IFC To Boycott Homecoming

SAM All Day Conference Has Varied Topics Today

By JANET SADLER

Today, October 5th, the Society for the Advancement of Management is presenting its conference in Room 122 of the School of Business. The theme of the Conference is "What's Management Saying."

The theme is in relation to the principles and theories used by management in business. The purpose of the conference is twofold; one, is to give the student a look at the business world from the point of view of management and second to give the student the opportunity to ask questions and confer with the businessmen to answer questions that are present in the students mind.

Dean Ackerman, an ardent admirer of SAM will present a Key-note Speech on the Business School Purpose. Dean Ackerman's speech will be followed by talks from businessmen on three separate topics; the first of which is titled "Big Company vs. Small Company". Two speakers, one representing small companies and the other representing large companies will each present the opportunities and advantages of their type of company. This topic gives the student an idea of where to look for a job of his interest.

Small Companies

The gentleman representing small companies is Mr. William Bossart, President of Rite Box Manufacturing Company in Hamden, Connecticut. Mr. Bossart is also a graduate of Northwestern University from the School of Business Administration in Evanston, Illinois. He is an F.C. Austin Scholar.

Big Companies

The speaker representing large companies is Mr. Gilford Forbes from General Motors Corporation. Mr. Forbes presently holds the position of Supervisor, Operations Analysis at New Departure Division of General Motors in Bristol, Connecticut. Mr. Forbes has held this position since 1958. In 1947 Mr. Forbes received his B.S. from St. Lawrence University in Mathematics. In 1949 he received a S.B. degree from M.I.T. in Building Construction; and in 1958 he received an S.M. degree from M.I.T. in Industrial Management. Mr. Jay C. Siegel, Attorney at Law, will speak on the second topic, "The Morality of Management and Labor". The purpose of this topic is to find out to what extent management and labor will travel before they discover they better begin working closer together. Presently, Mr. Siegel is a Labor Relations Attorney in Hartford, Connecticut representing management. Formerly he was a Connecticut Regional Director for the American Arbitration Association. Mr. Siegel is also: Special Labor Law Assistant to U.S. Senator Thomas J. Dodd in Connecticut with Landrum-Griffin Labor Law, a member of the Connecticut and New York Bars admitted to practice before U.S. Supreme Court, U.S. Federal District Court, and the Treasury Department, and the Director of

To Hold Union Conference At Uconn HUB Saturday

Student leaders from 21 colleges and universities in New England will converge on the University of Connecticut tomorrow for a two day conference of the New England Association of College Union's Annual Conference.

Attending the 13th Annual Regional Conference of the Association of College Unions will be 130 students and about 25 professional staff members.

One of the highlights of the meeting will be a banquet address at 6:30 by Dr. Arthur Blumberg, group dynamics center, Temple University's College of Education. A professor of Sociology, Dr. Blumberg will discuss "Goals and Processes—A Second Look".

Following the banquet there will be a co-ed swim and refreshments for the delegates.

Student Conferences

On Saturday, Student Conference Sessions will be held. This year's theme is: "The Student Union is part of the educational program of the college". The sessions will discuss 1) self-directed activity, 2) self-realization, 3) social competency, 4) group effectiveness, and 5) the Student Union develops the person as well as the intellect. Each of the sessions will be sub-divided into four sessions.

At 4 p.m., delegates from each Student Union in attendance will offer a description of what they believe to be their best program. Students will critically analyze these "best programs" in terms of the ideals expressed in the titles of the conference sessions.

Banquet

After this critique, the delegates will hold a candle-light banquet, with Max H. Andrews, featured speaker. Mr. Andrews, former manager of the Uconn HUB is director of New York University's Loeb Student Center and chairman of the Committee on Professional Standards of the Association of College Unions. He will speak on "The Tastemakers."

The conclave will wind up Saturday evening at the Uconn HUB Ballroom, where the Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, a nationally known folk-singing group, will entertain. Following the Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem, there will be dancing to the music of Bert Orr.

Folk Singers At Ballroom

The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem are here to entertain not only the delegates attending the convention, but also the entire student body at Uconn.

These two startling attractions will appear on Saturday from 8 to 12 p.m. in the HUB Ballroom. The concert will be followed by dancing to the music of Bert Orr's Band. There will be no admission charge.

The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem have appeared at "The Hungry I", "The Village" and Playboy Clubs across the country.

Their performance of Irish Rebel songs, drinking songs and laments of one sort or another have made them one of "America's hottest and most sought-after folk attractions!"

Call For Student Support To Protest Loss Of Rights

BY JOE MARFUGGI

In a move to join the current fight for student rights, the Inter-fraternity Council voted Monday night to boycott all Homecoming activities this year, including the Dave Brubeck concert.

The following measures were passed unanimously by members of the I.F.C.: 1) Fraternity men at Uconn will not attend the Dave Brubeck concert on the Saturday evening of Homecoming Weekend; 2) No floats or displays will be built by fraternities; 3) The members of the I.F.C. will not provide escorts for candidates for the title of Homecoming Queen; 4) No fraternity will allow its house to be used as the site of a Queen's Coffee; 5) The fraternities will not allow any alumni members into their houses until 6 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 14; 6) Placards and a demonstration for student's rights will be staged at the Homecoming football game.

Reasons Given

A spokesman for the I.F.C. said that "the reasons behind these moves should be quite clear to the student body and the administration. The Campus, WHUS, the Nutmeg and the rest of the student organizations on campus have been turned over to the administrators via the student loss of financial control."

