that of his force eight were killed and eight had received serious though not fatal wounds. The force was in this way reduced one half, and it was thought best to remove the wounded here and go back home and stir up reinforcements. The dead were buried and the wounded, it was found after dressing their wounds, were able to return home with their wounds, were able to return home with the rest of the party. It is thought as many if the outlaws were killed as of the pursuing party, though this will never be known. SWEPT BY STORMS.

Numerous Disasters to Shipping On the Lakes.

On Tuesday morning the Presidential party Many Vessels Driven Ashore in a Blinding Snow Storm.

> A Chicago dispatch states a heavy storm visited the entire lake region. The wind had a velocity of forty miles an hour. Only one or two trivial accidents occurred at Chicago, but the news from outside indicated considerable damage. At Milwaukee the velocity of the wind was forty-five miles an hour all day and night, with gusts of snow. The Schooner Mains, of Chicago, was wrecked and the crew was saved with difficulty. The men had climbed into the rigging, but the sea broke clear over them. The Lake Superior Transit Company's steamer took shelter under Iroquois Point. Other vessels were weather bound at various places on the northwest point of Presque Isle; the barge Plymouth went ashore and her crew could not get off; nor, while the sea ran so high, could any attempt at rescue be made. The crew of the Alva Bralley were in similar peril on Shot Point, but, it is reported, escaped. The schooner Sherman was wrecked on the same spot, going ashore in a blinding snow storm. Seeing that the schooner was lost, the crew took to the boat. While going ashore the mainmast fell across the boat, without injuring any one. When the shore was reached, the captain was dashed against the rocks and badly stunned. He was pulled ashore by the others. All were saved. They reached the beach at 6:30 P. M., and wandered around in the woods until 6 o'clock in the snowstorm, almost dead from exhaustion. They carried the cook, a woman, on a litter, of Cleveland, was driven on a bar in Lake Erie off. Noble Station on the Lake Shore Raiiroad. All night long the waves broke over the decks and the officers and crew—ten in number—were compelled to lash them selves to the rigging. At 9 o'clock in the morning the disaster was reported at Cleveland, and Captain Goodwan, of the Life Saving Station, went & the place on a spe just train. The crew was rescued with considerable diffeulty. The Chandler was evidently broken in two.

The railroad authorities sent to Charleston for surgical aid, and Drs. Henry Tompkins and Thomas left for the scene of the accident, reaching there within twenty minutes.

The accident was caused by a defective switch, over which the engine, baggage, express and mail cars passed unharmed; but the three middle coaches, all well filled with passengers, were thrown from the track, two of them were turned completely over; one turned over twice.

Fifteen Persons Injured, Several Fatally, in Pittsburg.

The first serious natural-gas explosion in Pittsburg, Penn., in two years occurred a few minutes after 10 o'clock the other morning in the Hotel Albemarle and Bijou Theatre Block, on Sixth street. The explosion was at-tended with frightful injuries to a number of Block, on Sixth street. The explosion was attended with frightful injuries to a number of people, and great destruction to some of the finest property in the city. For several days past workmen employed by the People's Gas Company had been engaged in repairing the pipes running into the theatre and hotel. The odor of escaping gas was noticed early in the morning, but, for some reason, nothing was done to have the gas turned off. About 10:15 o'clock there were three terrific explosions simultaneously in the cellars of D. T. Reed, optician, Hotel Albemarle, and the Bijou Theatre. The concussion shook buildings for several squares and broke every plate glass window in the block. Almost instantly flames shot up from various parts of the block, but before they gained much headway they were controlled by the prompt work of the Fire Department. The Hotel Albemarle, the Bijou Theatre entrance, and the shops which fronted on Sixth street between the hotel entrance and Library Hall, all were terribly shattered.

Fifteen persons in all were injured, five of them, it was thought, fatally. The pecuniary loss is estimated at $50,000.

The Camel's Food.

A camel, like a horse, must be filled with food. It is a seless to expect either of these animals to live on highly concentrated food alone. For one or two or three days they will be no werse if they get a little grain without hay or straw or grass, but they pine away after that unless they have quantity as well as quality. The camel in India is quite comfortable with booza, that is to say, straw cut up by one of those threshing machines described by the Prophet Isaiah, xii., 15. In Turkey the straw is called samon, and having upon its under side sharp flints set at an angle in the wood and drawn by bullocks. Of course the camel thrives best on jungle feeding, especially leaves and succulent branches of trees. They also thrive on starks of maize or sorghum

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUN-DAY SERMON.

Subject: "Forgiveness Before Sun-

TEXT: "Let not the sun go down upon our wrath."—Ephesians iv., 26:

What a pillow embroidered of all colors hath the dying day. The cradle of clouds from which the sun rises is beautiful enough, but it is surpassed by the many colored mausoleum in which at evening it is buried. Sunset among the mountains! It almost takes one's breath away to recall the scene.

B. C., at the age of fifty nine years, to save himself from Antipater. His was the fervid, patriotic tongue that aroused the Greek republics against Macedon.

Fourteen years ago a bottle of milk was dropped into the well of E. T. Berry, of Owensboro, Ky. A few days ago this well was cleaned out, having been crumbling in for years. Under about six feet of mud in the bottom the bottle of milk was found, and on examination the milk proved to be as good and sweet as on the important injunction of the text. "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath."

Why that limitation to one's anger! Why that period of flaming vapor set to punctuate a flaming disposition! What has the sunset got to do with one's resentful emotions! Was it a haphazard sentiment written by Paul without special significance! No, no; I think of five reasons why we should not let the sun set before our temmer sets.

without special significance? No, no; I think of five reasons why we should not let the sun set before our temper sets.

First, because twelve hours is long enough to be cross about any wrong inflicted upon us. Nothing is so exhausting to physical health or mental faculty as a protracted indulgence of ill humor. It racks the nervous system. It hurts the digestron, it heats the blood in brain and heart until the whole body is first overheated and then depressed. Beside that, it sours the disposition, turns one aside from his legitimate work, expends energies that ought to be better employed, and does us more harm than it does our antagonist. Paul gives us a good, wide allowance of time for legitimate denunciation, from 6 o'clock to 6 o'clock, but says: "Stop there?" Watch the descending orb of day and when it reaches the horizon take a reef in your disposition. Unloose your collar and cool off. Change the subject to something delightfully pleasant. Unroll your tight fist and shake hands with some one. Bank up the fires at the curfew bell. Drive the growling dog of-enmity back to its kennel. The hours of this morning will pass by, and the afternoon will arrive, and the sun will begin to set, and I beg you on its blazing hea th throw all your feuds, invectives and satires.

