Over 100 Architects Submit Med-School Plans

UConn's newest proposed addition, the medical dental school to be built in Farmington, moved closer towards actuality as it was announced that over 100 architects have submitted bids for the project.

Dean of the school, Dr. Lyman Stowe, said that he had to extend the March 1 deadline for submitting plans indefinitely because "applications are still coming in at a rapid rate."

The $30 million medical dental school is hoped to be opened in 1967.

First Bidding

This is the first time that the state has opened bidding for a new building. In the past the State Public Works Department has selected an architect through private negotiations with individual firms.

In this case the UConn board of trustees have set up a committee to study design proposals and make recommendations. Dr. Stowe said that applications have come from "some of the best known architectural firms in the nation country."

Facilities

The proposed facilities for the new school include classrooms for both the medical and the dental schools, a university teaching hospital, and housing for students and some of the staff.

Theta Chi Issues State Wide Appeal

A state-wide appeal has been sent out to the people of Connecticut by Theta Chi President Bob Wallace giving its stand on the University's recent action to withdraw recognition from four social fraternities. The following excerpts were taken from "An Open Letter To The People of Connecticut" issued to national news wires, the Hartford Courant, Time Magazine, and WDRC Hartford radio station by Wallace and John James.

Fraternities Plan Action On Recognition Decision

The University's withdrawal of recognition from four fraternities last week has not gone unchallenged. Bob Wallace, President of Theta Chi, has announced that his fraternity intends to take court action on the University's decision.

Wallace said Theta Chi was put on warning May 6, 1963, with the notification that recognition would be withdrawn "if after one year" the fraternity's membership was not at forty. Wallace contends that the University has acted two and a half months before the termination of the warning.

Representatives from the national chapter of Theta Chi arrived on campus last week to discuss the matter with University and Theta Chi officials. A statement from members of the local chapter has been sent to the national news services, the Hartford Courant, Time Magazine, and area radio stations. An interview with Hartford's WDRC was scheduled for last weekend.

Phi Ep Under Consideration

Phi Epsilon Pi has also determined to fight the University's withdrawal no "court is planned. According to President Jerry Wallach, Phi Ep went out on a technical error and is still under consideration by the University. Wallach stated that the members cards on which the University bases its house count had not been filled out properly nor kept up to date.

"We do have over forty brothers living in the house now," he pointed out, "and we also did last spring when we went on probation."

Wallach went on to say that they had been meeting with Dr. Dunlop, every Tuesday and Thursday for the past two weeks in an effort to straighten out the difficulties and get the cards in order. The national chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi is currently on campus working with the local house and Administration.

Wallach stated however, that if the fraternity regains its recognition from the University it would "not go back with IFC."

He said that Phi Ep had asked the IFC at its last meeting to withhold withdrawal of recognition until the house had straightened out its technical misunderstandings with Administration. The IFC voted down the request to rescind its recognition immediately.

The other two fraternities affected by the University's action have both put their support behind Theta Chi's move for court action. These two houses, Theta Sigma Chi and Sigma Nu Alpha, are local fraternities and do not have a national chapter to intervene.

Bill McCallman, President of Theta Sigma Chi (Shakes), told the CDC that there are forty brothers currently living in the house. One of the brothers, however, moved into the fraternity three days after the count was taken and was not accepted by the University as part of the count. The brother had formerly been commuting but was no longer able to do so.

"Kangaroo Court?"

A representative of Sigma Nu stated that there were forty-three brothers living in the house at the end of last semester but four did not return after semester break. Several spokesmen from the four houses voiced objections concerning the way the IFC meeting had been conducted which resulted in the withdrawal of IFC recognition. "Not quite according to Roberts' Rules of Order," and "kangaroo court," were among the comments made. One house stated that its spokesman had not been allowed to have the floor.

There was some feeling that the University is aiming at eventual removal of the fraternity system from campus, or at least a major reduction in the number of campus chapters. The following paragraph appeared in Theta Chi, "Open Letter To The People of Connecticut."

"Next year we understand that the Administration proposes to place further difficulties for the fraternities by making the Jungle mostly inhabited by Freshmen, allowing no Freshman Rush, raising the QPRs for eligibility, raising the official count to fifty, and finally placing the some 200 members of "dead" fraternities in the remaining "live" ones. Few houses, if any, will be able to comply. This smacks of shrewd planning that may border on the unethical."

Medical-Dental School Receives $6,500 In Grants

The University of Connecticut has received a total of $6,500 from two philanthropic foundations to help develop the management phase of its new Medical School.

The grants were made by the Merck Co., Foundation of Rahway, N. J., and the Markle Foundation of New York City. Principally, the funds will finance participation by a UConn Medical School planner in the three-month Advanced Management Program operated by Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration.