(As a result of recent administration actions, any student organization which has a budget of over $100 per year must have its budget approved by the administration. In the past, students have had control over these funds, which are collected from student activity fees. This new rule has been met with a great deal of student disapproval. In the past weeks, several student demonstrations have been held to voice this disapproval.

In addition, the Student Senate has hired a lawyer to give the students legal counsel in their fight for rights. A student spokesman said: "The money used for these various organizations is solicited from the students for the purpose of being used by student organizations. The administration has no right to control the spending of this money."

Appeal To All Students

The I.F.C. has stated their hope that the entire student body will join in the boycott of Homecoming Weekend. An I.F.C. spokesman continued, "Students should not sit back and let the administration take over these student publications which are the only voice of the students."

He said that it is hoped that the Homecoming boycott will make the alumni aware of the situation and draw them into active support of the students on campus. He went on to say that this action will be brought to the attention of the residents of the state of Connecticut so that they may know of the "inexcusable situation which the administration has pushed on the students."

Dunlop Tells Why Nutmeg Finances Were Taken Over

Pre-Take

Mr. John Dunlop, assistant dean of students, announced that the 1960 Nutmeg will probably reach the hands of the subscribers in the beginning of December. The thing that may cause a delay is the proofs, which are expected to be ready next week, do not arrive.

The delay was caused mainly by the lack of responsibility of the students who were working on the 1960 Nutmeg staff. Mr. Dunlop said that vast sections of the book were lost. People who were given various jobs didn't fulfill them, and finally the publishers, seeing all the delays, were hesitant to take on an insecure project.

Before going into the hands of the administration, the responsibility of the yearbook was vested in the editor of the 1961 Nutmeg. He was supposed to appoint two delegates who would head the completion of the yearbook. Still the yearbook did not appear. Lack of responsibility was again shown, forcing administration to take over, Dunlop said.

Dunlop stated that it was the embarrassment being brought to the University, by the long delay in publication, which forced the Administration to take over its operation. The 1960 Nutmeg is now in the hands of Mr. John Dunlop.

Homecoming: Queen's Coffee

The first coffee of the Annual Homecoming Queen's contest was held last night in the HUB.

The coffees are being sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Homecoming Committee of the HUB. Ann McLaughlin and Vic Schacter are co-chairmen for this event.

The ten semi-finalists selected from the various woman's living units are: Sylvia Illingworth, Crandell C; Susan Starr, Sprague; Ruth Welt, Alpha Epsilon Phi; Heather Nunn, Delta Zeta; Dianne Ludwig, Kappa Alpha Theta; Ann Cronkright, French; Paulette Forst, Crawford B; Mallys Cox, Merritt; Janice Pincus, Crawford D; and Marilyn Irvine, Stowe C.

Serving as judges for the coffees are Mr. Gillespi, Mr. Laughlin, Major Lauber, and Dr. Thatcher. Contestants are being judged on face, figure and personality.

The next coffee will be held October 9, at 7:30 p.m. in HUB 28. At this time five candidates will be selected including the Homecoming Queen.

The Queen and her court will be presented to the student body during half-time at the game on Sat., Oct. 14.

Co-chairman of the Queen's Coffee, Ann McLaughlin stated, "Despite certain difficulties, the coffee was quite successful."

Letters To The Editor

To The Editor:

As a commuter, I feel it is about time the student body was made aware of the difficulties we encounter. At a time when students are crying out about the loss of certain rights and privileges, I too must decry this situation. I can't truthfully say we have lost our rights or privileges; you can't lose that which you never had. We have never had the most important right of all: recognition. Administration not only refuses to recognize the commuters but does everything short of denying our existence. This has been demonstrated to me frequently in the three years which I have commuted. Now a situation has arisen which prompts me to write this letter. If it arouses only 1% of the student body, it will have accomplished its purpose.

The situation of which I speak is that of Commuters' lockers. After a long uphill battle, we were informed last spring that lockers would be available for us at a fee of one dollar a semester. This fall we were told that the lockers were located in the Grill but, true to form, the fee had been raised to three dollars a semester. (A notice to this effect was printed in the Daily Campus). This was very misleading, that is, the phrase "a semester." When I went to pay this fee (for one semester only as that is all I can afford now), I was told that lockers were to be paid for by the year; it would cost me six dollars to get a locker. I could not get a locker for one semester only. Whether the CDC was aware of this fact when they printed the notice, or not, I don't know. I do know that this is one more instance of the tyranny, the despotism of administration. I may be mistaken but I feel that administration is trying to discourage commuters from using these lockers so that they can say we are not interested in the "privileges" they give us. I'm not asking for charity, but I do believe administration could give us more attention, or least co-operation. Is this too much to ask, or do I expect too much of administration as a commuter? Perhaps by commuting I give up all the rights and privileges of a student. I can't speak for the other commuters, but I do think that administration is going too far in demonstrating its authority.

Fighting Fire With Fire

A Criticism Of Foreign Policy

By ROGER FISHER

As a volunteer fireman knows, it is extremely hazardous to fight fire with fire. This is true even where there is a government with recognized authority over all those involved, a government which can decide when and on whose property the back-fire should be lit. Within a volunteer brigade a policy of fighting fire with fire, where every fireman must make up his own mind as to when and where he will light a back-fire, leads to such chaos and is so risky that it becomes unacceptable. It is like fighting illness with uncontrolled euthanasia; in individual cases it may seem desirable but as a policy it cannot be tolerated. All told, it is better to fight lawlessness with something other than more lawlessness. It is better to fight fire with water.