Other things being equal the man who pre-for the main argament." While worldly philosophy could help but very few to such equipoise of spirit, the grace of God could help any man to such a triumph. "Impossible," you say, "I would have either left the table in anger or have knecked the man down." But I have come to believe that nothing is impossible, if God help me, since what I saw at Beth Shan faith cure in London, England two summers ago. While the religious service was going on Rev. Dr. Boardman, glorious nam, since gone to his heavenly rest, was telling the score of sick people present that Christ was there as of old to heal all diseases, and that, if they would only believe, their sickness would depart. I saw a woman near me, with hand and arm twisted of rheumatism, and her wrist was fiery with inflammation, and it bedeat the rheumatism which we have all seen and sympathized with, cases beyond all human heal kept out. Otherwise the oil would not be good. When full grown and in bloom it is cut with a scythe and hauled to the still as soon as it is wilted.

Large steam tubs with tightly-fitting covers are used to hold the mint, which is tramped down thoroughly. The steam is turned on at the bottom, and, passing upward through the mass of mint, vaporizes the oil and carries it out through a pipe at the top. This pipe carries the steam and oil into a spiral worm or cooler surrounded by cold water. Here the steam is condensed into water and the oil settles on top of it.

Both now pass to a receiving tank, which how pass to a receiving tank, which seems the steam of the can straighten that also and make it well and clean. Aye, you will not postpone till sundown forgiveness of enemies if you can realize that their behavior foward you may be put into the catalogue of the "all things" Both now pass to a receiving tank, which has an overflow pipe running from the bottom up nearly to a level with the top.

The object or this is to draw off the water from the bottom and leave the oil to be dipped from the top. The oil is as clear in color as the best kerosene. It is packed in tin cans for shipment, and is sent all over the United States, and considerable of it goes abroad."

Many a man and many a woman is having the health of body as well as the health of soul eaten away by a malevolent spirit. I have in time of religious awakening had persons night after night come into the inquiry room and get no peace of soul. After a while I have hluntly asked her: "is there not some one against whom you have a hatred that you are not willing to give up?" After a little confusion she has slightly whispered: "Yes." Then I said to her: "You will never find peace with God as long as you retain that virulence."

A boy in Sparta, having stolen a fox, kept him under his coat, and, though the fox was gnawing his vitals, he submitted to it rather than expose his misdeed. Many a man with a smiling face has under his jacket an animosity that is gnawing away the strength of his body and the integrity of his soul. Better get rid of that hidden fox as soon as possible. There are hundreds of domestic circles where that which most is needed is the spirit of forgiveness. Brothers apart and sisters apart and parents and children apart. Solomon says a brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city. Are there not enough sacred memories of your chilhood to bring you together? The rabbins recount how that Nebuchadnezzar's son had such a spite against his father that after he was dead he had his father burned to ashes, and then put the ashes into four sacks, and then put the ashes into four sacks, and then put the ashes into four sacks, and they are now domestic antipathies which seem forever to have scattered all parental memories to the four winds of heaven. How far the eagles fly with the sacred ashes! The hour of sundown makes to that family no practical suggestion. Thomas Carlyle, in his biography of Frederick the mausoleum in which at evening it is buried.
Sunset among the mountains! It almost takes one's breath away to recall the scene that which most is needed it the spirit of form and the glory of the departing light on the tiptop crags and struck aslant through the foliage the more transpicious. Saffron and good, purple and crimson commingled. All the castles of cloud in conflagration. Furning Moscows on the sky. Hanging garden of roses at their deepe at bush. Banners of vapors, red as if from carnage, in the battle of the elements. The hunter among the Adrondacks and the Swiss villager among the Mountains. After a storm at sea the rolling grandeur into which the sun goes down to bathe at nightfall is something to make weird and splendid dreams out of for allifetime. Alex ander Smith in his poen compares the sunset to "the barren beach of hell, but this wonderful spectacle of nature make me think of the burnished wall of heaven. Paul in prison writing my text remember some of the gorgoous sunsets among the mountains? of Asia Almor, and how he had sout that memory in the text when he says. the roseate bank of sinset into the favorite hunting ground of disease and death, carrying our animosities with us! Who would want to confront his God, against whom we have all done meaner things than anybody has ever doné against us, carrying old grudges! How can we expect his forgive ness for the greater when we are not willing to forgive others the less! Napoleon was encouraged to undertake the crossing of the Alps because Carlemagne had previously crossed them. And all this rugged path of forgiveness bears the bleeding footsteps of him who conquered through suffering, and we ought to be willing to follow. On the night of our departure from this life into the next, our one-plea will have to be offered in the presence of him who has said: "If you forgive not men their trespasses neither will your heavenly Father forgive your trespasses." What a sorry plight if we stand there hating this one, and hating that one, and wishing this one a damage and some one else a calamity, and we ourselves needing forgiveness forten thousand others ten thousand obliquities of heart and life. When hunting ground of disease and death, carrythat one, and wishing this one a damage and some one else a calamity, and we ourselves needing forgiveness for ten thousand times ten thousand obliquities of heart and life. When our last hour comes, we want it to find us all right. Hardly anything affects me so much in the uncovering of ancient l'ompeil as the account of the soldier who, after the city had for many centuries been covered with the ashes and scorize of Vesuvius, was found standing in his place on guard, hand on spear and hemlet on head. Others fled at the awful submergement, but the explorer, 1,700 years after, found the body of that brave fellow in right position. And it will be a grand thing if, when our last moment comes, we are found in right position toward the world, as well as in right position toward the world, as well as in right position toward food, on guard and unaffrighted by the ashes from the mountain of death. I do not suppose that I am any more of a coward than most people, but I declare to you that I would not do to sleep to night if there were any being in all the earth with whom I would not gladly shake hands, lest during the night hours, my soul dismissed to other realms, I should, because of my unforgiving spirit, be denied divine forgiveness. cause of my unforgiving spirit, be denied than make up with her I would die first." Well, sister, you may take your choice—for one or the other it will be—your complete pardon of her or God's eternal banishment of you. "But," says some man "that fellow who cheated me out of those reads or discovered to the same of the same "that fellow who cheated me out of those goods, or damaged my business credit, or started the lie about me in the newspapers, or by his perfidy broke up my domestic happiness, forgive him I cannot—forgive him I will not." Well, brother, take your choice. You will never be at peace with God till you are at peace with man. Feeling as you now do, you would not get so near the harbor of heaven as to see the lightship. Better leave that man with the God who said: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay." You may say: "I will make him sweat for that yet, I will make him squirm, I mean to pursue him to the death," but you are damaging yourself more than you damage him and you are making heaven for your own soul an impossibility. If he will not be soul an impossibility. If he will not be reconciled to you, be reconciled to him. In five or six hours it will be sundown. The dahlias will soon bloom against the western sky. Somewhere between this and that take a shovel and bury the old-grudge at least six feet deep. "Let not the sun go down on your wrath."