The UConn planner is Dr. William Fleeson, associate dean of the Medical School. He has been granted leave to enroll in the Harvard program starting Feb. 16, and will attend classes with policy-making executives drawn major institutions and from firms throughout the world.

Official States

An official of the Merck Company Foundation, which made the larger of the two grants, said his firm . . . "welcomes this opportunity to assist in the development of the new School of Medicine at the University of Connecticut, which we are sure will provide opportunities for a fresh approach to problems of national significance."

Dr. Lyman Stowe, dean of the UConn Medical School, said it is of "particular moment" that a member of the new school's planning staff should have this opportunity to acquaint his associates, via the Harvard program, with whatever concepts of management might be applicable "to our particular situation."

"This week has brought to light an impending crisis at the University of Connecticut. Four fraternities have been thrown out by the Administration, and have lost their recognition by the Interfraternity Council. Unfortunately, there is a great deal more at stake here.

"The fraternity-sorority system have an exceptional record for scholarship, participation in athletics, self-government, and contribute great service and funds to the community and the Alma Mater. Our alumni give nearly three-fourths of alumni funds. Now we are on the way out! And at least some of us feel that the way we have been removed raises grave doubts about the ethical standards of some of your public servants in the administration of your state university.

"Of course we may be dead wrong, as all here at UConn is rumor, suspicion, disruption, and confusion. If only Administration were clear in their own minds perhaps, we could plan the rest of the semester without disruption of our academic lives.

We are still uncertain as to our future. In the meantime(our Housemothers and chefs, and staff, (who have never been notified of these developments in advance so, as they may plan their schedules, and purchases) were all left in uncertainty and apprehension. Our pledges and brothers have suffered similarly from a confusing lack of a definite statement from Administration concerning our status and residence.

For ASG Vice-President

Charlene D'Andrea

Miss Charlene D'Andrea will be the next Vice-President of the Associated Student Government. By virtue of her being the only candidate running, Miss D'Andrea has been assured this position of major responsibility and importance for the coming year. Will she bring to the job the degree of competence which is necessary to lead the Student Senate?

Most definitely she will.

Miss D'Andrea is the most qualified person to take over the reins of senate leadership for the coming year. It is regrettable that she does not have an opponent, but the fact that she is running alone in no way detracts from her tremendous leadership potential, potential which has been proved over the past year in her position as Vice-President of the present Student Senate.

Miss D'Andrea has recognized that she has neither the knowledge nor the ability to do all herself. She knows that although it is often easier to "just do it yourself", the easy way is not the right way. She definitely recognizes that committees are the arms of the legislative and must be permitted, often encouraged, to function as such. As the past coordinator of the various committees, Miss D'Andrea will have the ability and know-how to pass on to the vice-chairman of the Student Senate, to be elected from the senate floor.

Because of the new structure of student government, Miss D'Andrea definitely has her work cut out for her. Under the new constitution, the Vice-President is the leader of the legislative branch, but also an important part of the executive branch of the government. In her dual role, she has an important part to play not only determining the direction of student government as part of the executive, but also in making that direction possible through legislation as the leader of the senate.

There must be close coordination between the President and the Vice-President if the government is to function effectively. The Vice-President must assert her own position within the executive branch in determining the direction of student government. She must then find the most effective means of implementing that decision through legislative action. She must not, however, permit herself to be merely a rubber stamp for the President's policies.

In most effectively leading the Senate, it is of prime importance that Miss D'Andrea have a thorough knowledge of parliamentary procedure. She must control the Senators through her use of the gavel and not let the body separate and run off in several directions, which it is sometimes inclined to do.

Miss D'Andrea has the experience, the necessary leadership ability, and the intense devotion to student government at the University of Connecticut. She will have to work hard in the coming year to establish a well-coordinated legislative branch of student government. She will have to cement the connections between the Student Senate and the executive. But we are confident that Charlene D'Andrea will accomplish these ends for the betterment of student government.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sad Situation

To The Editor:

I feel it's unfortunate that the ISO is in such terrible straits for candidates that it is now accepting illiterates into its fold. In a letter in yesterday's CDC it was stated by an ISO Sophomore Senatorial candidate that "the USA is supporting the North Campus change." In the CDC of Feb. 27, 1964, it was closely stated that "we (the USA candidates) feel it is as yet impossible for us to support this proposal until more information is released."

There are numerous ways you could have warped our quote, Miss Seichter, but the words cannot be changed!

You show further political ignorance, Marilyn, by stating that the USA is "content to sit back and wait for administration to come to them . . ." Why don't you, before making such innane, unfounded comments, investigate and find out how much party leaders and candidates have been doing to expose more information? Just because the USA doesn't handle student problems through social functions like riots, does not, by any means, show a lack of work being done on the issue.