Policy Suggestions

1. Continued intelligence behind the Iron Curtain for our own national information.
2. Stepped-up intelligence in South Vietnam and comparable areas in which foreign Communists are engaged in extensive illegal activity, to produce information not only for our own use but in a form which would convince the world of what is going on.

3. An admitted policy of extensive assistance to friendly governments to help them maintain law and order within their borders. To the extent possible the help should have an FBI (internal law and justice) connotation rather than a CIA (US national interests, cold war, intervention) connotation. For this purpose it might be wise to split off these operational activities from CIA, and put them under the Attorney General, perhaps within the Department of Justice.

4. Military assistance to friendly governments to help police and seal the borders where feasible. In countries where there is no open civil war such assistance can be given without the problem of raising the ante of intervention on both sides.

While undertaking all four steps on a national basis, the United States should make clear that all but the first were being done bilaterally pending the improvement of international or multilateral institutions which could carry them on. We should meanwhile press to expand the notions of a UN presence, UN technical assistance, and UN police so that they could assume more and more of these functions.

Letters To The Editor

To The Editor:

During my four years on the UConn campus, I witnessed the block-house boys, with the backing of the Board of Distrusting Trustees, gag the literary magazine, ban Arthur Miller from speaking on campus, and expel a brilliant young man who, as the paper's editor, had shocked their delicate sensibilities. Worse, I watched the majority of students refuse to speak out . . . refuse even to think!

Now the tentacles have reached into the pot again (the first time was to finance the non-student controlled Union) and made off with all but one dollar out of the ten dollars of the student activities fee which was originally self-taxed and spent.

At the same time they have gained ultimate control of student voices. The suggested board of advisors is an excellent idea . . .

and the accompanying financial stranglehold is hideous.

If you believe that you are still babes who need a firm hand in all you do, then sit in the snack bar and soak.

But if you believe that you are maturing men and women who should be trusted to handle your own affairs, and you want to retain a free paper and radio through which you can express your opinions openly, even if they are (perish the thought in today's togetherness) controversial, then protest this latest thievery with loud and clear voices that will echo all the way to the capital in Hartford or across the state if necessary.

Public Service Institute Award

The University of Connecticut Institute of Public Service was recently cited by a national organization for a publication the Institute prepared on property revaluation in Connecticut.

Patricia Stuart, an instructor in the Institute, compiled the "Guide to Property Revaluation," which won for the UConn Institute a merit award from the Government Research Association.

The citation was made for "effective presentation."

The pamphlet was designed by Miss Stuart and produced in the University's Central Duplicating Department. It was published in September 1960.

X-15 Test

California, Oct. 4 — (AP) — An X-15 rocket plane reached speeds of 3,545 miles an hour at Edwards Air Force Base, California recently in a test of the plane's ability to withstand 1,000-degree temperatures. Officials say the heat was sufficient to make the edges of the wings and other thin surfaces glow.

Give And Take

In the past few weeks there have been cries from all parts of the student body. Claim after claim has been made. Everyone is trying to rally support for their own cause. As a result the question of what the students are fighting for looms as large as ever in the minds of the people of the community and state.

The issues in doubt should be separated and analyzed for their individual merit. They should be solved as soon as possible, for the University as an institution is being hurt as a result of the continual exchange of rash judgments by both sides.

President Jorgensen has invited student leaders to a meeting tomorrow afternoon. We hope that at this meeting a solution to the present controversy will be found.

The important issues as we see them at this time are:

1. The control of all student monies by administration with a complete disregard for the concept of representative, democratic student government.
2. The refusal of the Administration to discuss the Student Senate recommended principle of a balanced Associated Student Government budget with the guarantees for administrative audit.
3. The potential for censorship in the areas of communication under the proposed Administrative fiscal policy.
4. A complete contempt on the part of the Administration for the responsible, mature suggestions and proposals by students to create a sound, intelligent student government.
5. And generally; The paternalistic attitude of the Administration towards students.

We are sure that if both the students and the Administration adopt the attitude that a solution to the problem is necessary as soon as possible, we will be able to settle the present split between the Students and the Administration.

We do not demand or insist upon any of the above stated principles, we merely wish to be given a chance to sit and discuss them with the Administration. By this we don't mean that we want to be present at a meeting and present our ideas only to be told that everything that we propose is out of the question. Leadership is a give and take proposition, and so far the Administration has been doing all the taking and the students have been doing all the giving.

Uconn History Professor Writes 'Connecticut' Book

By CINDI MURRAY

Indian battling, rum-running, law making, fighting, educating, and loving are all part of the history of our state, Connecticut, as captured by Albert E. VanDusen in his newly published book.

Dr. VanDusen, who is an Associate Professor of history at Uconn as well as State Historian, was requested by the State Library Commission in 1952 to compile a one volume history of Connecticut. Since a volume history of the state had not been published since 1914, there was a crying need for such a book.

Connecticut is the only state history of its type. The format is exciting and the writer's style is quite entertaining. At last we have a history book that reads like a modern magazine, transporting its reader through the centuries with pictures and passages that never exhaust his interest.

The author intends to show the people of our state and of other states how Connecticut came to be what it is today. He gives "extensive coverage to the period of history following the Civil War." Over a third of the book is devoted to this topic.