"But," you say, "I have more than I can bear; too much is put upon me, and I am not to blame if I am somewhat revengeful and unrelenting." Then I think of the little child at the moving of some goods from a store. The father was putting some rolls of goods on the child's arm, package after package, and some one said: "That child is being overloaded and so much ought not to be put upon her," when the child responded: "Father knows how much I can carry;" and God, our Father, will not allow too much imposition on his children. In the day of eternity it will be found you had not one annoyance too many, not one aspersion too many, not one many, not one aspersion too many, not one outrage too many. Your heavenly Father knows how much you can carry.

Again, we ought not to allow the passage of the sunset hour before the dismissal of all our affronts, because we may associate the sublimest action of the soul with the sublimest spectacle in nature. It is a most delightsome thing to have our personal experiences. est spectacie in nature. It is a most delight-some thing to have our personal experiences allied with certain objects. There is a tree or river bank where God first answered your prayer. You will never pass that place or think of that place without thinking of the glorious communion. by God's help to practice unfimited forgiveness. It improves one's body and soul. It will make you measure three or four more inches around the chest, and improve your respiration so that you can take a deeper and longer breath. It improves the countenance by scattering the gloom, and brightening the forehead, and loosening the pinched look about the nostril and lip, and makes yon somewhat like God Himself. He is omnipotence, and we cannot copy that. He is independent of all the universe, and we cannot copy that. He is creative, and we cannot copy that. He is omnipresent, and we cannot copy that. But He forgives with a broad sweep all faults, and all neglect, and all insults, and all wrong-doing, and in that we may copy him with mighty success. Go harness that sublime action of your soul to an autumnal sunset, the hour when the gate of heaven opens to let the day pass into the eternities and some of the glories escape this way through the brief opening. We talk about the Italian sunsets, and sunset amid the Cordilleras. But I will tell you how you may see a grander sunset than any mere lover of nature ever beheld; that is, by flinging into it all your hatreds and animosities, and let the horses of fire trample them, and the spearmen of fire stab them, and the breath of fire consume them, and the breath of fire consume them, and the billows of fire overwhelm them. The sublimest thing food does is the sunset. The sublimest thing you can do is forgiveness. Along the glowing banas of this coming eventide let the divine and the human be concurrent.

Again: We should not let the sun go down forgiveness. Along the glowing banas of this coming eventide let the divine and the human be concurrent.

Again: We should not let the sun go down on our wrath because it is of little importance what the world says of you or does to you when you have the affluent God of the sunset as your provider and defender. People talk as though it were a fixed spectacle of nature and always the same. But no one ever saw two sunsets alike, and if the world has existed 6,000 years there have been about 2,190,000 sunsets, each of them as distinct from all the other pictures in the gallery of the sky as Titian's "Last Supper," Rubens' "Descent from the Cross," Raphael's "Transfiguration" and Michael Angelo's "Last Judgment" are distinct from each other. If that God, of such infinite resouces that he can put on the wall of the sky each night more than the Louvre, and the Luxembourg, and the Vatican, and the Dresden and Venetian galleries all in one, is my God and your God, our provider and protector, what is the use of our worrying about any human antagonism! If we are misinterpreted, the God of the many colored sunset can put the right color on our action. If he can afford to hang such masterpie es over the outside wall of heaven and have them obliterated in an hour, he must be very rich in resources and can put us through in safety. If all the garniture of the western heavens at eventide is but the upholstery of one of the windows of our future home, what small business for us to be chasing enemies! Let not this Sabbath sun go down upon your wrath.

Let not this Sabbath sun go down upon your wrath.

Mahomest said: "The sword is the key of Heaven and hell, a drop of blood shed is better than fasting, and wounds in the day of judgment respiendent as vermilion and odor-iferous as musk." But, my hearers, in the last day we will find just the opposite of that to be true, and that the sword never unlocks heaven, and that he who heals wounds is greater than he who makes them, and that on the same ring are two keys: God's for giveness of us and our forgiveness of enemies, and these two keys unlock Paradise.

And now I wish for all of you a beautiful sunset in your earthly existence. With some of you it has been a long day of trouble, and with others of you it will be far from calm. When the sun rose at 6 o'clock it was the morning of youth, and a fair day was prophesied, but by the time the noonday of mid-life had come and the clock of your earthly existence had struck 12, cloud racks gathered and tempest bellowed in the track of tempest. But as the evening of old again proaches I pray God the skees may brighten and the clouds be piled up into pillars a of celestial temples to which you go, or move as with mounted cohorts come to take you home. And as you sink out of sight be low the horizon may there be a radiance. move as with mounted cohorts come to take you home. And as you sink out of sight be low the horizon may there be a radiance of Christian example lingering long after you are gone, and on the heavens be written in letters of sapphire, and on the waters in letters of opal, and on the hills in letters of emerald: "Thy sun shall no more go down neither shall the moon withdraw itself of the Lord shall be thy everlasting light and the days of thy mourning shall be ended." So shall the sunset of earth become the sunrise of heaven.

A Mouse Nest in a Window Curtain A family party was sitting at a dinner

Bind up a wreath and give it me Before this dull day closes, And in the garland let there be The thorns as well as roses; Weave violets in and greenest bays, Weave willow for my sorrow, Sad flowers for the yesterdays, White lilies for to-morrow

White lilies, for they tell of peace Beyond the gates of even, Where whispers of the soul's release And yesterday-but that has gone, And so I needs must borrow A hope of that swift-coming dawn,

The promise of to-morrow.

For evermore to-morrow lends Bright visions of completeness; True lovers, and the steadfast friends With faces full of sweetness: But backward all seems dim and gray And vaguely touched with sorrow; I care not for your yesterday If I may have to-morrow.

The past is past-ah! dead indeed. I weep not for its going. Its phantoms weird no more I heed Than west winds wildly blowing; Press onward, aye! and upward, heart, While I my gladness borrow, For Hope and I shall never part While I can have to-morrow.

THE SENTINEL.

SOUTH NORWALK, OCTOBER 28, 1887.

REMOVAL This afternoon we will begin the re moval of the Seatmel office to its new quarters, opposite the depot, Railroad

Pine Island Cemetery.

We are pleased to see that an effort is about to be made to put the Pine Island Cemetery grounds in a condition that will prove creditable to the City and those who have relatives and friends buried there.