The ISO has established a "self-appointed" committee to look into the North Campus issue. This shows a lack of any faith in student government by the members of that quasi-viable organization. If they desired a study committee established, is not the Student Senate the place to have it done?

As of yesterday, a committee on the Senate is handling the issue the proper way: appointments with Pres. Babbidge and others, not through childish means such as leading demonstrations.

And so, Marilyn, why not take out a couple of hours and learn about the issues before you turn screamer. You may not win the election, but you could aid student government by halting some of the ridiculous mis-quotes used so often for personal reasons rather for the betterment of the entire student body.

Sore Losers

To the Editor:

Two former fraternity men who still have feelings for their houses would like very much to thank the IFC and Messrs. Calder and Tom Chick (sic) for the strong and unified backing which it gave to four members fraternities last week. We are glad to see that the IFC has again shown close knit brotherhood, 19 being more closely knit than 23. We don't expect the IFC to say you're welcome until they ask the administration for permission to do so.

Fall of IFC

To The Editor:

Not since the demise of Greece in the fifth century B.C. or the fall of Rome in the fourth century A.D. has any group been so wrent by internal haggling as is the fraternity system at the University of Connecticut in 1964. Just as these great city-states were destroyed by internal strife, so is this great social system at UConn. Athens battled Sparta, Rome battled Carthage; but in the end even the victors were vanquished. This year four fraternities were destroyed because "they could not justify their existence", as IFC president Tomchik states. What matter of man is he, or John Dunlop, to state that men must justify themselves to make lifetime friends.

President Tomchik and his survivors of the IFC have fought off this year's attacks from the Goths to the north, but next year it is they who will be fighting for their greatness and their survival, but without the help of their dearly departed brethren. Since the beginning of time man has found strength in numbers, but lost it in the factions of those who would ascend to power, not satisfied with their status quo. They in turn were destroyed.

So it is with the Greek system. Their illustrious climb to glory will end with a fall from these new heights; a fall that will be increased by the lack of padding at the bottom, or in this case, the lack of fraternities. Good Luck to posterity.

No Fabrication

To the Editor:

I was amazed to read in Wednesday's Daily Campus that I wasn't campaigning for the position of President of ASG. I was also amazed to learn that a psychological study of me had been made, because how else could someone discover reasons for my actions (or supposed action)?

This is my fourth year of campaigning for a position in student government here at UConn. I believe I have learned that if a candidate does not show the interest in a position by campaigning hard for it, he does not deserve to be elected. However, there are many types of campaigning besides walking into a house and disrupting dinner. (Of course I have done this too.)

Anyone who doesn't believe that I have spent, and will spend, many hours working on this campaign should consult my wife, whose views, I'm sure, would differ completely from yesterdays mud-slinging.

Correction

To the Editor:

A letter appeared in The Daily Campus in which Mr. Fred Service expressed doubt as to the accuracy of a statement which I attributed to Stanley-Warner Inc. in an article "College Theater On Trial".

May I assure Mr. Service that I have no need to fabricate glorious promises made by Stanley-Warner regarding its original intention "to serve the needs and demands of the college population". Ample statements were made to this effect when the theater opened last April.

The information in my article was based on interviews with both Stanley-Warner and University officials who were both in complete accord as to whom the theater was primarily built to serve.

It seems a shame, Mr. Service, that it is only your employer who seems unaware of these intentions. Somebody ought to let him in on the secret, Fred.

Senators Represent

To the Editor:

The past several days have seen numerous Letters to the Editor concerning the question "Who Should Speak on the Senate floor". There seems to be a rather strongly held opinion that any student should be granted the floor, an opinion which leaves me quite frankly baffled.

The Student Senate is an elected body, a body representative of the students. Representative! The students elected the Student Senators to speak for them. If a student has something to say, nothing prevents him from contacting a senator from his class, or bringing his problems or suggestions before the appropriate Senate Committee. For those who feel this is not enough, well, there is always room for another interested, capable, hardworking senatorial candidate.

With Senate elections fast approaching, this issue assumes increasing importance. Voters will turn out to elect their representatives, some without giving thought to what their vote means. Ideally, it should mean that the student, after consideration of the issues, the positions taken by the candidates on these issues, and the overall qualifications of the candidates, chooses those whom he feels will best represent his interests. When we vote for a candidate we are, in effect, saying, "I want you to represent me." Why then should we expect to be heard on the Senate floor?

As usual at election time, this column sees not infrequently slurring letters, with one party growling at the other, or one candidate filling his letters with ill-concealed abuse of another candidate. Most of these letters are poorly thought out though often eloquently written, and serve no purpose but to reflect the author in an unfavorable light.