Research Material

Since very little has been written concerning the history of Con-

Sport Oddity

—(AP)—The New York Yankees have an unusual World Series record. They lost three of their first four series. They also have lost three of their last five series. But in between, they won 15 series out of 16.

necticut in the last 100 years, Dr. VanDusen had to resort to primary source material such as old newspapers, diaries, and personal interviews. He collected material in libraries from North Carolina to Massachusetts.

His interest in Connecticut history dates back to his college days when he chose this topic for papers and for his Doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania.

The book gives stirring accounts of well-known and not too well-known facts about the history of our state. Of interest to many students here at Uconn will be the description of the founding of our university and the pictures of it in its early days. The change is almost unbelievable.

Uconn Schedule

The daily schedule has fortunately changed from that of the past. The student rose daily at 6:30 in the morning, went to breakfast at seven; and following this reported for prayers. Lectures ran from eight to twelve, and lunch was served at 12:15. Following lunch, the students engaged in manual labor from two to four. At six they ate and from seven to nine they studied, finally to exhaustedly fall into their beds.

Connecticut, during the depression, during the war, and during flood and hurricane disasters, fills the reader with a sense of pride toward his state.

Dr. VanDusen has also included some of the problems that we face today in education, in local representatives, and in slum clearance.

The book is truly an inspiration to all thinking people of Connecticut, who after reading it will realize that "as Connecticut steps into the 1960's, it enters an era fraught with great danger for mankind and simultaneously rich with possibilities of unparalleled advancement."

SAIL ON, SAIL ON!

I suppose October 12 is just another day to you. You get up in the ordinary way and do all the ordinary things you ordinarily do. You have your breakfast, you walk your ocelot, you go to classes, you write home for money, you burn the dean in effigy, you watch Howdy-Doody, and you go to bed. And do you give one little thought to the fact that October 12 is Columbus Day? No, you do not.

Nobody thinks about Columbus these days. Let us, therefore, pause for a moment and retell his ever-glorious, endlessly stirring saga.

Christopher Columbus was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451. His father, Ralph T. Columbus, was in the three-minute auto wash game. His mother, Eleanor (Swift) Columbus, was a sprinter. Christopher was an only child, except for his four brothers and eight sisters. With his father busy all day at the auto wash and his mother constantly away at track meets, young Columbus was left pretty much to his own devices. However, the lad did not sulk or brood. He was an avid reader and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after several years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. So when rumor reached him that there was another book in Barcelona, off he ran as fast as his fat little legs would carry him.

The rumor, alas, proved false. The only book in Barcelona was Cuidar un Caballo by Aristotle, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Care of the Horse.

Bitterly disappointed, Columbus began to dream of going to India where, according to legend, there were thousands of books. But the only way to go to India was on horseback, and after so many years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus never wanted to clap eyes on a horse again. Then a new thought struck him: perhaps it was possible to get to India by sea!

Fired with his revolutionary new ideas, Columbus raced to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella on his little fat legs (Columbus, though six feet tall, was plagued with little fat legs all his life) and pleaded his case with such fervor that the rulers were persuaded.

On October 12, 1492, Columbus set foot on the New World. The following year he returned to Spain with a cargo of wonders never before seen in Europe—spices and metals and plants and flowers and—most wondrous of all—tobacco! Oh, what a sensation tobacco caused in Europe! The filter had long since been invented (by Aristotle, curiously enough) but nobody knew what to do with it. Now Columbus, the Great Discoverer, made still another great discovery: he took a filter, put tobacco in front of it, and invented the world's first filter cigarette!

Through the centuries filters have been steadily improved and so has tobacco, until today we have achieved the ultimate in the filter cigarette—Marlboro, of course! Oh, what a piece of work is Marlboro! Great tobacco, great filter, great smoke! And so, good friends, when next you enjoy a fine Marlboro Cigarette, give a thought to the plucky Genoese, Christopher Columbus, whose vision and perseverance made the whole lovely thing possible.

And thank Columbus too for the king-size Philip Morris Commander. If unfiltered cigarettes are your choice, you'll find Commander the choice of the unfiltered. Welcome aboard.

QUESTION: Do you think the recent student demonstrations have accomplished anything?

Frank Boskello,
Sigma
Alpha Epsilon

I think that they have helped to inform the students and parents of problems on this campus. But from past experiences with demonstrations at Uconn, they have not changed administration's policies, and have not helped the scholastic standings. I believe that if we had a stronger alumni association to act as a mediator we could accomplish a lot more.

Rae Lynn
Greenbacker,
Kappa
Alpha
Theta

I think that the recent demonstrations have unified the student body to a certain degree. The fraternity and independent men have joined to fight for what they want. This of course is not the objective of the demonstrations. I don't think that any amount of chanting, drumming, or horn blowing will change the stand that the University has taken.

Richard
Gilson,
Windham
Hall

Although the demonstrations have shown the administration how the majority of students feel, I think the administration will not be swayed by a mob, on the contrary, they will stand firm. Only a board of student representatives to discuss the problem of students' rights will have any chance of changing the administration's mind.

Midge
de Santis,
Stowe C

I really don't think the demonstrations accomplished anything except a little excitement for the particular students involved. And personally that wild outburst of male students coming through South Campus disturbed my sleep and frightened me. I couldn't quite understand what it was all about until it was translated the following morning.

