Student Legislature Elects Fontana To Chairmanship

Joseph Fontana, Chi Phi, is this year's senior chairman of the Uconn chapter of the Connecticut Intercollegiate Student Legislature, as a result of a recent election.

Other officers elected to this organization, which is more commonly known as the "mock," are William Hammond, Chi Phi, junior chairman; Marguerite Gory, Sprague, secretary; and Norman Ayers, Middlesex, treasurer.

17 Chapters

The CISL has chapters at 17 Connecticut colleges and universities including Yale, Trinity, Wesleyan and Connecticut College.

Last semester, over 340 student delegates from the 17 CISL chapters participated in the ninth annual session of the "mock" which took place in the State Legislature at the Capitol in Hartford.

Said Fontana: "Of the 34 bills proposed by the various delegations, the compulsory driver training bill presented by Jack Tailor, who represented the Uconn delegation, was one of the relatively few to be passed in both houses."

Aims

"The aims of CISL are two-fold: to stimulate among college students a further interest in government, and to offer the experience necessary for a practical understanding of the political activities of the General Assembly concerning state affairs," stated Fontana. "Aside from the experience obtained in participation in the 'mock,' each member is in effect a 'goodwill ambassador' for our university, since he has the opportunity to meet with and exchange ideas with students from other Connecticut colleges on a personal basis," Fontana expressed.

Interested persons should watch the Daily Campus for the date of the next "mock" meeting, according to Fontana. Applications for membership will be filled out then.

Rock Sets Confab On Social Rules

Robert W. Rock, coordinator of student activities, will conduct a meeting of social chairmen and presidents of all men's dormitories and student organizations Monday at 4 p.m. in HUB 103.

This session will be for the express purpose of informing those directing social activities on or off campus of the university's rulings regarding these activities.

To Discuss Procedures

Included among the topics Rock will discuss will be policies and procedures for scheduling on or off campus activities, reservation of rooms, and the use of equipment.

In order to aid those attending with future social plans he will also speak about sending invitations, filing activities reports, and compiling releases concerning social affairs to the Daily Campus.

A period will follow the discussion when Rock will answer any questions which the social chairmen or presidents may have.

Rock has urged the social chairmen to bring with them the packets of information which they obtained in the activities office.

Correction

The Daily Campus erroneously printed in Wednesday's issue that Senator Wendall Ellis has replaced Eric Schneider. Ellis actually has taken the seat of Stanley Fried, president of last year's junior class, who did not return to school this year. Ellis was vice-president of the class. Schneider has been reported ill, but has not resigned from the Senate.

Approval Of Committees To Be Given By Senate

By NANCY K. MASON

All committees which deal with problems concerning the overall student body here at the University of Connecticut must have the approval of the Student Senate, according to a resolution passed by the senate Wednesday night.

Constructive Aid

President John Flahive stated that the senate should serve as a liaison between administration and students where such matters are concerned. He referred particularly to the present social rules and regulations committee which is working on recommendations concerning the social rules here at the university.

According to Flahive, the committee has had two meetings and has "accomplished nothing." There are no representatives from the Associated Student Government on this committee, and therefore, Flahive continued, they could not be "fully acquainted with the problems of the students."

A representative from the Student Senate will henceforth be present at all meetings of subsidiary groups—such as WSGC, IFC, NCAC and CCAC—according to a separate resolution passed at the same meeting.

Constructive Aid

The Senate prexy told the senators they should give constructive criticism to these groups, and should know at all times what is going on within them. At present they have been functioning completely without any interference from the Senate. This has been because, until now, the senate has been somewhat "disorganized," according to Flahive.

Senators will also attend all staff and Board of Directors' meetings of the Daily Campus, the Husky radio station, the Nutmeg and the Photopool.

Annual Rope Pull Is Next Weekend

Freshmen males and coeds, your chance to doff your traditional beanies is at hand. Are you going to take advantage of this opportunity and beat the sophomore men and women? Sophomores, are you going to be proven weaklings? These questions will be answered by the outcome of the rope pull which is scheduled for Saturday, October 20 at 11 a.m.

Innovation

According to Joel Belsky, chairman of the freshman-sophomore rope pull committee, there will be an innovation in this year's proceedings. Girls are asked to join in the festivities and cheer their respective classes on to victory in this challenging event. Coeds, by participating on one of the teams, have the chance to discount the fallacy that women are weaker than men.