I can't understand why a person would write, "I think it is time for the BMOC's in student government to stop acting like little dieties and bring student government back to the students." If students are the candidates and students are the voters and students get elected, then to whom does the student government belong? And why should a person be referred to as a BMOC as though it were something of which to be ashamed. BMOC's are those campus leaders who are hard working and well qualified. These people deserve recognition for their efforts. The label BMOC is a badge to be worn with pride, not something analogous to bossism, as is occasionally implied. Name-calling and other childish Ad Hominem devices have no rightful place in a campaign and election. I feel the intelligent, informed candidates and voters will not have to resort to them.

I hope the UConn student will keep his mind open and in operation, so as to be able to vote intelligently and elect the best possible people to represent him.

To the Editor:

Regarding the letter of Miss Marilyn Rose of Kappa Alpha Theta on the loss of the four fraternities and her placing of the blame on the IFC.

I am happy to hear that these remarks do not represent the opinions of all of Kappa Alpha Theta. If that sorority ever gets around to forming a general opinion about anything I hope it will show more thought than you have shown.

CDC Criticized

To the Editor:

The editorial on Friday, March 6, seemed to point out one very important qualification for the president of Associated Student Government. That is a working knowledge of its new constitution. The newspaper seems to base its entire decision, unfortunately, on this one point.

When a person is being completely objective in making a decision of this magnitude, he, she, or they will look at all sides of the problem and then make the decision. It is here that, in my opinion, the CDC fails to meet its obligations to the students.

The CDC dismisses all the other qualifications of the candidates in a single sentence.

Therefore, let me state that I also have been an active member of the Senate Constitutions Committee for the past year. I am quite familiar with the new structure of the ASG and for more than two weeks have been campaigning on my own plans to implement the new constitution. Has my opponent with his supposed knowledge said anything different than I have said in regard to the constitution?

Furthermore, I believe that a willingness to work, a belief in student government, an ability to get along with various groups of administrators, faculty, and students and a belief in students as a mature group that make up an intricate part of this University are at least as necessary for the position of president. I think that if the CDC had considered all of these elements, perhaps it might have reached a different conclusion.

Ann McKinnon
ISO Candidate for President of ASG

Editor's Note: Senator McKinnon's contention that the Connecticut Daily Campus has placed its principle emphasis upon a working knowledge of the constitution is in error. The Board of Directors considered all of the points which Senator McKinnon mentioned and more, and based its decision on the firm belief that Senator Hait was more capable of implementing the constitution actively and effectively through his greater leadership potential.

Candidates For Student Senate

USA

Senior Senators

LARRY NAPPI

Larry Nappi, a Pharmacy major, is running for Senior Senator mainly on his genuine interest in student politics. His experience consist mainly in executive offices held in his fraternity.

His main reason for running is to help achieve the main items of the USA platform: the Nutmeg plan and the new split election system. He would like very much to be present to see this platform achieved.

Concerning the issues, Nappi said that he felt that there are really no issues in this election, but one point of difference between the two parties is the different methods to increase the amount of money available for student activities.

The USA party wants to add $1.50 to the students' fee per semester. This money will be used for the Nutmeg.

ANDY JUNKER

Andy Junker is a USA candidate for Senior Senator. Due to other commitments in his Freshman and Sophomore years, Andy was not active on the political scene, but feels that he could now devote his full time and energies to the job of Senior Senator.

Andy feels that this year's USA platform is an excellent one. He is particularly in favor of the new voting proposals. He feels that past ballots have been merely a barrage of names and that this new system would be more democratic. He is also strongly in favor of the Nutmeg Plan, as for $1.50 extra each student would have something tangible.

Andy says, "Once I get in, I would try my hardest and I really think I could accomplish something."

ISO

MARILYN SEICHTER

Marilyn Seichter, presently a member of the Student Senate Council Committee, is running for Sophomore Senator on the ISO ticket. She is also active on the Freshman Class Council and in her position as Representative Chairman of Community Involvement Committee.

According to Marilyn one of the most important, she feels, are the issues concerning recognition of students and Area Representation.

If elected to the Student Senate Marilyn hopes to help establish better relations between the students and the Senate through the system of Area Representation. She would also like to see the question of the additional student fee actually resolved.

BETSY TRACESKI

Betsy Traceski, ISO for Sophomore Senator, is particularly interested in establishing a system of a representation which she feels is of vital importance in creating closer ties between the students and their governments.

Miss Traceski is currently President of the Freshman floor of South Hall and has held several posts and honors during her high school career.

In commenting on the ISO plan for increasing the activity fee, she pointed out that "this is the most feasible plan and one which also provides for future expansion."

In regard to the North Campus freshman plan, Miss Traceski stated that "I don't like the idea. Given a chance it may work, but they should not experiment with the whole freshman class."

CHARLENE LISKA

At the ISO convention last month Charlene Liska, a Freshman running for Sophomore Senator, was nominated, but because of a misunderstanding, her name was not included with the published list of candidates.

