ABORTION RIGHTS MOVEMENT
OF WOMEN'S LIBERATION

Dear Friends: February 23, 1979

THE LIBERATION OF WOMEN MAY NEVER BECOME A REALITY. Unless women control their own bodies, then the ERA, equal job opportunities, and all the rest are meaningless words. And we don't have control over our bodies unless women are the ones to decide if and when we're ready—physically, emotionally, financially—to have babies. Abortion is a woman's right—not a population control tool or a solution to a social problem.

In 1973 the Supreme Court made a decision to make abortion available to all women. But abortion rights are slipping away from us. The erosion of abortion rights began with the 1977 Hyde Amendment, which provided government funded abortions only in cases of rape, incest or very limited medical circumstances. Right now early abortion is available to women who can afford to pay and to women receiving Medicaid in seven states. In the remaining states, abortion for poor women is either available under very restricted circumstances, or judicial decisions to include restrictions are pending. Later abortions are becoming harder and harder to get for all women, whether or not they can pay. Some U.S. Congressmen are seeking to have abortion outlawed completely. If this trend continues, abortion will not be available to any woman in the not too distant future.

And the reason abortion is slipping away from us is because if women can control their bodies, they may truly become liberated. And, unfortunately, not everyone wants women to be liberated. (It is interesting to note that withdrawal of public funds for abortions for economically disadvantaged women has occurred at the same time that funds for sterilization of poor women is being increased.) As women, we will never get control of our lives until we have control of our bodies. And abortion is the bottom line in control of our bodies.

As concerned feminists, we invite you to join in the formation of the Abortion Rights Movement (ARM), a national feminist organization to fight for abortion rights for all women. We need money and we need you to act with us. If you are concerned about the liberation of women, we ask that you become a member of ARM, and that you come and demonstrate with us on March 31 for the revitalization of the Abortion Rights Movement. We can be reached at 936-7219.