The rope pull committee urges freshmen and sophomores to "get into the swim of things" and strengthen this long-held Uconn tradition.

"Look For Yourself" Advice To Rushees

On the average of at least once a semester the great philosophical argument "Greek or independent?" arises on campus, and the pros and cons echo throughout the "Hill" as rush parties become the order of the day, as would-be Greeks compare notes with roommates and friends, and as The Daily Campus reads "Two Campus Leaders Give Arguments For Fraternity And Independent Living."

The words which are expended in this pursuit would fill many a five-foot shelf, but, sadly, the essence of the words for the most part would give a logic professor the DT's, and a philosophy expert a nervous breakdown. Every year, what may or not be a great philosophical argument is attacked in a childish, haphazard, mud-slinging, unqualified manner, which never seems to accomplish much other than to stir more controversy over the validity of the allegations forwarded.

This year Phil Olear and Dick Cromie mounted their respective soap boxes and continued the controversy on its same emotional, unenlightening level, and a few criticisms of what ensued are herewith presented.

In the first place, the two gentlemen mentioned do not seem well matched. Cromie, represented as the president of the ISO, controls a political office, while Olear, as president of the IFC, the fraternity governing body, does not.

It would seem more appropriate if Olear was opposed by the president of NCAC, the independent counterpart of the IFC, also a non-political organization, and a governing body, or else Cromie should have matched words with the president of the USA. However, the choice of fraternity or independent, if it is to be continued on the philosophical plane it is supposedly advanced upon, should not carry the political overtones that the words of a politician always seem to bear. In which case, the first match would seem the best.

Secondly, the allegations usually appear defensive, rather than constructive. This is perhaps in part explained by the fact that the independent champion is arguing about something which he has not experienced, and usually knows little or nothing about.

In this respect the fraternity man has the advantage, for he was an independent, in form if not in thought, before he was a Greek. But for anyone to listen to statements about fraternity life, charging loss of individuality, identity and self-assertiveness, from someone who knows nothing about the subject is ridiculous, and to be guided by such "advice" is absolutely asinine.

"Fraternity or independent?" is indeed a worthwhile question. Its answer can influence four years of college life to a tremendous degree. Further, it is the responsibility of the fraternity to clarify, to the fullest extent possible, the conditions and implications of entering the "mystic brotherhood" of a Greek letter society, both for its own benefit and the individual's. But a statistical compilation of finances and committees comes a long way from fulfilling this responsibility. Meal costs are good to know before a bid is signed, but any fraternity man will be glad to render this information on request, as it specifically pertains to his house.

To raise the question to the philosophical level it deserves, the questions to be answered should be: "What does 'fraternity' mean?", "What advantages does it hold?", and "How does it differ from independent life on the Uconn campus, both physically and ideologically?"

Perhaps the best advice Mr. Olear could have offered is "Why don't you come over and see for yourself," and the best Mr. Cromie could have countered with is "Why don't you go over and compare." This seems the only rational approach left open to a question so clouded on both sides with politics, emotions and misrepresented facts. As things stand now, the only hope of either system is the rational approach of the "man in the middle" for whom this war is being waged.

self-assertion was taken in a resolution that the Senate must have the power of approval of any committees concerned with the well-being of the student body as a whole, with specific reference to the social policies committee which is currently working on recommendations to the division of student personnel on the recently announced social rules.

The resolution maintains that a representative of the Associated Student Government should be included on the committee, since the Senate is better informed on student needs and desires than some of the committee members might be.

Whether such is the case or not, the important point is that the Senate has asserted its feeling strongly for the first time in quite a while. What will the action cause in the way of response?

Will administrative officials take the Senate's view into consideration and change the composition of this committee, and arrange for Senate participation in other groups? Will they allow the Senate to become a strong undergraduate governing body and to take an active part in formulation of policy?

Or will the efforts merely be ignored?

Senate In Action

Senator George Coates' motion of a week ago that the Associated Student Government dissolve itself has served its purpose, it would seem from Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

The Daily Campus did not support Coates' bill literally, but it has long maintained that the Senate has degenerated into little more than a glorified debating society rather than a functioning student government.

The WSGC, IFC, NCAC and various organizations have been left to their own devices in legislating and executing powers which should belong to the Senate. The Senate's only serious function has become the passing out of money to the various groups.