Candidate Liska said in an interview that she has been interested in student government since she came on campus this past fall. She is presently a representative on the Freshman Class Council. She said that the student senate activities have interested her enough that she attends senate meetings.

Charlene feels that the student senate has lost contact with the students. She said that the communications link between the senate and the students can be strengthened in ways such as: closer communication with the political chairman of the dorms, the reporting to the dorms by senators, and a program to familiarize the incoming Freshmen with the setup and workings of the senate should work of student government. She further with other schools, with the state and national governments.

Charlene believes that there should be a continuity between the old senate and the new senate in such matters as course evaluation, working with administrators to the solving of student problems, and the fulfillment of the stipulations placed on the ASG constitution passage by the board of Trustees.

Play Review

William James' "The Heiress"

A fine production of "The Heiress" opened last Friday evening at the Harriet S. Jorgensen Theatre. The play, a well-known and often performed one, was adapted from a Henry James novel, "Washington Square", by Ruth and Augustus Goetz. The Goetz's job of adaptation was an extreme point of interest in itself, for James' works are commonly known to lack any overt dramatic action.

THE SLOW RUSH

Illustrated below is the membership pin of a brand-new national fraternity called Signa Phi Nothing. To join Signa Phi Nothing and get this hideous membership pin absolutely free, simply take a pair of scissors, cut out the illustration, and paste it on your chest.

Let me hasten to state that I do not recommend your joining Signa Phi Nothing. The only thing I recommend in this column is Marlboro Cigarettes, as any honest man would who likes good tobacco and a good filter, whose heart is quickened by a choice of soft pack or Flip-Top Box, and who gets paid every week for writing this column.

I am frankly hard put to think of any reason why you should join Signa Phi Nothing. Some people, of course, are joiners by nature; if you are one such, I am bound to tell you there are any number of better organizations for you to join—the Cosa Nostra, for example, or the Society for the Placing of Water Troughs in Front of Equestrian Statues.

Cut it out and paste it on your chest

But if you insist on joining Signa Phi Nothing, let me give you several warnings. First off, it is the only fraternity which admits girls. Second, there is no pledge period; each new member immediately goes active. Perhaps "inactive" is a more accurate word: there are no meetings, no drives, no campaigns, no sports, no games, no dues, no grip, and no house.

The only thing Signa Phi Nothing has in common with other fraternities is a fraternity hymn. In fact, two hymns were submitted to a recent meeting of the national board of directors (none of whom attended). The first hymn goes:

*Signa Phi Nothing,
Shining star,
How we wonder
If you are.*

The second hymn, rather more poetic in content, is to be sung to the tune of Also Sprach Zarathustra:

*A Guernsey's a cow,
A road is a lane,
When you're eating chow,
Remember the mein.*

Pending the next meeting of the national board of directors (which will never be held) members are authorized to sing either hymn. Or, for that matter, Frenesi.

Perhaps you are wondering why there should be such a fraternity as Signa Phi Nothing. I can give you an answer—an answer with which you cannot possibly disagree: Signa Phi Nothing fills a well-needed gap.

Are you suffering from mental health? Is logic distorting your thinking? Is ambition encroaching on your native sloth? Is your long-cherished misinformation retreating before a sea of facts? In short, has education caught up with you?

If so, congratulations. But spring is upon us and the sap is rising, and the mind looks back with poignant longing to the days when it was a puddle of unreason.

If—just for a moment—you want to recapture those careless vaporings, that warm, squishy confusion, then join Signa Phi Nothing and renew your acquaintance with fecklessness. We promise nothing, and, by George, we deliver it!

© 1964 Max Shulman

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, promise smoking enjoyment, and we think you'll think we deliver it—in all fifty states of this Union. Marlboro Country is where you are.

In his novels the big moments are not the unions and dissolutions or even the crucial decision making, but rather the intense self-probing which develops from these external events. James scrapes beneath the veneer of social interaction to reveal the inner effect on his characters' minds. And, however suited this might be to the novel, continual mental action does not work on the stage.

Yet the adapters have gone ahead and remarkably captured the essence of James the novelist while sustaining dramatic action throughout. The long passages of introspection have gone through the playwright's mind and emerged as heightened stage tension: the determined stitch of a brocade, the fatal listening to a stethoscope, and the tete-a-tete which is packed with meaning and subtle implications.

This is not to say, however, that the meat of the play was tucked behind a Victorian intercourse of manners and grace. The Goetz threw conflicting personalities head-on to define the play's central theme, should the need for love be so great as to require one's own personal integrity to achieve it.

Sophisticated Acting

The nature of this play required a great deal of sophistication in the actors. The slightest degree of insincere interpretation could turn the whole thing into a second-rate melodrama. The Theatre Department ably mustered its forces to avoid any such pitfall. All of the acting was admirable.