George
Siruis,
Trumbull
House

In one respect I feel that the demonstrations have been beneficial in that they have made public to the people of Connecticut, the fact that a rather strict drinking regulation has been imposed upon the student body. But, I feel that a group of organized representatives could accomplish much more than a mob demonstration ever will. Publicity is all the demonstrations have accomplished.

Big Four Are Responsible For Solving Berlin Situation

By LEO ANAVI
Associated Press

President Kennedy, in his speech to the Assembly a few days before Gromyko's, said the U.S. is committed to no rigid formula and sees no perfect solution to the Berlin problem. He also said that the essential fact about the crisis, as he put it, is that it is unnecessary and can be settled by negotiation.

As Canadian Foreign Secretary Green pointed out today, the primary responsibility for the German question lies with the Big Four. This is because it is a legacy of World War II.

But practically every delegate has mentioned Berlin in current policy speeches before the Assembly, even though the question is not formally on the agenda. And Canada's Green went further today by suggesting specific ways in which the United Nations might be of aid in the Berlin situation.

World Attention

First of all, he said the UN could focus world attention on Berlin and leave the United States, Russia, Britain and France no doubt that they have an obligation to reach a negotiated settlement.

Secondly, Green suggested that, with Big Four agreement, the United Nations could serve in an observer capacity for all of Berlin, and on access routes to the city surrounded by Communist East Germany.

Green also proposed that the four powers might ask the United Nations to assume some responsibility for operating an international regime for the whole city of Berlin.

Green was echoing a suggestion put forward previously by Denmark that a UN agency be placed in Berlin. He mentioned the UN European office, which is now in Geneva.

Assume Responsibility

Said Green:

"If Berlin were internationalized in this way, a heavy burden would be placed upon the organization, but the United Nations should not shrink from assuming the responsibility and accepting the obligation involved."

Saudi Arabi's delegate, also mentioned Berlin today, saying it is the number one issue and that it calls for an immediate solution within the framework of the United Nations.

As things stand now, there is no question that the first point mentioned by Green is being taken care of in the current session. That is, to focus world attention on Berlin. As to specific solutions, however, no formal moves have been made in the UN.

The delegates most likely will await the outcome of discussions among the big powers before considering whether any resolutions should be formally submitted. At the same time, however, such speeches as those of Canada's Howard Green today serve as a suggestion to the Big Four of the kind of settlement which, by embodying a UN role, might provide a firmer guarantee of peace.

Federal Aid To Education To Continue 2 More Years

President Kennedy issued a statement tonight in connection with his signing of the bill continuing a limited federal aid to education program for two more years. He said:

"It will become those who insist that we cannot afford the expenditure of federal funds to aid the public education of all children to insist with equal fervor upon the passage of this unsound and uneconomical measure which aids the education of only some."

Kennedy let it be known he will be trying again next year for his broader program of federal aid to the schools.

He said the need to improve educational standards still will be before Congress and added: "That need must be met on a basis which, for every dollar spent, goes much further to attack our most critical deficiencies than the measure I am required to approve today."

With reference to extension of the National Defense Education Act, Kennedy said that the bill he signed merely continues the current program for two more years, in his words, "years which are crucial to the training of more teachers and the strengthening of this nation's teaching of science, mathematics, foreign language and other essential subjects."

The present NDEA authorization does not expire until June 30, 1962. The bill continues it to June 30, 1964. Kennedy has asked Congress to broaden this act greatly and make the authority for most of its provisions permanent; a bill to do this was approved in the Senate and House Labor Committees, but neither branch acted on it this year.

Calls for Revisions

In his statement, the President reiterated his call for revisions in the law.

He said the continuation of what he called the "discriminatory and ineffective non-communist disclaimer affidavit" is particularly undesirable. Kennedy said he hopes Congress will amend the act next year.

Far more undesirable, the President said, is continuation for two more years of the current aid to so-called impact areas, crowded by federal installations. He said it "gives more money to more schools for more years than either logic or economy can justify."

Kennedy said an air of utter inconsistency surrounds this program and this is highlighted by rejection of administration requests for changes. He added:

"The communities which beseeched the federal government to maintain nearby installations, however uneconomical, now demand that the federal government rescue them from the fiscal burdens these installations allegedly create."

Kennedy said: "Individuals who profess opposition to federal aid to education on grounds of states rights, racial or religious controversy, budgetary economy or academic freedom do not hesitate to demand this federal aid to build school houses and pay teachers' salaries in their own areas."

Aware of Problems

The President said he is aware of the problems the program was designed to meet, such as overcrowded and hazardous classrooms in communities whose financial resources are strained to educate children of people working on federal projects.

"But I believe," he said, "that overcrowded and hazardous classrooms are undesirable anywhere, whether filled by the children of federal employees or by the children of other federal taxpayers, and whether the local resources are strained by the location of a federal facility or by any other cause."

The President added: "A quality education is a necessity for all American children, not merely those who by good fortune live in a district covered by this program."

Explaining why he signed the limited bill despite this criticism, the President said the Department of Welfare told him that a refusal to extend the program at this time would defer action until the next congressional session and jeopardize the entire educational effort of a substantial number of school districts largely dependent on federal funds.

He said many districts are legitimately in need of this aid in order to educate a majority of their students whose parents live and work on tax-exempt federal property. Kennedy said a veto would not distinguish between those properly entitled to this assistance and those who should be making more of an effort locally, so he was signing the bill.