Even in this the governing body has at times seemed lax, with little dispute, or even comment, on budgets presented to it.

However, Coates' startling motion has apparently jogged the group to action. At Wednesday's meeting the Senate voted that official representatives of the Senate must be present at meetings of subsidiary organizations in the various areas of the campus.

Another important step in the Senate's

THE INQUIRING PHOTOGRAPHER

By ART COLEMAN and DAVE JACOBSON

A week ago the HUB was crowded with students strolling through its halls to view the many exhibits set up for the annual Student Senate Activities Fair.

The inquiring photographer caught the following shots of students viewing the varied displays and our reporter recorded their comments on which booth they thought was best.

Adrienne Zysk, Unit 2-C.

"I liked the Women's Recreational Association's display best. I'm very interested in sports, so I'm a little prejudiced toward that particular display."

Charles Short, Woodward House.

"The Pistol Club exhibit. Guns fascinate me. There's something about pistol shooting that makes it more competitive than other team sports. I get a real satisfaction from shooting a good target."

Saib Ahmed, Grange Hall, a mechanical engineering student from Bagdad.

"The Block and Bridle show. I live in Grange Hall, so I've gotten to know students in agriculture. I am interested in what they do."

Gerald Grant, Alpha Zeta Omega.

"Photopool, because photography has been my hobby for years. I think it was one of the most versatile layouts and the equipment was interesting, some of it different and new. As a matter of fact, I just signed up to join."

Harriette Dougherty, Holcomb Hall.

"The Aviation Club's, I'm very interested in traveling, so the club fascinated me. I'd like very much to learn to fly."

William Meehan, Litchfield Hall.

"The Ham Radio Club's, because that activity gives people a chance to talk with persons all over the world. You can meet with people and become friends without actually seeing them. By these contacts, you can find out what's going on around the country."

Rosalie Barnett, Unit 6-A.

"The Judo Club. A girl should have some means of protecting herself. I'd join the club, if they had a section open for women students."

Patricia Baumes, Unit 6-A.

"The Fencing Club, their activities provide good exercise, and they develop poise and bearing. Then, too, I enjoy the informality of their functions."

Joseph Lewis, New London Hall.

"The Aviation Club's exhibit, mainly because I enjoyed their film on helicopters. I'd like to join the club, because one of the reasons I'm enrolled here is the advanced ROTC program with the Air Force. I want to be a 20-year man."

John Murray, New London, freshman.

"I liked the Fencing Club. I liked the cultural aspect of it as well as the exercise it provides. I liked the casualness of the group, too."

From Our Readers

To the Editor:

Attention, Student Body:

On Sunday and Monday evenings, Oct. 7 and 8, there occurred an exchange of activities between the student bodies of the University of Connecticut and the University of Massachusetts—probably sparked by the forthcoming football game on Saturday, Oct. 13.

As a result of these activities, certain damage has occurred to buildings and grounds on the University of Massachusetts campus—presumably due to the actions of certain students from this campus.

Such activities as these frequently are not conducted in a reasonable and safe manner and may lead to action both by civil authorities and the University Administration. Acts of vandalism and destruction to property tend to reflect discredit upon college students and the schools with which they are associated.

Also, the travel between campuses during the hours of darkness in automobiles under hazardous traveling conditions may result in injury or death to students.

The student body of the University of Connecticut is requested to refrain from further activities of this nature in order that serious acts of vandalism or automobile accidents may not result from such activities and thus that students do not jeopardize their good standing with civil courts or University administrative offices.

We have received information from the Dean of Men of the University of Massachusetts that Jonathan is being returned to the University Campus as of today. (Oct. 9)

Sincerely yours,

Reuben B. Johnson,
Asst. Director Student Personnel

To the Editor:

We were very pleased to note your picture on page 6 of the Monday paper, in which a new Army weapon was shown. It gives us a feeling of relief to know that our University ROTC Units have been issued the new Horizontal Mortar.

One question that arises, however, is "Where is the aiming stake?"

Respectfully,

Co-ordinated Greek Activities

Hi-lite IFC's Plans For Year

By KENT McKAMY, Heeler

Each Monday evening at 7:30, President Philip Olear calls the Interfraternity Council to order. With a complement of 92 members, the I.F.C. is an organization designed to govern and administrate the affairs of its 23 member fraternities.