Meredith Elmore created a very tender portrait of the withdrawn Catherine Sloper. During her many moments of silent response, her facial expressions expertly conveyed her inner agony. And the transition from a joyous, hopeful outlook to a last act hardened reality was believably sincere.

John Hallauer, a faculty member of the Theatre Department, nicely accented the various dimensions of Dr. Sloper. He sustained a balance of conflicting emotions: as Catherine's father, he had natural undertones of love and concern; but more than that, his daughter's nature and plans galled his pride and turned his affection into a scathing bitterness. He, too, became the subtle and humorous center of an otherwise frivolous household.

Christopher Fay, as the cosmopolitan suitor, Morris, also fashioned his role very smoothly. In his interpretation, Mr. Fay underplayed the idea that sheer bastardy and cunning were an essential part of his nature, and became instead the dumb opportunist dictated by need and circumstance.

And perhaps this is how it should be done. Morris was a spineless cur; he lacked the ingenuity and imagination to be cunning. Shirlee Verrill as Mrs. Penniman was delightfully right. Miss Verrill had the remarkable talent for "thinking aloud" in her schemings and artfully prevented her role from falling into just plain corn. All of the supporting roles were handled effectively.

Design and Lighting Good

The accolades must be evenly shared with Frank Ballard and Donald Murray for the beautiful set design and effective lighting. Mr. Ballard divided the 1850 Town House into the spacious front parlor and foyer behind. Varying the influence and splendid continental imports, he used rich yellow satin draperies and gilt framed paintings to accent a drab, but elegant wall cloth.

The costumes were none the less artistically correct. Mr. Fay's wardrobe had all the smartness and grace to it as the continual diletante would require. Miss Elmore's gowns had a subdued elegance to them, quite suited to her station and character. The fringes and frills which decked a good portion of the supporting cast added an imaginative compliment to the hustle-bustle atmosphere which they created. Mr. Murray created a variety of moods with his lighting, ranging from bold sunlight intrusions to a subdued and highly effective candle light night scene.

Fraternity Party Leads To Arrest Of 37 Students

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Thirty-seven college students, nearly half of them co-eds, were arrested early Sunday in a fraternity drinking party that ranged over nine floors of a downtown Indianapolis hotel.

Fifteen co-eds were charged with entering the bedroom of a member of the opposite sex. Charges against the men included numerous counts of disorderly conduct, entering a bedroom and underage drinking plus larceny and public indecency.

One student was arrested while chasing a co-ed down a hallway in his undershorts. Police said several co-eds were dressed in negligees or less. The police paddy wagon made nearly a dozen trips to the city jail over a two hour span.

All 37 spent the night in jail. Two blondes wept on each other's shoulders as they were released on bond this morning. One redhead lamented "That's what I always wanted, a criminal police record... a good thing to tell your kids—I spent the night in the pokey picked up on sex charges. That slays me."

Vice Squad Patrolman Robert Gigure said the parties in various rooms ranged from the mezzanine to the ninth floor of the Claypool Hotel, one of Indianapolis' best-known hotels.

He added, "We could have stayed there at least two or three more hours and arrested 50 more."

Gigure said, "We would have had to get a pickup truck to haul all the beer cans away."

The students and their girl friends were among about 250 persons attending the annual statewide undergraduate meeting of the Phi Delta Theta men's social fraternity.

Police said those arrested came from Indiana, Purdue and Depauw Universities and Hanover and Wabash Colleges.

Student Counselor Application Forms Available

Application forms for men interested in being student counselors next year in North Campus can be obtained now from resident counselors or from the information desk of the Administration Building. The completed forms must be returned to the information desk by March 13. Applicants will be notified of the time and date for a personal interview.

Forty-eight men will be selected to be assigned to these residence halls designated for freshmen. Each student counselor will work with 20 to 225 freshmen. Applicants must be sophomores, juniors or seniors in September. Those chosen will return to the campus on Sunday, September 13 for a training program after which they will assist with freshmen orientation.

The advantage of participating in this program is that the counselors themselves will probably realize a significant educational experience.

New Sorority Pledges

Women students who have recently pledged sororities are Arlene Imrischak, Alpha Delta Pi; Susan Jacobson and Marianne Melnick, Delta Pi; and Sandra Lazarov, Phi Sigma Sigma.

Prayer Decision Still Boils

Nearly two years have passed since the historic US Supreme Court decision banning recitation of an official prayer in the public schools of New York.

The issue continues to boil, especially in the House Of Representatives where no fewer than 144 resolutions have been introduced which would amend the constitution so as to cancel out the ruling of June 25th, 1962.