Below we print an invitation to a meeting to take the matter of the condition and improvement of the Cemetery into consideration and from the character of the gentlemen whose names are attached to the invitation we feel assured that something will be done to redeem the Cemetery from its long neglect.

Quite a number of invitations have been sent out but the invitation is general and the committee will be glad to have any one take part in the proceedings of the meeting having an interest in the improvement of the Cemetery.

Dear Sir:—You are respectfully invited to meet at the City Council Chamber, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 1st, at halfpast seven o'clock, with others, who have friends and relatives buried in Pine I-land Cemetery, to consider and devise some mode or means by which the grounds of the Cemetery may be put in good condition, and kept so in the fu-

The Cemetery grounds have been sad-ly neglected in the past, and it is earnestly hoped that you will give this mat-ter some thought, and come to the meeting prepared to submit a plan to accomplish the object in view, or to listen and interest yourself in a plan that will be submitted for the consideration of the meeting.

A Special Session, The following appeared in the New York Times of Tuesday: Governor Louisbury is expected to decide in a day or two whether or not to call an extra session of the Legislature to consider the matter of railroad crossings at grade. The demand for an extra session comes principally from Fairfield County, where several towns complain of the expense thrown upon them by the improvements being made on the New York and New Haven Road, as un-der the existing law the cost of doing away with a grade crossing is borne jointly by the railroad and the town in which the crossing is situated. It is reported that the plan of the advocates of an extra session is to have the law re pealed and then hasten an adjournment of the Legislature without making any other provision for the abolition of grade

President Clark, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Road, said today that if such a programme was carried out his road would at once abandon all efforts to get rid of the grade crossings. Last Summer under the existing ings. Last Summer under the existing law the Railroad Commissioners ordered the removal of 22 grade crossings at an estimated expense of $100,000, four-fifths of which fell upon Mr. Clark's railroad and one-fifth upon the tewns. Mr. Clark does not think there is any "special emergency," in the language of the Con-stitution, to justify an extra session, and he does not think the Governor will call

The Homliest Man in South Norwalk, As well as the handsomest, and others are invited to call on I. M. Hoyt and get free a trial bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, a remedy that is selling entirely upon its merits and is guaranteed to cure and reheve all Chronic and Acute Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption. Price 50 cents and Dyspepsia disappears when Carter's Liver Bitters are used, and for weak sto-mach, indigestion, constipation, &c., they cannot be excelled.

What Am I To Do?

The symtoms of Biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events. all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhea or Constipation may be a symtom or the two may alternate. There are even Hemorrhoids or loss of blood. There may be giddiness and of-ten headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

The well known strengthening properties of Iron, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

Composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, so prepared as to retain their medical qualities, Quaker Bitters will be found to cure all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood, or deranged state of the liver or stomach. You will find in Quaker Bitters just the med-icine you need; it will purify the blood, tone the system, and make you well. Weak and delicate mothers find especial benefit from their use.

Quaker Eye Lotion is cooling and soothing to inflamed eyes.

A fine constitution may be ruined by simple neglect. Many bodily ills result from habitual constipation. There is no medicine equal to Ayer's Pills for restoring the system to healthy and natural action.

Chronic catarrh usually indicates a sprofulous condition of the system, and should be treated, like chronic ulcers and eruptions, through the blood. This disease has been cured, in hundreds of cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Price $1. Six bottles $5.

He returned to his companions and fell on his blanket exhausted. "Why give up so soon," said Col. Matthewson; "I have been on the Governor's stiff these many months and have never before seen such faist and have never before seen such faiot heartedness; watch me, Rowan, and I public a very excellent company which Mr. Frohman has spent a year in collecting together; their names are not set of the minutes the ball watches; watch me, Rowan, and I will give your a few points." Over the hill Matthewson flew and in a few minutes the ball report of his control of the minutes are not set of the m Mr. Frohman has spent a year in collecting together; their names are enumerated distinctly heard and the echo resounded through the woods. His dog presently came bounding over the hill and in his mouth had the remnants of the poor little quirrel. The fur was only recognizable but the cause of such a slaughter was soon told, as Matthewson came limping down the hill holding on his shoulder. "What's the matter," cried Rowan, but before he received an answer the idea struck him that Matthewson's sun had been loaded twice and he had put the second charge in. All this time Chief Lounsbury had remained quiet, but when order was restored he arose and looking around majestically remarked, "Gentlemen, you make me exceedingly weary; I supposed you knew something about hunting but I have discovered my misnunting but I have discovered my mis-take. Stay here and watch this glass-ware for one-half hour and then I will return." With a hop, skip and a jump he bounded into the thicket and was gone. POPULAR SCIENCE.

A French horticulturist, Count du Buysson, insures the growth of seeds so old as to have a doubtful germinating power by soaking them for thirty-six hours in water containing a little guano or other source of nitrogen.

The photographer's lens is more discerning than the naked eye. A recent photograph of a figure-painting by an American artist shows that a woman's gown was first painted a hue and texture very different from that finally chosen, the underlying brushwork appearing plainly in the photograph, though not seen by the most attentive observer of the original picture. In like manner photography reveals stars that to the human eye are not distinguishable from nebulous matter.

From all accounts of the "silver snake" of Honduras it most resembles qui ksilver in its movement. One traveler tells of a specimen four inches long and about the size of fence wire which it was impossible to hold when taken in the hands. The statement is repeated, which is said to made on good authority, that fowl often eat these snakes and shortly after can have the pleasure of doing so again, as in a few moments one will wiggle through the alimentary canal and can perform the feat many times without tiring.

Some men working in a coal shaft at Pana, Ill., came upon a peculiar snake that had apparently been blasted up by the last shot that had been fired. It was alive and coiled up in a bunch when one the workmen disclosed it with a shovel. It had no eyes, apparently. The laborers say that a cavify was discovered in a large chunk of earth that was proba bly the abiding place of the snake ere it was dislodged. It is claimed that the snake could not in any way have fallen in from the top since the fall would have killed it. The length of this underground reptile was perhaps two feet. It was sleek and beautifully spotted, but unlike any known species on the surface.