Organizationally, the I.F.C. is made up of four delegates from each fraternity: the president of the house, the vice president, and two other members. The president of the house is the only one with voting powers, but in his absence, the vice-president may assume this duty.

Although they have no real power, the non-voting delegates from each house are important to the I.F.C. in that they handle most of the committee work that is necessary to the organization.

Regular attendance at the I.F.C. also trains these delegates, for it is from their ranks that the future officers of the I.F.C. are chosen.

New Rushing System

One of the major activities of the I.F.C. last year was to draw up a new constitution. In this constitution, provisions were made for an entirely new rushing program.

This new system of rushing is one of the major objectives of the I.F.C. this year. Designed specifically to solve the sagging all-fraternity scholastic average, the program this year allows freshmen to rush only after their first semester grades are in.

This not only allows the freshmen more time for their studies in their first, and frequently most difficult semester, but it permits the fraternities to get a more complete picture of the rushees. So, instead of letting the freshmen rush with only a half-semester's grades and work behind them, the I.F.C.'s new program delays freshman rushing until the beginning of the spring semester.

Strives For Unity

The I.F.C. also plans to unify Greek activities this year and to co-ordinate these activities with rushing. A committee has been established to effect this co-ordination, and in addition to the annual Greek Sing, the Alpha Sigma Phi banquet and the I.F.C. picnic, it will bring the temporarily extinct Greek Letter Dance back into existence.

Incorporated in its plans for the year, too, is the sending of delegates to the annual National Interfraternity Council convention. Held last year at the Hotel Jefferson in St. Louis, Missouri, the convention this year will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York City.

Increased Delegation

Because of the proximity of the convention to the University of Connecticut, the I.F.C. plans to send four men to New York, instead of two as in last year's case. In addition to President Phil Olear and Vice-President Bob Platt, the I.F.C. will send two juniors to the convention, both for training purposes and to compile and deliver the report to the I.F.C.

President Olear is a seventh semester engineering major and is a brother of Theta Xi fraternity. One of the achievements of which he is most proud is his election to Pi Tau Sigma, the national honorary society for Mechanical Engineers. He was also the only delegate, aside from former president Bob Neal, to attend the N.I.C. convention at St. Louis last year.

In his freshman year, he wrote the constitution for the Freshman Student Council. Phil entered dramatics in his sophomore year, playing the part of Hindley in Bronte's Wuthering Heights. Last spring, Phil was vice-president of his fraternity.

Prexy's Plans

His most notable achievement, aside from the presidency of the I.F.C. and his selection for Pi Tau Sigma, was his election to the Archons, the university's honorary society for outstanding senior men. Phil is most interested in doing research in Mechanical Engineering. After his graduation this June, he plans to come back to the university next year for additional training in the graduate school of Mechanical Engineering.

Uconn's Library Has Most Appeal

Judging from a pamphlet issued by the Ohio National Bank, it might be safe to assume that the Uconn library is the most appealing of any on 94 college campuses across the country.

The Wilbur Cross Library, complete with University students lounging on the steps and walking up the approaching sidewalks, was pictured on the cover of a brochure recently issued by the concern.

In an attempt to secure new accounts for their college club saving program the bank listed the names and approximate costs of 94 colleges across the country.

The institutions were selected at random to cover most geographical areas and include small and large men's, women's and co-educational institutions.

Chairman Gives Schedule Of Homecoming Events

Events for the Annual Homecoming Weekend have been announced by the Student Senate's chairman of the 1956 alumni committee, Natalie Walters, Pi Beta Phi.

A meeting of the Alumni Associations Council will be held Saturday morning, Oct. 20th at 10 o'clock. Judging for the display will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. According to Miss Walters, the judges have not yet been chosen.

The University of Maine will be Uconn's opponent in the Memorial stadium in the afternoon. At the game the display winners will be announced. Immediately following the game until 5:30, there will be a coffee for the alumni in the HUB Reception Lounge and in the various living units on campus.

Laurence J. Ackerman, Dean of the School of Business Administration will be the speaker at the Alumni Dinner in the Main Dining hall at 6:30.

Bob Halprin's Orchestra will be featured at the Student-Alumni dance in the ballroom of the Student Union from 8:30 to 12:30. There is no admission charge.