That controversial decision concerned a prayer drafted by the New York Board Of Regents for Recitation at the start of each school day in public schools. In a 1963 decision, the high court forbid states to require Bible reading or the recital of prayers in public schools. Both decisions were based on the fundamental concept of the separation of Church and State.

All of the resolutions have been referred to the Judiciary Committee whose chairman, Democratic, Representative Emanuel Celler of New York, ordered his staff to conduct a meticulous survey of the entire question. The report now is complete and in the hands of Judiciary Committee members. Public hearings are to begin soon.

Republican Frank Becker, also a congressman from New York—and a Roman Catholic—introduced one of the first constitutional amendments to circumvent the court ruling. His proposal would say nothing in the constitution could be construed to prohibit prayers or Bible reading in public schools on a voluntary basis.

Some Volkswagen owners look down on other Volkswagen owners.

When you graduate from a Volkswagen Sedan to a Volkswagen Station Wagon, you really step up in the world. The Station Wagon stands a good foot taller than other cars. And it holds more than the biggest conventional wagon you can find. But the VW Wagon isn't only tall. It's also short. We saved 4 feet of hood in front by putting the engine in back. Big as it is inside, it's only 9 inches longer than the Volkswagen Sedan. So people who move up to the high-slung model still feel very much at home. They park in the same little spots. They still don't worry about freezing or boiling; the engine is air-cooled. They still go a long way on a gallon of gas (about 24 miles) and a very long way on a set of tires (about 30,000 miles). And it just tickles them to drive one Volkswagen and be able to look down on a million others.

Merman Sunk By Brown; End Duel Meet Season

The UConn swimming team ended its duel meet season on a sour note Saturday losing to the Brown mermen 57-37 at the Brundage Memorial Pool.

Gesswein Sets Record

Roger Gesswein, the Huskies outstanding freestyle swimmer, set a school record in the 200 yard free. Gesswein flashed to the new record in the very good time of 1:55.9. He also took second in the 100 yd. free.

Ron Davidian took first place in the diving event exhibiting fine form as he has all season. The Huskies were able to pick up only one other first and that came in the 300 yard breaststroke by Co-Capt. Dick Dempsey in 2:34.2.

Martin Shines

Bill Martin of Brown set a pool record in the 100 yd. free with the fine time of 50.0. Martin was a double individual winner for Brown in the 50 and 100 yd. freestyle events. Jim Kimlock was another double winner for Brown taking the 200 yard backstroke and medley.

The Huskies will compete in the New England Intercollegiate Swimming Championships, March 12-14 at Amherst.

The lineup has been completed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament which with preliminary rounds tonight.

One of the last NCAA berths went to second ranked Michigan of the big ten. The Wolverines clinched the ticket Saturday night with a 69 to 61 victory over Iowa. That decision coupled with a loss by Ohio State, assured Michigan of no worse than a tie for the big ten title. Michigan will close out its schedule tomorrow night in a game with Purdue. A victory will give the Wolverines undisputed possession of the title. A loss would drop them into a first place tie with Ohio State. However even if that should happen, Michigan still will represent the conference in the NCAA tournament because Ohio State went last year.

It will be a rare appearance for Michigan, The first and only time Michigan played in the NCAA tournament was in 1948. But, it wasn't around long. The Wolverines lost a first round game that year to Holy Cross.

Bill Buntin and Crazzie Russell again shared the honors for Michigan's latest victory. Buntin scored 28 points and Russell 27.

Another NCAA berth went to Duke. The fourth ranked club captured the title in the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament with an 80 to 59 victory over Wake Forest in the title game. Duke will be making its fourth trip to the NCAA event. The Atlantic Coast Conference team finished third in the national tournament last year.

Jeff Mullins was the top scorer for Duke Saturday night. He wound up with 24 points as Duke won its 23rd game in 24 starts.

Aside from Michigan and Duke only one other top ten was in action. Eight ranked DePaul beat Dayton 76 to 73. DePaul is not in the NCAA Tournament. But the Chicago team is entered in the National Invitation Tournament in New York which gets underway Thursday. DePaul will see its first action in the NIT quarter - finals Saturday night.

UConn Faces Temple In NCAA Tonight

Orangemen Rally To Defeat Huskies, 58-49

*Richards, Bing
Lead Orange;
Kimball Excels*

By GUY CARUSO

Second half blues which have bothered the UConn basketball team throughout the season cropped up again Friday night and the Syracuse Orangemen took advantage of them to come back from a six point half time deficit to win 58-49 at the Field House.

The Huskies, playing surprisingly well without standout playmaker Dom Perno, controlled the ball game with deliberate play in the early going and did a great job defensively.

Toby Kimball played an outstanding first half taking on the Syracuse men almost singlehandedly scoring 16 points and pulling down eight rebounds. Kimball dropped in seven for 10 from the floor in this half and showed amazing agility around the basket and was a demon off the boards.