Conformably to the laws of advance and retreat of glaciers, it is said those in the valley of Chamounix, Switzerland, are now beginning to advance. The lower. extremity of the Glacier des Bossons is "not more than 3,000 feet above the level of the sea," and is going still lower. During the last three years this lower ex tremity has "advanced at the rate of fif ty yards a year." It is said that "a grotto cut out of the ice in May, 1866, a quarter of a mile from the extremity, has moved down more than sixty yards." Although other Alpine glaciers, which cannot be so definitely observed, are known to be increasing in width and height, it will require many years of the present speed 'before they occupy ground which within the memory of living persons they Epsom salt is the name given in pharmacy to the hydra'ed sulphate of mag-nesia, which was obtained over two hundred years ago by evaporating the waters of some mineral springs at Epsom, Eng-Sea water was afterward found to contain it, the brine remaining after the separation of the common salt consisting of the sulphate of magnesia and the chlorides of magnesium and calcium. It was readily obtained by collecting the first crystals which formed and washing them with a strong solution of the same salt. An excellent quality is manufactured at Baltimore and Philadelphia from the mineral magnesite, a silicious hydrate of magnesia, which is found in the ser-pentine of this region. The mineral, re-duced to powder, is dis-olved in sulphuric acid. The product, after drying, is phate of iron. It is then dissolved in water, and any iron present is precipitated by sulphuret of lime. The crystals of sulphate of magnesia are separated and dissolved again to complete their

A Great Amsterdam Industry.

One of the great industries of Amsterdam (Holland) is the cutting and polishing of diamonds; and nearly all the finest diamonds in the world are taken there to be cut into shape. We will make a visit to one of the principal diamond establishments, and when we get there I think we shall be surprised to find a great factory, four or five stories high, a steam engine in the basement, and fly-wheels and leathern bands and all sorts of whirring machinery in the different stories. On the very top floor the diamonds are finished and polished, and here we see skillful workmen sitting before rapidly revolving disks of steel, against which the diamonds are pressed and polished. It requires great skill, time and patience before one of these valuable gems is got into that shape in which it will best shine, sparkle and show its purity. Nearly half the diamonds produced in the world, the best of which come from Brazil, are sent to this factory to be cut and polished. Here the great Koh-i-noor was cut, and we are shown models of that and of other famous diamonds that were cut in these rooms, -St. Nicholas.

The Samoan Islanders. The coral-reefed Samoan Islands, in the South Pacific Ocean, in which Germany, England and the United States been for some time past commercially interested, are now in possession of Germans, who have deposed King Malietoa, carried him off to New Guinea, and put a rival in his place. The natives are of a dark copper color, and are usu-ally nude from the waste upward. The better sort of Samoan houses are roofed with palm-trees. Doors are seldom used. a mat is suspended in the doorway at night, so dogs and fowls walk in and out without hindrance. Boiled plantains, wild fruit and bananas, with an occasional pig or fowl, form the chief food of the natives. For clothing, the parain, wrapped round the waist and tucked in e top, is universally worn. Kava, the favorite native drink, which many Europeans also get fond of, is made from the root of a shrub, dried or pounded. - Frank Leslie's.

Beggars on Horseback.

Buenos Ayres is one of the few cities in the world where the proverbial beggar on horseback is actually encountered. alis mount, however, is not necessarily a sign of affluence; horseflesh is cheap in the Argentine Republic, and the poorest may choose a wreck of a steed from among those sent to the saladero for the value of their skins, and of the oil extracted from their wornout carcusses. lis mount, however, is not necessarily a Mounted on a skeleton beast, whose own scanty sustenance is picked up along the wayside and in the straw-strewn marketplace, the mendicant really succeeds in doubling the show of misery which, together with certain pretensions in the way of tortune-telling or medical sorcery, is his stock-in-trade.—Frank sical knowledge than I possess, having patients.

THE PENSIONERS

When berries are ripe, what breezes pass By the hillside slope of tangled grass, As under the warmth of shower and sun Flavor and fragrance melt in one! The treasure is hidden, the leaf is spread To mock the eye with a gleam of red, And the ant that dwells by the pasture ston Tastes the sweets of the hour alone.

When cherries are ripe how fair a sky Arches the hills of hot July, While over the land a joyful lay Sounds the praise of the dawning day! The reapers turn from the weighted sheaves To rifle the depth of dazzling leaves, And the farthest flush in the tell-tale East Calle the robins to share the feast

When apples are ripe the fields are bare And the frost dissolves in the kindling air. And a murmur of laughter comes and goes From the rustling length of the orchard rows. The turf is streaked with a crimson hue. And the loaded cart is rumbling through, And the dream of a glancing hearth is dear When apples are ripe, in the waning year. -Dora Read Goodale, in Independent.

A CONSOLIDATION.

BY SARAH S. PRATT.

The sanctum of the Bloomville Journa was occupied by two persons. One of them sat on a rickety chair, his feet on the table. He was smoking and absently scanning the walls. The sanctum, to his fastidious taste, was not an attractive place, but his friendship for the young editor who was working hard at a desk, drew him here every evening. On a table lay great bound files of the Journal. The dust on them was only disturbed when the editor desired to look up some edi-The telephone was convenient to the table, and on the wall beside it were some fresco ornamentations which might be traced to the "devil." Somebody had improvised a shade by cutting a hole in a piece of paper and putting it over the chimney. The mucilage bottle, inkstand and shears were side by side as if ready to abet each othin any undertaking. A window opened into a back room and a begrimed face appeared at it and called:

"Copy, sir." This "sir" was a com-pliment only bestowed upon the editor, the "devil" having no respect for any degnity less than that one

He threw his head back and paced around the apartment, his tall athletic form seeming to enjoy the freedom of using its legs. He looked around at the dinginess of the place and laughed.
"Shabby place, isn't it, Fulton?"

"I've just been wondering where on earth you get the inspirati n for those ine little criticisms of yours. This place is enough to kill genius. Ever been down at Newtown? The Critic down there has a perfect gem of a sanctum. Clean, neat

The evening that followed was to Ed wards the red-letter evening of his life. Never had he met with such charming entertainment, never such unassuming and pleasant hospitality as in the Irving mansion.

"Remember, no business to-night," Fulton had said as they pulled the bell. Mr. Irving, however, was not at home, a fact that Edwards had no occasion to regret after he had met the ladies of the homestead. The easy grace of the mother and daughters, the humor, the music, the charming conversation enthralled him. When Fulton rose to go Edwards was surprised. Casually he mentioned his errand. He was glad to find the ladies favored the project. "Only," they said, "you must not expect our Critic to "We shall see to-morrow," laughed Edwards, "after a consultation with the 'chief.cook,' "Well," said Fulton, when they had walked a square, "what do you think of them?"

Edwards was not smoking. He was quiet and thoughtful. He turned to Fulton and said gravely: Fulton, they are a family of angels. I've known nice women, but none that compare with these. I see now where their brother gets his delicacy and refined notions." Two hours later Edwards said to his friend, who was half asleep: "Say, those girls?" " murmured Fulton, sleepily; "am thinking of pre-empting the young-est, though. Go to sleep."