Jorgensen Names Two New Faculty

Two men, who have gained national recognition for research work in the field of electrical engineering, have been named to the faculty of the University of Connecticut School of Engineering, President A. N. Jorgensen has announced.

Both men have been appointed associate professors of electrical engineering at the U of C.

Dr. Clarence W. Schultz has served as director of microwave research for the J. B. Seeburg Co., Chicago, and has as his field of study the special theory of metals and semi-conductors.

Dr. Schultz, a distinguished student at the University of Minnesota, received a Master's degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the field of acoustics. He obtained his Ph.D. at Northwestern. During World War II, he was on the radar school staff for the Navy at MIT.

Dr. Vincent B. Haas Jr., member of the research staff at MIT, is a specialist in the field of electronic computers and controls. He was educated at Terre Haute, Ind., and received his Sc.D. degree at MIT.

The appointment marks a return to the U of C faculty for both men. Dr. Schultz served as assistant professor on the engineering staff from 1948 to 1951, and Dr. Haas was at Storrs as assistant professor from 1950 to 1953.

Ivry To Continue Series Of Hillel Brunch Talks

David Ivry, assistant professor of insurance, will be the third speaker in the series of weekly breakfast Sunday mornings at Hillel. "College Life and What Does It Mean" will be the title of his talk, as a part of the overall theme of the series, "Authors, Arts and Issues."

The breakfast which are open to all students, begin at 11. Last Sunday, Ralph Eckhart, professor of family relations, spoke on "Changing Values." Rabbi Eisenbach opened the series two weeks ago.

This week breakfast is sponsored by Phi Epsilon Pi. The charge is 75 cents for non-members, 40 cents for Hillel members.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young mathematician helps pace engineering advances

Recently General Electric developed a compact, new motor for industrial use. But before the motor could be put into automatic production, one difficulty remained: to design a protective end shield that would confine any possible explosion to the motor itself.

The man who solved the tough mathematical problems involved is R. A. "Pete" Powell — a mathematical analyst whose job is to assist other engineers in math problems which arise in any number of different projects.

Powell's Work Is Varied and Important

Because he is not tied down to any one project, Powell seldom has two similar assignments. Taking established engineering and mathematical principles, some of them extremely complicated, Powell applies them to advanced engineering problems. In doing this, Pete is able to make such calculations as the distortion of a small part of a jet engine caused by vibrations, the deflection occurring in a turbine part when it runs at operational speeds, or the forces exerted upon a rotating shaft by lubricants.

27,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When "Pete" Powell came to General Electric in 1953, he already knew the kind of work he wanted to do. Like each of our 27,000 college-graduate employees, he is being given the chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: Whenever fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits — the individual, the Company, and the country.

Huskies Face Redmen In Conference Game

Pigskin Pete Picks...

This weekend, the World Series being concluded, college football takes over the sports limelight. Several key contests are on the docket. Michigan, after losing a hard-fought battle to Michigan State should bounce back and edge Army in a tight game. Oklahoma should continue its winning ways at the expense of Texas and our own Huskies are ready to wallop the always-tough Massachusetts Redman. My weekly specials from now until the end of the season will be my last three choices.

Stieglitz Sets Pace In X-Country Victory

UC Booters Meet Umass Tomorrow

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again." The Uconn soccer team will be doing just that in seeking that elusive first victory at Amherst tomorrow against the University of Massachusetts.

Captain Doug Allen and his team-mates will have more incentive than trying to break into the win column. After all the intensity that has been stirred up between the two schools in the past week the Husky booters would like nothing better than to beat the Redmen in their homecoming game.

Improved Offense
Prospects for a victory Saturday look good. The Huskies, by virtue of their second-half play against Wesleyan, seem to have found themselves and are beginning to show great improvement, especially in offensive play. The return of starting fullback Mark Shipman to the club after recovering from an ankle injury also brightens Uconn hopes. Outside of Shipman however, the Blue and White lineup will be the same as last week.

By MARK HAWTHORNE
The weather at Springfield was rather chilly for picnicking Wednesday, but that's exactly what the University of Connecticut's cross-country team did, romping to an easy 15-50 victory over Springfield College.

Stieglitz Sets Record
The leader of the varsity squad was the Connecticut Comet, Lew Stieglitz, who tripped merrily across the finish line for his tenth consecutive win, 40 seconds better than the previous record-holder, Paul Firlotte of the University of Maine, who set the record last year. Not to be outdone, teammates Allen Frazier and Charles Dyson also broke the old record.