Sam Rayburn In Serious Condition

Dallas, Oct. 4. (AP.) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn remains on the serious list in a Dallas, Texas, hospital today. Rayburn is under heavy sedation and one source says doctors suspect his condition is caused by a liver ailment. Tests were started yesterday and doctors hope to reach some definite conclusions by tomorrow. Rayburn is 79 years old.

At times the House Leader barely recognized the few persons allowed in to visit him. Rayburn was taken to the hospital Monday night after failing to respond to normal treatment for what had been publicly described by his office as lumbago.

He had been at his home in Bonham, Texas, since one month before Congress adjourned. This also led to suspicion that his illness was more serious than had been disclosed.

Since returning to Bonham, Rayburn kept a heavy schedule of visitors and had been unable to get the rest ordered by his physician, Dr. Joe Risser. He was persuaded to enter the hospital for a complete check-up. Rayburn walked into the hospital, telling a friend he expected to walk out later in the week.

Observers Say Arab States Have Economic Internal Ills

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many observers who have followed recent events in the Middle East, the divorce between Syria and Egypt, have come to the conclusion that this is only a beginning to a painful transition. They say the idea of Arab unity will remain alive. They also believe that the economic struggle inside the Arab states will gain new momentum.

There is no getting away from the fact that Syria broke away from its partnership with Egypt for two reasons, economic deterioration and political disillusionment. The economic program of President Nasser has not paid off. It may do so once the Aswan power undertaking on the upper Nile is finished, with Soviet help, but that's problematical. By that time, several years, the population in Egypt will have increased to the point where new resources will not mean a hike in the standard of living. That standard has remained very low through the years.

Not Equal

On the political front, the Egyptians simply refused to accept Syrians as equals. All the political plums in Syria went to Egyptians. The Egyptian Army had primacy. Whenever a Syrian was put in a responsible position he got the silent treatment from Egyptian colleagues and underlings.

Nasser may have been aware of this state of affairs. There is some evidence that he tried to correct it. But no leader can overcome mass indifference. He is no better than the people he leads if he cannot get that much needed extra effort that will propel the country ahead.

It would be idle to speculate on the future of the Egyptian president. It will not be bright if he does not get rid of a multitude of inefficient lieutenants surrounding him. They are the cause of Egypt's continuing ills.

The only trouble here is that Nasser gets his support from them. He would still have been under the orders of the denoted Naguib, the true father of the Egyptian revolution, if it had not been for his backers.

The whole Egypt-Syrian episode is a sad commentary on the Arab world. The creation of a revolutionary wave does not constitute progress unless it is followed by practical measures and rigorous self-discipline. This has not been the case so far in the Arab transition.

Witnesses Testify At FCC Hearing On TV Sponsors

New York, Oct. 4 (AP.)—More witnesses testified today at a Federal Communications hearing on sponsor influence on TV network programming.

Roger Bolin, advertising director for Westinghouse Electric Corporation, told of a rise of nearly ten-fold in the cost per telecast of hour-long evening drama and variety shows in the past decade. He said the increase was due in part to rising station rates, and an upturn in script, talent, technical and set production costs.

The witness said the costs of time and talent for a one-hour drama averaged $21,375 in 1950 as against an average cost of $210,967 in 1960.

He said variety shows in the same period jumped in cost from $24,725 for a 60-minute show to $258,183.

He said the average cost of a one-hour western on television was $163,900 today.

According to Bolin's figures, the average cost for an evening program in a decade had risen from $23,592 to $201,950.

Six Million

Bolin said Westinghouse's 1960 sponsorship of television and radio coverage of the conventions and election night, plus a series of 9 half-hour weekly campaign programs by the Columbia Broadcasting System, cost six million dollars, whereas in 1956 the company sponsored similar programs at a cost of four million 200-thousand.

The witness said Westinghouse's decision to sponsor the conventions and election programs, which began in 1952 was based on the feeling that TV would cause more Americans to get interested in politics than ever before, and that it would help to get out the vote.

Russian Blast

Washington, Oct. 4. (AP.)—The Atomic Energy Commission says Russia has set off another nuclear test blast in the atmosphere. The shot was fired near an Arctic island and was on the order of several megatons. One megaton is equivalent to one million tons of TNT. This was the 17th blast since Russia resumed testing on September first.

Call For Ban

London, Oct. 4. (AP.)—Britain's Labor Party has called on Both Russia and the US to halt nuclear testing to prevent what the party termed "the poisoning of humanity." The party conference at Blackpool, England, also urged prompt East-West negotiations on Berlin.

Bars Soviets

New York, Oct. 4. (AP.)—The State Department is barring Soviet scientists from an American Rocket Society meeting in New York because U.S. scientists were not allowed to attend a similar meeting in Moscow.

Parker's Pen

By NED PARKER

Last weekend several surprising things happened to Uconn foes and the Yankee Conference had its first game. The 18-0 drubbing handed to the Huskies was of course the biggest surprise even though it can't be considered an upset but slightly favored Princeton was defeated 16-14 by a strong Rutgers crew. The same aggregation that will face the Uconnns this coming Saturday. Umass had little trouble in downing American International as was expected but they should have more than their share when they face Villanova this weekend. Villanova was the team that handed the Holy Cross Crusaders their first defeat of the season last weekend. Several goal-line stands by Villanova caused the lopsided, 20-6, score. A pass interception by junior Tom Hennessey resulted in the lone Cross score.