"Well, then, as sure as my name is Edwards," John was half soliloquizing, until some very decisive plans had been formed which, for the time being, drove the newspaper consolidation entirely into the background.

It was not nine o'clock when he presented himself at the sanctum the next morning. An office boy was dusting it and had the windows raised. Edwards smiled as he surveyed it. He walked to the desk, on which stood a vase of the desk, on which stood a vase of flowers, fresh the day before. A pile of letter-heads with "Newtown Weekly Critic, M. W. Irving, editor," printed at the top, lay on the desk. Instinctively he threw his cigar away. The very air of the place said "no smoking allowed." He was intent on his admiring examination when there was a step on the stair and a lady entered with a bouquet in her hand.

"But when am I to see this very eluish fads, theosophy and the like, don't sive M. W. Irving, your brother? I have not many more hours in this pleasant itering-place."

Miss Irving looked archly at him.

"I am the editor," she said, quietly, disliking to laugh at him in his embarrassment. "It was your own mistake, Edwards, and it was so funny that Mr. Fulton and all of us let it go on. You will pardon us."

But Mr. Edwards had withdrawn with hasty bow. He wanted time and air. He finally concluded to remain until the evening train, and a boy from the hotel bore to the sanctum of the Newtown Critic a missive saying, that at 3 of the clock on that bright September afternoon Mr. John Edwards would present himself at the Irving mansion. It was sudden, but love often is. After several hours of tetea-tete, Mr. Edwards and Miss Irving joined the family group, of whom Fulton made one.

"Gentlemen and ladies," and Edwards led Miss Irving to her mother, a "consolidation has been effected on most favorable terms."

Smiles and congratulations went around. It seemed to have been understood from the beginning.
"Which is it to be, Critic or Journal?"

"I bow to her in that," answered Edwards. "It is the Critic, but she has promised not to be as tenacious of her

The Bustle Gone.

Mrs. Harwick, of Memphis, wore bustle. It was a handsome bustle—that is, if there can be a handsome bustle and within it she had sewed $7,000 in greenbacks, the savings of her honest husband. Somebody coveted that bustle, and the other night, while its owner slept, somebody took it. We have said before that the bustle must go, and the fact that Mrs. Harwick's has gone proves that we spoke advisedly.—Philadelphia Press.

Swearing in a Feminine Marshal. Miss Phœbe Cousins, the pretty young woman just made United States Marshal of St. Louis, was sworn in recently, and took her place in court before Justice Miller and Judge Brewer. The Marshal's table was adorned for the occasion with a vase of exquisite roses, and the first female Marshal in the history of the United States sat in an arm-chair near the picture of her deceased father, at tired in deep mourning. When Miss Couzins, with an air of quiet dignity, had taken the oath of office, Justice Miller turned to her, and said with a merry twinkle in his eye: "Well, Miss Couzins, I hope during your term of office that you will not have to hang any-body." The fair official smiled and resumed her seat.

The Wife of a Russian Priest. There is only one happy woman in Russia—the priest's wife—and it is a common mode of expressing to say: "As appy as a priest's wife." The reason she is so happy is because her husband's position depends upon her. If she dies he is deposed and becomes a mere layman, and his property is taken away from him and distributed, half to his children and half to his Government. This dreadful contingency makes the Russian priest careful to get a healthy e can, and makes him take extraordinary good care of her after he has secured her. He waits upon her in the most abject way. She must never get her feet wet, and she is petted and put in hot blandets if she has so much as a cold in her head. It is the greatest possible good fortune for a girl to marry a priest + infinitely better than to be the wife of a noble. - London Paper.

A Phenomenal Crazy Quilt.

Miss Ella Fike, of Warrensburg, Mo, has just completed a crazy quilt which she has spent over four years in making. It is two yards in width and two and three-quarter yards long, and is bordered with heavy ruby-colored plush and lined with gold-colored surah silk, and is beautiful in the extreme. The feature of the quilt is that it consists entirely of silk, satin, velvet and plush scraps from famous and noted persons, such as Presidents and their wives, mostly all of President Arthur's Cabinet and their family, most of President Cleveland's Cabinet, officials and families of the United States Supreme Court, members and families of diplomatic corps, United States Senators and Representatives and their wives. Governors and families of different States, actors and actresses and other noted persons. Every piece in the quilt has a history. The quilt comprises nine large blocks, one of which contains pieces from the dresses and cravats of "Ah, Miss Irving!" and Edwards members of her graduating classes and her teachers. The kind of work which she has decorated it with are flat and raised wool and silk chenille and arasene, tinsel, embroidery, brush painting, Ken sington embroidery in silks and crewels, braiding, beading, applique, etching, transfer, cross stitch, discrent designs in fans, palettes, plaques and bugs of silk, satin, velvet and plush. The quilt contains pieces of ribbon from two of Mrs. Cleveland's wedding bonnets.

Crown Diamonds.

Full many a gem of purest ray serene scintillates on a red velvet background at the establishment of R. H. Macy & These gems form a diadem which was made by the crown jeweler of France, Mr. Bapst, who finished the peautiful decoration on February 1820. The diadem was worn by the Duchesse d'Angouleme, also by the Duchesse de Berry and the Empress Eu the genie. The diadem is composed of 3,302 diamonds, which weigh 434 carats. Besides the diamonds there are 250 turquoises and fancy stones. The largest turquoise is about the size of a robin's egg. It is placed immediately in front of the diadem. The diamonds are of the purest water, and they burn with ardent ire into the envious eyes of the pretity women who come in to see this magnifi cent heirloom of the French Empire.

This beautiful work of art was purchased at a recent sale in France of the Crown jewels sold by the French Government. The firm paid a little over 50, 000 francs for the diadem, which is about $10,000. This sum has been supplemented by consular fees, insurance and customs, so that now the decoration is worth at least $15,000. One old lady, looking at the diadem, said rubie should have been used instead of turquoises. A young man whose training has unfitted him for the worship of anything pertaining to royalty wondered how much could be realized on the diadem at a pawnshop. Crowds surrounded the parted glor, and the gems gleam just as brightly as they did when worn on the brow of the queenly Eugenie.—New York Sun.

Washington Beauty on Wheels. One hundred women ride tricveles in Washington, says a correspondent of the Philadelphia Record. The smoothness of the streets makes the work easier than it is anywhere else, and the encouragement given by their male relatives in the cycle clubs strengthen them to face the public. Most of the women have a special costume in the nature of a riding habit with the train cut off. Nevertheless it takes them a good while to get over their nervousness and their self-consciousness so as to really enjoy their ride. Very few of them ride in the daytime, although the most proficient of them all—the Misses Gallaudet, the daughters of the President of the Columbia Institution for Deaf Mutes-never ride at any other time.