Syracuse adjusted their defense in the second half and did a good job of keeping the ball on the outside and Kimball was limited to five shots and nine points this half for a 25 point total, leading all scorers.

Soph sensation Dave Bing and Army transfer Chuck Richards led the Orangemen second half rally after being checked effectively in the early going. Bing showed sharp ball - handling and passing ability throughout the game as he seemed to glide around the court similar to the style of a Cousy.

Richard, who has been averaging 22.4 ppg, one more than Bing, didn't get his first hoop until 3:45 in the first half came back with 16 points in the second half. He scored his team's last six points, four from the charity stripe, when the Huskies made their last ditch effort to pull the game out.

Soph Ken Whitney, subbing for the injured Perno, playing a fine game in relief of the co-captain and was the only other Husky to reach double figures with 11 markers. Whitney hit very good, 5 for 7 from the floor and brought the ball up well against Syracuse's pressing defense.

The Huskies jumped off to a quick 6-1 lead with Kimball getting all six points but the Orangemen tied it 10 all at 10:35 on a hoop by Bing. Two back-board jumpers by Whitney put the UConn back in the lead but this was also short-lived when Richard and Bing combined for six points to dead-lock it 20-20 at 2:39.

A jumper by Whitney and two buckets by Kimball gave the Huskies a 25-20 half time lead.

TOBY KIMBALL HOOKS in one of nine field goals he scored Friday night against Syracuse. Big Toby scored 25 points, more than half of the Huskies total score. He also pulled down 18 rebounds in the warm up game for the NCAA Tournament tonight in Philadelphia. (Campus Photo - Souden)

UConn held their half - time spread until a basket by Jim Boehm and a three-point play by jumping jack Bing tied at 33-33 with 13:37 to go. The two teams traded baskets for the next two minutes when the Huskies went into a five minute period when their game went "sour" and Syracuse forged to a ten point lead.

Dom Perno To Start; Game Not Televised

BY LOUIE MATSIKAS

The University of Connecticut Basketball Huskies will be making their ninth bid for NCAA honors tonight at the Philadelphia Palestra when they take on Temple University at 6:00 in a non-televised battle.

Perno Returns

Strengthening the Husky attack will be the return of senior co-captain Dom Perno who was forced to sit out Saturday's loss to Syracuse because of re-injured knee. Perno, who has been the director of the Husky attack all season and a veteran of many important play-off games both at Wilbur Cross High School and at UConn; is having a great season averaging 11 points, 4 rebounds, and numerous assists per game.

Kimball Leads UConn

On the scoring end of Perno's assists will be Toby Kimball who, at this time, is the nation's sixth leading rebounder with 17.4; first in scoring for the UConn with a 20.6 average; and second best scorer for one season with 473 points. (Art Quimby scored 581 in 1955)

Eddie Slomcenski will be the starting center tonight. Slom has come a long way since the beginning of the season—his big nights being the return match against UMass on Feb. 11; and the breathtaking play-off victory against Rhode Island last Wednesday night. Ed has been averaging 8.1 points and 8.0 rebounds per game this season.

Bringing the ball down with Perno will be Al Ritter who has had a fine season averaging 10.2 points and has been an effective partner with Perno in getting the ball down court and presenting a scoring threat from the outside, alleviating the pressure from the big men underneath.

DellaSala or Hesford

The fifth starter will be either 6-4 Bill DellaSala or 6-2 Dan Hesford. DellaSala started off the season well with his fine outside shooting and strong rebounding; but, the junior from Cranford, New Jersey has fallen into a slump; consequently, his starting assignment is in jeopardy.

Competing for DellaSala's position is Dan "The Spider" Hesford, a sparkplug all season—filling in every position on the floor. "The Spider" has averaged 5 points and 4 rebounds per game as well as countless steals on defense.

Temple NCAA Experienced

Temple will be making their fourth bid for NCAA honors tonight; and the Owls have had much better luck than the UConn in tourney warfare. In 1958, the Owls placed third, losing only to eventual champion Kentucky, 61-60. Also in 1956, Temple placed third, losing to Iowa who lost to San Francisco for the championship.

Seven times the UConn were turned away in the opening round. The lone opening round victory was in 1956 against Manhattan 84-75; but Connecticut's chances were cut short by Temple 65-59 in the second round.

Shabel Tourney Veteran

Coach Fred Shabel of the Huskies will be guiding his team with an outstanding record in tournament play. The young well-organized mentor has brought Duke to the NCAA four times in ten years during which Mr. Shabel had served as assistant coach under Vic Bulbas.

As for the winner of tonight's game? The winners of all three games tonight will join the Atlantic Coast Champion (Duke) on Friday in Raleigh, North Carolina to determine the finalists and also the losers of those games will play Saturday for the third place consolation.