Buffalo, after two straight wins over Gettysburg 14-6 and BU 24-12, met defeat at the hands of an improved Delaware team on Saturday. And they probably will make it two in a row when they meet the angry Holy Cross Crusaders this coming Saturday. Apparently New Hampshire didn't see the prediction of the Daily Campus sage, Oristacles, for they lost to Dartmouth last Saturday. They lost bad. Next Saturday they face Rhode Island where they shouldn't take as bad a beating and I think will have a good chance to win. But then who can tell, neither Rhody or UNH has won a game yet this season.

Boston University, after a loss to Buffalo, went on to lose to Army. And it looks as if they will make it three in a row when they meet powerful Penn State this weekend. In the first YanCon game of the season the Maine Black Bears squeaked by the Rhody Rams 22-20. The Black Bears should have little trouble winning their second game of the season when they meet the Vermont Catamounts, in a non-conference game, this weekend. Don't be surprised by Vermont though.

But back to the Uconn huskies. One player on the team remarked that he was glad to see the students behind the team last weekend. He said that the team could really hear the yelling and added that he was sorry that the team put on such a poor show. Hats off to the fans anyhow and let's see more of the same.

This weekend the Huskies travel to New Brunswick for the annual contest with Rutgers. And the Scarlet this year looks even stronger than last year when they downed the Huskies 19-6 on the home field at Storrs. Back this year are such seasoned veterans as Alex Kroll and Steve Simms, both pre-season All-American candidates, and the triple threat Sam Mudie.

With possibly the finest backfield in the East, a squad of experienced ends, and strong men Kroll and Tony Simonelli up front as well as one victory under their belts the Crusaders will definitely be favored this weekend. Nevertheless I am going to stick with the Huskies. They will have a psychological advantage and they have the potential to beat any team on their schedule. I think Rutgers is going to get a big surprise from the Uconnns whatever the outcome.

The soccer season has gotten underway with the Uconnns winning their first game (2-1 over Dartmouth) and in the middle of their second as I write this. They play championship soccer and could well go to the National Tournament this year. As good as they play they will play better when the fans are rooting for them. Why not go out for the next home game and watch the Huskies play the exciting "King" of the spectator sports. The next home contest for the booters will be next Tuesday against Bridgeport, one of the top teams in the nation. Last year Bridgeport handed the Uconnns one of their only defeats of the season so the Huskies will be out for revenge. That's Uconn soccer next Tuesday against Bridgeport at 3.

Husky Harriers Meet
Yale, Brown Friday

—Sat. Football—

Coach Lloyd Duff's University of Connecticut cross country team opens its season in a triangular meet with Yale and Brown at New Haven, Friday.

Successful Year

Connecticut looks for a successful year in cross country with four of the top ten finishers in last year's Yankee Conference meet ready for the opening gun; and a couple of others have shown fine potential.

Co-Capt. Al Cross, third in the '60 YanCon meet at 24:09, and Co-Capt. Bryce Roberts, clocked eighth (24:30) are two of the strong runners who will probably provide the one-two UConn punch this year. New Britain's Dick Kosinski who was fifth (24:17) and Dick Seale of Bethel (24:39 and ninth) also scored in the YanCon meet.

Top Runners

Other top Husky runners are Carl Westberg, Hamden; Patrick Fontane, Waterbury; Paul Oberg, Cranston, R.I.; Luther Durant, Stamford; Juri Linask, Willimantic.

The varsity run is slated to start at 3:30 with the Frosh schools also involved in a triangular meet at 4 p.m.

The cross country meet between Connecticut, Massachusetts and Boston University which was scheduled for Amherst on October 13, has been changed to Storrs. The freshmen will start at 3:30 p.m. and the varsity at 4 p.m.

A 5 foot 7, 160 pound sophomore, who looks like anything but a football player, has been named college football's back of the week by the Associated Press. He is Pete Pedro of West Texas State. Pedro scored six touchdowns against Texas Western last Saturday, including two on runs of 75 and 48 yards.

Iowa No. One

For the second straight week, Iowa is the number one team in the Associated Press college football poll, and Mississippi is second. Iowa polled 24 first place votes and Mississippi 16.

Georgia Tech made a gigantic leap to third place in the poll. Tech wasn't even listed among the top 10 last week, but its 24-0 victory over Rice Saturday obviously impressed the AP board of experts.

Alabama remained in fourth place, and Texas climbed to fifth. Michigan State is sixth, Syracuse seventh, Ohio State fell to eighth, Michigan is ninth and Baylor tenth.

Yankees Top Reds On Homers

New York — (AP) — The New York Yankees won the first game of the World Series today, defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 2-0. Whitey Ford pitched a superb, two-hit shutout for the Yanks and out-hurled Jim O'Toole who also pitched well for Cincinnati. However, O'Toole was touched for home runs by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron to account for the 2 Yankee runs.

A crowd of 62,397 say the opener on a cold, windy and gray day at the Yankee Stadium in New York. Game number two is scheduled for New York tomorrow with Ralph Tefry scheduled to pitch for the Yankees and Joey Jay for the Reds.

Neither team scored in the first inning, though the Yankees loaded the bases.

The Reds had one base runner in their half of the inning when the second batter, Eddie Kasko, looped a single to short left. But the next batter, Vada Pinson, flied out and Frank Robinson struck out. That was Ford's second strikeout of the inning. He struck out leadoff man Don Blasingame.