These young ladies ride with perfect ease and grace. They show the possibilities of the tricy les to perfection as they sweep through the streets on noise

In one case of the latter sort recently the woman's iress caught in one of the wheels, and when the machine turned over on top of her, her dress had to be cut away with a penknife. Nevertheless, they all enjoyed it, good and bad riders alike. The steady work required is delightful exercise, and the feeling of power and comfort combined is very grateful.

"Crooks" and Typewriters.

Crime keeps pace with science, says a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and no sooner is an improvement in the arts or mechanics announced than the crooked element instantly adopts it. Take the simple case of the typewriter; it is an innocent looking instrument, yet it is the means of baffling the police and other investigators. Handwriting formerly was a great aid to detectives in tracing up correspondents, and black-mailers and others using threatening letters appreciated that as well as any one. They would write back-handed or try to disguise their chirography. The writing experts, however, penetrated the dis-guise by following the individual peculiarities that can never be covered up in the characters. Now, however, writers of anonymous letters use the typewriter, and if you are curious to ki the authority you will not be satisfied, for there is very little satisfication for any one who tries to trace up the author of such a document. It is even more difficult than finding the printer of a circular, for where there is one printing shop there are a hundred typewriters.

Silver in Volcanic Ask.

Professor Mallet has analyzed a speci men of volcanic ash collected on the Pacific coast in Ecuador, 120 miles west of Cotopaxi. The ash fell on July 23, 1785, and formed a deposit to the depth of several inches. The interesting feat ure in the composition of the material was the presence of a small amount of silver, probably as silver chloride; several experiments showed that silver was present to the extent of one part in 83,-600 of ash. This is the first time that silver has been identified in material ejected from a volcano.

AGRICULTURAL.

TOPICS OF INTEREST RELATIVE TO FARM AND GARDEN.

Grape Growing.

An Hungarian, who is starting a vine yard at Chester, Conn., says that the Americans make the ground too rich for this fruit, and in the selection of his vineyard has taken land with a soil originally "too poor to grow white beans."
This enterprise will be watched with some interest and the conclusion may be found to be correct. We remember visiting a vineyard of wonderful produc-tiveness, of T. B. Wakeman, at Green Farms in the same State, and it was situated upon a side hill of very light shady soil, but it was a feast to look upon the enormous clusters of fine fruit. The thin soil may have been a partial secret to the success .- Germantown Telegraph.

A Word for Ensilage.

The scarcity of fodder the present season will go far to popularize ensilage another year. In many places the shortened hay crop was greatly injured by rain, and much labor spent in saving the crop during two or three weeks of constant rain. All this labor and anxiety is saved when the crop is put into the silo, and even rain is no insurmountable obstacle when it cannot be avoided. The silo put into use in the West would save at a small cost all the millions of tons of cornstalks now left to waste, which would provide acceptable and nutritious feeding for the winter, instead of being source of disease and loss of thousands of cattle which have little or none other substance. Corn grown for fodder about twice as thickly planted as that intended for grain and well cultivated will yield almost half as nutritious as dry timothy hay ton for ton, as a considerable quantity of grain will be mixed with the stalks and leaves. A crop of corn thus grown this year by the writer has, at sap filled with this mineral wherever it at a moderate estimate, at least forty bushels of grain per acre, which is equal to 1,500 pounds of dry grain, as it is now being cut; in addition there is at least twenty tons of fodder, if not more, which will not loose more than twenty per cent. in the silo. Many silos are now filled with such corn, and it is difficult to find wny other crop so valuable.

Feeding Hogs

The man who makes money in feeding pigs from sucklings up, must feed, in their younger days, a diversity of food to give bone, muscle and good digestion. to give bone, muscle and good digestion. When drying them by old-fashioned methods is very difficult. The evapothe requisite proportions of bone and rator, says the Cultivator, does its best muscle in animals. It contains too much carbon and not enough nitrogen. Breeding-sows that eat little or nothing extept corn are poor mothers. They generally produce but small litters of pigs, and they give but little milk. Pigs brought up on corn alone appear to have during but little vitality. They are not as lively rate. as those that enjoy the privileges of a free range and eat a variety of food. sheep. On this account many farmers have abandoned pork-raising or keep only enough hogs to supply their households with meat. They do not dare take the risks that attend keeping leaves. the risks that attend keeping large num-bers of hogs and feeding them the corn they raise.

The most successful hog-raisers now advocate the substitution of other grains, fruits and vegetables for half the corn they formerly fed, and they rely chiefly on corn for making fat, but they give their hogs bran, shorts, ground rye, ers, and the sows give more milk. The pork produced is not as fat as that made from corn, but is generally preferred. There is less leaf-lard, but more meat that is suitable for making bacon. The hogs are more active and take more exercise. For this reason their circulation and digestion are better. - Farm, Field and Stockman.

Grafting Fruits.

Next to the planting of new trees during the coming spring, preparation should be made for grafting the natural apple trees and other bearers of worthless fruit to be found on almost every farm. Some varieties of fruit, however, should be budded, rather than grafted, and I give the following schedule of modes of propagation adapted to different trees and fruit-bearing shrubs:

Apple and pear, budding and graft-Cherry, mostly by budding, but succeeds well by gratting if done very Peach and nectarine, by budding only, at the North; often succeeds by grafting at the South.

Grape, by layers and cuttings, and, in rare instances, grafting is advantageous-ly employed for new or rare sorts on old or wild stocks, producing rapid growth and early bearin nd early bearing.

Baspberry and blackberry, by suckers,

Gooseberry and currant, by cuttings and sometimes by layers. To insure good grafting one must have sharp tools and good wax. The grafting wax purchased is not alway a good article, and it is preferable to ma it, by heating and mixing equal parts of rosin, tallow and yellow beeswax. A coat of this wax, about one-twentieth of an inch thick, spread over muslin, calico or tough and flexible paper, makes an excellent plaster for out-door grafting; or, if spread half an inch on paper, is well adapted to root grafting. In either case the strips should be narrow, that they may be easily wrapped around the graft till it is well covered, when the rest may be torn off. In making the plasters it is essential that the ingredients of the wax should be thoroughly stirred together before it is spread. A kind of paper, soft, thin and tough, is now much used by dry goods shopkeepers for wrapping, and may be purchased cheaply by the