Stieglitz's time for the 4.1-mile circuit was 21 minutes, 28.5 seconds. Firlotte's standard-setting clocking in 1955 was 22.08. This marks the second straight course record Stieglitz has shattered so far this season, having eclipsed Yale's mark last week. He is currently running much faster than he did in 1955 when he wound up his own, and Uconn's undefeated season with a personal victory chain of eight.

Leading Seven Runners
Connecticut harriers swept the first seven places in the varsity race, Dick Keeler, Herb Congdon, Charles Cohen and Cliff Stolba backing the front-running trio of Huskies.

The Blue and White runners led throughout, with Frank Reuter the only Gymnast who gave them any trouble for domination of the front positions.

The Comet, as usual led everyone everywhere. Commenting after the race he said, "I felt fine, better than I did against Yale last week, but didn't realize I had a chance at the record until the last mile, when Coach Lloyd Duff gave me my time. Then I really started to push."

Added Handicap
Duff himself didn't realize how well Stieglitz was running because his personal stop-watch was 30 seconds fast, adding a half minute to Stieglitz' time "en route." Even with this unofficial handicap Stieglitz would have broken Firlotte's old mark.

The Uconn freshman also enjoyed themselves, taking six of the first eight positions for an 18-40 rout of Springfield College.

A large homecoming crowd is expected tomorrow afternoon at Alumni Field in Amherst, Mass. where the Umass football team will play best to arch-rival Uconn in the Yankee Conference opener for both schools.
The 2 p.m. kickoff will commence the 57th meeting between the two opponents, the first game having been played in 1897.

UMASS QUARTERBACK Tom Whelan will be doing most of the passing for the Redmen in tomorrow's homecoming battle with the University of Connecticut at Alumni Field in Amherst, Mass. The opening kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

Soccer Pups Lose Opener

Even in defeat, the Uconn freshman soccer team looked sharp against the more experienced squad from Westover Air Force Base. Only a penalty kick scored by the Flyers' captain, Joe Vide, in the third quarter with a little less than three seconds left in the period, made our team a loser.

Strong Passing Attack
In a losing cause, the Huskies showed a brand of soccer which was greatly appreciated by the spectators and indicates that the rest of the season may bring many good results. Uconn's passing attack, led by Patterson and Edmonds and Gino Valentino's shooting, was working near perfection and only an outstanding goal-netting performance by the Flyer's goalie, to LeBlanc, prevented our team from gaining a well-deserved victory. LaBlanc had a busy afternoon and stopped at 35 shots.
The Flyer's attack was checked by our defense, led by little Maurice Trujillo, who played a brilliant game. Along with Maurice, the team's "inexperienced goalie" showed remarkable courage and with more games under his belt should be in a real class for himself.

The Redmen hold a 15-11 edge over the Nutmeggers in the long 60-year series between the two state universities. However, in the current set of games, which dates from 1952, the Huskies have won three times while losing but once. Coach Bob Ingalls' sole defeat to the Bay Staters was in a similar homecoming tussle in 1954 when the home club staved off a late Husky rally to score a 20-13 triumph.

Uconn Victorious Last Year
Last year it took an end-of-the-game miracle to preserve an 18-13 win for the Blue and White in still another Homecoming game at Memorial Stadium. With less than one minute remaining in the game, speedy halfback Dick Wright of the visitors had raced past every Uconn defender but slipped and fell inside the 20-yard line, which saved the game for the Huskies.
The Redmen will enter tomorrow's fray still looking for their first win of the season. They were tied by A.I.C. in their opener and then defeated 19-6 by Boston University in a night game at the HUB City two weeks ago.
The Huskies, with a 1-2 record, will probably be listed as the pre-game favorites on the strength of last week's trouncing of Rutgers and a close 19-14 defeat at the hands of powerful Yale.