The first two Yankees got on base. Bobby Richardson singled and Tony Kubek walked. Roger Maris and Elston Howard flied out, then Bill Skowron walked to load the bases. The threat ended when, with the 3 and 2, Yogi Berra popped up to second base.

Both sides went out in order in the second inning.

The Reds went out on three infield grounds. Yankee third baseman Clete Boyer made a beautiful play on a hard grounder by Gene Freese, the second batter, and threw him out.

The first Yankee hitter, Hector Lopez sent a long fly to right field, but Cincinnati's Wally Post backed up near the stands and caught it. Boyer popped out and Ford grounded out.

Neither team scored in the third inning.

Ford boosted his strikeout total to four by getting both O'Toole and Blasingame after Cincinnati's leadoff batter, Darrell Johnson, grounded out.

Yankee leadoff batter Richardson, singled to deep short. Kubek popped up, then Maris struck out on a 3 and 2 pitch and Richardson was thrown out trying to steal.

A home run by Elston Howard gave the Yankees a one to nothing lead in the fourth inning.

The Reds went out in order for the third straight time. After Kasko and Pinson grounded out, Ford recorded his fifth strikeout by fanning Robinson for the second time.

Howard's home run to lead off the bottom half of the inning barely cleared the low fence at the right field stands. After Skowron grounded out, Berra walked and Lopez struck out. Boyer kept the inning alive with a single to right, with Berra stopping at second. But a leaping catch by shortstop Kasko on a drive by Ford ended the inning.

Both sides failed to score in the fifth, and the Yankees continued to lead one to nothing.

Post led off the inning for the Reds with a single to left. After Freeze flied out, Post went to second on an infield grounder. Johnson grounded to Boyer at third, and the Yankee infielder tagged out Post as he headed into third. Post crashed into Boyer and sent him sprawling, but Boyer held onto the ball.

O'Toole set the Yankees down in order in their half of the inning.

The Yankees took a 2-0 lead in the sixth inning when their second batter, Bill Skowron, homered deep into the left field stands.

The Reds were retired in order in the top of the sixth. After O'Toole flied out, Blasingame and Kasko grounded out.

After Skowron homered for the Yanks, Berra popped out. Lopez walked, then Boyer sent a long drive to deep left center that was caught by Pinson.

Neither side scored in the seventh, and the Yankees still were ahead 2-0.

Ford issued his first walk in the seventh inning when, with one out, Robinson was able to check his swing on a 3 and 2 pitch. Post grounded to third, and Boyer threw to second baseman Richardson, who was pulled off the bag, but put the tag on Robinson. Freeze popped out.

Richardson got his third hit of the game in the bottom of the inning, a one out single. But Kubek flied out and Maris fouled out to the catcher.

In the Redleg ninth, Jerry Lynch batted for Blasingame and popped to Boyer. Kasko grounded out and Pinson popped up to end the game with the Yanks the winners, 2-0.

Reds Top White Sox In Fixed 1919 Series

By GEORGE VECSEY
At Sports writer

The Cincinnati Reds are back in the World Series picture again. Judging by some of the odds being quoted against Manager Freddy Hutchinson's boys, they may not be around too long to enjoy the proceedings. But the experts point out that anything can happen in a short series and the Reds may have a few surprises up their sleeves for the New York Yankees.

The lot of the Reds in the World Series has never been too happy, even though their average is fairly good.

They lost to the Yankees in the 1939 fall classic but came back in 1940 to down the Detroit Tigers in seven games.

Won In 1919

The Reds also won the World Series of 1919 by defeating the Chicago White Sox, five games to three. But there are many who are convinced that the result would have been different if the White Sox had really wanted to win that year. That was the year of baseball's biggest scandal although the details did not come out until quite a bit later.

Just what did happen in 1919?

The White Sox had a brilliant team, headed by Eddie Collins, Joe Jackson, Ray Schalk, Al Cicotte, Claude Williams, Dickie Kerr and Red Faber.

A Few Players Bribed

But some of the players on the White Sox had been approached by gamblers. There were only a few but that was all that was needed.

Players like Collins, Schalk, Kerr were among the untouchables. But players like Jackson, Chick Gandil, Cicotte, Buck Weaver and a few others apparently were contacted.

Dutch Reuther started for the Reds in the opener while Cicotte was the hurler for the White Sox. The Reds had quite a few stars on their club, such players as Luke Daubert, Heinie Groh, Earle Neale, Ed Rousch, Jimmy Bing, Dolph Luque and Ivy Wingo.

Kerr Registers Win

Kerr, who was not in on the deal to throw games, put the White Sox in the winning column in the third contest with a brilliant 3-0 effort.

Ring topped Cicotte, 2-0, in the fourth game to give the Reds a 3-1 lead in games. It was Williams again on the mound in the fifth game and once again the White Sox went down to defeat, 5-0, with Hod Eller wielding the whitewash brush for the Reds.

Kerr stepped into the breach for the sixth game and once more came through with a great game, topping Ring, 5-4.

Cicotte finally came through with a victory for the White Sox in taking a 4-1 verdict over Sallee.

Reds Had 5-2 Lead

Now, the Reds held a 5-2 lead in games and Williams was given the job of keeping the hopes of the White Sox alive in the eighth game.

But the Reds swept to a 10-5 verdict in the eighth contest and won the World Series, five games to three.

But there was little satisfaction in the victory for the Reds. It wasn't until 1940 that they won a World Series with which they could be well pleased.

Perhaps, the 1961 classic with the Yankees also will give them some satisfaction.