One of the Indians said that while hunting one day in that unknown section he came across an immense track sunk to a depth of several inches in moss. It much resembled an elephant's track, but was larger round than a barrel. The Indian followed up this curious track, which, to all appear ance, was very fresh, tracking from one immense stride to another, a distance of some miles, when he came in full view of his game. The hunter gave one look, then turned and fled. These Indians, as a rule, are the bravest hunters. With no other weapon than their spear they will attack and kill a grizzly, but the immense proportions of this new style of game both startled and filled the hunter, brave as he was, with great fear. He described it as being larger than Post Trader Harper's store, with great shining yellowish tusks and mouth large enough to swallow him at a single gulp. He said the animal was doubtless similar to those which furnished the immense bones scattered over that section. If such animals are now in existence, and Mr. Summers has no reason to doubt the veracity of the Indian, as other Indians, and also Mr. Harper, confirmed it, they inhabit a section very high in altitude, but very rarely visited by human beings. We also have no reason to doubt the Indian tale, for at no very distant period Yukeon country was inhabited by these animals, as hundreds of their massive skeletons, strewn along the creeks, are silent but truthful witnesses. On Forty Mile Creek bones can be found projecting partly from the sand, and among the driftwood of the stream on the creek be low this these skeletons are also quit

A Pig as a Night Watchman.

A farmer in Hamilton, Van Buren County, says the Detroit News, is the owner of a pig which does duty about the premises as a watchman, and the of its services are so appreciated that it is allowed the freedom of the farm after nightfall. It spends its time in patroling the barn and door yards, and thievery has been unknown since it began its vigils. It does not hesitate to attack a stranger, and even succeeded in putting a lot of neighbors to flight as they were making a descent upon the house in the shape of a surprise party the other evening. Dogs, however, are its particular year, and all the curs of the vicinity have been vanquished so thoroughly that not one can be induced to show its nose in the vicinity.

An Eagle Attacks a Calf.

W. R. Pease, who resides near Moun, Hemilton, Santa Ciara County, Cal., says his attention was attracted to the cries of his cattle in his corral, and on going to learn the cause he saw a very eagle trying to fly over the fence with a young calf in his talons. Mr. Pease seized a pitchfork and struck the bird, which let go the calf and attacked him, which let go the call and attacked him, and he sustained a number of severe blows from the eagle's wings before he succeeded in impaling it on a pitchfork prong, when he got his shotgun and finished the job. The calf was so badly injured that it had to be killed. The eagle was the largest ever seen in that wart of the fittle.

VACCINE VIRUS.

HOW IT IS PREPARED FROM HEALTHY CALVES.

The New York Board of Health's Operating Room-Calves on the Table - Vaccinating Them and Collecting the Virus.

The New York Commercial Advertiser says: There is a small loft in Mott street which, perhaps, does more to keep down the dreaded winter scourage (smallpox) than anything else that the Board of Health has devised. It is there that all obtained. The loft extends about twentyfive feet on Mott street and runs back about eighty feet, and is divided longi-tudinally into a stable for the calves and an operating room. Queer Boat for Seal Hunters.

A craft, the description of which equals anything to be found in the pages of Jules Verne's eccentric writings is at present under construction in this city. The craft may be described as a "catamaran," or steam launch built of steel, with two cigar-shaped hulls, each about 65 feet in length, with a deck binding the two hulls together. Each hull is built in two compartments, one of which is to be used for water ballast and the other as a reservoir of coal oil—the latter being used for fuel. The motive power is obtained from two vertical engines and two propellers, the shafts of the latter being so arranged as to lift themselves out of the way on striking floating ice or any other obstacle. The boat is intended for whale, walrus and seal hunt-ing in the Arctic, and will be furnished with a Gattling gun as well as a powerful electric battery, sufficiently strong to paralyze any aquatic mammal extant. The boat is said to be a copy of a German invention. It will be taken apart when finished and packed for transporta-tion on board the whaler to which it is

No incident in the history of fossilization was more singular than that which this specimen displayed. The fossil was a series of mummies of minute plesiosaurs, less than five inches in length, which had the substance of their flesh perfectly preserved and their bones preserved within the flesh. The remains showed different conditions of development. This was the only case that had ever occurred of the mineralization of the muscular substance and the preservation of the external form of these animals; and so perfect was the preservation that the circle of the eye was preserved, and the constituent bones could be distinguished. - Pall Mall Gazette.

monly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness, or nausea, from whatever cause arising, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use, in small doses, will prove very beneficial.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing aliments peculiar to females, at the Invalids Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies. Br. Pierce's Favorite Frescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar allments. As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the womb and its appendages in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, pursing mothers, and to the testime model.

"run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. As a soothing and strengthening mervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreehing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

George R. Scott says in the Pioneer, September 3, under caption "Votes Wanted:"

Then he hits the nail on the head and drives it home and clinches it by saying that: "Prayers and exhortation are good in their places; but must be suppliment-

ed by votes recorded at the proper time. And this reminds me of a story touch ing this point very forcibly—that you will please allow me to repeat by way of illustration

A small boy, (an inmate of the poorhouse) on account of his trustworthiness, was often sent outside of the institution on errands.

The little fellow, though treated with comparative kindness, still retained dim recollections of a humble but happy home and loving parents, and occasionally in his rambles through the town, a yearning for a home other than the poorhouse, such a home as memory faintly portrayed, would take possession of him; and the thought occurred to him that perhaps he might find such a home somewhere in the great city, or in the wide world beyond. And he wandered onand on into the suburbs, and finally into a grove near the road, where he stood nearly concealed, when a couple of nearly concealed, when a couple of work upon steamships. Like Mr. C. they ask God to do what they never really thought of doing themselves. They pray for temperance 364 days, and on the 365th vote for men who interests of the traffic.

In one State last Fall they voted for legislators who worked and voted for the Crosty bill, the Vedder bill, the Ives Pool bill, and the rest, all of them bills to legalize and perpetuate iniquity. All these high-license bills of every shade and degree are a delusion and a snare, and remind me of the words of advice and encouragement given by an Irishwoman to her boy, who was having a shindy with one of his mates. Said she: "Kick sand in his oles, Jimmy; kick sand in his oies."

But let us go back to the story of Mr. C. who was really a good man. The words of Dinah sank deep into the heart of this prayerful Christian, and he asked himself the question, "Is it true that I am in the habit of asking God to do things I would not think of doing myself?" Turning to the boy he said: "Go gestion, and kindred ills," into the house with Dinah and eat your supper and stay all night, and I will see what I can do for you in the morning." Mr. C. realized that night that a heart and conscience harrowed with the scathing words of just rebuke, made downy pillows full of thorns, but through the saving influence of prayer and consultations with his wife he triumphed over selfishness. When morning dawned, bright and beautiful, he called the boy and told him he "might consider his house his home as long as he proved