All-American Coaches
Both coaches, Charlie O'Rourke of the home team and Bob Ingalls of the Huskies are presently in their fifth seasons at the helm of their respective schools. Both men are former All-American performers—O'Rourke as a passing quarterback at Boston College under Frank Leahy in 1940 and Ingalls as a standout center at Michigan in 1942.
With the help of a good sophomore group, the Umass eleven has speed, depth and experience in a senior-dominated backfield. Halfbacks Wright and Charlie Mellen are among the fastest backs in the state to the north and the team has a top-notch passer in quarterback Tom Whelan.
In their forward wall the Redman have three standout veterans in center Buzz Allen and co-captains Dave Ingram and Jim Dolan at end and guard, respectively.
Coming out of last week's game against Rutgers without any serious injuries, Ingalls will start the same team that has been carrying the load since the Springfield game at the start of the season.

Speedy Halfbacks
It could prove to be quite a running battle with Gene Green and Lenny King of the Huskies matching their speed against Mellen and Wright.
Both Bill Boehle and Gerry Dooling will be ready and are expected to see plenty of action against the Maroon and White.

Both teams, along with Maine, have been mentioned frequently as possible holders of the Yankee Reanpot when league play ends Nov. 17.
Since defending champion Rhode Island has already lost to both Maine and New Hampshire and the latter two are playing each other tomorrow in Orono, Maine, the winner of the Uconn-Umass game could move into second place in the conference standings with a victory.

Expand Programs For Labor Jorgensen Urges Educators

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—Labor wants education, prosperity and peace for every segment of our society and not just for labor alone, President A. N. Jorgensen told the American Council on Education in Chicago last night.

Speaking on "Higher Education and Labor," Dr. Jorgensen told the ACE's 39th annual meeting that more specifically for labor "the colleges and universities of the country and particularly the land-grant colleges and universities will increase emphasis on worker education."

He said that "a labor extension program somewhat along the lines of the long established agricultural extension program is surely within the realm of possibility" and stated that institutions will develop educational programs for line staff representatives or labor organizations, local labor officers, labor education specialists and rank and file members.

"These institutions working with labor organizations will also plan and conduct case studies and research programs on problems of concern to labor and in the common interest," he said.

"The primary goal of such a workers' education program," he stated, "is to enable the worker to play his full part as a member of the nation's labor force to participate intelligently in a free society and to develop a sense of responsibility toward the community and the free world."

Dr. Jorgensen also pointed out that the purpose for which state universities were established seems to have been forgotten.

"State universities and land-grant colleges were established to provide an opportunity for all those possessing the requisite ability to obtain a college or university education," he said. "Suggested changes indicate that this unique characteristic of the publicly-supported institutions is being undermined."

In the outcry to save public funds at any cost, the human problem has been overlooked, the theory of a free and open society has been forgotten, he said.

Northerners Probe Segregation Issue

GRENADA, Miss. (UP)—Sharply contrasting reports emerged yesterday from New England newspapermen touring Mississippi to learn the truth about the South and its segregation problem.

One editor, who talked with Negroes he met, reported they apparently had been "brain washed." Another called the "furor" over the Negro's plight in the South a result of outside "propaganda."

The visiting editors and publishers, mostly representing weekly newspapers, are making a week long tour as guests of the state of Mississippi.

Editor J. Clark of the Weekly Foxboro (Mass. "Reporter said he believes much of the furor stemmed "from carefully planned propaganda designed to impair human relations."

Samuel was impressed by tour-sponsors' assurances that Negroes and whites in Mississippi are "living in compatibility" and with "fine colored schools in the towns visited so far."

Managing Editor, John P. Kelly of the Bridgeport Sunday Herald said the Negroes he interviewed thus far "have apparently been so brain-washed by generations of white supremacy that they don't care if they go to schools with white people or not."

Recorded Music Session

A second recorded music session will be held Sunday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. The program of classical music will be presented by the HUB Cultural Committee in the Music Lounge.

Included in the program will be selections from Mozart's Symphony No. 35, Eine Kleine Nachmusik and piano concertos by Mozart; 15 and 20.

Stevenson Supporters Meet

The initial meeting of the University of Connecticut Students for Stevenson was held Wednesday night in the Student Union for the purpose of organizing. Jack Taylor, Chi Phi, presided at the meeting.

No definite action was taken but plans were proposed for a debate with the Young Republicans and a campus-wide mock presidential election.

The objects of the organization, according to Taylor are "to foster and stimulate student interest in the workings and ideals of the democratic way and to coordinate the activities of individuals who want to get Adlai E. Stevenson elected president."

Taylor emphasized that the organization is in no way connected with the Democratic party, but is an independent nationwide group to help Stevenson.
